NEW GOVERNMENT FORMED AND THE CONSTITUTION

Which King Alexander Revoked Last March Was Restored The New King Being Garded—The Serbian People Are Quiet

Belgrade, Serbia, June 11.—King Alexander and Queen Draga were shot to death in the Royal palace during the night.

The dead was carried out by the army.

Behind the King and Queen, Premier Markovic, General Petrovich, and former Minister of War Pavlovich were shot.

London, June 11.—Mijatovich, Serbian Minister at London, confirms the reported assassination of the King and Queen of Serbia.

Cologne, June 11.—A private telegram from Belgrade, Serbia, states that the army last night proclaimed Peter Karageorgievich to be King of Serbia.

The troops immediately surrounded the Royal palace, where they assassinated King Alexander and Queen Draga. The assassination of the King and Queen occurred between 12 and 1 o'clock this morning.

The bodies of the King and Queen remain at the palace.

London, June 11.—The tragedy of the palace at Belgrade, marking the latest of the revolutions which have convulsed Serbia from time to time during the past century, is not regarded in diplomatic circles in London as likely to lead to civil war. It is said on the contrary that King Alexander since his marriage to Queen Draga, King Alexander's successor, Prince Karageorgievich, is a descendant of the Prince of Montenegro, and is regarded as being most acceptable to the people.

The universal anxiety of the Governments of Europe for peace advanced as a reason why the Serbian situation is not likely to lead to complications. Should, however, the unexpected arise official circles think the Austro-Hungarian army will immediately march into Serbia and restore order. This eventually, however, is considered improbable.

ABDUCTION ATTEMPTED.

Cologne, June 11.—The Cologne Gazette prints a despatch from Belgrade which says a story is current there that the late King Alexander was recently considering effecting a abduction from Queen Draga, and that the latter, becoming aware of this, planned preventive measures.

Some high military officers last night, the despatch adds, entered the palace and tried to carry off the Queen by force, but encountered a resistance on the part of the Queen's partisans, and in the fierce struggle which followed the King and Queen and their respective supporters were killed.

London, June 11.—The latest domestic trouble between King Alexander of Serbia and Queen Draga is said to have been caused by the latter's alleged infidelity. The King, who is described as being a very handsome man, was said to have been long ago, so the story goes, the Queen discovered his Majesty and her sister making love to each other secretly, that she could not restrain her feelings and it is said that she scratched the King's face so badly that he was unable to attend the usual reception of the diplomatic corps and the members of Parliament on the following day. It was then reported that Alexander would apply to Parliament for a divorce, and, after getting rid of Draga, he intended, of course, to marry her more attractive sister. If they were ordinary people such an affair would be regarded as a scandal, but in Serbia it became a matter of politics, because there was no heir to the throne, and no prospect of one. The doctors here said that Queen Draga could not have a child and the failure of the King to provide a successor to the throne was of serious importance. Therefore advice was encouraged by the Serbian Ministry, first, because of a hope that a second wife might have children; and second, because everybody in authority hated Queen Draga and would welcome her downfall.

EXCITEMENT IN BELGRADE.

Belgrade, June 11.—At the morning advanced the excitement in the streets grew steadily, in spite of the pouring rain thousands of people gathered in the vicinity of the palace. Everywhere troops were posted, and field guns were placed in positions to quickly deal with any opposition to the newly-formed Government's will. The soldiers discarded their cockades, leaving the late King Alexander's cipher, and substituted for it their own. Bands of young men paraded the streets waving flags, and shouting "Long live Karageorgievich!"

are flying from nearly every house in Belgrade, and there is absolutely no display whatever of crops or other signs of mourning. The Royal standard has been lowered from over the palace.

Reports from places outside Belgrade indicate that the country is in a state of complete anarchy, the Obrenovitch dynasty without regret.

THE INTEREST GREAT

Mr. Chamberlain Asked to Relieve the Pope.
Rome, June 12.—Ministerial organs and many members of Parliament are pressing Mr. Chamberlain to relieve the present political tension by explaining the reciprocity proposals in fuller detail and also his expectations as to lines of international action.

The Standard, the Government organ, admits the desirability of what it calls the "vague promulgation of an ideal," and says the subject can be intelligently discussed and wisely determined only after a careful examination of all authoritative data.

THE B. C. ELECTION CAMPAIGN

gates, but it was unfavorably received.

The beautiful silver cup presented by the Provincial Council last March to the Queen showing the largest increase in membership in six months during 1902 was won by Perth, and delegates from that city were proud to have the cup in exhibition at the convention.

Rev. Father McGuire regrets that appointed Vice-Chief Ranger, is a "man from Glasgow," and very popular among the delegates.

"You have a 'progressive' town here," said Mr. Chisholm, of Cornwall this morning. All of the delegates were well pleased with their visit to Peterborough.

Mr. R. J. Spoor, Warden of the County of Frontenac, was inviting some of his friends to spend a day with him in Kingston. "We'll show you something that will interest you in the historical line," he said, "and also the grave of the only man that ever lived in Canada—Sir John A. Macdonald."

Nearly all the delegates left for their homes this morning.

The fact that the session lasted all night is evidence of the enthusiasm and interest which the delegates displayed in the business of the convention.

It is said that the opinion expressed by men from the east in regard to Peterborough sounds much better in French than it does in English.

Mr. Spoor was greatly interested in the great work of the T.A.S., and he thought they should either have an elevator to their rooms or move to the ground floor.

The convention delegates were the Ontario and the National.

Members of St. Peter's Church are well satisfied with the outcome of the convention, and are to be congratulated for the reputation they have established as entertainers.

TO PREVENT A REFUSAL

President Loubet May Not Ask Pope to Relieve Him.

Rome, June 12.—The negotiations between the Vatican and France regarding the attitude to be assumed by President Loubet towards the Pope during the President's coming visit to Rome are at a standstill. The Vatican hopes a change will occur by France modifying the situation. If no change takes place the Pope will not visit Rome, and will ask to see the Pope, thus avoiding a refusal, which would necessarily bring about a rupture between France and the Vatican. The authorities believe that the Pope will not visit Rome, and that the French Republic will be refused.

HANGED, BURNED AND BEATEN BY LYNCH MOB

As Kilt on of Indiana Convicted at an Offense Lynching.

Belleville, Ill., June 10.—The lynching of W. T. Wyatt, the negro school teacher who shot Superintendent Herfel for refusing to renew his teaching certificate, was attended with exhibitions of savage ferocity seldom seen in a civilized country.

The mob hanged Wyatt to a telephone pole in the public square. While his body was jerking in the agonies of death, men built a fire at the foot of the pole. The flames flared up and licked at the feet of the victim, but this did not satisfy the mob, and another larger fire was started. When it had been burning brightly the negro still half alive, was cut down, and after being covered with coal oil, he was cast into the fire. Moments of pain were heard from the half dead victim as he was being lowered to the ground to infatuate his torturers.

They fell upon him with clubs, knives, and cut and beat the burning body all pieces, and not until every sign of life had departed did they permit the flames to devour the body. As the fire licked up the scene the members of the mob stood around the burning pyre, waving more targets of blood in the flames. After the body had been reduced to ashes the mob departed.

Herfel was removed to the hospital where the physicians stated there is no chance for recovery.

Superintendent Herfel, it is said, Wyatt should clear his name of criminality in which the mob indulged upon among his race. Angered by the refusal, the negro shot Herfel, and was arrested only after a hard struggle. He was hurried to jail, and when Herfel's injuries had been pronounced fatal a crowd of citizens went to the jail, overpowered the guard and hanged Wyatt.

MAY BE WAR OF RATES BETWEEN THE RAILWAYS

The Canadian Pacific May Retaliate Against the Grand Trunk

WILL PROBABLY BE A LONG AND BITTER FIGHT

The Two Great Railways are Not as Friendly as They Might Be, at Present

Montreal, June 12.—The C.P.R. has determined to retaliate upon the G.T.R. for the latter's discrimination against freight upon its lines destined for shipment on the C.P.R.'s Atlantic service.

Mr. G. M. Bowditch, the fourth vice-president of the C.P.R., has issued a circular to Canadian shippers on the subject, which reads as follows:

Referring to circular letter of March 20th last, announcing the acquisition by this company of a fleet of steamships to operate on the Atlantic between Montreal and Liverpool, London and Bristol, and more particularly the clause in which the public is advised, in accordance with common railway practice, that though bills of lading would be granted from all railway stations in Canada, upon application to the agent at point of shipment.

I am now obliged to amend the clause above referred to, owing to the action of the Grand Trunk Railway System in issuing a circular of instructions dated April 18th, to its agents in Canada authorizing acceptance of export traffic and issue of bills of lading in connection with all steamship lines sailing from this port, with the exception of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's Atlantic line, which are excluded from the application of the circular.

This action on the part of the Grand Trunk is declining to authorize its agents to make ocean contracts and issue bills of lading from points on its system in connection with the company's steamship lines to English ports, in a restriction of the free exercise of control of route by shippers who may desire to patronize the Canadian Pacific vessels.

In order to overcome inconvenience to exporters located at points on the Grand Trunk Railway not reached by the Canadian Pacific Railway or its friendly connections, the Canadian Pacific Railway Company will be prepared to issue through bills of lading from shipping point to destination in exchange for Grand Trunk local receipts. On business originating at points between Kingston, Ontario, and Montreal, receipts may be forwarded to the office of Mr. W. R. Billing, Assistant Freight Traffic Manager, Toronto, when originating at points Kingston and East, receipts to be sent to the office of Mr. John Corbett, Foreign Freight Agent, Montreal. Such instructions will be issued from time to time as will ensure prompt handling of export business either by several joint ventures of the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific Railways, or via Montreal.

The Canadian Pacific Railway has openly announced and advertised the fact that it will carry export and receive import freight in connection with all ocean steamship lines running to Montreal and its steamship lines will freely interchange business with all rail and water transportation lines reaching this port.

NO CABINET CRISIS IS ANTICIPATED

Government Will Carry Irish Land and Other Bills Through

THE TARIFF WAR WITH THE COLONIES

The Chronicle Criticises Chamberlain's Position on Bounty-Fed Products

London, June 12.—Despite the difference of opinion in the Cabinet over Mr. Chamberlain's proposals, no immediate Cabinet crisis is anticipated in Government circles. Premier Balfour fully expects to proceed with the other items in the Government programme, especially the Irish Land bill, the Ministers, individually, preserving open minds, agreeing the necessity of dealing expeditiously with Chamberlain's proposals, probably by a Royal Commission.

Nevertheless, with so much explosive matter about the Cabinet, lawless meddling may go to pieces at any moment and Mr. Chamberlain be left with no other alternative than to raise a campaign of his own.

ROSEBERRY IS HOSTILE.

Lord Roseberry, addressing Essex agriculturists yesterday declared that a preferential tariff would be for the benefit of wheat-growing in Canada. "Australia and India, but would intensify Irish rural depopulation; British labor preferring the virgin bounty-fed lands of the colonies. Lord Roseberry asked: 'Will the small loaf fill empty bellies better because it is Canadian or Australian? In the event of the failure of the Colonial crop, Britain would be compelled to reopen her ports, and if re-opened they would never be closed again.' In short, Lord Roseberry heads the anti-Chamberlain campaign.

It is recalled also that Canadian better in bounty-fed in some New Zealand nation will be under Mr. Chamberlain's British ally, Australia. Nevertheless Mr. Chamberlain's main idea of an inter-imperial partnership is still cordially and widely approved if found practicable.

Causes of the Revolution in Serbia

King Shot an Officer Who Demanded His Abdication, the War Minister Was Summoned and the King and Queen Were Put to Death

FROM A TIMES STAFF CORRESPONDENT

London, June 11.—M. Mijatovich, Serbian Minister at London, confirms the reported assassination of the King and Queen of Serbia.

The Serbian Minister said there were many causes leading to the revolution. A large section of the people were greatly dissatisfied with the tendency of King Alexander to eliminate the Radical element from the Government, and by the constant summons of his attention to appoint Queen Draga's brother, Ljubovitch, heir apparent. In this addition to the Queen was disliked by the people, who were all intensely outraged at the Ministerial coup of the constitution.

The Ministers did not anticipate that the change would result in any interminable strife or any real danger to the country. He pointed out that the original Karageorgievich was not a prince. He was a rich wine owner. The father of the new King was made a prince in 1842.

Berlin, June 11.—A despatch from Berlin, June 11.—The National Zeitung gives an interesting version of the events at Belgrade. It says: "A party of officers proceeded to the palace by previous arrangement with Gen. Ljubovitch, and called upon Prince Alexander to abdicate in favor of Prince Peter Karageorgievich. The King refused and shot Colonel Numanovic, who made the proposal. The other officers then surrounded the King and Queen and shot them. The King and Queen were shot to death. The King lived a few minutes after being shot."

The immediate cause of the revolution was the return to Belgrade of Lieut. Ljubovitch, brother of the Queen, and a supposed candidate for the throne.

The surviving Ministers have been arrested.

The question of the King and Queen will cover June 14. A final illumination of Belgrade is projected for this evening.

The despatch concluded with stating that immense joy prevails at Belgrade.

The German Government cannot be said to have taken any attitude regarding the provincial administration of Serbia.

Horror was expressed at the Foreign Office at the bloody coup d'etat. The immediate feeling is one of astonishment at the new Ministry. The Foreign Office for the present is Four towns solicited the next convention, two years hence, London, Berlin, Perth and Orillia were invited. Three from Perth and Orillia were endorsed by telegram and letters from Mayors and Councils. The convention finally decided upon Perth.

The question of raising the rates was considered by the convention at some considerable length. The unanimous feeling was that the rates should be increased, but the convention did not give its delegates positive instructions as to the extent of increase, and the question was left to the consideration of the International delegates.

Buried Gold

Author of "A Boy of the Territory," etc.

her moorings and the grinning face of the men greeted him from afar. Dave the carpenter was there and grined as widely as the rest.

"You managed that all right, then!" Keith shouted from the land. "I didn't hear much shooting."

"What you did hear wasn't us," said Dave. "We neither hurt anyone nor got hurt. We just jumped in on top of the boat and raked in the lot of em before they knew they was awake."

"Where's old Jake Foster?" asked Keith. Dave laughed.

"In bed, groaning fit to die," he said. "And I'll swear to thunder no one didn't do him no harm. It's temper; he's lost his village and he don't like it; that's all that's the matter with him."

Keith flushed. That seems to fit in well with something," he said, and having landed upon the now conquered island he made straight for old Foster's hut. There he found the skipper much as Dave had described him. He lay groaning on his bed of sack and dry palm leaves and seemed to take no notice of his visitor.

"What's up, then, skipper?" asked Keith. "Knock's up," growled the older man. "Those blessed chaps of yours have killed me!"

"Oh, there's life in you yet, mate," said Keith cheerily. "I'll bet you're not that what you want; a bit of English beef and a glass of good beer."

"Not me, unless they bring it me on this island. I shall never leave this bed again. Why couldn't you and your dashed crew keep away? We didn't want you here, and you ain't done any good beyond murdering half a dozen innocent men!"

"The less said about murdering the better," retorted Keith. "It wasn't us who begun the fightin'. Why did you attack us for doing our best to rescue you and get you home, as in duty bound?"

"You blamed hypocrite," snarled the old man. "Rescue us? You're a set of blackguards, gold-stealing thieves, and you know it; but don't you grow yet, mate. You may have sneaked the gold, but you'll not find the gold, not if you was ten times as clever as you are."

"Maybe," said Keith, "and quite likely too; but we're going to have a good dig for it, and that's plain truth; and it's a pity you're so ill, skipper, that I've a mind to begin my digging in this very hut."

"Old Foster started so obviously that Keith could scarcely forbear to smile. His eyes glared and seemed to stand out; his mouth opened to speak, but no sound came."

"Maybe you ain't so ill but what you wouldn't mind being shifted to another hut and put up the earth a bit here," suggested Keith.

"Curse you, I'll kill the man who puts a spade into my floor!" Foster roared. He set up in bed and fumbled for something among the leaves that formed his couch. In another instant a black bottle whizzed past Keith's ear, narrowly missing his right temple.

"You've wonderful power for a sick man," said Keith, undisturbed. "Come, see if you can't get up and march out, or shall I have in a couple of chaps to shift you?"

"Have in a hundred and the devil too if you like," roared Foster. "I shan't move; I'm on my death-bed."

"You'd better get quiet; you shall have your fair share of whatever we find, if we find it, just like the rest."

The skipper had launched out into so eloquent, so ingenious, and so long-winded a list of oaths, blasphemies and abuse that Keith realized argument was useless and pulled in half a dozen men to his assistance. With this aid he did his best, raving mad and screaming with fury, was presently removed, but not before he had so laid about him in every direction that there was scarce one of the six who did not limp away from the hut when they carried him thence. He was still shouting and fighting in a manner quite inconsistent with the weakness usually associated with sickness unto death.

When old Foster was safely deposited elsewhere, and an adequate guard placed over him, Keith called the bosun and Dave the carpenter.

"If we was to dig up the gold boxes this very morning," he said, "would our own chaps be so excited at the night that they'd lose their heads like these 'Heebus' fellows?"

The two men looked at one another. "If you mean you've an idea where it is," said Dave hoarsely.

"Answer my question first," said Keith. "I may know something and I may not."

Bosun thought it would be better to find it without the crew being at hand as spectators. Keith could afterwards make a speech and prepare their minds.

Dave said the men had behaved so well up to now that there was no reason to distrust them. Besides, if the stuff was to be found, they must know before long.

"Get a couple of spades and bring them into the shore," said Keith.

"Do it quick," said the men. "Don't see I think I do know where the stuff is, but I can't be sure. If we find it, we'll tell them after, and I'll take it on myself to provide them a bit more than the clerk said; the bank won't mind nor yet the underwriters. Our men are a straight lot of chaps, but they may be the sudden sight of treasure maddens folks so they wouldn't believe!"

The bosun smuggled three spades into old Foster's hut, and presently the three men entered one by one.

"I'll be under the bed if it's really here," said Keith, trembling with excitement. "Don't blame me if it ain't. I'm only going on a scent I happened to cross. It may be a hot 'un and it may be false."

Quickly the bedding was thrown aside and the spades got to work.

Undoubtedly the soil had been removed at some time or other; it came up easily.

"T've struck something hard," said Dave thickly after a few minutes of silent, agitating labor.

Bosun dug his spade into the same place, so did Keith.

"Off with the earth, lads," he said. "We'll soon see. I can't scarcely get my excitement."

"Same here," muttered bosun. Five minutes later the surface of two wooden iron-clamped cases were revealed.

Five minutes more and these two were hoisted into daylight. It was all that the three strong men could do to lift them. The other four were close at hand, and these were taken out and piled with the rest. Keith wiped his streaming face with his forearm.

"Well, thank God for that!" he panted. "We've got it, lads, and we're all rich men, in a small way. If we was to combine our shares, we could all be

The Proudest Darkies.

When Rebecca Douglas Lowe was made president of the Federation of Women's Clubs of America, writes Van Vliet in the "Argonaut," the negro servants of the Lowe household in Atlanta were justly the proudest darkies on the continent. The position to which their mistress had been elevated was the highest in the gift of American womanhood, and "Miss Beck" was "suddenly" it as she was known to be.

On the death of Queen Victoria, Mrs. Lowe called the confederates of the women of America to the Prince of Wales, now King Edward VII. In due time an official announcement found its way back to Atlanta by post, and was delivered to Robert, the factotum of the Lowe household, by carrier, together with the customary bulky bundle of official and private mail. The big seal attracted the attention of Robert, and excited his interest. "Sarah was not good enough to 'tote the mail up to Miss Beck; that maw'nin's no-said Robert must do it himself, that maw'nin'," and so he did.

The mistress received the weighty correspondence with accustomed dignity and nonchalance, and did not even "start" or turn pale at the great letter which had impressed Robert so highly. She began opening the letters in the usual manner, not at all to the satisfaction of Robert, and he took the liberty accorded to old servants in the South of "interposing."

"Miss Beck," said he, "seems like you had a very important letter in yo' mail this maw'nin'!"

"Yes, Robert."

"Tears, Miss Beck, as if it was from royalty?"

"Yes, Robert, it is from the King of England."

Robert waited for nothing more, but hastened down to the servants' quarters to herald the great news. Mrs. Lowe thought no more about the matter of the servant's curiosity until she was out riding with her daughter, Mrs. English, in the afternoon, and sat waiting in the carriage while her daughter did some shopping.

Andrew was on the box, and took advantage of the opportunity to find out more about the royal letter than Robert had been able to tell them. Using the before-mentioned privilege of old family servants in the South, he turned to his mistress and asked: "Miss Beck, Robert was tellin' us this maw'nin' that you had a letter from the King or England this maw'nin'!"

"Yes, Andrew, Robert spoke true."

"Robert said it was a ver' pawment letter, Miss Beck."

"Yes, Andrew, a very important letter."

This closed the enquiry for some minutes, but the negro curiosity had not been entirely satisfied. Turning again to his mistress, Andrew enquired in an undertone suggestive of a desire for confidence: "Miss Beck, I s'pose the King of England is askin' us to come over and spend the summer with him?"

Manners For Musical At Home.

Don't blunder among the music stands—things admirably contrived for tripping up the unwary. Should you get entangled with one, however, and in a way as to bring yourself and it crashing down into the performer's violoncello, leave all vituperative display to the owner of the instrument.

Don't, when singing, if you are standing behind the accompanist, keep hold of his ears all the time, and seek to indicate your wishes by taps and jerks. It distracts his attention from the copy.

Don't, during a lull or a plain ballad, get up a fierce battle between Fido and the cat, and never seek to divert the company by firing paper pellets into the air.

Don't, if your emotions are appealed to by some pathetic little trifle, bellow or give way to violent grief. If you cannot stifle your sobs by burying your face in the rug, leave the room until you have recovered your composure.

Don't be grumpy and sit brooding in a corner all the evening because your hostess does not ask you for a song. Her omission may not arise from the thought that you cannot sing, but from the knowledge that you do.

Don't, if you know a good anecdote, put it forth during a piano solo—the piano may like to hear it, too. Wait patiently until peace reigns over the assembly. If your anecdote is a poor one, continue waiting.

Don't be outlandish in your musical tastes. A good plan when invited out, if you fear the accession, pandean pipes, or double basses, is to leave your instrument at home. A long list, in fact, could be compiled of instruments which should nearly always be left at home.

My 'don'ts' are levelled at late comers and early leavers. To the former I would say, don't, while a song is being executed, burst noisily into the room and limit then and there upon shaking hands with your hostess. In case where she herself is the soloist, you will put her off her stroke, and even if she has the presence of mind to sing her words of greeting, it is twenty to one if they make rhyme or reason with the context of the poem.

To early leavers I would offer similar advice and say, don't flounder away in the middle of a musical item. Where you have failed to complete before its commencement, exercise a giant control until the final chords bring release.

To seek escape by the window is cowardly, as where the music room is not an ante-room and then it is foolhardy.

SOME STARTLING FACTS

regarding a Wonderful Discovery by the Famous Dr. Clarke.
To the Editor of The Times—

Sir,—With a view to afford relief to the afflicted, I ask you to publish the following: I am 31 years old and for 3 years have been absolutely nothing, owing to rheumatism, my hands, feet and heart being affected. I was induced by my cousin to take Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills, and before I had taken 4 boxes I could go upstairs without help, and can now go up the stairs as well as I ever could. Two doctors told me that I never would be well again; but I have neither ache nor pain and am in perfect health.

DR. HUBERT M. DUNCAN,
10 Albert St., London.

A Remarkable Offer.

Sir,—We make the following proposal to readers of The Times. To any one who is a subject of rheumatism, (no matter how long standing), or any blood disease, enumerated below, and will give Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills a fair trial, and accept not fully and completely cured, we will refund the money paid for the pills. If no good results follow we will forfeit $10 cash. We have yet to know of a single case where this wonderful medicine has not been almost entirely successful in the work of relieving suffering humanity.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, hoarseness, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormrod & Walsh, Peterborough. Price 50c. per box, or 2 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clarke's New Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's New Cure for Trachoma, same price. Will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

THE WEST VIRGINIA CARBON, GAS AND OIL CO.

INCORPORATED IN WEST VIRGINIA.

Capital, $100,000.00

STOCK: Non-Forfeitable; Non-Assessable

Offices: 13 and 14 Holmes Block, Lima, Ohio Works and Property in West Virginia.

This Company has 337 acres of Gas territory in Wirt county, West Virginia. This is also very valuable oil territory and the purpose of this company is to MANUFACTURE CARBON AND LAMP BLACK FROM OIL AND GAS. To refine Carbon and Lamp Black and manufacture it in its various products. Carbon and Lamp Black has a steady market. No trust can control the flow of gas. A permanent income is assured to all investors.

This Company is represented in Canada by MR. R. J. KIDD, Fiscal Agent, Peterborough, who will be pleased to supply information to intending investors. This is a stock he can confidently recommend.

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and then thereof absolute safety is substituted, and yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

Thus the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer.

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, a well known company, to secure funds for the extensive development of its numerous mining properties and also of its oil lands, offers a limited amount of its Treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Cripple Creek, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done. It is proposed to place as many of these mining properties upon a shipping and self supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of oil lands in Huerfano County, Colo. In order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $1.00 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with no individual liability. This is one of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Fortunes have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are usually very great, especially when the stock can be secured at such a low price as this is now offered for sale in the time to get in before an advance in the price is made.

The new railroad from Denver to Salt Lake, which is now building will be of incalculable benefit to the Company, furnishing transportation for ores and supplies, besides immediately increasing value.

125 WILL NOT REACH THE NUMBER OF REASONS WHY THE STOCK IN The Oro Rico Mining Syndicate IS A GOOD INVESTMENT.

I have offered this stock at a very low price and it is your right if you fail to take advantage of it.

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 30 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.

Vast ledges of ore running from $500 to $800.00 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $75.00 to $250.00 per ton. This is not a five per cent. a month advance, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans. A few months ago a Mr. Woodside bought 25,000 shares in a Tungah Company for five cents a share and recently sold the same at $6.00 a share. No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your foresight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the stock at present price. It will soon be 60 per cent. higher.

I can offer the stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

Will accept payments of 25 per cent. cash and balance, 25 per cent. per month. Wanted active agents. Address all orders to
T. O. PAXTON, Fiscal Agent,
314-315 Broadway Building, Los Angeles, California.

STOCK MARKETS

UNPLEASANT CONDITIONS

New York, June 11.—The best campaign has reached the stage where it is accompanied with unpleasant rumors of possible financial embarrassment in various quarters. Such reports causing many people to postpone the placing of buying orders, fearing temporarily lower prices being brought about through financial calamity. Such a condition brings in a weak market which may turn sharply at any moment. Failure of realization of such reports is likely to cause a sharp rebound, as waiting buyers who appreciate the cheapness of current prices would all be likely to place buying orders in unison. It is always the case that many people able to buy, in their efforts to get in as low as possible, must wait until the market comes to later into the market. A sudden sharp upward turn may be expected at any moment. The larger the delay the more likely it will be sharp recovery. It is an unfortunate condition in the market at present to that existing the day last December that day. Shaw made his famous announcement after three o'clock. That night the market closed at the very lowest, in complete demoralization, with a sharp break showing every likelihood of probably going all the pieces the coming day. The next day the market opened up sharply all along the line, and in one week, time advanced on average fully ten per cent. There is no question as to the present cheapness of American Railway, and industrial securities, that is admitted. The only question is how much lower can prices be driven before the inevitable must and will come. Those who margin their purchases freely need not calculate as fully for such the market is now good to buy. These dealings on small margins should buy on concessions, following up purchases with close "stop orders." In this way feeling for a time may not justify may be interested at prices somewhat within reason within the turn of financial current finally down comes.

HAIGHT & FRESE

Berlin, June 10.—Hugh J. Cannon, superintendent of the Mormon missions in Germany, his wife, his secretary and his assistant, secretary, were ordered by the police to leave Prussian territory within three weeks. Similar orders are about to be served by the local authorities on 86 other missionaries in Prussia, under the decision of the government, as recently cabled, to expel them all.

A little newsboy, who had been in an accident, came into his Sunday school class with one of his eyes injured, and his head, and said to the teacher, "I'm a good one to preach to today, for I go in one ear and can't get out the other."

Miss Softly (who has been attending a course of lectures) on "Professors" was such a funny old fossil in the museum today. I thought of you at once. (Professor Ploocene, the eminent geologist, does not know whether to feel flattered or not.)

Physician: The truth can no longer be hidden, madam. I am obliged to tell you that your little son is—er—weak-minded; that is—well, it must be mild—in an idiot. Mrs. Highguy—How fortunate it is that we are rich. No one will ever notice it.—New York "Week-ly."

"What am I preach about next Sunday that will please the entire congregation?" asked the new minister. "Preach about the new religion," replied the old deacon; "there isn't a member of the congregation that is worth over two thousand dollars."—Chicago "Daily News."

"Mr. Jones," began old Skinfint, the boss, as he cleared his throat. "You have been in my employ just twenty years to-day, and have proved a good and faithful servant. I propose to make you substantial recognition of your fidelity. Here is a picture of myself as a present." "Thanks. It's just like you," murmured Jones as he accepted the valuable gift.

The physicians were holding a consultation beside the cot of the man supposed to have appendicitis concealed about his person. "I believe," said one of the surgeons, "that we should wait and let him get stronger before cutting into him." Before the other prospective operator could reply the patient turned his head and remarked feebly: "What do you take me for—a cheese?"

"Who was that poor cow that the mob tarred and feathered, rode on a rail, horsewhipped, and threatened to lynch?" "Why," said the leader of the mob, "that's the fellow who wrote in the papers that the citizens of this town had no respect for law and order. We showed the cow that we were law-abiding citizens, you bet!"—Baltimore "Herald."

"Don't you think that a newspaper is smaller, more compact form would be preferred?" asked the publisher. "It answered her." "It must be large enough for a man to hold in front of his face when there are women standing in a street car."—Washington "Star."

"Edgar," "All right; wait till I see if Bessie Montgomery is going to marry the Prince."

SHARES TO ADVANCE From Three to Five Dollars

Remarkable Discovery of Gold, Silver and Copper Ore Made on Property of the EASTERN NATIONAL COPPER COMPANY, Limited, of Cheticamp, Cape Breton

ORE BEARING SCHISTS FROM 75 TO 100 FEET WIDE

The out crop of the extension of the deposit has just been cut on the opposite side of the mountain from which the work was commenced, proving that the ore body extends through the hill.

MR. M. V. GRANDIN, engineer in charge of the development work, reports the discovery of an immense body of gold, silver, and copper bearing ore from seventy-five to one hundred feet wide on the property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, at Cheticamp, Cape Breton. This is probably the first known instance in Eastern Canada of the unearthing of a large deposit of metaliferous ore such as made the mining industry of British Columbia, the Western States and Mexico of great magnitude. The discovery in Cape Breton tends to confirm the opinion of mining experts that Cheticamp is one of the most important mining districts in Nova Scotia. The Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, owns some of the finest sections of this district and has about completed the proving of a body of ore estimated to contain 100,000 tons, worth from $10 to $15 per ton. The main slope is shown 130 feet all in one and the tunnel from which the mine will be worked has been commenced from the opposite side of the hill. The company expect to commence the installation of plant for treatment in three months' time. Surface buildings, etc., have all been erected.

Thousands of tons of Ore already in sight.

THERE is no other form of mining investment than gold, gold-copper deposits, as they occur in immense veins and carry regular values. Many of the private fortunes of the United States owe their origin to a lucky investment in a gold-copper proposition. The property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, is undoubtedly one of the most valuable in the country. Besides its extensive mining claims the mining company controls timber for mining and building purposes and will also have natural water-power.

Every day adds to the proved value of the mine great mining enterprise rail as well as water communication with all points. The undertaking of this Company is a sound business enterprise, organized by a prominent Nova Scotia business man, without the heavy over-capitalization, watered stock, promoters' take-off, directors' perquisites, etc., which characterize many foreign companies. The company is capitalized at the moderate figure of $600,000, and one-half the entire capital stock has been placed in the treasury in reserve. 10,000 shares of the other half are being sold for development.

A Limited Amount of Stock is Offered at $3.00 per Share (Thirty Cents on the Dollar). - Par $10.00

The Stock was started at $1 per share, and has advanced steadily to $3. Next advance will likely be to $5, and we expect it will be quoted at par—$10—within a year, based on ore actually blocked out. THE KING AND QUEEN OF SERBIA WERE BURIED AT DEAD OF NIGHT

Victims of Belgrade Horror Were Buried In Secrecy, Details of the Tragedy

SHOW THAT KING REFUSED DEMAND TO ABDICATE

And Defended His Wife, Her Unpopularity Had Much to Do with the Revolution

Belgrade, June 12.—King Alexander and Queen Draga who were assassinated early yesterday in the Royal Palace were buried during the night in the family vault of the Obrenovitchs in the chapel of the old cemetery of Saint Mark. The interment was carried out with complete secrecy between half past nine and three o'clock this morning.

Mr. Karamanovic, aide-de-camp of the late king, will be buried this afternoon.

The city is lavishly decorated with flags and national colors. All offices yesterday observed Alexander's birthday from the churches of their faith.

The revolution was planned weeks ago. Secret committees were organized in the country and worked into operation with the army.

It was originally intended that the plot should be executed at night, but from that the Serbian Parliament would not allow the question of the succession to the throne to be decided at night, the plan was changed. While on duty between 11 and 12 o'clock, Mamonovitch was in the door leading to the sleeping apartments of the royal couple with a lamp and then accompanied by Lieut. Col. Mischke and Major of the 6th Regiment and a number of junior officers. Previously the guard had been overpowered and its commander, Captain Panosovic, was killed. Mischke in Queen Draga's brother-in-law, and Minister of Public Works in the new Cabinet.

Namovic presented to the King a form of abdication for his signature. The document contained the statement that by marrying a "public prostitute" the King had degraded Serbia, and that, therefore, he must abdicate. The King's answer was to pick up a revolver and kill Namovic on the spot. Mischke then seized the document and presented it to the execution of the King's order. The King, who perceived his danger, fled with Queen Draga, to the palace roof, both being in their night clothes. The officers followed, continuously firing, and ultimately shot down the royal couple.

The new Government, like the old, is described as an inveterate gambler, and a man of intemperate habits. He is also a man (imposed by nature, and entirely unsuited for playing a leading part in Balkan affairs. It is said he will renounce his rights in favor of his son, George, who was born in 1888.

Belgrade, June 12.—A special despatch from Belgrade says the bodies of King Alexander and Queen Draga were buried in a large pit, dug in the village of Rakovica, and that, as a mark of ignominy, the bodies of their murdered relatives and those of the Ministers were placed above them, and then the common grave was refilled with earth.

WILL HON. JOS. CHAMBERLAIN RESIGN?

LONDON, June 11.—Premier Balfour's words in the House of Commons last night: "No tax will ever again be placed upon food except by the full consent of all interested" is a complete summary of the opinion of the country will be taken at the coming general election on the proposed fiscal rearrangement.

MR. GEORGE, RADICAL M.P. FOR CAMBRIDGE, SUGGESTED THAT THE PREMIER FOLLOW THE EXAMPLE OF MR. WILFRID LABAREE AND OFFER HIS CHAIRMANSHIP TO WITHDRAW HIS POLITICAL RESIGN.

None of the Canadian-born members of the House voted for the retention of the corn tax. Hon. Edward Blake spoke in an unusually vigorous vein, declaring against protection and preferential trade, but urging that the country be given an opportunity to fully discuss the fiscal question.

The Ministerial press admit that the debate has weakened the Government.

Mr. Chamberlain is preparing a speech which he hopes will receive the endorsement of all the Colonial Premiers.

Sir Harry Rawson, Governor of New South Wales, has called Mr. Chamberlain on behalf of the Government of New South Wales, strongly supporting the Colonial Secretary's preferential trade proposals. The Governor's message concludes:

"Realizing that what is Canada's turn today may be Australia's turn tomorrow, my Government expresses great satisfaction at the declaration by the British Government that every self-governing colony shall be secured the free exercise of its right to enter into far there has been no exchange of communications between the powers concerning Prince Peter Karageorgewitch's assumption of the throne of Serbia, but the officials are beginning to seriously consider the delicate question of the recognition of the new sovereignty. It is expected that the Serbian authorities will convene a meeting of the Foreign Ministers at Belgrade, and present the latter with definite evidence that the people actually protest against the bloody methods adopted, there is likely to occur trouble in connection with the question of recognizing the new Government. The latter then far has not addressed the communication to the powers, which have received all their information from their own Ministers or from agents.

Has Trouble Broken Out?

The despatch adds that Belgrade continues quiet, the people apparently being reconciled to the new conditions. The officials here doubt the truth of the reports that Belgrade is quiet, as the authorities here are unable to secure further direct despatches from Belgrade. Even the official despatches which have reached Paris appear to have been mutilated. It is stated authoritatively that the

The correspondent claims that he was expelled because he told the truth about the massacre of Jews at Kishineff.

ARE VISITING CANADA

Two Hundred Chinese Tourists Now in Montreal

Montreal, June 12.—Among the tourists in town today who are leisurely strolling about and gazing with interest into the windows of the department stores, are a number of Chinese, some of whom are paying their first visit to Montreal. About four hundred arrived on the last steamer from China, and about two hundred came on to Montreal, which is a distinct point for Chinese, who after a short sojourn in the city, scatter in different directions. Last night a number of them who had just arrived, visited their friends in Chinatown, where there was much exchanging of news between the men who had returned from a visit to China, and those who had kept on doing business at the same old stand in their absence. Many of the returned Chinese live in the United States. Some are going to Cuba and Jamaica, and will leave for Halifax, and some are going even as far as Saxon.

While they are in Montreal they will be entertained by the Chinese of the city, who will give parties in their honor, and show the sights to those who have not before visited Montreal. Mrs. Lin Lee is expected this week from San Francisco, and there is much interest taken in her approaching visit.

IN GOOD CONDITION

Crops in Manitoba and the West Look Well

Winnipeg, June 13.—What are the prospects of Manitoba and North-West, so far as this year's harvest is concerned, asked a reporter of Mr. C. C. Harris, of Brandon, Manitoba, to-day.

"The position in Manitoba and the Territories at the present time is in striking contrast with that of the big wheat and corn producing states to the south of the line," replied Mr. Harris. "Kansas and Iowa are suffering from a surplus of wet weather and much of the grain is rotting in the ground. In Manitoba the rains which came in copious abundance at the end of May have started the crops, which have been in the ground in enough moisture in the earth to last for weeks."

BACKWARD BABIES

Their Food Usually at Fault

When the baby is prevalent and backward, the mother is usually to be blamed. Food will often be found to be the reason. This can be proved by changing to Grape-Nuts food for a few days for this scientific food will digest in the weakest stomach and will give the proper margin for healthy baby building. When your baby is ailing, baby food had indignation and although we did our best nothing seemed to help. It was a pity and would not even try to walk and many times would cry aloud and seemed to be in much pain.

"As we had buried three children before you can imagine how we felt to see this little girl wasting away. When she was two years old she had a terrible attack and we were very much alarmed. The doctor said she had summer complaint and indignation and told us to use Grape-Nuts. After we had given her two meals of this food her bowels were cleared and in a short time she was completely well and strong again.

"Then we noticed how her mind began to improve. She had never talked before but now she has learned to talk and has begun to laugh all the time instead of crying and now after two years living on Grape-Nuts she talks well, has a splendid memory, and is as bright and healthy as any baby we have ever known. We were so glad to see her grow up so well. I hope every other discouraged mother will read these lines and profit by them." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

An excellent way to prepare for very young babies is to take one and one half tablespoonsful of Grape-Nuts and cover with a pint of cold water. Let it stand for half an hour, strain and add. When ready to use take 12 teaspoonsful of the strained Grape-Nuts juice and 4 teaspoonsful of rich milk. Add a pinch of salt and a little sugar, warm and feed to baby every two hours. Grape-Nuts of course is a food for everybody, but they babies are most expected to take the food in the same way as adults.

Protests Against British Emigration to Dominion, Toronto to Labor Heard STRENGTH OF THE BRITISH FREE TRADE SENTIMENT

LABOR AND CHINAMEN

VERY interesting situation is being brought to light by the British Columbia Labor Commission. The Western Federation of Miners has, it appears, recently changed its views as to the possibility of converting the Chinaman into a union man, and brother. Unfortunately the conversion occurred at a time when it could hardly be put down as disinterested, and there is, therefore, much difference of opinion about its genuineness.

The Western Federation contemplated a strike against the Dominion mines, which would have materially aided the strike of the United Brotherhood of Railway employes by cutting off the Canadian Pacific coal supply. The Western Federation has the past done all it could towards Chinese exclusion, and for the restriction and discomfort of that particular class of labor. But on May 12th, Mr. T. J. Shenton, secretary of the Nanaimo union, went to Cumberland, interviewed the Chinese missionary, and talked with approval of the project of forming a Chinese union, saying that he thought the Orientals, Japs included, could be educated to appreciate organization. The missionary asked a guarantee that if organized the Chinese should have the same privileges and wages as the other members of the Federation, but this the organizer was unable to give. Mr. Shenton then returned, and talked it over with Mr. Baker, organizer at Fernie, who suggested printing some copies of the constitution in Chinese. The will of this significant story occurs in Mr. Shenton's own evidence. But the Chinese are still Lehmaites to the eyes of organized labor.

London, June 12.—A significant blue book appears today dealing with British trade with the colonies. The papers commenting thereon remark that the fact stands out eloquently that, both regarding British imports, and exports, India and Australia are Great Britain's best customers in the markets of the world, India's total trade with Britain being £73,000,000, Australia's £50,000,000 and Canada's £30,000,000. The figures show that the colonies have done nearly as great a trade with the foreigner as with the Mother Country.

The Standard says that the real moral of this most instructive paper is the force of American competition in Canada and the West Indies. America has unmistakably the call over Great Britain throughout the Dominion. (Whatever the outcome of the Dominion may say, it seems that many of Great Britain's existing industries are turning away from British markets, and seeking other customers. However, adds the Standard, the percentages for the whole Empire show that we are fairly well sustained. The foreigner only sold the colonies 25 per cent. of his goods, while they have given him 4 per cent. of theirs. Still, the Standard says, the situation is not so entirely propitious as it is to be susceptible of improvement.

Free Trade Still Strong.

Mr. K. N. Macfee, formerly of Montreal, but now a broker in London, introduced a motion at the London Chamber of Commerce practically advocating Mr. Chamberlain's tariff policy, but the Chamber is so overwhelmingly free trade in sympathy that it would not discuss the resolution.

Lord Ramsey Speaks Again.

Lord Ramsey yesterday, in the city, urged London to be true to free trade, as every industry in the Motherland and in the colonies was represented in London. The Chamber of Commerce was the barometer of British commercial sentiment. "The fiscal question may form one issue in the general election, but colonialists will be foolish to expect a material change in this policy within a year."

Toronto Labor Protests.

London, June 12.—The Toronto District Trades and Labor Council has joined the Winnipeg Council in its campaign against British emigration. The council is an open letter to the workmen of the United Kingdom, asserting that there is no demand whatever for laborers in Canadian manufacturing centers. They say that the assertion that there are positions for 10,000 artisans is entirely unreliable. The prices of Canadian provisions have advanced, and rents have risen. The circular says that a man of moderate means today has to pay $80 to $120 annually more than in 1896 for a house. The cost of fuel has advanced nearly 40 per cent. in the last few years. In fact, the cost of living has advanced from 25 to 50 per cent. since 1896.

These letters are calculated to diminish emigration.

ENGLISH TRADERS ARE QUITE ENTHUSIASTIC

Birmingham Chamber of Commerce Discusses the Great Trade Possibilities

UNDER THE PROPOSED PREFERENTIAL TARIFF

Will Circularize Manufacturers to Secure Their Views as to Tariff Needed

London, June 13.—Mr. Ball, the Canadian Government Commercial Agent at Birmingham, yesterday stated a campaign which has an important bearing on Mr. Chamberlain's proposals. Addressing the Council of the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce, he explained that the Canadian Government sent him to England not merely to assist the sale of Canadian products, but to encourage British manufacturers to take greater advantage of Canada's preferential tariff. He stated that items of iron, especially chandeliers, guns, pocket knives, and brass goods, in which Birmingham is chiefly interested, replace the United States and Germany in the Canadian market, and said that the tariff lay entirely with the British manufacturers. If they had paid attention Canada would not have manufactured one-third as much stuff as she now did. With the exception of Kidderminster carpet makers, and one or two firms in Manchester and Glasgow, Canada did not use British manufactures once a year. Canada wanted them. There was a strong prejudice in Canada in favor of British goods rather than American or German.

He said he would gladly do all he could to increase the trade.

Some other speakers, including Birmingham manufacturers, said they had visited Canada, but could not enter the trade in cheap goods to compete with the United States and Germany.

Others contended that Canada was able to hold her own against British manufacturers, if only because of the shipping freight. Complaints were made against the Canadian patent laws, which, they said, only gave protection for twelve months. The British manufacturers could not get over the difficulty that Canada was a very heavy dumping ground for the surplus American manufactures.

Echoes Of The Servian Horror.

Another Version of Burial of the Royal Victims, Were Cast Into a Pit, The European Powers will Not Interfere.

London, June 12.—A special despatch from Belgrade says the bodies of King Alexander and Queen Draga were buried in a large pit, dug in the village of Rakovica, and that, as a mark of ignominy, the bodies of their murdered relatives and those of the Ministers were placed above them, and then the common grave was refilled with earth.

Berlin, June 12.—A despatch to The Cologne Gazette from Belgrade today says the massacre lasted three-quarters of an hour. The assassins declare the killing of King Alexander was unavoidable because, if the Queen alone had been murdered or removed, the court clique would have incited the King to prosecution and reprisals.

A window of the Russian Legation at Belgrade was shattered by a bullet during the Paalade at the palace.

Prince Alexis Determination.

Vienna, June 12.—Prince Alexis Karageorgewitch, a nephew of the late King, who has himself been a prisoner of newly-proclaimed King of Serbia, the Prince, during the course of an interview here today, announced that he had abandoned all claim thereto, and welcomed the advent of his uncle as the best solution. The Prince, like other well-informed persons, attributes the revolution to a misunderstanding of the late King Alexander's marriage to the aristocratic and to the King's hostility to the Radicals.

Russia is Interested.

St. Petersburg, June 12.—The tragedy at Belgrade yesterday caused an immense impression here. The news papers express indignation and horror at the outrage, parallel for which, they add, are only findable in ancient times. At the same time, the papers here consider that the interference of the Powers in Serbia's internal affairs at present is not permissible, although developments might compel Russia and Austria to take action.

SHIPMENTS OF BANANAS

The Government Promises to Redress Grievances

Ottawa, June 13.—Mr. Robert Munro of Montreal, was here yesterday, and introduced Messrs. Marsh, of the West Indies Steamship Line, to Hon. W. S. Fielding, Hon. Sidney Fisher and Dr. Montanari. It appears that boats from Jamaica and the West Indies laden with bananas are often kept by the Maritime authorities at Halifax over night. This Messrs. Marsh, represented was dangerous to the good condition of the cargo. They stated that in a warm season the slight delay would often mean the loss of the cargo, and asked that arrangements might be made by which immediately on arriving the cargo might be discharged. Mr. Fisher stated that he was not aware of the circumstances and would take immediate steps to remedy the trouble.

PETERBOROUGH, JUNE 19, 1908.

GERMANY AND BRAZIL

A German has written a book dealing with the fellow-countrymen to Brazil. He points out that Brazil is one of the greatest natural storehouses of raw material in the world, and that it is one in which Germany has a special interest.

Germany's interest in Brazil is not an attempt to dominate the country through German control of its natural resources. The German press is concerned on this point, and points to the activity of American trusts, which already have given effect to the far-sighted policy of securing footing in foreign countries to supply themselves with raw materials at low cost and to obtain original and full control of these, whereby the will in future secure domination in manufacturing.

Competition between the industrial countries of the world is getting keener year by year, and the nation which is best supplied with raw materials will have an important advantage over its foreign competitors. If this state of affairs is affecting the relations between Germany and Brazil, it is affecting the relations between British capital and enterprise and Canadian raw materials.

The whole fabric of British manufacturing is based upon the theory that the competition of producers of raw material will give the purchaser the cheapest possible supply at the least possible risk. That is valid enough so long as the producers have nowhere to dispose of their product save in the English market, but it becomes much less true when England becomes one and not the only one among manufacturing countries and it becomes wholly false where her competitors procure raw material at that cost to themselves and are able to control the output that they can charge for a profit on what they do so themselves.

That is the theory upon which American manufacturers are carried out, and that is the process through which they hope eventually to secure a dominant position. The British manufacturer who was copper, rose upon the London market to buy his copper. He would consider it wild and dangerous speculation if he were to attempt to secure a supply of copper by mining it, or controlling, for the output of some particular mine. What, however, he does, there is no question at all that the capital of the United States is rapidly acquiring economic control of the raw material of Canada, and that, compared with it, British capital is largely ineffectual in its efforts.

Of course Canada does not have to worry, because we can make all foreign capital Canadian in its potency, except with regard to the dividends it pays its foreign owners, and we have no hesitation in using that power where ever necessary. When foreign mills secure our forests as a source of raw material, we make them transfer their mills into Canada. Similarly, when foreign iron men secure Canadian iron deposits to feed American smelters, we tell them they must put their smelters in Canada or go without the iron. As we have said, Canada is not in such a position that she cannot protect herself, it is Great Britain who should be opening her eyes to the developments going on around her. The "open door" for her manufactures is her continuous policy. What good will an open door for manufactures going out of the country do, if the door for raw material going into the country is closed? The United States has already played tricks with the English market in cotton and copper that never could have been played were Great Britain in economic control of abundant supplies of these two commodities.

Winnipeg, June 13.—What are the prospects of Manitoba and Northwest, so far as this year's harvest is concerned, asked a reporter of Mr. C. C. Hearn, of Brandon, Manitoba, today.

"The position in Manitoba and the Territories at the present time is in a striking contrast with that of the wheat and corn producing states to the south of the line," replied Mr. Hearn. "Kansas and Iowa are suffering from a surplus of wheat, and much of the grain is rotting in the ground. In Manitoba the grain which came in copious abundance at the end of May has started the crops growing rapidly, and there is enough moisture in the earth to last for weeks."

Mr. Hearn spoke of the much discussed scheme of putting steamers on the Assiniboine River, to ply between Winnipeg, Portage la Prairie and Brandon. The tendency in the West today was to take as much advantage as possible of the water routes, and it was probable that the steamship line would be inaugurated in the near future.

In regard to the Manitoba elections Mr. Hearn said that the general opinion was that the election would be held at the end of July or the beginning of August. "Both parties are extremely confident, and a perfect system of organization has been effected. There are really no very good reasons before the people," said Mr. Hearn.

Had Eczema From Childhood.
Paine's Celery Compound
Works a Marvellous Cure for a Lady in Clayton, N.C.

Eczema is one of the most common of all blood and skin diseases. The skin is inflamed and irritable, with vesicles or plaques from which serum oozes out. When the disease is extensive, there is fever, a pallid appearance, headache and loss of appetite. Paine's Celery Compound is nature's unfailing cure for the disease. It purifies and gives fresh vitality to the blood, and supplies the needed elements for the repair of the whole body. Annie L. Foreman, Clayton, N.C., says—

"Since childhood I have been troubled with a serious eczema, and up to two years ago I gave up all hope of ever being cured. On the best doctor's advice I tried the best medicine I could get, but it did not help me. When I read of Paine's Celery Compound, I was very skeptical, but I decided to try it. I had heard that it was a wonderful medicine, and I had heard that it was a wonderful medicine, and I had heard that it was a wonderful medicine."

I had heard that it was a wonderful medicine, and I had heard that it was a wonderful medicine, and I had heard that it was a wonderful medicine. I had heard that it was a wonderful medicine, and I had heard that it was a wonderful medicine, and I had heard that it was a wonderful medicine."

I had heard that it was a wonderful medicine, and I had heard that it was a wonderful medicine, and I had heard that it was a wonderful medicine. I had heard that it was a wonderful medicine, and I had heard that it was a wonderful medicine, and I had heard that it was a wonderful medicine."

Sir James Watson

This eminent English physician is one of the greatest authorities on diseases of the respiratory organs.

In a recent address Sir James Watson stated that the commonest of all disorders is Catarrh, and that not one person in ten thousand passes the winter without an attack of some sort.

Sir James advises local treatment very strongly, and says it is all nonsense trying to treat Catarrh with quinine by stomach, medicine, anionics, douches and snuffs.

Local treatment is applied most scientifically by Catarrhin. It is inhaled into the nose, throat and lungs, and drives the disease completely out of the system.

Catarrhin is a "Tink" compound; it clears the air passages, makes breathing easy, and relieves at once. Physicians prescribe Catarrhin with gratifying results, and pronounce it a specific for Catarrh in any part of the system.

Mr. Tins, Cox, one of the most prominent citizens of Montreal, Ont., says: "I want to recommend Catarrhin. It is a nice, clean cure for Catarrh. I cured me perfectly, and it is well deserving of a trial from everyone at all affected by Catarrh, or 'throat trouble'."

Mr. G. F. Fadden, of Royan, Que., writes: "In my opinion Catarrhin is the only cure for Catarrh. I had the disease in its worst form, but only got relief from Catarrhin. It cured me quickly and permanently, and I have no fear of the Catarrh ever returning."

The foregoing brief extracts, like thousands of others that the proprietors of Catarrhin have received, prove that the proper remedy to use is Catarrhin. It is quite different from the ordinary Catarrh preparation, and is warranted to prove entirely satisfactory. If it fails, your money will be refunded, as it is guaranteed you won't be out of pocket.

All druggists sell Catarrhin. Complete outfit, hard rubber inhaler, liquid for recharging, etc., costs $1.00; trial size, 5c. By mail from N. O. Pollock & Co., Kingston, Ont.

One Can't Be Too Careful.
"Dearest," he wrote from his hotel in the Ardennes, "I am sitting here beside a pleasant window, gazing dreamily out over the barren heath, and on to the borders of the wild, forest reach. But, further than eye can reach, travel the thoughts, the yearnings of my soul; they are all with you, darling—all with the sweet, precious, adorable wife who awaits my return in London."

These and other dainty sentiments, he wrote, with one exception. From the word "window" up above he inadvertently omitted the letter "n"; when his wife read the letter, she threw down the letter, started post haste for the Ardennes, and brought him home with a flea in his ear. And, in spite of all explanations, the poor fellow was so confoundedly N-poked through that confounded "N."

The Boston and New Mexico Copper Co.

(INCORPORATED)
CAPITAL STOCK, $500,000
In Shares of $1.00 each, par value. — Full Paid and Non-assessable.

Operating in the Orocopia Mining District, at the foot of Orocopia Mountains, near Esrey City, Precinct 6, Socorro County, New Mexico.
MODERN SMELTER JUST COMPLETED WITHIN A HALF-MILE OF PROPERTY

OVER $1,000,000 ALREADY INVESTED.

Over one million dollars have been invested within a short radius surrounding up all sides the property of this company by Boston, New Haven and New York capitalists. All this has been invested quietly within the last two years, without any appeal to the public. Only one of these companies interested has put its stock on the market recently, and that at 60 cents on the dollar.

NOT A PROSPECT, BUT A WELL-DEVELOPED MINING PROPERTY. (We have shown by actual mining that we have it.)

COPPER IN 80 ACRES

A rich fissure vein. This company having paid a large sum of money for these properties, and also in the development of the same, now offer to the public 50,000 shares only of their stock. In order to make further reserves, so that when they start to deliver ore at the reduction works they can keep up the supply daily and by that means pay a dividend that does not fluctuate but that can be depended on by the stockholders.

This Company has a personal lease on 30 acres of proved oil land in SECTION NINE (9) of the Boulder district, and this section and the immediate vicinity have the best and largest number of producing wells in the entire district.

Oil Well No. 1 came in in January and is now pumping and shipping oil regularly to the refinery.

The Directors have decided to put down well No. 2 at once, and they now offer a block of the Treasury stock for the next 30 days at

10 Cents per Share,

after that price will be advanced.

It is a well known fact that a 15 barrel well will pay over 100 per cent. profit upon its cost.

This is no longer a speculation for we have proved that oil is in our ground, and we now have oil in paying quantities, with two wells pumping we can soon pay dividends, and every well we put down increases our earning capacity.

This is a business proposition, managed by business men.

BARAINS

A placer and two quartz claims;

Two partially developed quartz claims;

One-quarter section patented land adjoining above;

All located in the Susanville Mining District, Eastern Oregon.

Will be sold together or separately. Total price, $9,000.

We consider this group of properties to be unusually promising as a heavy producing mine joins a portion of the land, and near-by placer grounds are showing up very rich.

Buried Gold

By FRED WHISHAW.

Author of "A Boy of the Territory," etc.

have thousands, but I'd rather have less, for one, and a quiet mind."

"That's all right, sir," said Dave, and bowed courteously.

Then the three men took solemn oath, with hands clasped, that whatever the rest of the crew might suggest or attempt, they would tolerate no opposition to the course now mapped out, which was to restore this treasure to its legal owners as quickly as possible, trusting to their generosity and sense of justice to do what was right in the way of compensation.

Keith summoned his crew presently and announced that the treasure was found. "I'm boss on this island and on the ship," he said, "and I'm for honesty and rectitude; the stuff to them it belongs to. They'll see we get a share. That's better than throat-cutting and quarrelling and going mad over wealth that don't rightly belong to us."

The majority cheered this sentiment to the echo; a few murmured.

"Any that have taken a fancy to the island and have no aim at home with claims on them, can remain ashore," Keith added, looking sternly at the dissenters. "We don't want any aboard that's got to stir up strife. Come, I tell you all square, I shan't give no one any chance to play the fool. We've had enough of it with these 'Hebeuba' chaps. You can take my word, if you behave right and proper you'll all get a share of the stuff. Our work's been worth something, and I'll see we get well paid."

The "Penelope" men soon came to their senses. With the "Hebeuba" crew there was more difficulty.

Some refused to leave the island, old Foster among the number. Hearing that the gold was found, the old man lost the spirit which had animated him hitherto, and begged Keith with tears not to carry him to England.

"You think they'd hang you as the author of all the fighting and murderin' I said Keith, 'and maybe you're right. I won't force you to go if you'd rather stay, nor yet any others.'"

"What if they do not let me go and send to fetch me?" said old Foster. "For the Lord's sake, Keith Adams—I've known you from a lad, remember, and knew your father—for the Lord's sake, don't you go for to give me away. I've lost my chance of the world's worth, but as good as broke—ain't that enough?"

"My tongue ain't going to wag," said Keith. "If our crews got wrangling and blood-letting a bit over a misunderstanding, it ain't likely the police'll come round to enquire—it's too far; you're out of their best here!"

Many of the "Hebeuba" men, sharing old Foster's anxiety, remained on the island. But a certain number returned to England and there received an equal share of the rewards cheerfully given by bank and underwriters. These rewards were apportioned according to rank, so that Keith received the lion's share.

Each side presented him with a cheque for £750, so that he now found himself a capitalist to the extent of £1,500. The rest were treated with equal liberality, the clerk's promises being fulfilled to the letter, with an added bonus of £50 to each man. With this most of the men went well satisfied, though there were grumblers. Doubtless some would have grumbled through the entire treasure had been divided among them.

Tom Foster recovered slowly but surely. By the time he reached England he was quite convalescent, and able to receive in person his cheque for £1,000, and the thanks of the owners for his share in the recovery of their property. But Tom never remembered the actual part which he had played in the matter. When reminded that it was he who had received from Evans the information as to the cabin-boy's secret which enabled Keith Adams to find the gold-chests, he would shake his head and vow he had had nothing to do with the matter and had never recommended anyone to do under old Jake's bed. "You fainted it, or dreamed it, mate," he would say, "or maybe it was a vision."

The doctors declared that this was a phenomenon well known in cases of concussion of the brain. Jake proved a devoted nurse and sister during the voyage.

As for the cabin-boy, youth and the good and brave soon pulled him round after his attack of fever, and it was not long before he was perfectly well. But for years he was wont occasionally to cry out, in his sleep, that he had murdered a man and was a "lost soul."

Sometimes he would shriek out "Under Jake Foster's bed, half a hundred times before quieting down."

One more scene and the curtain may drop.

Keith Adams, a fool to the last with main actually repented, on his return, that most foolishly perambulated up and down the street outside Ruby's door, with a description of which this story begins.

Ruby expected him, knowing that he had arrived safely and feeling sure—as former do—that it would not be long before he came round.

She watched him just as he had that Sunday afternoon three years ago—watched him reach the door, lean heart, and pass over; again, she watched him knock—again, she watched him knock—enough to stop, lose heart a second time, and pass on.

Ruby could stand it no longer.

"Come!" she cried from her window.

To Keith's surprise and consternation, yet to his unspeakable comfort and delight, Ruby, meeting him at the door, dragged him into the parlor and, after a moment's hesitation, threw her arms about his neck, kissed him passionately and said: "I'm glad you're back."

"If you won't speak, my Keith, my own lad," she sobbed, "I shall do it for myself. I—I can't bear to let you go by again! Don't you know I love you better than all the world?"

"I—I don't want to go by Ruby," said Keith. "An' never did, but I'm such a fool of me; and if you love me that's all I want in this world, so help me, for I've loved none but you for years."

"You dear, blind, foolish, darling Keith," said Ruby, smiling through her tears, "as I haven't loved you quite so long and you've loved me for years."

"Fifteen hundred pounds, and what's that in comparison with three years of you last, years we might have had together! These years would have been better worth than five hundred pounds apiece, Keith lad, seeing what I've gone through; and you'd have pushed Dick Robinson down my throat if I'd let you! Oh, you're a nice fellow, upon my word!" Ruby sobbed and laughed in a breath.

Keith fainted. "I thought you wanted him," he began awkwardly.

"That's one of the things you couldn't understand, being forever a fool with maids!" she cried, now laughing joyously.

"And you wouldn't have me, that first night, you know you wouldn't!" Keith continued, but he held her now in his arms and kissed her less shyly every time.

"And that's one of the things you couldn't understand," she laughed merrily. "And what's more, it's my belief you never will learn nothing about maids, and you'll be a fool w' 'em to the very end!"

"At any rate," said Keith, "I've learned how to love one of 'em with all my heart and soul. That wasn't very difficult!" (The end.)

His Name Wouldn't Come.

It was recently in a well-known country club and one of those rare occasions of conviviality in which the best of men like to indulge. The party numbered a dozen, all prominent locally and some whose fame is more than local. A good spirit prevailed, and the "feeling" manifested itself in a brilliancy of speech that bubbled from everyone present to such an extent that an impromptu toastmaster was chosen to keep it in curb by having each speak in turn.

So up rose Mr. Toastmaster and, casting his eye about the board, let it rest upon the man the fountain of whose eloquence was first to be let loose.

"Gentlemen," said the toastmaster, "as becomes the occasion I will introduce the wisest man first, Mr. —" (pause).

"Gentlemen, I take pleasure in introducing to you one whose name is a household word—" (pause and embarrassment).

"Gentlemen, it affords me great pleasure to introduce to you one whose name stands for civic pride and all that is best in this community—" (pause and embarrassment).

"Gentlemen, the man I am about to call upon first is known to me for the past twenty years, and to some of you perhaps longer. I will not dwell upon his qualities, his talent. They have made him famous. You all know to whom I refer. The man whose name rushes to all our lips is a long pause. I refer to the third gentleman to my right; and so the toastmaster set down and uprose he said to his neighbor, "I'll be hanged but his name wouldn't come."—London "The Bita."

TO FIGHT UNIONS

Pittsburgh, June 12.—Four thousand men were thrown out of employment to-day, and by the end of the week it is expected that 25,000 more will be idle, as the result of the action of the Builders League in ordering a general suspension of all building work until an adjustment of the differences between the steamfitters and bricklayers has been reached.

No question of wages is involved, and all efforts of the contractors to bring the warring organizations together having failed, they now propose to tie up all work pending a settlement.

The trouble was caused by the refusal of the steamfitters to join the bricklayers union.

New Imperial Japanese Moving Stories.

These grand new morning stories from Japan are remarkable for large size and exquisite new colors of the covers, with magnificent illustrations, often beautifully illustrated. Of strong, robust growth, the vines grow quickly to a height of 15 to 20 feet.

They are of all shades of red, from the most delicate pink to the most brilliant crimson and maroon, and innumerable shades of blue, from pale lavender to richest indigo and royal purple; also white, yellow, gray, slate, copper color, heather, bronze, black, and many other old shades not found in any other flower.

Many varieties have a distinct marginal band of a different color from the rest of the flower, and some are as elegantly spotted with pink, crimson, blue, brown, etc., as the finest gladiolus. Others are striped, blotched, mottled, rayed, and shaded in an indescribable manner, often having seven or eight colors and tints in one flower. Many are of very odd and singular forms, some have the petals separate and distinct clear to the base, others have the tube of the flower bent down on itself at a sharp angle, and then bent back again.

His Holiness is Well.

Rome, June 12.—The Pope's health continues satisfactory. Since the time his Holiness was Archbishop of Perugia he has been occasionally troubled with hemorrhoids, especially after a period of fatigue. This is the case now. Fortunately the re-appearance of the trouble was accompanied by hemorrhage, thus obviating the necessity of an operation. The Pope has experienced much relief, and may be said to be entirely well again.

TO PREVENT A REFUSAL

President Loubet May Not Ask Pope to Receive Him

Rome, June 12.—The negotiations between the Vatican and France regarding the attitude to be assumed by President Loubet towards the Pope during the President's coming visit to Rome are at a standstill. The Vatican hopes a change will occur by France modifying the situation. If no change takes place the idea prevails that M. Loubet will not ask to see the Pope, thus avoiding a refusal, which would necessarily bring about a rupture between France and the Vatican. The authorities believe that M. Loubet and the Pope ignoring each other, the maintenance of the present status of the relations between the church and the French Republic will be secured.

Kidney-Wort-Tablets

A POSITIVE CURE.

The Only Kidney Medicine Entirely Free From Alcohol.

The mortality reports from the large centres of population show that kidney troubles are as fatal, and carry off as many victims as consumption.

Pay men and women have perfectly sound kidneys. When an unusual interest in a woman is found that there exist dangers. There is a pain in the small of the back, too frequent urination, cloudy urine, distastefulness, swelling of limbs, loss of strength, and in many cases, bladder difficulties add to the gravity of the situation.

When you realize your danger, be wise! Make Kidney-Wort Tablets your chosen medicine; that will give you the results you seek for—freedom from a deadly disease.

Whether you do, we would warn you against the use of liquid medicines with alcohol in their composition. Alcohol will harden and inflame the kidneys, and hasten death.

Kidney-Wort Tablets stand on high in the estimation of physicians that they are used in hospitals and the best dispensaries. Kidney-Wort Tablets are a positive cure; give them a trial. All Druggists.

PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY

Many Delegates Arrive at Vancouver—Presbyterians are arriving here in large numbers to attend the first meeting of the General Assembly ever held on the Pacific coast. The United States Assembly has just concluded meetings at Los Angeles, and not a few United States clergymen have come this way in order to be visitors at the assembly here. The gathering, consequently, takes on an international character. The assembly will be held in St. Andrew's church, and the first meeting will be held on Tuesday night. It is believed that Dr. Fletcher of Hamilton, will be the new moderator. The weather is very warm.

FOR A SHORT TIME ONLY

A LIMITED NUMBER OF SHARES IN THE

The Minersville Gold Mining —and Milling Company—

Will be sold at 15 CENTS PER SHARE. PAR VALUE, $1.00.

Full Paid, Non-Assessable and No Personal Liability.

READ THIS! This Company offers one of the safest and best investments, as its property is located in the famous Sumpter District, Baker County, Oregon, and has for its neighbors such mines as the Bonanza, Red Hot, Kureka, North Pole, Columbus, Goldconda and Cracker Oregon, which are producing from $60,000 to $100,000 each per month. This great property for which the underdevelopment is being made is more promising than many of the big producing mines at the most advanced stage of development.

The Company has three full claims, with two large veins, one sixteen feet and the other twenty-two feet at the surface, showing good gold values and strictly free milling.

The Company owns the property outright, being free from all debt and encumbrances and in order to equip the mine with modern machinery and to continue development work, a limited number of shares will be sold for a short time only at 15 cents per share, as announced above.

Investors who wish to place money in large or small amounts can do so better than in any other investment. All information cheerfully furnished, and all cheques payable to the order of the Company.

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and the return of absolute safety is guaranteed, and yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

Thus the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer.

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, Colorado, is now offering for sale a block of its treasury stock at a price of $1.00 per share. The company owns and operates a large number of mining properties in Colorado and has a large amount of land in the state. The company is now offering for sale a block of its treasury stock at a price of $1.00 per share. The company is now offering for sale a block of its treasury stock at a price of $1.00 per share.

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Uguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $1.00 per share. All stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with individual liability. This one of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Fortunes have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are usually very large. WE WANT GOOD AGENTS TO REPRESENT THE COMPANY.

125 WILL NOT REACH THE NUMBER OF REASONS WHY THE STOCK IN The Oro Rico Mining Syndicate IS A GOOD INVESTMENT.

I have offered this stock at a very low price and it is your misfortune if you fail to take advantage of it.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS. Vast ledges of ore running from $500 to $800,000 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $75.00 to $100.00 per ton. This is not a five per cent. a month scheme, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans. A few months ago a Mr. Woodstock bought 300,000 shares in a Tonopah Company for five cents a share and recently sold the same at $6.00 a share. No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offer a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGEMENT and your FORTUNE. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your foresight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the stock at present price. It will soon be 60 per cent. higher.

I can offer the stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

Will accept payments of 25 per cent. cash and balance, 25 per cent. per month. Wanted active agents. Address all orders to

A SAVAGE SCENE AT NEGRO LYNCHING

A School Teacher Shot School Superintendent

HE IS HANGED AND BURNED

A Terrible Scene in Illinois—The Brutality of a Mob

Belleville, Ill., June 10.—The lynching of W. T. Wyatt, the negro school teacher who shot Superintendent Herlet for refusing to renew his teaching certificate, was attended with exhibitions of savagery seldom seen in a civilized country.

The mob hanged Wyatt to a telephone pole in the public square. While his body was jerking in the agonies of death, men built a fire at the foot of the pole. The flames flared up and licked at the feet of the victim, but this did not satisfy the mob, and another larger fire was started. When it had been burning brightly the negro still half alive, was cut down, and after being covered with kerosene oil, he was cast into the fire. Many of the mob were heard from the half dead victim of the mob, and these served further to infuriate his torturers.

They fell upon him with clubs, knives, and cut and beat the burning body all over, and then they threw signs of life had departed did they permit the flames to devour the body. As the fire flared up the scene the members of the mob stood around the funeral pyre having made the faggots of wood in the flames. After the body had been reduced to ashes the mob departed.

Herlet was removed to the hospital where the physicians stated there is no chance for recovery.

Superintendent Herlet, it is said, refused to renew the certificate until Wyatt should clear his name of certain scandals in which he had been mixed up among his race. Angered by the refusal, the negro shot Herlet, and was arrested only after a hard struggle. He was hurried to jail, and when Herlet's injuries had been pronounced fatal a crowd of citizens went to the jail, overpowered the guard and hanged Wyatt.

The Boston and New Mexico Copper Co.

(INCORPORATED)
CAPITAL STOCK, $500,000
In Shares of $1.00 each, par value. — Full Paid and Non-assessable.

Operating in the Oscura Mining District, at the foot of Oscura Mountains, near Esrey City, Precinct 6, Socorro County, New Mexico.

MODERN SMELTER JUST COMPLETED WITHIN A HALF-MILE OF PROPERTY

OVER $1,000,000 ALREADY INVESTED.

Over one million dollars have been invested within a short radius surrounding on all sides the property of this company by Boston, New Haven and New York capitalists. All this has been invested quickly within the last two years without any appeal to the public. Only one of these companies interested has put its stock on the market recently, and that at 60 cents on the dollar.

NOT A PROSPECT, BUT A WELL-DEVELOPED MINING PROPERTY. We have shown by actual mining that we have the

COPPER IN 80 ACRES

A rich fissure vein. This company having paid a large amount of money for these properties, and also in the development of the same, now offer to the public 50,000 shares only of their stock, in order to make further reserves, so that when they start to deliver ore at the reduction works they can keep up the supply daily and by that means pay a dividend that does not fluctuate but that can be depended on by the stockholders.

ANDREW H. WANSWORTH, President, Boston, Mass., Treasurer.
C. J. ARTHUR, Boston, Mass., Secretary and Manager.
JOHN HENRY HAYNES, P. O. Box 10, Esrey City, Socorro County, N. M., Director.
J. R. HENDERSON, Financial Agent, The Oscura Mountains, Esrey City, N. M.

THE
TWO-TEN OIL CO.
of Boulder, Colorado.

Capital Stock, 1,500,000 shares. In Treasury, 500,000 shares

TRANSFER OFFICE, BRISTOL, CONN.

This Company has a perpetual lease on 20 acres of proven oil land in SECTION NINE (9) of the Boulder district, and the section and the immediate vicinity have the best and largest number of producing wells in the entire district.

Our Well No. 1 came in in January and is now pumping and shipping Oil regularly to the Refinery.

The Directors have decided to put down well No. 2 at once, and they now offer a block of the Treasury stock for the next 90 days at

10 Cents per Share,

It is a well known fact that a 16 barrel well will pay over 100 per cent. profit upon its cost.

This is no longer a speculation for we have proved that oil is on our ground, and we now have oil in paying quantities, with two wells pumping, we can pay dividends, and every well we put down increases our earning capacity.

This is a business proposition, managed by business men.

THREE
BARCAINS

A placer and two quartz claims;

Two partially developed quartz claims;

One-quarter section patented, land adjoining above;

All located in the Susanville Mining District, Eastern Oregon. Will be sold together or separately. Total price, $9,000.

We consider this group of properties to be unusually promising as a heavy producing mine joins a portion of the land, and near-by placer grounds are showing up very rich.

Act quickly, if at all interested.

or Traced by a Valentine.

CHAPTER I.

The Dream.

"And this is Valentine's Eve, is it? Well, you're broken my dream." And Mr. John Bruce, so well known in the old-time world as a patient and laborious student and lucid teacher, laid down his pen, and glanced across his writing table at his wife with rather a thoughtful look in his honest, kind brown eyes.

"Have I? I thought you never did dream, John."

"Well, I don't often. But I dreamt last night with a vengeance. That cold duck I had for supper was responsible for it, of course. It was a very curious dream."

"What was it, John?"

"Why, if you weren't such a sensible little fellow, I should hesitate to tell you. My Scotch cousins would say I've been what they call 'foretold'—and either you or I were in the very least superstitious, we should be conjuring up all sorts of bogey fancies on this pleasant, comfortable Valentine's Eve."

"Why, John, whatever did you dream?" asked Ethel Bruce, smiling.

She was a very fair, pretty woman, of eight and twenty.

"A tender, loving little soul, devoted to her clever husband, and firmly cherishing the idea that there was no one like him in the world."

A very pleasant, home-like picture filled the room present, with its cosy crimson curtains at doors and windows, its blazing fire, its pretty mistress, engaged with her sewing, on one side of the hearth, its master, thoughtful and studious, on the other.

The Bruses were in easy circumstances, and their home life was at most ideal.

When his wife pressed him to tell his dream, John Bruce turned his chair to the fire, and looked into the blaze for a moment or two with slightly knitted brows.

"Let me think," he said. "I must tell it you in order. Ah! I have it. I'd forgotten it until a moment or two ago, when you mentioned Valentine's Eve. Well, now listen."

In my dream I seemed to be sitting in this room, just where I sit now, was writing busily, and it was very late. The clock in the hall struck 12, and I remembered it was Valentine's Eve. I left my writing and began to think of other Valentine's Eves—of one in particular."

And he smiled affectionately at his wife, whom he wooed and won just ten years ago.

"Well, dear, go on."

"Well, I was just turning to my writing again, when I noticed one of those crimson curtains—and he waved his hand towards the heavy crimson curtains which draped the windows."

"The next moment, a shape—I say a shape, for I could not distinguish whether it was man or woman, or, indeed, anything human—emerged from the folds of the curtains and came swiftly towards me."

"It was all in gray—the garment long and flowing, and the face quite concealed. Before I could spring up to defend myself, my arms and legs seemed paralyzed—I saw the flash of a naked blade, and realized that I was about to be murdered. I tried to shriek, but could not make a sound. You know what nightmare is. But the shock woke me. I found myself safe in bed upstairs, with you sleeping tranquilly beside me; and I made up my mind not to make my supper off cold duck again."

Mrs. Bruce had listened with that curious kind of interest which the recital of weird dreams usually evokes, but she only smiled at the conclusion of it, and said—

"I'm not sorry to find you can dream a bad dream as well as I. I thought you were superior to them, John."

But another person who had listened to Mr. Bruce did not take it by any means so coolly.

This was a little girl of eight or nine, who had sat near the fire on a footstool, almost entirely hidden by her mother's skirts.

She sprang forward suddenly, and clung to her father's knee, raising her eyes to his face, and crying out, with great agitation—

"Oh, papa, will that dream come true?"

Mr. Bruce laughed as he lifted his little daughter on to his knee, and stroked her fair hair with his loving touch, which showed how passing deep she was to him.

She was his only child—a delay of a year and a half, and a child as good as dead and beyond her years.

Very lovely she was, with skin as delicate as a rose-leaf, luminous dark eyes, and a wealth of beautiful brown hair.

Those large, lustrous eyes were fixed on her father's face now with a look of terror and distress.

His weird dream had sunk deep into her childish mind.

He glanced at his wife anxiously. "Marjorie is so sensitive, my dear," he said. "She oughtn't to hear such things till she is older."

"But, papa, will it come true?" persisted the child, wistfully. And the tears stood in her eyes.

"Come true? No, my pet. Things happen in real life exactly contrary to our dreams. So you may set your little heart at rest."

Then he proceeded to give an explanation of dreams—an explanation of a man of science and a philosopher.

The child listened attentively, and in the end gave a deep-drawn sigh of relief.

"I'm glad to know," she whispered. "I couldn't bear to let you die, papa."

And she put her little arms round his neck and buried her face on his bosom.

"My tender-hearted darling!" said the fair, young mother, smiling at husband and child.

Four or five hours later, Mr. Bruce was sitting at work in the room, but he was now quite alone.

His wife had left him an hour ago with a tender good-night, and a laughing reference to his dream.

The two servants were in bed and fast asleep.

The house was very still. There was no sound in it save the loud ticking of the clock in the hall.

Mr. Bruce went on with his writing, rapidly.

So absorbed was he that he did not hear the opening of the door, nor the sound of a light footfall.

A soft hand laid on his arm made him look up, and to his utter amazement he saw his little daughter standing close beside him, clad in her white night-gown, her feet naked, her hair falling like a golden cloud about her shoulders.

"My darling, whatever are you doing here?"

"Oh, papa!"

"And she began to sob a little."

"Well, my precious, what is it?" he asked anxiously.

"Papa, I was frightened about you! I woke up, and thought about your dream. It frightened me—and—and I came down to see if you were safe."

The child was shivering with fear, not with cold.

Her cheeks were pale; her eyes dilated.

There could be no doubt as to the genuineness of her distress.

"My foolish little daughter!" exclaimed Mr. Bruce, but he caught her up in his arms and stroked her to him in a passion of tenderness. "I am all right—and shall be. But you will catch your death of cold. Run back to bed, darling."

"No, not just yet, papa," and she nestled more closely to him. "Let me stay just a little while."

"But, Marjorie, I couldn't write if you stayed, and I want to get to the end of my chapter. Run back to bed—or stay! I'll show you something first. Look here, Marjorie. This is a valentine for mamma."

He opened a drawer of his writing table and took a small package out of it.

It was a morocco case, containing a locket, inscribed on one side with blue enamel.

"Oh, papa, how pretty!" cried the child. "Do let me look at it."

She examined it, and was handing it back to him, when, somehow or other, it slipped from her fingers and fell on the tiled hearth, after striking sharply against the edge of the fender.

When Mr. Bruce picked it up it bit of the pretty blue enamel was chipped off.

Marjorie's sorrow was extreme, but her father, like the kind-hearted philosopher he was, took it very coolly.

"Don't fret, dear. Mamma won't mind a great deal; accidents will happen. It wasn't your fault. And now run back to bed. I shall have finished in less than half an hour, and I'll come into your room and kiss you good night."

"Kiss me now, 'oo, papa," said the child, raising her sweet, wistful face to his.

He kissed her a dozen times.

"Good night, my darling. My precious, precious Valentine!" he said.

For Marjorie had been born on St. Valentine's Day.

She left the room obediently, and had got as far as the top of the stairs when she heard a sound which made her childish heart beat fast with terror—her father's voice, raised in a loud, strange cry.

Back she ran to the room, wild with fear, and with her face as white as her gown. As she opened the door she caught a glimpse of a tall form escaping through the open window, from (To be continued.)

concerning a Wonderful Discovery by the Famous Dr. Charles.

To the Editor of The Times.—Mr. With a view to afford relief to the afflicted, I am now publishing the following: I am 21 years old and for 9 years have been absolutely nothing, owing to rheumatism; my hands, feet and heart being affected. I was induced by my cousin to take Dr. Charles' Wonderful Little Red Pills, and before I had taken 10 boxes I could go upstairs without help, and can now go up the stairs as well as I ever could. Two doctors told me that I never would be well again; but I have neither ache nor pain and am in perfect health.

GEORGE M. DUNCAN,
720 Albert St., London.

A Remarkable Offer.

Mr.—We make the following proposition to readers of The Times. To any one who is a subject of rheumatism, (no matter how long standing), or any blood disease, commencing below, and will give Dr. Charles' Wonderful Little Red Pills a fair trial, and are not fully and completely cured, we will refund the money paid for the pills. If no good results follow, we will forfeit $10 cash.

We have put to the test of a single case where this wonderful medicine has not been able to entirely succeed, and in the work of relieving suffering humanity.

Dr. Charles' Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, arthritis, paralysis, coughs, colds, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. Price 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.50.

Dr. Charles' Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Charles' Sure Cure for Rheumatism, same price and will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

Anecdotal.

Just after the publication of the famous stories for children that Charles Lamb and his sister Mary wrote in collaboration, Lamb asked a fellow-traveller one day: "Have you read Lamb's tales?" "No," replied the other, "but I have a black sheepkin rug!"

An unassisted member of the Ontario Legislature was consoled with by a political friend. "Anyways, you're certain to come back, so you needn't take it so hard," said the latter. "Yes," answered the ex-legislator, drily: "we all cherish Christian belief in the resurrection, but I don't think that it entirely reconciles us to death."

The late Augustus Hare was fond of relating an amusing incident which illustrated the absent-mindedness of his cousin, Dean Stanley, and Dr. Jowett. Both were quite devoid of either taste or smell, and for some reason both were inordinately fond of tea. One morning they had each drunk eight cups, when suddenly, as Jowett rose from his table, he exclaimed: "Good gracious! I forgot to put the tea in!" Neither had noticed the omission as they sipped their favorite beverage.

Bismarck, on one occasion, told Sidney Whitman of his well-known feat in oyster-eating. He was once in Liege, where he ordered some oysters in a restaurant—fifty to begin with. He saw the lady behind the counter look up in surprise, so, when he had eaten them, wishing to see what effect it might have on her, he ordered another fifty, and so on, until he had eaten one hundred and seventy oysters. Mr. Whitman adds that "it is only fair to remember that in all probability they were the small Ostend variety."

Chaplain Russell of the Missouri House of Representatives recently demonstrated the efficacy of prayer by a supplication that is said to have resulted in the attitude of the members of the House, a majority of whom formerly read the papers during the chaplain's petition. "O Lord," he prayed, "I ask that those in this house who rise to their feet for prayer may not continue to read their papers while the chaplain prays. Grant that they may have some respect for God if they have not for the chaplain."

Recently a Virginia girl went to Washington to visit the parents of her fiancé. Upon her return home her old colored mammy came to see her, and said to her, "Honey, when's you goin' to get married?" The engagement had not been announced, so the young woman replied: "Why, I don't know, ammie; I am not even engaged. What do you think of that?" The old colored woman said: "Lawd-a-me, but that suitably am a pity! But, Miss Nancy, they do say that ole mads is the happiest critters there is, once they quits strugglin'."

Rear Admiral Frank Wildes, who died recently, used to be fond of telling of a great start that a Boston clergyman once gave his congregation. "I was born in Boston," Admiral Wildes would say, "and in my boyhood attended church there. Well, at church one Sunday morning the week it seems, a very old man married after the service. The minister made the announcement in this way: 'The parties that are to be joined in matrimony will present themselves immediately after the singing of Hymn No. 945—Milk and Honey—That Dream of Heaven.'"

Senator Hoar of Massachusetts knows his Bible very well, from cover to cover, and draws on it for philosophy and illustration with great facility. Only once in a great while is he caught tripping in this field. One such occasion was while the Senate was discussing the Chinese treaty of 1891. He quoted against the extension policy St. Paul's declaration: "For God hath made of one blood all the nations of the earth." "Senator Hoar," California exclaimed: "do not quote the remainder of the sentence." "There is no more of it," said Mr. Hoar. "Oh, yes, there is," rejoined Miller; "for the apostle added to the words which the senator has just quoted, and he declared the blessedness of their habitation."

In one of the towns of New Hampshire, recently visited in England, the March King met a lady with a great reputation for worrying celebrities of all kinds to attend her dinners and "eat home." She sent him a pressing invitation to stay at her house after his performance, but when she learned that she had issued invitations to her neighbors "to meet Mr. John Philip Sousa" in an exhibition of "prevarication" not to be exceeded even by a Yankee, she declined politely and with thanks. Having counted upon Sousa's acceptance, and held his name out to her friends as bait, the lady was much disturbed on receiving his note, and wrote back to him with desperate boldness: "I am terribly sorry to have your card saying you cannot come, but I still hope for the pleasure of your company." To this the poor lady received the following terrifying answer: "Dear Madam—I have given your note and message to my company, but I regret to say that only fifty of them will be able to accept your invitation, the rest of them having appointments to keep elsewhere."

The Minersville Gold Mining
—and Milling Company—

Will be sold at 15 CENTS PER SHARE, PAR VALUE, $1.00.

Full Paid, Non-Assessable and No Personal Liability.

READ THIS!

This Company offers one of the safest and best investments, as its property is located in the famous Sumpter District, Baker Co., Oregon, and has for its neighbors such mines as the Bonanza, Red Hot, Barba, North Pole, El Estrella, Colorado and Cracker Oregon, which are producing from $40,000 to $100,000 each per month. This great property for which the undersigned is Fiscal Agent is more promising than any of the big producing mines at the same stage of development.

The Company has three full claims, with two large veins, one sixteen feet and the other twenty-two feet at the surface, showing good gold values and strictly free milling. The Company owns the property outright, being free from all debt and incumbrances, and in order to equip the mine with modern machinery and to continue development work, a limited number of shares will be sold for a short time only at 15 cents per share, as announced above.

Investors who wish to place money in large or small amounts can do so better than in any other investment. All information cheerfully furnished; and all checks promptly paid.

To Canadian Investors

THE GREATEST MINING PROPOSITION
EVER OFFERED.

I am pleased to state that I have completed arrangements with the Consolidated Nevada Mining Company for the sale of a block of their treasury stock in Canada. It is a proposition I have never before presented, and has unlimited possibilities. The tremendous possibilities of WEDEKIND and TONOPAH is becoming plain every day to the entire country. The spring rush into these NEVADA mining camps will equal or exceed that into Cripple Creek, Dawson or Nome. The strikes recently reported from Wedekind and Tonopah have created the greatest excitement and the rush will soon be on.

Everyone is wanting NEVADA mining stocks and prices are rapidly advancing. Now is the best time to get in—before the prices go too high.

The Consolidated Nevada Mining Company

Properties in the heart of the Wedekind district. High grade ore and lots of it. We are certain to cut the richest vein in the district very soon; then it's all off.

A GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and the return absolute safety is guaranteed, and yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

Thus the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer:

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, one of the largest and most successful mining and oil companies in the world, offers a limited amount of its treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Cripple Creek, Colo., upon which during the past five years a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done. It is prepared to place as many of these mining properties upon a slipping and self-supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of all lands in Lincoln County, Colo. In order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Fortunes have been made by investments of this kind, and money made will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are usually very great, especially when the stock can be secured at such a low price as this is now offered for. Now is the time to get in before the prices go too high.

125 WILL NOT REACH THE NUMBER OF REASONS WHY THE STOCK IN The Oro Rico Mining Syndicate IS A GOOD INVESTMENT.

I have offered this stock at a very low price and it is your misfortune if you fail to take advantage of it. THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 30 full claims.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGEMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the dictation of your foresight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the stock at present price. It will soon be 50 per cent. higher.

I can offer the stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

Will accept payments of 25 per cent. cash and balance, 25 per cent. per month. Wanted active agents. Address all orders to

THE BELKAN TROUBLES

The Country Believed to be on

Verge of Big War

International complications are likely to result if Russia should interfere in the matter

London, June 13.—Most of the consular representatives of European countries, more particularly those whose duties are of a diplomatic, as well as a business character, were notified today of the wholesale assassination of King, Queen and Cabinet in Serbia.

Count de Masara, the consul general for Italy, said: "The whole Balkan peninsula is a volcano, and one hardly knows what to expect at any moment. I regret the assassination of the King very much. I had the pleasure of meeting him when he was at Florence with his mother, ex-Queen Natalie, and he was a promising being. The present proclaimed King was a pretender even in the days of ex-King Milan, and the suspension of the constitution by the murdered King incited the army against him. He had been the present tragedy. Of course, there may be other things to be taken into account of which I am not personally aware."

ABSOLUTE SAVAGERY.

Mons. A. Kieckhefer, consul general for France, said that he understood that the family of the pretender Karageorgievich had formerly reigned for a time, and that one of the family had been a Russian officer. However, had such a tragedy occurred in Bulgaria, where they had a Prince belonging to another nation, it would not have been so surprising, perhaps, but the murdered King was a Serbian himself. "It is absolute savagery," added Mons. Kieckhefer, "and a scene such as might be expected in the middle ages—something for a Shakespeare to write about."

Mr. Ferdinand Freyhaufen, acting consul general for Austria-Hungary, had been advised of the matter, but had nothing to say regarding it.

NEW KING AT GENEVA.

Geneva, Switzerland, June 13.—Prince Peter Karageorgievich, who has been living here for some time, appeared to be greatly astonished at the news from Belgrade, he said, he had only learned through a private telegram from Vienna.

Prince Peter Karageorgievich lives in a modest apartment on the Rue de la Helvétique. Pending further official news from Belgrade he declined to talk on the coup d'état at Belgrade.

Recently the Prince has been in constant communication with Serbian politicians and received many telegrams believed to be from the frontier of Serbia during the past fortnight.

MR. R. J. KIDD, FISCAL AGENT, PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO

SHARES TO ADVANCE From Three to Five Dollars

Remarkable Discovery of Gold, Silver and Copper Ore Made on Property of the EASTERN NATIONAL COPPER COMPANY, Limited, of Cheticamp, Cape Breton

ORE BEARING SCHISTS FROM 75 TO 100 FEET WIDE

The out crop of the extension of the deposit has just been cut on the opposite side of the mountain from which the work was commenced, proving that the ore body extends through the hill.

M. M. V. GRANDE, engineer in charge of the development work, reports the discovery of an immense body of gold, silver, and copper bearing ore from surface to one hundred feet wide on the property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, at Cheticamp, Cape Breton. This is probably the first known instance in Eastern Canada of the unearthing of a large deposit of metaliferous ore such as made the mining industry of British Columbia, the Western States and Mexico of great magnitude. The discovery in Cape Breton tends to confirm the opinion of mining experts that Cheticamp is one of the most important mining districts in Nova Scotia. The Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, owns some of the finest sections of this district and has about completed the proving of a body of ore estimated to contain 100,000 tons, worth from $10 to $15 per ton. The main slope is shown 130 feet all in one and the tunnel from which the mine will be worked has been commenced from the opposite side of the hill. The Company expect to commence the installation of plant for treatment in three months' time. Surface buildings, etc., have all been erected.

Thousands of tons of Ore already in sight. Every day adds to the proved value of the mine

THERE is no safer form of mining investment than gold-copper ore deposits as they occur in immense veins and carry regular values. Many of the private fortunes of the United States owe their origin to a lucky investment in a gold-copper proposition. The property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, is undoubtedly one of the most valuable in the country. Besides its extensive mining claims the mining company controls timber for mining and building purposes and will also have natural water-power. The extension of the Mackenzie & Mann Railway from Broad Cove to Cheticamp this year will give the great mining enterprise rail as well as water communication with all points.

The undertaking of this Company is a sound business enterprise, organized by a prominent Nova Scotia business man, without the heavy over-capitalization, watered stock, promoters' take-off, directors' perquisites, etc., which characterize many foreign companies. The company is capitalized at the moderate figure of $600,000, and one-half the entire capital stock has been placed in the treasury in reserve. 10,000 shares of the other half are being sold for development.

A Limited Amount of Stock is Offered at $3.00 per Share (Thirty Cents on the Dollar). Par $10.00

The Stock was started at $1 per share, and has advanced steadily to $3. Next advance will likely be to $5, and we expect it will be quoted at par—$10—within a year, based on ore actually blocked out. Less than 1000 shares will be sold at the present figure or three dollars. Applications for Stock should be addressed to

How Are Your Kidneys?

This Simple Test Will Tell

If any of your family have been troubled with kidney disease, make a test of the urine, and satisfy yourself whether you need a food remedy before the disease has caused serious complications.

To-morrow morning put some zinc in a glass or bottle, and let it stand for twenty-four hours. If it shows particles or germs floating about, it is milky or cloudy, or contains a reddish sediment, then your kidneys are diseased.

Commence at once to take Ferron's to arrest these unnatural conditions. Ferron's is especially indicated for the immediate relief and cure of kidney and bladder troubles, and its health giving, strengthening properties will be felt at once in new pure blood, healthy circulation, good color, increased vigor, and a general strengthening of the system.

Ferron's quickly corrects urinal disorders, headache, and pain in the back. It improves the appetite, dispels the fumes, and makes it possible to eat, and makes them strong and cheerful, and fits one for lots of hard work.

Don't be misled by cheap, so-called kidney cures offered by dealers for the sake of extra profits. There is only one safe and reliable specific. Bladder, Liver, and Urinal troubles, and its name is Ferron's.

Refuse point blank to accept a substitute, and insist on your right to supply the genuine Ferron's; it is the best. Price 50 cts. per box, or three boxes for $1.35. At all drug stores or by mail from N. C. Folson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

A Painful Accident

Mr. T. Cavanagh, the big leaved proprietor of the Phelan House, had the misfortune to break the small bone in his left arm on Friday last. Mr. Cavanagh was in the act of closing a car in which he had loaded a number of barrels, when one of the animals, a powerful brute, kicked, striking and breaking the hardwood plank, the end of which struck the arm causing the fracture, which is very painful. It is to be hoped that Mr. Cavanagh will soon regain the use of his injured limb.

FIRE IN ONEMERE

Finishing Mill Totally Destroyed on Friday Evening Last

At 8:30 on Friday night fire broke out in the engine room of Kennedy Dyeing's finishing factory. The flames spread so rapidly that the buildings and stock were completely consumed. There is insurance on the building and machinery of $2,000, and on stock of $500. Heavy rain prevented the fire from spreading.

A VERY SUDDEN DEATH

Mr. Bert Kennedy of Town, Passed Away in Rochester, N.Y.

The death of Mr. Bert Kennedy in Rochester on Thursday last came with a shock to his many friends in Peterborough. It appears that Mr. Kennedy left for Rochester for business purposes, and on his way back to his home in Peterborough, he was in the last of health before he left. The deceased leaves a wife, (having been married only a year and a half) who has the sympathy of the community in her terrible loss.

His funeral will take place in Rochester, where his father and sister are buried.

MILITARY NEWS

The Trip to Picton on July 1st will Take Place

All arrangements regarding the annual trip of the 15th Regiment to Kingston and Picton have been completed. The picnic people were making elaborate arrangements to celebrate the Regiment.

Col. Miller has stated to the press that the 15th Regiment (The Queen's Own Rifles) will be accompanied by their band and will be dressed in tuxedos. In all probability the trip will arrive in town on Friday night, and hold a military band parade on Sunday afternoon. They will leave on Monday night for Montreal.

The 57th will meet for drill this evening instead of Tuesday night. There will also be a drill on Thursday night.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

For Federal Union No. 24 Held in Room of England Hall

At the first regular meeting of the Federal Union, No. 24, recently organized under a charter from the Trades and Labor Council of Canada, the following officers were elected for the coming year:

President—John McLean.
Vice-President—William Coney.
Financial Secretary—A. Kingstone.
Recording Secretary—William Taylor.
Warden—J. McCarthy.
Committee—John Gibbons.

The regular meeting nights of the union are the second and fourth Fridays of each month.

The new union starts off with a competent staff of officers and in flourishing financial condition. This union is a mixed assembly—members of any trade can join.

DECORATION DAY

Thursday additions will decorate the Graves of Their Dead

On Thursday afternoon the members of Peterborough will decorate the graves of their dead. The members of the Peterborough Lodge, No. 111, and Ottonabee Lodge, No. 15, will decorate at 2 o'clock on the Central Park in proper regalia, and wearing white gloves and ties, and will be joined by the 57th Regt. and proceed to the cemetery where appropriate services will be held, presided over by Paul D.D.M. Bro. M. W. Mitchell. The expenses of the day will be met by the members of the lodge. The matter is in charge of Messrs. A. Fowler, W. Dayman and Gilbert from Peterborough Lodge, and W. Higgins, W. R. Robinson and J. T. O'Leary, representing Ottonabee Lodge. All visiting brethren will be made welcome.

DEATH OF MR. JAMES SAVIGNY

One of Ottonabee's Best Known Citizens Passed Away

There passed away on Monday morning, at the ripe old age of 72, one of the noblest and most respected citizens in the person of Mr. James Savigny, who for upwards of 60 years has been a resident of this township.

The deceased was born in Scotland, and was married. He leaves one son, Mr. J. Savigny, who is now in the latter end of his life, and who lived with him until his death. The other brother resided on an adjacent farm. Mr. Savigny was an earnest Christian, and was identified with St. Paul's Presbyterian church ever since its organization.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at two o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery.

GRADUATED WITH HONORS

Miss Ruth L. Robertson, Student at Grace Hospital, New Haven, Conn.

The many friends of Miss Ruth L. Robertson, eldest daughter of Mr. W. L. Robertson, town, will be pleased to learn that she has been successful in passing with honors the final test as a professional nurse, at the recent examinations at Grace Hospital, New Haven, Conn. Grace Hospital is regarded as one of the best schools on the continent, and prides itself on the thoroughness of its work in this particular. There were eight graduates. Four of them being Canadian young ladies, Miss Robertson, Miss Eleanor Salmon, Toronto; Miss Florence Salmon, Toronto; Miss Florence Salmon, and Mrs. K. H. Hancock.

At the graduation exercises, which were largely attended by the elite of New Haven, Miss Robertson delivered an eloquent valedictory, and at the conclusion, was greeted with a storm of applause.

Miss Robertson will return home for a rest, after spending a few days with relatives in New York and Brooklyn.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

—Mr. John Lang, M.P., was in town on Saturday.

—Mr. and Mrs. M. Flood have returned from Guelph.

—Mrs. Thomas Hicks, Cleveland, in the guest of Mrs. George Carion.

—Miss Aetitia Fowler, of Ashburnham, is visiting friends in Peterborough.

—His Honor O'Connor administered the Sacrament of Confirmation in St. Mary's church, Lindsay, yesterday.

—Prof. Walter, teacher of Hebrew in Mount Allison University, Sackville, N.B., preached in George street church yesterday evening.

—Miss Fannie Branson, Fennelon Falls, who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. W. H. Robertson, has gone to Lindsay.

—Mr. W. F. Nelson, late manager for Haight & Freese, stock brokers, who have closed their office here, has accepted a similar position with Messrs. Dyer & Co.

—J. J. Jamieson has returned from Hamilton, where he has been attending the High Court meeting of the Canadian Order of Foresters.

—Rev. Mr. Dickinson, of Warram, has been appointed to the parish of Fennelon Falls, by Bishop Sweetman, of Toronto.

—The marriage of Miss Frances Penney and Mr. J. J. Jamieson will take place very quietly at St. Simon's church, this afternoon; there will be no reception owing to the recent death of Mrs. Macklin Penney.

—Lindsay Post: Mr. Geo. B. Matthews and family, of Peterborough, passed through today to Kingston, where they will spend the season.

—Mr. Macklin Penney has rented the Graham's comfortable cottage beyond the spring, and hopes to be able to spend part of every week at Lindsay's pleasant summer resort.

—Brightened with Peterborough warden Moore and D. May have returned from Peterborough, where they, with P. J. Threlkeld, represented local judges at the grand council meeting of the C.O.F.E. at Kingston.

—The people there, in saying how to entertain visitors. The Mayor and his wife have been the first to visit the city, and a happy faculty of making visitors feel at home.

—The attention of The Times has been called to the fact that there is no fire protection afforded to the buildings and sheds of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Society, and that in case of fire there is no insurance available. We all know that the policy of the city of Peterborough is to put down no services that will not be self-sustaining, and this rule should, we think, never be violated. Now that the Sugar Company will need fire protection, no doubt a by-law will soon be enacted for the protection of the property of the Agricultural Society.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

—The country is looking fine.

—To-morrow will be circus day.

—Leary's bus will begin regular trips to Channing to-day.

—The date for the first annual excursion under the auspices of the Albany Club, leaves here for Thursday, June 24th. About 100 invitations have been issued.

—About 10:30 Saturday night the fire brigades were called out to extinguish a blaze in Danes' bakery, Charlotte street. Very little damage was done.

—Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, of Enniscorthy, has decided to hold his annual picnic on Monday, June 15th, instead of June 16th, as at first contemplated.

—Mr. Chas. Armstrong, who formerly ran the Mount Julian Hotel, has purchased the grand will of the Graham House, Hawkeville, and takes charge in a few days.

—Yesterday hundreds of people visited Peterborough's three attractions: The lift built, the Corral Company's new dam, and last but not least, the Sugar Company's factory now being erected in the south end.

—To-day the G.T.R. summer service between Lindsay and Peterborough will begin. Trains will leave here at 8:30 a.m. and 12:15 p.m., and 6:00 p.m., and will leave Lindsay at 10 a.m., 5:00 p.m., and 8:00 p.m.

—Invitations have been issued for the wedding of Mr. R. P. Davidson, the popular manager of the branch of the Graham House, Lindsay, to Miss Mabel Beasley, of Windsor. The ceremony will take place at the residence of the bride's mother, 143 Victoria avenue, Windsor, on June 17th.

At Nicholas Hospital, Lindsay, yesterday, the death occurred of Elizabeth Parker, a Barreboro' woman, who died at the age of twelve years. Her demise was caused by apoplexy.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at two o'clock.

JACKSON.—On Tuesday, June 16th, to Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Jackson, daughter of A. M.

"IMPOSSIBLE," for you to enjoy motherhood," says the doctor. Sometimes he qualifies the statement, and says: "Impossible without an operation." Yet both these "impossibilities" have been made possible by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Many times the hindrances to motherhood are to be found in womanly diseases or weaknesses, which are perfectly and permanently cured by "Favorite Prescription." This great medicine cures irregularity, and drives debility, and inflammation, and ulceration, and causes female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

"I wish to add my testimony to hundreds of others as to the value of Dr. Pierce's medicine," writes Mrs. Ida M. De Ford, of Linton, Hubbard Co., Minn. "I have suffered with a great many nervous and female ailments, and have been regarded as a hopeless case, and they knew not what the trouble was. Heart was bad; stomach all out of order; tired out; severe pains in all parts of the body; sinking spells, and nearly every ailment of a woman's kind. I took a bottle of 'Pierce's Favorite Prescription,' and I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and I feel that I owe my life to a few bottles of it. I have been strong and healthy since I began taking it. I have been strong and healthy since I began taking it. I have been strong and healthy since I began taking it."

The Common Sense Medical Adviser, food large pages, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. W. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.

A BRITISH MISSION TO VISIT SEALED CITY

A Wonderful Country Which is Soon to be Opened to the World

BOUNDARY QUESTION TO BE DISCUSSED

The Secret of Who Actually Owns Tibet will Soon be Known To Europe

London, June 15.—The British Government has at last attained an object which for years has been considered impossible. A mission from Peking to visit a friendly mission to Tibet, to discuss some questions both of boundary and commerce, which the Government of Tibet and Tibet have been long at variance.

For a century past the authorities in India have been in a state of constant alarm, partly because of the growing power of the British Empire, partly because of the growing power of the British Empire, partly because of the growing power of the British Empire.

Peking, however, influenced probably by the success of the designs of both London and Lhasa, which latter is never quite dead, has always been a "protection" authority to advise, or more probably insist, that any new mission from Calcutta or Simla should be accompanied by a British officer, and with more or less civility ordered to return where they came.

More than once the Government of India, affronted by the treatment of its subjects or by the contempt of the safety of Amam, has contemplated a resort to force; but other duties have intervened, and expeditions have been postponed, and of late years Tibet has been in a way forgotten.

Peking, however, influenced probably by the success of the designs of both London and Lhasa, which latter is never quite dead, has always been a "protection" authority to advise, or more probably insist, that any new mission from Calcutta or Simla should be accompanied by a British officer, and with more or less civility ordered to return where they came.

More than once the Government of India, affronted by the treatment of its subjects or by the contempt of the safety of Amam, has contemplated a resort to force; but other duties have intervened, and expeditions have been postponed, and of late years Tibet has been in a way forgotten.

It would seem, however, from the telegram that the mission to Tibet has been revived in London, that the Chinese Government there have modified their policy. They have now directly instructed their Resident in Tibet to come from there, rather than from the British agent, but have published in the Peking Gazette a report from him describing his urgent remonstrances with the "monks" of the Dalai Lama, that is, the head of the great monastery against any further incursion into British territory.

There must, he says, be a cessation of hostilities, and the consequences would be small. The intervention of the Imperial Resident would be of small avail.

The Chinese Government in publishing this report has evidently been influenced by an anxiety to shift any responsibility from itself on to the Lama.

This is taken as indicating that a mission or commission will shortly start to Tibet from the India side, and will reach Lhasa in safety. The Lhasa, whatever their policy or their secret feelings, will not venture, we may be sure, to defy both Simla and Peking. That is a most interesting prospect, for Tibet is almost the counterpart of Cardinal Newman. Through an open window one caught a glimpse of a young figure, clad in black, with a thin, pointed face—straight nose, thin lips, and a small, dark, deep-lined mouth—straight, wrinkled brow, and gray hair coming from under a skull-cap. The American Cardinal is sixty-eight years old, but he has the eager address and patriotic enthusiasm of a boy. His gray eyes snap and sparkle as he talks. His slender hands, which have been raised in countless benedictions, are extraordinary in their suppleness and refinement.

The whole personality suggests simplicity, modesty and sincerity. In spite of the golden chain and its pendant jeweled cross, the flowing episcopal ring and the princely scarlet, one cannot meet the cardinal without feeling that he bears the burden of his great office meekly, that he is, before all things, a simple-hearted, devoted American citizen. Love of country is the keynote of his whole character.

"A Source of Great Sorrow." "The struggle between capital and labor in the United States is a source of great sorrow and uneasiness to me," he said. "It is not only a serious interruption of the productive energies of the country, but it is a profound social upheaval—it is a social war."

"These are the times when the people are engaged in the supreme experiment of free government in the presence of the whole world, in the presence of history. The energies of our institutions can snap their fingers at the trouble if we show that we cannot govern ourselves reasonably. We claim that we have liberty without license and authority without despotism. I do not want to live to see that claim discredited."

"The workingmen of America should realize how deeply and directly they are interested in preserving from injury the reputation of the United States as a land where liberty and law are held in honor."

"The corporations, the employers, are powerful and united. They have the Government behind them to protect their rights. That is a sad situation. The workingmen have formed unions for mutual improvement and protection. They are as much entitled to combine for business purposes as are their employers. That fact is undeniable. They are equally entitled to have their rights defended by the Government."

Rights of the Non-Union Man. "The third factor in the situation is the non-union workman. He, too, has rights which must be maintained. He has the right to enter a union or to stay out of it; to sell his labor when and where and for what price he pleases."

When the union labor man denies that right he denies a liberty which he claims for himself. "The union man may say that they cannot succeed in their struggle for good wages and better conditions so long as there are workmen outside of their organization who can be used by employers to break strikes—that the unions are for the benefit of all who toil."

"Then they should give non-union men an opportunity to freely choose. They should get members by attraction and not by compulsion. The very fact that a man feels that he is not free to enter or stay out of a union may be enough to injure him."

"The American workman loves his freedom better than anything else. That is one of his finest traits. He resents anything that menaces compromise of his rights. It is time for thoughtful labor union men to recognize this fact."

"I am strongly opposed to the boycott and to every other form of coercion employed against free labor. The whole force of organized action should be employed to insure to every man in this country his right to follow his own way and under conditions of his own choice."

As to a Solution. "It is difficult to indicate a solution of the labor question. Arbitration is one way and a good way. But, whatever the solution may be, it must be one which will recognize individual liberty. No man must be allowed to oppress another man in this country."

—Chicago Post. On Tuesday last Mr. John Lewis went out to his hotel and was rewarded with a good haul of fish. Among the fish in the net were two monster trout which weighed thirty-two pounds. They were probably the largest fish caught in this part for many years. Some years ago large trout were quite numerous in this section, but lately they disappeared.

PIONEER GONE

One of the Oldest Residents of Peterborough Passes Away

There are very few indeed, either in Ontario or Peterborough, who will not feel and when the news comes to them that Mr. Thomas Taylor passed peacefully away on Sunday afternoon at his home in Ontario.

Mr. Taylor was in his eighty-eighth year, and grew down to his grave with the esteem and love of all who had the privilege of his acquaintance.

The funeral took place from his late home this afternoon at one o'clock to St. Mary's cemetery for burial.

DEATH OF MR. WHITE

A Well Known Resident Passes Away in His Life

Many relatives and a very large circle of intimate friends will regret to learn of the death of Mr. John White, an old man of St. Mary's cemetery.

The deceased has lived practically all his life in town, although it will be remembered that he took part in the great Erie expedition, along with many other Canadians, in 1881 and 1885.

He was in his 44th year, and leaves behind a sorrowing father, mother, three brothers, and four sisters, who have the sympathy of the entire community.

The funeral takes place to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock.

MAIN'S CIRCUS IN TOWN

The Great Show is Now Located on the Circus Grounds

Parade at 10.30 O'CLOCK

The Circus Occupies the Driving Park—It is a Colossal Affair and will be Largely Patronized

It was a revelation of boyhood's happy days this morning as the Walter L. Main circus came into Peterborough, with whistles blowing and music playing, and a great train of animals to the town. The medley must have awakened some of the good citizens who lived adjacent to the depot from their slumbers.

The small boy who was moved to cry "hooray" when at times he caught glimpses of the wild animals through the bars of their cages, smilingly crouched at being awakened from their slumber by the circus.

The parade of the circus was a sight to behold. The animals were led by the circus men, and the wagons were loaded with the big show. The circus men were dressed in their uniforms, and the wagons were decorated with flags and bunting.

QUEEN DRAGA'S SISTERS ARE EXPELLED

Echoes of the Cruel Assassination—No Punishment for the Murderers

Vienna, June 15.—Dr. Naucha Meisner, a member of the entourage of the new King of Serbia, said to a correspondent: "The Serbian people are enthusiastic over the altered situation of the governing circles at Belgrade. There is no opposition party. The new Government will be a blessing to the country and there will be an end to the anarchy and the state of lawlessness which has reigned since the assassination of the king."

The result will be a united nation, freedom of speech, just legislation and friendship with Austria. As long as Serbia is contented there can be no cause for intervention on the part of the powers. It is realized in well-informed circles that the overthrow of Alexander while it might have been accomplished in a less savage manner was inevitable. The attitude of the Serbian people in accepting the new Government is interpreted as showing that the conspirators stood on extremely firm ground. The Liberalism of Serbia felt that Alexander was a selfish force. His ministers of the Constitution and the Crown had converted the Government into a practical autocracy. Prince Karageorgevitch's surprise at the events in Belgrade is diplomatic. Nobody doubts that he played a leading part in the work preceding the fatal stroke.

However, it is also thought that Kara Georgevitch will make no attempt to profit by his cleverness should serious change and force animals, including the curious among the domestic kind. The wonderful feature of Savage South Africa is also a marvel of realistic feature, with emotional elements never before presented in a circus arena.

The parade this morning is advertised to take place at ten by the clock. The route will be as follows: Up George to Charlotte, thence to Water street; up Water to London, thence back to George, and down George to the circus grounds.

A grand display of free daylight fireworks will be given at the grounds. These will prove the commencement of a gala day in which the great showman displays all the fun-loving citizens of the city and surrounding towns to participate.

The afternoon's performance begins at two o'clock; evening at eight. Those who come early will fare the best. It is requested that all the fun-loving citizens of the city and surrounding towns to participate.

CARDINAL GIBBONS DEFENDS THE NON-UNION WORKMEN

Workmen Are As Much Entitled to Combine for Business as Their Employers

SOLUTION OF ALL LABOUR TROUBLES Must be One Which Thoroughly Recognizes the Individual Liberty

"The (non-union workman) has his rights, which must be maintained; he has the right to enter a union or to stay out of it; to sell his labor when and where and for what price he pleases. When the union man denies that right, he denies a liberty which he claims for himself."—Cardinal Gibbons to The World.

Baltimore, Md., June 15.—When Cardinal Gibbons speaks to the American people he always commands attention, but when he raises his voice against the oppression of the non-union workman, as he did in a short conversation I had with him yesterday—his words have an impressive significance, for it was this most intensely American of all prelates, this faithful and unpretending friend of the American worker, who once moved the Knights of Labor from ecclesiastical condemnation by Leo XIII.

Weather favorable, damage nil, prospects very promising. Without a single exception in the 118 stations heard from, this is the answer to the inquiries sent out from the assistant superintendents. Crop conditions were never better than at present in western Canada.

CHAPTER II

In the Train.

Nine years later.

The London express from Crewe was on the point of starting.

The guard had all but raised his whistle to his lips, when a porter was seen hurrying along the platform with a young lady, dressed in slight mourning, who was evidently anxious to catch the train.

The porter pulled open a door; it belonged to a first-class compartment, and there was a single passenger inside—an elderly gentleman with a thick travelling rug wrapped round his knees, and books and papers littering the seat beside him.

The young lady gave a little incoherent exclamation, and seemed as though she would have drawn back. But there was no time for this.

The guard banged the door, the whistle whistled and the train moved out of the station.

The young girl—for she was nothing more, being barely eighteen years of age—sank into one of the comfortable cushioned seats, with a look of such unmistakable agitation and distress that the gentleman could not but observe it.

"I hope there is nothing amiss," he said, courteously. "Surely they have not put you in the wrong train. This is for London."

"I'm in the right train, thank you, but," she flushed crimson, then added, bravely, though with a slight effort: "But this is a first-class compartment and I am only a third-class passenger."

"Indeed! That is a very trifling accident," said the gentleman, pleasant-ly. "I think you had better not worry over it. No doubt the porter made a mistake."

"Yes, that was it," murmured the girl, with a suspicion of tears in her eyes. "Can you tell me how far I shall have to go before I can change?"

"Well, we stop at Stafford, I believe. Don't be uneasy. You may take my word for it, the railroad company will not be hard on you."

And he smiled in a frank, pleasant fashion, calculated to set her entirely at her ease.

After this there was silence for a minute or two.

The gentleman turned to his papers; but, nevertheless, he gave, every now and then, a quick scrutinizing look at the girl sitting opposite.

She was of middle height, slender, and graceful, with a refined and exceedingly lovely face.

A pure oval face—the eyes large and lustrous, and fringed by long dark lashes; the nose straight and well-defined; the smiling hair of a beautiful golden brown.

A truly lovely face, the gentleman decided, but rather a sad one just now. He noticed the extreme paleness of her dress—indeed, his clear gray eyes seemed to take in everything at a glance—and came to the conclusion that she was a gentlewoman, though a poor one.

He himself was a distinctly aristocratic-looking man of sixty—his hair gray, his somewhat military-looking mustache almost white.

From head to foot he was pervaded by that air of extreme politeness and cleanliness which is even more attractive in an old man than in a young one, and which pleasantly characterizes a certain type of elderly English gentlemen.

After a few minutes, he laid aside his papers and looked at his young traveling companion.

It was easy to see that she was in deep trouble; the tears were standing in her lovely eyes.

"My child," said the old gentleman, "you are too young—his look added, and too pretty"—he was smiling, but his friendly gaze all alone. Have you friends to meet you?"

The pleasant, fatherly manner appealed to the girl's inmost heart; it caused her tears to flow faster and faster.

"You are in trouble, I see. Is there anything—I am an utter stranger, and don't wish to be inquisitive—but is there anything I can do for you?"

Sympathy is always welcome. The girl needed no further encouragement to tell her simple story.

She was an orphan, she said; had lost both her parents while she was very young, and had been brought up by a relation of her mother's, who had lived in the south of France.

This relation having died recently, and her anxiety dying with her, the girl was left to make her own way in the world.

She had no other relative that she knew of, and no friends in England. Through the medium of an advertisement, however, she had, a fortnight ago, obtained an engagement as companion to an English lady, and had traveled from France yesterday to find it.

Imagine her grief and horror to find on reaching her destination that the lady had been suddenly called to Africa, to nurse her husband, who was dangerously ill there.

She had telegraphed to France, asking the girl of her change of plans and asking her to postpone her journey till she heard from her again; but unfortunately, the latter had started before the telegram arrived, and she reached her English destination only to find the house shut up, and in the hands of a caretaker.

"And what will you do, my poor child?" he asked.

The Development of American Opera.

In advocating the encouragement of American operatic composers, writes Joseph Sohn, in "Forum," I do not by any means wish to imply that subjects taken from American life are to be chosen, or that a new style, essentially American, is to be evolved. As before stated, the development of art does not lie in the direction of nationalism.

Even in Russia, where it is the logical policy of the Government to promote a distinctly national art which shall draw its material from Muscovite history, and where, for several other reasons also, such encouragement finds a ready justification, the composers are by no means confined to themes to these subjects—as demonstrated, for example, by Napravnik in his successful opera, "Francesca da Rimini." The chief fact to be borne in mind is that native composers have an opportunity to obtain a hearing for their work; and, with the establishment of a permanent well-organized operatic company in New York, American musicians also may become more hopeful. It may well be then that Wagner's prophecy to the effect that his successor would come from America will be fulfilled, and that we shall some day have a product not merely cosmopolitan, but universal, and fundamentally human in the Wagnerian sense.

Those who are either forever "looking backward," or merely contemplating art in the light of present political and social conditions, confidently declare that the Anglo-Saxon race is incapable of producing a musical genius of the first order—statement frequently accepted as self-evident, although it is but a mischievous half truth. The fact is that the significance of the term "musical" has undergone considerable modification. The relation between music and poetry, which in the last three generations has become closer and closer. Even in the so-called "romanticists," Schumann, Chopin and Mendelssohn, the poetic element is far more pronounced than in general ly supposed. In the "Drama of the Future," finally, we have a complete union of the arts. True, in Wagner the emotional or musical element was the primal impulse; but it by no means follows that those capable of infusing new life into the fabric created by him shall be similarly constituted. On the other hand, it should not be forgotten that the term "American" is very broad in its application. It does not include the Anglo-Saxon alone, but several millions of the descendants of the nations who contributed to the development of music when that art existed purely and simply for its own sake. There is consequently no reason whatever why we should not be rich in artistic material capable of developing the trouble is that this development has been wrong and no influence more potent to effect a revolution in this regard can be suggested than an operatic stage upon which masterpieces may be adequately performed so that the essential dramatic content may be fully grasped, not only by the public at large, but by the ambitious student desirous of obtaining light. Why should we not make a beginning in this city?

The History of the Canary.

About three hundred and fifty years ago a ship returning from the islands in the Atlantic which people then called the "Fortunate Isles," but which were undoubtedly the Canaries, went ashore on the coast of Italy, near Leghorn.

A cage of beautiful birds captured in those islands was broken and the birds were liberated. Through some caprice they did not take refuge on the mainland, but went to the island of Elba, where in due time they nested and bred, and increased in number.

The Italians discovered that they were admirable singers, and began to capture them and sell them in cages. This gave rise to a traffic which soon completely supplanted the export of wine, and it was not long that not one was left there in a wild state.

From that time the history of the canary has been a record of perpetual imprisonment and transformation of his appearance and disposition.

In their natural state, as they still exist in the Canaries and Madeira and other Atlantic islands, the birds are of a grayish green or greenish brown color, and are not remarkable for beauty, but they have been known to burst their way out of their throats in pouring forth their song.

regarding a Wonderful Discovery by the Famous Dr. Clarke.

To the Editor of The Times.—Sir,—With a view to afford relief to the afflicted, I ask you to publish the following: I am 41 years old and for 7 years have done absolutely nothing, owing to rheumatism; my hands, feet and heart being affected. I was induced by my cousin to take Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills, and before long (within a few days) I could get up without help, and can now go up the stairs as well as I ever could. Two doctors told me that I never would be well again; but I have neither ache nor pain and am in perfect health.

GEORGE M. DUNNAN,
120 Albert St., London.

Remarkable Offer.
Sir,—We make the following proposal to readers of The Times. To any one who is a sufferer from rheumatism, (no matter how long standing), or any blood disease, accompanied below, and will give Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills a fair trial, and are not fully and completely cured, we will refund the money paid for the pills, if no good results follow; we will forfeit its cash. We have yet to know of a single case where this wonderful medicine has not been almost entirely successful in the work of relieving suffering humanity.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a genuine and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, heart trouble, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the disease have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. Price 60c. per box, or 1 house for $1.00.

The Most Important Question.

The question recently agitated with so much vigor and rigor, as to whether a college education is necessary to a young man in business" (says Tom Mason in one of the magazines) "is not half so interesting as how many men should a girl be engaged to before she is married. This question strikes at the roots of society, and generations to come will be influenced by it."

Just as the kitten acquires valuable practice by playing with the dummies before she enters upon the serious business of the professional mouse, so, before the knot is tied, it is proper that a girl should fortify herself with as much preliminary training as possible. Yet this does not imply recklessness nor that superficial skimming from one subject to another which precludes a proper mastery of the problem. Enough time should be taken to hook the man thoroughly, and when he is properly and steadily in hand, to study him until the possibilities are exhausted. Only then should he be relinquished, and another specimen should be selected, and so on until the final adjustment.

"And, above all, girls, do not allow any false sympathy for the man himself to interfere with your end. It is natural for him to squirm, but the whole process, while painful at the time, will do him lasting good."

The ideal, toward which you are directing your efforts, is, of course, to acquire such a working knowledge of all men that, when you are married, the management of one will be a second nature—a habit of life that imposes no additional strain and does not take away your attention from the other enjoyments that you have a right to expect. To be constantly astonished at some new and hitherto unsuspected peculiarity in your (alleged) lord and master, when, by a brilliant series of preliminary engagements before marriage, this might have been obtained, is, to say the least, unfortunate. Well might some married veteran exclaim at this point, with much emphasis, that if a girl waited to find out all the peculiarities of men before she married, she would never marry at all. And there is considerable truth in this.

"What a girl should strive for, however, is not only to discover a man's peculiarities, but to learn how to subdue them to her own use. For, beneath his envelope of weakness and cunning and roughness and tactlessness, man, after all, is a useful animal. He is a good machine to pay bills with, to receive useless ornaments from, to answer trifles and holidays, to ward off burglars with, to escort one to functions, to consult about the baby's peevishness, and last, but not least, to feed. For every woman should be one animal to feed, and a man, while often lacking what a dog has, answers the purpose perhaps as well."

"It must be admitted that there is about a first love a freshness, a piquancy, a 'time frenzy' and a peculiar beauty that belongs to it alone. And, if this high pace could be maintained, if life were all loving, it would be rash to relinquish this brightest dream for a succession of lesser, commonplace reveries. Yet sooner or later the five must be made, the table set, and the dishes washed, and practical love requires a practical, working knowledge. So, go on, girls, and learn your lessons beforehand, while you have enough of the passion to do so, and do not wait until you are limited to one—only, with regard to the number, don't wait too long. There is always a last lover; and it is generally advisable to be on with the new love before you are off with the old."

Feminine Frailty.

"My dear Gertrude, how glad I am to see you! Do you lunch here oftent I am quite a frequent visitor. I have not seen it! I love the music; it is so weird, so deliciously barbaric. We will sit here and eat together. Waiter, bring me a salad, French dressing—see that the oil is very fresh—and wafers and tea. Gertrude, dear, I always lunch so lightly; I have really little appetite; sleeping is so fatiguing. Just the salad, waiter, and a pot of tea. Why, here comes Jimmie Gray! They say he is engaged to Mrs. Kidd, the grand widow. I don't believe it. Hello, Jimmie! How do you do? What a pleasure to see you! Gertrude, you and Mr. Gray are old friends, aren't you? May you lunch with us, Jimmie! Certainly. We were just about to give our order; you are quite in time. Waiter, blue points and then, consequently, I hope they have a decent entree to-day. Yes, Jimmie will have autumns with the lunch. You know my old favorite. Waiter, we will give you the rest of our order when you bring the crystals. I am delighted to see you, Jim! Please tell me all of the news!"

FOR A SHORT TIME ONLY

A LIMITED NUMBER OF SHARES IN THE

The Minersville Gold Mining and Milling Company

Will be sold at 15 CENTS PER SHARE, PAR VALUE, $1.00.

Full Paid, Non-Assessable and No Personal Liability.

READ THIS!

This Company offers one of the safest and best investments, as its property is located in the famous Bunker District, Baker Co., Oregon, and has for its neighbors such mines as the Bonanza, Red Boy, Kurba, North Pole, Columbia, Goldconda and Crocker-Griffin, which are producing from $40,000 to $100,000 each per month. This great property for which the undersigned is Fiscal Agent is more promising than many of the big producing mines at the same stage of development.

This Company has three full claims, with two large veins, one sixteen feet and the other twenty-two feet at the surface, showing good gold values and strictly free milling. The Company owns the property outright, being free from all debt and incumbrances and in order to equip the mine with modern machinery and to continue development work, a limited number of shares will be sold for a short time only at 15 cents per share, as announced above.

Investors who wish to place money in large or small amounts can do so better than in any other investment. All information cheerfully furnished, and all checks payable to order.

of Boulder, Colorado.
Capital Stock, 1,500,000 shares. In Treasury 500,000 shares

TRANSFER OFFICE, BRISTOL, CONN.

This Company has a perpetual lease on 20 acres of proven oil land in SECTION NINE (9) of the Boulder district, and the section and the immediate vicinity have the best and largest number of producing wells in the entire district.

Our Well No. 1 came in, in January and is now pumping and shipping Oil regularly to the Refinery.

The Directors have decided to put down well No. 2 at once, and they now offer a block of the Treasury stock for the next 30 days at 10 Cents per Share, after that price will be advanced.

It is a well known fact that a 15 barrel well will pay over 100 per cent. profit upon its cost.

This is no longer a speculation for we have proved that oil is on our ground, and we now have oil in paying quantities, with two wells pumping we can soon pay dividends, and every well we put down increases our earning capacity.

This is a business proposition, managed by business men. For further information and subscriptions to stock, address,

To Canadian Investors

THE GREATEST MINING PROPOSITION EVER OFFERED.

I am pleased to state that I have completed arrangements with the Consolidated Nevada Mining Company for the sale of a block of their treasury stock in Canada. It is a proposition I can honestly recommend, and has unlimited possibilities. The tremendous possibilities of WEDEKIND and TONOPAH is becoming plain every day to the entire country. The spring rush into these NEVADA mining camps will equal or exceed that into Cripple Creek, Dawson or Tomba. The strikes recently reported from Wedekind and Tonopah have created the greatest excitement and the rush will soon be on.

Everyone is wanting NEVADA mining stocks and prices are rapidly advancing. Some fine better opportunities for profits than do the shares of

The Consolidated Nevada Mining Company

Properties in the heart of the Wedekind district. High grade ore and lots of it. We are certain to cut the RICHEST VEIN IN THE DISTRICT very soon; then it's all off.

Stock now selling at life-gar share. Limited quantity only.

A GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and then thereof absolute safety is substituted, and yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

Thus the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer:

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, then, has a number of things to offer to the investor. The development of its numerous mining properties and also of its oil lands, offers a limited amount of its treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Cripple Creek, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done. It is proposed to place as many of these mining properties upon a shipping and self-supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of oil lands in Huerfano County, Colo. In order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $1.00 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with no individual liability. The value of the bond, low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado business and investment men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Fortunes have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are usually very large, especially when the stock can be secured at such a low price as this.

WE WANT AGENTS TO REPRESENT THE COMPANY.

Jewel-St., Mexico.

The jewel from which this well-known street in Mexico City takes its name was a magnificent bracelet of gold, set with many precious stones. The jewel was made for Isabel de la Garza y Tovar, a beautiful woman belonging to the most exclusive society of the capital of Mexico, both by birth and marriage. But, alas! it was not her husband, Senor Alonso Fernandez de Bobadilla, who presented the bracelet to her. This gentleman had for a long time been much more unhappy than he appeared. In truth, he was the most miserable of mortals, for he was filled with apprehension that the wife of his bosom, whom he so much loved, did not return his affection and was not true to him. They lived in the greatest luxury in one of the finest houses in the street, and indeed, in Mexico. Senor Fernandez's offices were on the first floor of the house, and their large and handsomely furnished living-apartments were above. One day the senior was sitting in his office, sadly meditating on his lot, when a letter was thrown through the bars of the window and fell directly in front of him. He started as if from a dream, but even before he broke the seal he knew what the letter would reveal. It mentioned no names, but between the lines he read the guilty name of a professional friend, Senor Raoul de Lara. Filled with suspicion as he had been, the definite revelation of the truth almost stunned him. He thought of that very morning when he had ridden forth with his lovely wife by his side in an equipage that was almost royal in its richness, envied by all who saw him, and richer than any of his acquaintances, but also more unhappy.

His first impulse was to rush up to the living-rooms with the letter in one hand and a dagger in the other, to charge the Dona Isabel with her unfaithfulness, and if she could not deny it, to stab her to the heart. But instead he decided upon the old plan of establishing a watch that he might prove to himself the bitter truth. Accordingly, he went calmly up to his wife and told her that he had made an engagement with the Government that would keep him away from home until late at night. Dona Isabel bade him an affectionate farewell and he departed. A few doors away he secreted himself in the gathering shadows. Night had just fallen, when a man, well wrapped in a long black cloak, which he held over his mouth, as was the custom at night-time, and his shadowy figure gliding through the upper part of his face, passed him hurriedly, and then stopped in front of Senor Fernandez's own door. There was no knock, but the Dona Isabel appeared on the upper balcony, greeted him, and then the heavy street door opened silently a little way, and the man in the long black cloak entered. Senor Fernandez waited no longer. Hastening into his own house, he found his friend just clapping a beautiful and costly bracelet on the arm of the Dona Isabel. Another instant and a dagger had penetrated the black cloak and the blacker heart beneath it. The Dona Isabel turned to flee, but finding the doors barred she fell on her knees before her husband and begged for pardon, mercy and her life. "This time I pardon you," exclaimed the outraged husband, as he plunged the blood-dripping dagger into her heart.

The following day the two bodies were found in the house, and on the door, with the dagger stuck through it, lay the man in the black cloak, and the bracelet entered a monastery.—"Modena Mexico."

The Humorist's Heroine.

I was awoken, for a whole evening I had not, by the sound of the end of my pen-holder and waiting for the idea to come.

"Who are you?" I asked.

"The girl that slipped into all your jokes," she replied with some asperity.

"Wish you'd get into a few of them right away," I sighed.

"No, sir; not another one. You have stood me under the Christmas mistletoe, hung my stocking up for my little brother, made me listen to impossible New Year's vows, dressed me in bathing suits in November for publication in the summer and in mid-July for printing in the winter; you have made me tell about Italy lying beyond the Alps as a graduate, and compelled me to make impossible pie in cooking school; you have engaged me to the wrong man every time and mixed me up in divorce cases in Dakota on the same day that you had me shaking rice off my hat in New York. I have stood it as long as I intend to. I strike right now."

"But," I protested, "I was just going to get you a nice new silk dress and the prettiest Easter hat you ever heard of."

"I'm going to strike."

"And all the other girls would be dying with envy."

"It makes no difference."

"And I was going to marry you to an English duke."

"I don't care."

"And he would turn out to be a nation hero in disguise."

"Well, I suppose it would be mean of me to quit without giving you that warning," she smiled, going back into the ink-well.—"Judge."

the price of the SECURITY GOLD MINING AND MILLING CO. STOCK will soon be advanced to 40 cents per share—present price 30 cents. Buy before the advance.

The SECURITY Gold Mining and Milling Co. is a gold-copper proposition. The property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, is undoubtedly one of the most valuable in the country. Besides its extensive mining claims the mining company controls timber for mining and building purposes and will also have natural water-power.

The extension of the Mackinac Island Railway from Breckinridge to Chetek this year will give the greatly increased value of the mine.

I am organizing a party of investors to visit the properties early in July and have arranged free transportation to and from Montreal, and to pay all hotel expenses at the mine, to any purchaser of an amount of stock that will justify this expense. Remarkable Discovery of Gold, Silver and Copper Ore Made on Property of the EASTERN NATIONAL COPPER COMPANY, Limited, of Cheticamp, Cape Breton

ORE BEARING SCHISTS FROM 75 TO 100 FEET WIDE

The out crop of the extension of the deposit has just been cut on the opposite side of the mountain from which the work was commenced, proving that the ore body extends through the hill.

MR. M. V. GRANDIN, engineer in charge of the development work, reports the discovery of an immense body of gold, silver, and copper bearing ore from seventy-five to one hundred feet wide on the property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, at Cheticamp, Cape Breton. This is probably the first known massive in Eastern Canada of the earthing of a large deposit of metaliferous ore such as made the mining industry of British Columbia, the Western States and Mexico of great magnitude. The discovery in Cape Breton tends to confirm the opinion of mining experts that Cheticamp is one of the most important mining districts in Nova Scotia. The Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, owns some of the finest sections of this district and has about completed the proving of a body of ore estimated to contain 100,000 tons, worth from $10 to $15 per ton. The main slope is shown 130 feet all in one and the tunnel from which the mine will be worked has been commenced from the opposite side of the hill. The Company expect to commence the installation of plant for treatment in three months' time. Surface buildings, etc., have all been erected.

Thousands of tons of Ore already in sight.

Every day adds to the proved value of the mine

THERE is no safer form of mining investment than gold-copper-mercury deposits, as they occur in immense veins and carry regular values. Many of the private fortunes of the United States owe their origin to a lucky investment in a gold-copper proposition. The property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, is undoubtedly one of the most valuable in the country. Besides its extensive mining claims the mining company controls timber for mining and building purposes and will also have natural water-power.

The extension of the Mackinac Island Railway from Breckinridge to Chetek this year will give the great mining enterprise rail as well as water communication with all points.

ACTONOMA OIL AND DEVELOPMENT CO.'Y

the only company selling stock in the White Oil Belt of California worth five times as much as any other oil stock for sale in the open market to-day. Forty Thousand Shares will close our sale of stock, and the sale of this block is well advanced already.

Seven other companies are putting down wells on all sides of us but not one of them is selling a dollar's worth of stock. Why? Because the oil they will get is worth from FOUR to FIVE dollars per barrel, and will be worth more a year hence.

125 WILL NOT REACH THE NUMBER OF REASONS WHY THE STOCK IN The Oro Rico Mining Syndicate IS A GOOD INVESTMENT.

I have offered this Stock at a very low price and it is your misfortune if you fail to take advantage of it.

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 30 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.

Vast ledges of ore running from $5.00 to $800.00 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $75.00 to $250.00 per ton. This is not a five per cent. a month scheme, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than a bank or mortgage loan. A few months ago a "Mr. Woodhouse" bought 200,000 shares in the Oro Rico Mining Company for five cents a share and recently sold the same at $8.00 a share. No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGMENT and your FORSIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your foresight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you had put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the Stock at present price. It will soon be 50 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mine and returned full of enthusiasm. The mines are turning out much richer than expected.

I can offer the Stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

Will accept payments of 25 per cent. cash and balance, 25 per cent. per month. Wanted active agents. Address all orders to

To Canadian Investors

THE GREATEST MINING PROPOSITION EVER OFFERED.

I am pleased to state that I have completed arrangements with the Consolidated Nevada Mining Company for the sale of a block of their treasury stock in Canada. It is a proposition I can honestly recommend, and has unlimited possibilities. The tremendous possibilities of WEDEKIND and TONOPAH in becoming plainer every day to the entire country. The spring rush into these NEVADA mining camps will equal or exceed that into Ontario, Quebec, or Nova Scotia. The strikes recently reported from WEDEKIND and TONOPAH have created the greatest excitement and the rush will soon be on.

Everyone is waiting NEVADA mining stocks and prices are rapidly advancing. Now offer better opportunities for profits than do the shares of

The Consolidated Nevada Mining Company

Properties in the heart of the Weidekind district. High grade ore and lots of it. We are certain to cut the RICHEST VEIN in the DISTRICT very soon; then it's all off.

Stock now selling at 15c per share. Limited quantity only.

A GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and the return of absolute safety is guaranteed. And yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

Thus the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer:

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, among other things, is engaged in the extensive development of its numerous mining properties and also of its oil lands. It offers a limited amount of its Treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Cripple Creek, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done. It is prepared to place as many of these mining properties upon a leasing and self-supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast land tracts of thirty-six hundred acres of oil lands in Huerfano County, Colo. In order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $100 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with no individual liability. This issue of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado business and mining men who have shown themselves to be of high character and ability by investing heavily themselves in the Company.

Fortune have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are usually very great, especially when the stock can be secured at such a low price as this is now offered for. Now is the time to get in before an advance in the price is made.

Jamaica and Trinidad Look to Canada for Market for Sugar

Agent at Ottawa (Hurlingham) Transportation and Other Matters—Exhibit at Toronto Fair

Ottawa, June 16.—It is evident that the sugar company of Jamaica, anxious to develop as far as possible its trade with Canada. The Colonial Secretary of the island, who is here now to secure an increased subsidy arrangement by which the steamship service from Halifax to Jamaica can be brought up to date, was joined today by an official of the sugar company of Trinidad, who comes to promote reciprocal trade. He is accredited with the Imperial Department of Agriculture for the West Indies to see what opportunities exist for a larger business between the colonies.

The Canadian commercial agent in Jamaica writes that the increased duties on foreign sugar entering this country will give the West Indian growers a better opportunity of supplying the Canadian market. Mr. Fielding's announcement gave much satisfaction in Jamaica and suggested a large trade of some advantage to the colony for the coming crop. Trinidad has already realized that there will soon be no room for her sugar in the United States, owing to the duty on sugar from the Philippines, Cuba and Porto Rico, and so Trinidad is anxious to get a secure foothold in Canada before legislation closes the door of the United States against her altogether. Jamaica is following a like policy, and the result, no doubt, will be much more intimate relations between Canada and these fellow-members of the Imperial family.

The Jamaican fruit exports to Canada showed an immense development last season, amounting on some farms to 400,000 per cent. In the steamship facilities were improved. The Commercial Agent thinks the intercolonial commerce would increase by leaps and bounds.

SINKING CASH IN RAILWAYS

Heavy Debt Shows and Ascribed to Political Recalcitrance

London, June 16.—The Times publishes an abstract of Finance Minister Wille's statement regarding the financial situation of the railway companies, made at a secret sitting of the Imperial Council, showing that without the maintenance of certain indirect taxes there would have been a deficit of twenty-three million pounds. The total cost of railway expenditure over receipts will reach the enormous sum of fifty million pounds in the last two years the deficit on the working of the entire railway system will reach eighty-four and a half millions.

The Finance Minister was compelled to attribute this situation mainly to the enforced construction of railways of a political and strategic character during the last ten years.

Great-Grandma's Prescription.

The "grandmother remedy" is not always a thing to laugh at, for sometimes it cures; but sometimes, too, the matter or the manner of it seems to warrant a smile, as in the case of these health hints, which, says the Philadelphia "Record," were written in a family Bible eighty years ago by the great-grandmother of the present owner of the B. B.

A stick of brimstone worn in the pocket is good for them as has cramps.

A lodestone put in the place where the pain is, is beautiful for the Rheumatism.

A basin of water gruel, with half a quart of old rum in it, with lots of brown sugar is good for Cold in Head.

If you have hiccups, pinch one of your wrists with your other six or get somebody to scare you and make you jump.

The earache—Put onion in your ear after it is well roasted.

The consumption—Bat as many possums as possible before going to bed.

SHARES TO ADVANCE From Three to Five Dollars

Remarkable Discovery of Gold, Silver and Copper Ore Made on Property of the EASTERN NATIONAL COPPER COMPANY, Limited, of Cheticamp, Cape Breton

ORE BEARING SCHISTS FROM 75 TO 100 FEET WIDE

The out crop of the extension of the deposit has just been cut on the opposite side of the mountain from which the work was commenced, proving that the ore body extends through the hill.

MR. M. V. GRANDIN, engineer in charge of the development work, reports the discovery of an immense body of gold, silver, and copper bearing ore from twenty-five to one hundred feet wide on the property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, at Cheticamp, Cape Breton. This is probably the first known instance in Eastern Canada of the unearthing of a large deposit of metallic minerals as such as made the mining industry of British Columbia, the Western States and Mexico of great magnitude. The discovery in Cape Breton tends to confirm the opinion of mining experts that Cheticamp is one of the most important mining districts in Nova Scotia. The Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, owns some of the finest sections of this district and has about completed the proving of a body of ore estimated to contain 100,000 tons, worth from $10 to $15 per ton. The main slope is down 130 feet all in one and the tunnel from which the mine will be worked has been commenced from the opposite side of the hill. The company expect to commence the installation of plant for treatment in three months' time. Surface buildings, etc., have all been erected.

Thousands of tons of Ore already in sight. Every day adds to the proved value of the mine

THERE is no safer form of mining investment than gold and copper deposits, as they occur in immense veins and carry regular values. Many of the private fortunes of the United States owe their origin to a lucky investment in a gold-copper proposition. The property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, is undoubtedly one of the most valuable in the country. Besides its extensive mining claims the mining company controls timber for mining and building purposes and will also have natural water-power.

The extension of the MacKenzie and Mann Railway from Broad Cove to Cheticamp this year will give this great mining enterprise rail as well as water communication with all points.

The undertaking of this Company is a sound business enterprise, organized by a prominent Nova Scotia business man, without the heavy over-capitalization, watered stock, promoters' take-off, directors' perquisites, etc., which characterize many foreign companies. The company is capitalized at the moderate figure of $600,000, and one-half the entire capital stock has been placed in the Treasury in reserve. 10,000 shares of the other half are being sold for development.

A Limited Amount of Stock is Offered at $3.00 per Share ("Thirty Cents on the Dollar"). - Par $10.00

The Stock was started at $1 per share, and has advanced steadily to $3. Next advance will likely be to $5, and we expect it will be quoted at par—$10—within a year, based on ore actually blocked out. Less than 1000 shares will be sold at the present figure of three dollars. Applications for Stock should be addressed to

or Traced by a Valentine.

There are more ways of wooing than there are nations, and so most people many of these may well seem very strange indeed.

The etiquette of love among the Hun-darian gypsies, for instance, is as follows:
"akes are used as love-letters. A coin is sunk into the cake, which, at the first opportunity, is hung to the favored object. The intention of this is looked upon as a virtual "acceptation" of its for-return, an intimation that the "attentions" are desired.

This, of course, requires no eloquence on the lover's part. In some parts of the world, indeed, all that is demanded of a lover is physical force. Among the semi-savage tribes in the Arabian desert, found about Sinai, the lover tries to seize the girl while she is pasturing her father's flocks. She resists him with mud-sticks and stones, and will be held in lifelong repute if she succeeds in wounding him. Once driven into her father's tent, the lover's object is attained and the betrothal is proclaimed.

The Eskimo smitten one goes one better, inasmuch as he marches openly and without any beating about the bush to his loved one's abode, seizes her by her long, strong hair, or her fur garments, and drags her to his lair of ice or tent of skin.

There is considerably more poetry in the method of the Yao Midos, one of the many Burmese-Tartar peoples, who woo their wives without words, but to the sound of music. On the first day of winter they have a great feast, at which all the marriageable girls gather and listen to the music made by the bachelors, who sit under and round the "dear trees," each playing his favorite instrument.

As the maiden loves passes him the youth plays the louder and more feelingly. If the girl ignores him and passes on, he knows that she will have none of him; if she steps up to him and lays a flower upon his instrument he jumps up, takes her by the hand, taking care not to drop the flower, and they wander off into the moonlit woods.

A remarkable custom prevails among the Dyaks of Borneo. When one of them would woo the maiden of his heart, he chivalrously helps her in the hardest portions of her uneasy daily toil. If she smiles upon him, never so sweetly, he does not immediately respond, but waits until the next dark night. Then he steals to her house and lightly wakens her as she lies asleep beside her sleeping parents.

The parents, if they approve, make no sign, but sleep on—or pretend to. If the girl accepts, she rises and takes from her lover the belt and sweetmeats he has brought her. That seals their betrothal, and he departs as he came, neither speaking nor being spoken to.

The Japanese lover, wishing to make known his love, throws a bunch of pale plum-flowers but in her litter as she enters it to be carried to a friend's wedding. If she tosses the blossoms lightly out the suitor is rejected; if she fastens them in her girdle the suitor is acceptable to her.

In some of the young men looks amorous, but never speaks until after acceptance by his lady-love. The girl neither speaks nor looks, but—she sees. Later, in the cool of the evening, the gentleman raps at her father's door and craves
a glass of water. It is, of course, given him. Then comes the crisis. If he is not offered a chair within the porch or a seat in the garden, he bows and walks away—a rejected man. If, on the other hand, the coveted civility is extended to him, he remains, an accepted suitor.

There is, in the event of his acceptance,
a general celebration by the family of the bride-to-be in honor of her betrothal.

Ways of Wooing.

enters it to be carried to a friend's wedding. If she tosses the blossoms lightly out the suitor is rejected; if she fastens them in her girdle the suitor is acceptable to her.

In some of the young men looks amorous, but never speaks until after acceptance by his lady-love. The girl neither speaks nor looks, but—she sees. Later, in the cool of the evening, the gentleman raps at her father's door and craves
a glass of water. It is, of course, given him. Then comes the crisis. If he is not offered a chair within the porch or a seat in the garden, he bows and walks away—a rejected man. If, on the other hand, the coveted civility is extended to him, he remains, an accepted suitor.

There is, in the event of his acceptance,
a general celebration by the family of the bride-to-be in honor of her betrothal.

Whimsically Put.

I do not ordinarily swear;
I do not stiffen myself and think up double distilled double dashes wherewith to embellish my remarks;
I do not sport forth lurid eloquence upon ordinary occasions.

Formerly I was a "pious" man, and when I hear the rattle of the twenty-dollar-per-ton coal as the heavyweight dumps the short-weight wagon before my door;

When I hear the meat bandit presenting his bill in the kitchen;

When I hear the grocery pirate asking for his money at the back door;

When I hear the passer singing his doleful melody in the basement;

When I hear my taxes and my rent and my water bill adding themselves up;

When I hear and see all these and more, I am not a pious man.

And note that the wife of my bosom is reading an advertisement with a face suffused with joy;

When she turns to me and murmurs something concerning an Easter bonnet

Then do I search the bright lexicon of youthful memory for all the compound hyphenated words I ever knew,

And use them to express my opinion of the practice of reaching into the future for troubles.

Yes, then do I swear in a beautiful manner!

The Hotel Chaplain.

One of the most striking proofs of the increase of hotel-dwellers in large cities is the movement which has been started to provide special chaplains for those who journey casually or permanently in the crowded hotels.

In New York a Hotel Chaplain Society has been formed, which includes representatives of most forms of religious belief, as well as prominent hotel-keepers. The Rev. H. M. Warren, who has given up his church to devote himself to the work, this explains the methods of the association: "No creed or church, you see, is concerned in the hotel chaplain movement. I am one of them. If I am a pastor of the hotel, I am not a pastor of the services of a clergyman, I may be called first, but through me any other clergyman will come. I am glad to say that I have lists of every creed, where men have said they were willing to come.

There is a held for the work is proved by the fact that when I first started there was hardly one call for me a week. Now there are as many as three or four a day." It does not appear how the chaplain's salary is to be paid, but this notice has appeared in all the large hotels: "Guests, patrons and friends of this hotel wishing the services of a clergyman are respectfully informed that they may call upon Rev. H. M. Warren, the hotel chaplain. He will be pleased to render any kind of pastoral service, regardless of creed, nationality or residence. Calls may be sent any hour of the day or night."

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE" Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay.

It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds, the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash?

A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefit.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurons, the Baldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. Today he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Canada was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at from $1.00 per value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $8,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1880 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in Tananarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $6,42.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend-paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Mallory, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

Not does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore mills only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours. The Alaska Treadwell ore mills $2 38 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par. No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management.

Respectfully submitted,

Capital Stock, 1,500,000 shares. In Treasury, 150,000 shares

TRANSFER OFFICE, BRISTOL, CONN.

This Company has a perpetual lease on 30 acres of proven oil land in SECTION NINE (9) of the Boulder district, and this section and the immediate vicinity have the best and largest number of producing wells in the entire district.

Our Well No. 1 came in in January and is now pumping and shipping Oil regularly to the Refinery.

The Directors have decided to put down well No. 2 at once, and they now offer a block of the Treasury stock for the next 30 days at

10 Cents per Share,

It is a well known fact that a 15 barrel well will pay over 100 per cent. profit upon its cost.

This is no longer a speculation for we have proved that oil is on our ground, and we now have oil in paying quantities, with two wells pumping we can soon pay dividends, and every well we put down increases our earning capacity.

This is a business proposition, managed by business men. For further information and subscriptions to stock, address, THOS. PATTERSON & CO., Fiscal Agent, PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO.

FOR A SHORT TIME ONLY

A LIMITED NUMBER OF SHARES IN THE

The Minersville Gold Mining and Milling Company

Will be sold at 15 CENTS PER SHARE, PAR VALUE, $1.00.

Full Paid, Non-Assessable and No Personal Liability.

READ THIS! This Company offers one of the safest and best investment opportunities in the world. It is located in the famous Minersville District, Elbert Co., Oregon, and has for its neighbors such mines as the Bonanza, Red Boy, Excelsior, North Pole, El Estrella, Colorado and Crusher Ores, which are producing from $50,000 to $100,000 each per month. This great property for which the undersigned is Fiscal Agent is more promising than many of the big producing mines at the same stage of development.

The Company has three full claims, with two large veins, one stream bed and the other twenty-two feet of the surface, showing good gold values and strictly free milling. The Company owns the property outright, being free from all debt and encumbrances and in order to equip the mine with modern machinery and to continue development work, a limited number of shares will be sold for a short time only at 15 cents per share, as announced above.

Investors who wish to place money in large or small amounts can do so better than by investing in this proposition. An immediate check is furnished, and all cheques payable to this proposition.

To Canadian Investors

THE GREATEST MINING PROPOSITION EVER OFFERED.

I am pleased to state that I have completed arrangements with the Consolidated Nevada Mining Company for the sale of a block of their treasury stock in Canada. It is a proposition I can honestly recommend, and has unlimited possibilities. The tremendous possibilities of WEDKIND and TONOPAH is becoming plain every day to the entire country. The spring rush into these NEVADA mining camps will equal or exceed that into Cripple Creek, Lawson or Nona. The strikes recently reported from Wedekind and Tonopah have created the greatest excitement and the rush will only be on. Everyone is watching NEVADA mining stocks and prices are rapidly advancing. Now is the best opportunity for profits than do the shares of Properties in the heart of the Wedekind district. High grade ore and lots of it. We are certain to cut the RICHEST VEIN IN THE DISTRICT very soon; then it's all off.

A GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and the lien thereof absolute safety is substituted. And yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

Thus the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer:

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, among other things, to secure funds for the extensive development of its numerous mining properties and also of its oil lands, offers a limited amount of its Treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Cripple Creek, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done. It is proposed to place as many of these mining properties upon a shipping and self supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of oil lands in Huerfano County, Colo. In order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $1.00 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with no individual liability. This is one of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Fortunes have been made by investments of this kind, and more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The Treasury stock of an investment are usually very great, especially when the stock can be secured at such low prices as this is now offered for. Now is the time to get in before an advance in the price is made.

This new railroad from Denver to Salt Lake, which is now building will be of incalculable benefit to the Company, furnishing transportation for ore and supplies, besides immediately increasing values.

The Oro Rico Mining Syndicate

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 30 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.

Vast ledges of ore running from $5.00 to $50.00 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $75.00 to $250.00 per ton. This is not a few per cent. a month scheme, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans. No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your foresight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock advanced at par. The new Milling Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the Stock at present prices. It will soon be 50 per cent. higher.

I can offer the Stock for a short time only at 50 cents per share.

It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO-DAY—to-morrow it may slip your memory. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25¢ cash and 25¢ per month.

THE RUSH TO THE WEST

Settlers Continue to Come at the Rate of 500 a Day

New Buildings are Required for Win-

Read

Winnipeg, June 17.—"What will you do with them all?" said Mr. Thomas

Kinnear, of Toronto, alluding to a party of immigrants who were gathered on the platform of the C.P.R.

Station, Winnipeg, for an outgoing train. Mr. Kinnear is one of the immi-grationists to the Presbyterian General Assembly at Vancouver, and like most of the other immigrationists he was struck while passing through Winnipeg, by the evidence of the great rush of immigration into the West. The party of immigrants in question would not number probably over one hundred, and Winnipeg people are so accustomed to such sights that they would not give the matter a second thought, but it struck the immigrationists and forced on their attention, though close home to them, what they have been reading about all spring.

And when it is thought about it is a marvelous thing that the West has been able to absorb such a vast mass of people with so little difficulty, with so few signs that anything extraordinary is going on. The Dominion immigration authorities estimated that 100,000 people would come into the west this year, and up to the end of May over 60,000 have arrived, leaving only forty thousand required in the next seven months to make up the total.

While that is generally called the big rush of immigration is over for the season, when special trains crowded with settlers seemed to be chasing another from Montreal to Winning, the number of arrivals is still very large. In the first ten days of June more than 5,000 people came into the West, because this figure does not include those who for the last five days entered through the ports along the Canadian coast—British Columbia and Vancouver Island—border west of Winnipeg. That in settlers are still coming in at the rate of over five hundred per day. This is a number so large that any hotel in getting them out into the country and on the land would be speedily followed by the congestion and the block-up of all the channels of trade and transport.

Remarkable Discovery of Gold, Silver and Copper Ore Made on Property of the EASTERN NATIONAL COPPER COMPANY, Limited, of Cheticamp, Cape Breton

ORE BEARING SCHISTS FROM 75 TO 100 FEET WIDE

The out crop of the extension of the deposit has just been cut on the opposite side of the mountain from which the work was commenced, proving that the ore body extends through the hill.

M. R. M. V. GRANDIN, engineer in charge of the development work, reports the discovery of an immense body of gold, silver, and copper bearing ore from seventy-five to one hundred feet wide on the property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, at Cheticamp, Cape Breton. This is probably the first known instance in Eastern Canada of the occurrence of a large deposit of metaliferous ore such as made the mining industry of British Columbia, the Western States and Mexico of great magnitude. The discovery in Cape Breton tends to confirm the opinion of mining experts that Cheticamp is one of the most important mining districts in Nova Scotia. The Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, owns some of the finest sections of this district and has about completed the proving of a body of ore estimated to contain 10

ROOSEVELT'S ANSWER.
A British member of Parliament told me when last year he asked President Roosevelt what America would do, if the British Empire adopted Imperial reciprocity, the President replied: "Oh, we should simply say, 'Don't shoot; we will come down.'"

The Liberal Opposition fight shy of a direct parliamentary fight, and have decided not to move any resolution in the Commons on the subject of Mr. Chamberlain's programme, because the system was in accordance with the Bible principles.

His Message Demonstrates Sympathy With New Order of Things

NO INTERFERENCE NOW

The Mother of Young Milan Warned by the Sultan of Turkey

Belgrade, June 18.—The Cabinet ministers and other high officials are jubilant over the Sultan's telegram to King Peter, denouncing the sympathy shown by the Serbian Government towards the assassins of King Alexander.

It is regarded as extremely unlikely in view of the attitude of the Serbian people that Russia will support the demand that the powers should demand the punishment of the assassins of King Alexander and Queen Draga, and it is thought that nothing further will be heard of the question.

Victor Emmanuel's Message.
Rome, June 18.—King Victor Emmanuel has telegraphed congratulations to his brother-in-law King Peter, also expressing his wish for the tranquility and prosperity of the country under the new regime.

Young Milan in Danger.
Constantinople, June 18.—The Sultan has warned Madame Chiriac, the mother of Milan, son of the late King Milan, of Serbia, to carefully guard her son. This message, which was sent through the intermediary of Madame Chiriac's brother, who is an architect of the palace, advised her to keep her son in the house and not to allow him to appear on the streets.

It is presumed that this advice was the outcome of fears that an attempt might be made to murder young Milan, although it is not believed that there will ever be any prospect of his coming to the throne of Serbia.

Delegation to Meet King.
Victoria, June 18.—The military delegation sent by the War Minister, General Alexander, to meet King Peter of the Serbians, passed through Vienna this afternoon. These officers expressed pleasure at the King's message to King Peter, which he considered as having settled the attitude of the powers.

The text of King Peter's message follows:
"I hasten to inform Your Majesty of my call to the Serbian throne, to which I have been elected by the unanimous vote of the Serbian people. I intend to take up my abode in Belgrade, and hope to bring freedom and happiness to my fatherland. I earnestly pray that Your Majesty will continue to extend the friendship of Serbia, which Your Majesty has so nobly shown to the throne of the Serbians. Should Your Majesty be pleased to show me the same sympathy in the fulfilment of my new duties, it will make lighter the task for me. It is my intention and firm resolve to merit it."

The Emperor replied in the following terms:
"By accepting the friendly notification of your accession to the throne, I desire to assure you without delay of my complete sympathy and wishes that you may have a long and happy reign. May it be possible for me to visit you in the near future, and thus be able to express my sincere admiration and devotion to you."

Mr. Wilson stated that the Townships of Peterborough and Northumberland would not use the full amount due. The people of Galway used the bridge as much, if not more, than those of Somerville.

On motion of Mr. Hunter, seconded by Mr. McManis, the matter was referred to the Road and Bridge Committee.

of an enquiry, while placing the Opposition in a prominent position. Nevertheless, the Liberal party, who have already started preparations for an elaborate anti-Chamberlain campaign in the autumn recess.

It is stated that Mr. Chamberlain himself initiated to the Cabinet that he will make no more speeches about his programme until the end of the session, in order to enable the Irish Land Bill and other legislative programme to be passed. He and his supporters will, however, begin an active campaign in the country in September. Mr. Chamberlain himself expresses to his friends his complete conviction of victory. He knows the colonies are with him and believes he can convince Englishmen, especially the working classes, that it will be good for them and for the empire.

An enthusiastic Chamberlainian says that one hundred Ministerial members of Parliament have already declared themselves in support of Chamberlain's programme. Three members met on Monday to discuss their future action.

your unhappy land, so sorely visited by a succession of internal storms, and by raising it again after the severe fall which it recently sustained in the eyes of the civilized world, through the heinous and universally condemned crime. Your Majesty may rely on my support and friendship in executing this task, and you may be convinced that it will always be my heartfelt desire, as it is your own, to maintain and strengthen the friendly and neighbourly relations which have existed so long between our two countries."

MITCHELL ADDRESSES THE MINE WORKERS

He Declared That Operators Have Not Moved Up to Award of Compensation

Saratoga, Pa., June 18.—At Monday afternoon's session of the United Mine Workers President Mitchell addressed the convention. He said in part: "It is needless to say that the refusal of the mine operators to live up to the award of the strike commission is a decided disappointment to me. I was hopeful, after our long strike, and after the commission had made its award that each side would support it. The operators, however, have refused to comply with every better of the award. We must do nothing we cannot defend. I might say for myself that I do not believe we will find an honorable way out of the calamity. The commission's award was not a great financial victory for us, but it was a great moral victory. We can afford to bear our disappointment and live up to the award."

After the transaction of some routine business the convention at 8.30 adjourned to give the resolutions committee an opportunity to frame its report.

THE COUNTY COUNCIL.

A COUPLE OF DEPUTATIONS WAIT ON THE COUNCIL

Victoria County Ask for Assistance in Paying for a Bridge—Agricultural Society Ask for a Grant

The County Council went into session at 8.30 this morning. Mr. Fitzgerald, the Mayor, was in the chair, during the temporary absence of Mr. Wilson. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

DEPUTATION FROM SOMERVILLE.
On motion a deputation from Somerville Township, Victoria County, was heard. Assistance was asked in paying for a bridge at Kilmac, over the Bush River, within a few rods of the boundary between the two townships. Members of the deputation. It was stated that the bridge had cost $1,000, and that the people of Somerville County used it a great deal. The County of Victoria had contributed $1,000, the Government $1,000, Peterborough $100, and Galway $100, leaving $100 still to be paid. It was felt that, under the circumstances, Somerville should not bear the full amount. The bridge was of steel and would be for all time to come. It was about 100 feet long and spanned a depth of 25 feet of water. Mr. Wilson said he was not sure that Peterborough County would bear half the amount still due. He stated that he was an old member of the County Council here and recalled many changes.

Warden Crowe arrived and took the chair. Mr. Wilson stated that the Township of Somerville could not use the full amount due. The people of Galway used the bridge as much, if not more, than those of Somerville.

On motion of Mr. Hunter, seconded by Mr. McManis, the matter was referred to the Road and Bridge Committee.

Mr. Fitzgerald announced that arrangements had been made for the Council to visit the Gammon's Narrows bridge to-morrow.

THE COUNCIL ADJOURNED.

MORE DEPUTATIONS.

The council again went into session about eleven o'clock, when a deputation representing the West Peterborough Agricultural Association and Central Fair, was on motion heard. Mr. E. M. Elliott and Mr. Robert Fair were the speakers, and they asked for a grant of $800 towards the annual fair. An effort was being made to raise the amount of the fair and conduct it on purely business lines, with a view to making one of the greatest successes ever recorded. The prizes this year would be paid in cash, and new would be offered for it if the money was not first realized.

Mr. Hunter deemed the subject of considerable importance, and he advised not to pay any grant until the matter would be looked after, and that in the interests of the farmers. He moved, seconded by Mr. Curtis, that the matter be referred to the Finance Committee.

A deputation of Emily Township was heard in reference to the necessity for assistance in rendering suitable for traffic a portion of road on the boundary between the Township of Eastman and Emily. There were two bills which required special attention. Rev. E. M. Elliott, was the speaker. Mr. Fairbairn, of Victoria County Council, was present and pointed out the necessity that the township should be granted assistance from the county. He stated that he wished to remind the Peterborough County Council of the promise made some time ago, when the township was a quarter of the cost for maintaining the bridge at Halcaygon. They did not present a very good appearance owing to lack of paint.

On motion of Mr. Hunter, seconded by Mr. Fairbairn, the matter was referred to the Finance Committee.

The council adjourned.

NEW YORK LOCKOUT IS NOW COMPLETE

The George A. Fuller Co. Orders Sympathetic Shut-Down

BUILDERS FULL OF FIGHT.

Based on Acceptance of Arbitration and Abandonment of Walking Out

New York, June 18.—Ten thousand employees of the George A. Fuller Construction Company were thrown out of work today by order of the company. This morning the 10,000 men, who were employed by the company, were ordered to leave the premises. The company has ordered a sympathetic shut-down of the building trade unions, who are also building trades unions have been advised with the intention of the company, to the effect that they will remain out as long as the individual union refuse to sign the plan of agreement of arbitration and mediation proposed by the Builders' Association.

The action of the Fuller company came as a surprise to the general public, who understood that its sympathies were with the labor unions. Members of the company said today that it had become necessary to control the situation.

The vast army of building mechanics will remain idle until their union virtually abandons the walking out. The company has ordered a sympathetic shut-down of the building trade unions, who are also building trades unions have been advised with the intention of the company, to the effect that they will remain out as long as the individual union refuse to sign the plan of agreement of arbitration and mediation proposed by the Builders' Association.

Urgent Meeting Held.
A meeting of the Builders' Association was held this morning. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

fighting them, but we will not have anything to do with the United Board. Among the employers there exists a feeling of confidence that "Sam" Parks will fail or re-election next Saturday at the election of officers of the Structural Iron Workers. Every effort will be made to make the election fair.

A Union Sick of it.
It is asserted by the board of governors of the Employers' Association that one of the most important, and powerful of the labor unions has already revolted against the walking out system and sent a circular to its members in which it stated that other things are said: "The scandalous exposure of the dishonest actions of business agents, of last week, lead us to believe that it would be wise to make a clean sweep of all (those business agents now in office. All men who have a heart the honor of our cause and this steady improvement of the members, without unbecomingly and provoked idleness are, therefore, urged to see to it that conservative, intelligent and honest men are placed in positions of trust."

SINGULAR SUICIDE

A Man Commits Suicide by Smoking Strong Cigar

London, June 18.—One of the most extraordinary suicides on record is reported from Perth. Baron Reta Olyri, a wealthy citizen, deliberately poisoned himself by smoking cigars and tobacco to excess.

The Baron had lost a large fortune in speculation. Having a wife and six children, he insured himself very heavily on their behalf in five companies, and then proceeded to put into operation his unique plan for self-destruction.

He hired a small room in a mean section of the city and in the month of what the doctors called "delirious consumption." Thus the insurance companies unearthed the Baron's secret plot, and found that he had poisoned himself by consuming 3,500 cigars and about 100 lbs. of tobacco.

COLONIAL AID FOR NAVY

The Dominion Benefits Most by It, say the Colonies.
London, June 18.—Speaking in the House of Commons last night, Hon. C. T. Ritchie, Chancellor of the Exchequer, made a significant reference to the colonies and the navy, explaining the difficulties of carrying out the British programme and the growth of the navy of Germany and the United States as reasons compelling large British naval expenditure. Mr. Ritchie said: "It is a matter of great importance to us that a considerable proportion of our expenditure is incurred in order to protect the colonies, we ought to have larger contributions from them. I regret very much that Canada does not contribute anything at all to the Empire, and I suppose no part of it derives more benefit than Canada from the expenditure we have incurred in connection with the army and navy."

MT. PLEASANT

Farmers are now rejoicing at the downfall of rain. Crops are looking well and give promise of an abundant harvest. John Siedler paid a flying visit to our town a few days ago.

We are glad to hear that Mr. J. Siedler, under the care of Dr. Karsch, is improving rapidly.

The pulpit of the Presbyterian church was occupied last Sunday by Rev. Mr. Harvey, of Toronto. His subject was "Peter's statement to Jesus. This has the words of eternal life."

DECORATING THE GRAVES

THE ODDFELLOWS OF PETERBOROUGH REMEMBER THEIR DEAD

They March to the Cemetery in Full Regalia and Perform a Beautiful Ceremony Over the Graves of Deceased Oddfellows

A vast concourse of citizens and citizens assembled in the Little Lake cemetery yesterday evening to witness the beautiful ceremony of decorating the graves of those who, in life, were members of the different Oddfellows societies.

No one is forgotten, no matter whether a member of a local lodge or a brother of a local society, each grave is visited in sacred memory of a departed brother.

The places of business were closed, and the school children had a half holiday so that all might take part in or witness one of the most beautiful and commendable rites that could be undertaken either by a society or private individual.

The members of the Order met in Central Park, and headed by the 67th Band, marched to the cemetery, where addresses were delivered by the local clergymen.

Rev. Mr. Miller conducted the service, and was assisted by the Rev. Mr. P.D.D., who is in charge of the decoration ceremony.

A NEW PLAN

An Insurance Company Formed to Protect Employers of Labour

New York, June 18.—Rev. Dr. Frank Oliver Hall, preaching in the Church of the Divine Providence upon "The Revelation Through the Trees," has declared that the destruction now apparent everywhere in Palestine, Asia Minor and other countries, is due to the destruction of the forest. He said: "There is the same story all the way round the Mediterranean, and we may trace the path of civilization by the destruction of the forest. If we could know the full truth about the garden of Eden I suspect that we should find that the man was cast out of the garden, not because he ate of the fruit of the tree, but because he cut the tree down. And here in America we are doing the same thing. We are cutting out our portable sawmills and each year a territory equal to that of Maryland is stripped clean of trees. We can already see the barrenness and desolation that have been wrought in New England, and now we are carrying out the same policy in Michigan, Wisconsin and elsewhere. The evils of flood and drought follow."

REMOVING FORESTS

Rev. Frank Hall Says Evil of Flood and Drought Brought Forth

Indianapolis, Ind., June 18.—David M. Barry, president of the National Manufacturers' Association, commenting on the proposed organization of a company to insure employers of labor against strikes, says the company will undoubtedly be formed. He said it would necessarily be a mutual company and that the membership could be kept secret, only the officers being known.

"Organized labor will never know," he said, "when it orders a strike, whether it is really fighting combined capital or merely making an onslaught on its own members. The object of the company will be to protect its policy holders from losses resulting from strikes and also to protect independent workmen. The company will have a legal department and will prosecute any man who at any time commits any violation of law."

BAPTIST ASSOCIATION

REPORTS SHOW SATISFACTORY INCREASE OF MEMBERSHIP

An Interesting Talk on Home Missions and an Inspiring Address by Mrs. Marshall of Toronto

MORNING SESSION.

Devotional exercises lasting 30 minutes were conducted by Rev. A. Kelly, in a spirited and highly profitable manner.

Rev. J. T. Marshall, B.A., delivered the Moderator's address. It was brief, comprehensive and interesting from beginning to end.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Expository address was ably headed by the Rev. T. Watson, of Oshawa.

Rev. O. C. Elliott read the minutes and the bylaws of the association in a clear, distinct voice, and in his usual intelligible manner.

Rev. A. Kelly read the report of the Nominating committee. The centre of attraction for the people of Peterborough, and most likely for the whole convention, was the annual sermon by Rev. John K. Trotter, of Port Hope, who for many years so acceptably filled the position of preacher, pastor and personal friend of the Murray street congregation. No excitement of any kind could possibly be more highly esteemed, better accepted, or more dearly loved than was the report of the Local Association.

He received so many warm welcomes and hearty hand-shakes, and was so heartily re-recognized. It is more than likely that his sermon will be published in pamphlet form.

EVENING SESSION.

A "Song Service" was conducted by Rev. W. Quinlan, of Lakeside.

Miss Iva Fisher, of town, delivered a very interesting and instructive address on "Loyalty to the Pledge." The young lady's appearance, voice, and manner were all in her favor. She dealt with the subject in a thoughtful, concise and vigorous manner, and it is to be hoped that this will not be her last effort along these lines for the number is very small who are as capable, and we regret very much that we have no room for a verbatim report of this address.

The Home Mission address was given by Rev. W. E. Norton, of Toronto, who acquitted himself in a short comprehensive speech well worthy of his reputation as a public speaker.

LIQUOR MEN IN SESSION

Officers Elected for the Coming Year Resolutions Passed

"That this association place on record its desire that the License Act be observed by the members of the association, and the trade generally." The foregoing resolution was passed at the annual convention of the Ontario Licensed Victuallers' Association, which met in St. George's Hall, Toronto, on Wednesday afternoon and evening. There were also several interesting papers read, and the election of officers was held, resulting as follows: President, James MacFarland, Toronto; First Vice-President, D. B. Burrell, York Mills; Second Vice-President, J. M. Brodie, Peterborough; Treasurer, James P. Paine, Toronto; Secretary, G. E. Oliver, Amherst; J. W. Stoddard, London; and H. A. Coffin, Georgetown; Solicitor, James Hargrave, Toronto; Executive Committee, E. Bartlett, St. Catharines; James Coffin, Brantford; T. P. Phelan, Toronto; Thomas Quinn, Ottawa; D. McCune, Guelphville; T. K. Haffey, Toronto; and N. J. Frawley.

After the annual a physician was called to attend to the injured man. Smith has a boy about 9 years old who refused to attend school, and the father told the teacher that if he caught the boy on the street to take him to school. Smith overtook him.

AN EXPLOSION IN THE WOOLICH ARSENAL

Fourteen Persons Were Killed and Thirteen Injured This Morning

London, June 18.—Fourteen men were killed and thirteen injured by an explosion in the Woolwich arsenal this morning. Several of the victims were literally blown to pieces.

The building was completely wrecked. The roof was blown off, and the interior collapsed. The explosion was attributed to the bursting of a shell.

There were many pathetic scenes about the gates of the great arsenal, where thousands of relatives of the employees besieged the officials for information.

Six additional men are missing, and it is believed they were blown to pieces. The remains of the victims were collected in buckets. Several hundred people lost their lives in a chadburn that almost entirely destroyed the town of Heppner, Ore., at 6 o'clock last night. Heppner is the county seat of Morrow county and has about 1,200 inhabitants.

All the telegraph and telephone wires are down and no accurate information can be obtained, but the estimate of loss of life is based on the most reliable reports received up to tonight. A report from some seventeen miles from Heppner, is to the effect that 300 bodies have been recovered.

A passenger train arrived at Heppner with a full complement of passengers. The train was stopped by the explosion, and the passengers were unable to seek places of safety, and were carried down to death by the awful rush of water.

Almost the entire residence portion of the town was destroyed, but none of the business part, which is on higher ground, escaped.

Huge bonfires weighing tons were carried down by the current, and many people were killed by being crushed against the rocky hills. Early in the afternoon a thunderstorm occurred, covering a wide region of country. Later a heavy rainstorm set in, many of the small streams overflowing their banks in a short time. Bridges were swept away like straws.

As soon as possible after the flood had subsided the work of relief was commenced by the citizens of the town. Dozens of bodies were found along the banks of Willow Creek, and in several places they were piled over one another. Up to 2 o'clock this afternoon 300 bodies had been recovered almost within the city limits.

Hundreds of horses, cattle, sheep, and hogs that had gone into the creek bottom for water perished.

News of the calamity did not reach the outside world until today, all the means of communication having been cut off. As soon as possible, news was sent by courier to the nearest towns. The Oregon Railway and Navigation Company started a relief train, with physicians and supplies, from The Dalles shortly after noon. At 1.30 this afternoon another relief train started for the scene from this city. The citizens of Priland sparsely were unable to seek places of safety, and were carried down to death by the awful rush of water.

A CHICAGO STRIKE

In Chicago, which has been noted as the scene of severe and bitter strikes, there was again recently a demonstration on all sides to settle labor troubles more amicably than had been the rule, but a strike for to (seemingly) long came last week in a strike which whatever its merits originally were, developed as an important which it is difficult to credit as really shown by some times.

This was the strike of the Chicago Western Union.

After the strike had occurred in part and was extending a demonstration from the National Union of Manufacturers waited on the executive of the Western Union to negotiate a compromise. The union executive refused to meet the demonstration. They declined to recognize the union's association, they said, and would deal with only individual owners.

This is a point on which labor itself has fought many bitter battles, the right to be recognized collectively, because that a labor union should defy the principle.

Wages was to come. Chicago representatives of the National Civic Federation, a body whose purpose is to effect conciliation in labor disputes, waited upon the union executive to propose arbitration. The Chicago News says:

"George A. Shilling, secretary of the local council of the National Civic Federation, which was recently established in Chicago by Senator Mark Hanna, appeared at the room of the joint council of labor, western and southern union, and addressed the members of the peace body to bring about a settlement of the strike by conciliation and arbitration.

"We don't want arbitration," said Chairman Ben Cortis, the leader of the union's governing body. "We will fight till we are on our last legs, before any outsider is allowed to butt in."

"My offer on behalf of the Civic Federation is that John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers, come to Chicago and act as umpire on a board of arbitration," persisted Shilling.

"No, no, no," came the answer. "Only as a last resort will we accept outside interference."

Through such a temper as exhibited in the foregoing, four thousand waiters are out of work in Chicago, and hundreds of the hotels and restaurants are crippled. It is well to note, however, that the course of the Chicago Western Union has received the practical condemnation of other Chicago labor unions. The Western Union called on the Teamsters' Union to aid by stopping delivery of supplies at the hotels and restaurants. Other unions were asked for similar help in every case it has been refused, because of the unworkable attitude of the Western Union. This is a notable feature of the contest and one creditable to the common sense of the majority of the Chicago Union.

It is a well known fact that a 16 barrel well will pay over 100 per cent. profit upon its cost.

This is no longer a speculation for we have proved that oil is on our ground, and we now have oil in paying quantities, with two wells pumping we can soon pay dividends, and every well we put down increases our earning capacity.

This is a business proposition, managed by business men.

laughter had the frank, pleasant manner of the father, her home might be a very happy one indeed.

In a moment or two Miss Hyde appeared, dressed in an elegant morning gown, and looking even more beautiful than she had looked the night before.

Her manner, however, was restrained, though perfectly well-bred and polite.

Evidently she had no intention of getting on terms of freedom with her young companion until she knew her better.

Mr. Hyde seemed to notice and be vexed by his daughter's coldness.

Indeed, once Marjorie saw him cast a glance of unmistakable reproach at her.

After breakfast, the members of the family were free to follow the day's occupations or diversions.

Mr. Hyde rode out on horse-back, first commending Marjorie very kindly to the care of his daughter.

"You must remember she is among strangers, Madeline, and try to keep her from feeling lonely," he said, as he left them. "And you, my dear, must make up your mind to regard us as your friends."

A mist of grateful tears dimmed Marjorie's eyes as, standing by the window, she watched him ride away.

How kind he was, how generous, how true a gentleman!

Already she loved him as she might have loved a dear and honorable relative.

Oh, if only his daughter were more like him! She turned to find Madeline's eyes fixed on her with that same scrutinizing gaze she had seen in them last night.

This time a slight shade of melancholy crossed Miss Hyde's brow, as though she saw something which gave her pain.

She suggested they should sit by the fire and do some needlework together.

Marjorie readily acquiesced, and a servant brought in a great roll of fabric from which Madeline commenced, with great dexterity, to cut a number of garments, which, she said, were for the poor.

"I'm always so pleased to do anything of this kind for the poor, I mean," said Marjorie, watching her with interest. "I'm glad you like it, too."

But Madeline disclaimed all merit in the transaction.

"If I were left to myself I should never make a single garment," she said, with frank carelessness. "I do it simply because my father wishes it. He likes me to be kind to the indigent."

"What a good girl you are," said Marjorie, softly.

Miss Hyde made no answer.

A curious look flitted over her face, almost a mocking look, as though she had her own opinion about her father's blindness.

All that day Miss Hyde and Marjorie were alone together, for the master of the house did not return till early in the evening.

Little by little the elder girl's manner unbent.

The air of cold restraint dropped from her; her face lighted up into new beauty.

Marjorie said to herself—

"Oh, how I could love her if only she would always be like this!"

The truth was it was Marjorie's own goodness that had softened Madeline.

There was a charm about her which won her way to most hearts.

Hard indeed would have been the heart that could resist her.

The two girls were still sitting together by the morning room fire when Mr. Hyde returned.

"I hope we have something good for dinner, Madeline," he said, cheerfully. "Your cousin will be here to-night."

Madeline looked up, startled, a red spot on her cheek, exclaiming in her own mind—

"I got a wire from them at the station," went on her father, easily. "They will be here for dinner. Isn't it time you went upstairs to dress?"

"I think it is," said Madeline, speaking in an abstracted, preoccupied fashion. "Come, Marjorie."

Ten minutes later Marjorie, as she dressed in her own chamber, missed a little gold sleeve link from her cuff, and feeling sure she had dropped it either in the hall or on the staircase, she slipped out to look for it.

At the bottom of the stairs she found it, and as she stooped to pick it up she heard Mr. Hyde's voice in a room close at hand.

It was slightly raised, undoubtedly in anger or displeasure—

"Do as I tell you," he said, imperatively. "You know my plans. Silence! I will not hear a word. Enough for you that I mean to be obeyed."

It was not intentional that Marjorie had overheard even this much, and she went upstairs again as soon as she had put her sleeve link, without guessing for a single unnecessary moment.

She concluded it must be one of the servants Mr. Hyde was speaking to, and wondered what had been done to cross such a severe disciplinarian in so sudden a manner.

A couple of minutes later there came (To be continued.)

A RAY OF HUMOR
IN FISCAL FIGHTProposal to Tax Heiresses with Debate for Colonials

"THE COLONIES USELESS"

Assets One Opponent of Colonial Secretary's Policy

London, June 17.—A touch of humor has been given to the Imperial republican discussion by a distinguished bachelor, who, "realizing the desirability of perpetuating our glorious race," solemnly proposes in to-morrow's issue of the "Pall Mall" to place a 10 per cent. ad valorem duty on all foreign heiresses entering Great Britain. He says: "We would be in a position to suggest, we might admit, Canadian and Australian heiresses at a reduced rate of 5 per cent. only. The money realized could go to provide pensions for ladies of the Old Country who are debilitated from the matrimonial market."

THE FREE TRADE CAMPAIGN.
Mr. Harcourt, secretary of the Chamberlain League, a review of articles in the Westminster Gazette, on the basis of free trade. Free trade is to him the ark of the covenant only to be touched on pain of the Empire's death.

Mr. George White, Liberal M.P. for North Norfolk, and president of the Baptist Union, speaking yesterday, asserted he was a convinced free trader because the system was in accordance with Bible principles.

"THE COLONIES ARE USELESS," Frederick Greenwood, late editor of The Daily Mail, says in a Chamberlainian "The dream of Joseph."

He maintains that the colonies would be unable to protect themselves. He believes that the colonies are growing into independent nations, and will hence naturally refuse contributions to the army and navy.

THE CAMPAIGN IN FULL SWING.
The Liberal Opposition have decided to fight any of a direct Parliamentary election, and have decided not to move any resolution in the House of Commons on the subject of Mr. Chamberlain's programme, because a division in present circumstances would only result in uniting the Ministerialists on the basis of the necessity for an enquiry, while placing the Opposition in a pronounced minority. Nevertheless, the Liberal party organizations have already started preparations for an elaborate anti-Chamberlain campaign during the autumn season.

It is stated that Mr. Chamberlain has himself intimated to the Cabinet that he will make no more speeches about his programme until the end of the session, in order to enable the Irish Land Bill and the other measures on the legislative programme to be passed. He and his supporters will however, begin an active campaign in the constituency in September.

Mr. Chamberlain himself expresses to his friends the complete conviction of victory. He knows that the colonies are with him, and he believes that he can convince the Englishmen of the wisdom of the Empire, that it will be good for them and the Empire.

An enthusiastic Chamberlainite says that 100 Ministerial M.P.s have already declared themselves supporters of the Empire.

Mr. Chamberlain's programme, as outlined in his speech, is to enable the Empire to be a greater free trade.

MR. TARTER HEARD FROM.
The Daily Mail quotes Mr. J. Israel Tarter as saying yesterday at Ottawa that he knew that Mr. Chamberlain's ideas of inter-imperial trade were "the right thing."

Sir Gordon Spragg, Premier of Cape Colony, speaking in the Cape Parliament yesterday endorsed Mr. Chamberlain's policy of preferential trade, and said that consolidation of the Empire was greater than free trade.

WOULD "COME DOWN."
A British M.P. tells me that when last year he asked President Roosevelt what the United States would do if the British Empire adopted Imperial reciprocity, the president replied: "Oh, we should simply say don't bother. We will come down."

London, June 17.—Hon. Clifford Sifton today sails for New York on the Oceanic. Sir Thomas Lipton and Mr. J. P. Morgan are fellow passengers.

He said that the reply to the United States case in reference to Alaska was practically completed, and would be exchanged on July 3rd. The date of the sitting of the tribunal is uncertain.

He is delighted with the work of the Emigration Office, and expects that the outflow to Canada will continue.

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay.

It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds; the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash? A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurons, the Baldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at from $1.00 par value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1880 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $682.

$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend-paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be verified.

Mallory, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,006,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

Nor does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining.—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore mills only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours.

The Alaska Treadwell ore mills $2.35 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par.

No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management. Respectfully submitted,

To Canadian Investors

THE GREATEST MINING PROPOSITION EVER OFFERED.

I am pleased to state that I have completed arrangements with the Consolidated Nevada Mining Company for the sale of a block of their treasury stock in Canada. It is a proposition I can honestly recommend, and has unlimited possibilities. The tremendous possibilities of WEDEKIND and TONOPAH is becoming plainer every day to the entire country. The spring rush into these NEVADA mining camps will equal or exceed that into Olympia Creek, Dawson or Nome. The strike recently reported from Wehkind and Tonopah have created the greatest excitement and the rush will soon be on.

Everyone is waiting NEVADA mining stocks and prices are steadily advancing. Buy now! before opportunities for profit then close the shares of

A GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and then there is absolute safety in the investment. The return of the investment is very large.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

An arrangement has been made with the Trust Company to guarantee to the purchaser the return of amount invested within a given number of years. To substantiate this guarantee they issue to the purchaser of the stock a gold bond, which is secured by first real estate mortgages deposited with another Trust Company for the specific purpose of securing the bonds the underwriting company issues.

Then the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer:

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, Colorado, where it is located, to secure funds for the extensive development of its numerous mining properties and also of its oil lands, offers a limited amount of its treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Grizzly Creek, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done. It is proposed to place as many of these mining properties upon a shipping and self-supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of oil lands in Huerfano County, Colo. In order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $1.00 per share. All stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with individual liability. This issue of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Fortunes have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are usually very great, especially when the stock can be secured at such a low price as this is now offered for. Now is the time to get in before an advance in the price is made.

Building will be of local interest, to the extent of the transportation for ore and supplies, besides immediately increasing values.

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 20 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.

Vast ledges of ore running from $500 to $800.00 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $75.00 to $225.00 per ton. This is not a five per cent. a month scheme, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than the Savings Bank or Mortgage loan.

No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGEMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your foresight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock sold at par. The new Mining Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can get the Stock at present price. It will soon be 50 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mines and returned full of enthusiasm. The mines are turning out more riches than expected.

I can offer the Stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO-DAY—to-morrow it may slip your memory. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 25% per month.

Remarkable Discovery of Gold, Silver and Copper Ore Made on Property of the EASTERN NATIONAL COPPER COMPANY, Limited, of Cheticamp, Cape Breton

ORE BEARING SCHISTS FROM 75 TO 100 FEET WIDE

The out crop of the extension of the deposit has just been cut on the opposite side of the mountain from which the work was commenced, proving that the ore body extends through the hill.

MR. M. V. GRANIN, engineer in charge of the development work, reports the discovery of an immense body of gold, silver, and copper bearing ore from seventy-five to one hundred feet wide on the property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, at Cheticamp, Cape Breton. This is probably the first known instance in Eastern Canada of the co-occurring of a large deposit of metaliferous ore such as made the mining industry of British Columbia, the Western States and Mexico of great magnitude. The discovery in Cape Breton tends to confirm the opinion of mining experts that Cheticamp is one of the most important mining districts in Nova Scotia. The Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, owns some of the finest sections of this district and has about completed the proving of a body of ore estimated to contain 100,000 tons, worth from $10 to $15 per ton. The main slope is down 130 feet all in one and the tunnel from which the mine will be worked has been commenced from the opposite side of the hill. The Company expect to commence the installation of plant for treatment in three months' time. Surface buildings, etc., have all been erected.

Thousands of tons of Ore already in sight.

Every day adds to the proved value of the mine

There is no other form of mining investment than gold and copper deposits, as they occur in immense veins and carry regular values. Many of the private fortunes of the United States owe their origin to a lucky investment in a gold-copper proposition. The property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, is undoubtedly one of the most valuable in the country. Besides its extensive mining claims the mining company controls timber for mining and building purposes and will also have natural water-power. The extension of the Mackenzie & Mann Railway from Broad Cove to Cheticamp this year will give this great mining enterprise rail as well as water communication with all points.

The undertaking of this Company is a sound business enterprise, organized by a prominent Nova Scotia business man, without the heavy over-capitalization, watered stock, promoters' take-off, directors' perquisites, etc., which characterize many foreign companies. The company is capitalized at the moderate figure of $600,000, and one-half the entire capital stock has been placed in the treasury in reserve. 10,000 shares of the other half are being sold for development.

A Limited Amount of Stock is Offered at $3.00 per Share (Thirty Cents on the Dollar). - Par $10.00

The Stock was started at $1 per share, and has advanced steadily to $3. Next advance will likely be to $5, and we expect it will be quoted at par—$10—within a year, based on ore actually blocked out. Less than 1000 shares will be sold at the present figure of three dollars. Applications for Stock should be addressed to

Russian Minister Adopts A New Plan of Campaign

M. PLEHVE AND THE FINLAND- DERS, HIS PLAN FAILED

Finish Refugees are Leaguers with Rus- sian Revol- utionists

London, June 18.—Russian correspondents of the Times say that Governor Dobroff of Finland recently issued an order as an undoubted fact that Finnish refugees were leaguers with Russian revolutionaries abroad. As the statement of the Russian Minister of Finland is intended to damage the Finnish cause, it may be as well to disclose the incidents upon which Dobroff's statement is based. The Finnish cause, as is well known, has always found powerful defenders within the Russian Empire. Mr. Plehve is anxious to secure an informal truce, and suggested that if the Russian Government could refrain from attacking the Russian Government, he would initiate important reforms in Russia. He said, further, that he would give any assistance in this way safe conduct to Mr. Plehve, where he could lay the views of the Finnish refugees before the Minister and the Emperor. The Minister thus approached Dobroff to consult his friends, but he did not obtain proof of M. Plehve's bona fides. The negotiations were then discontinued. M. Plehve, however, did not fail to furnish Dobroff with the version of the affair serving his immediate purpose.

PLEHVE'S PLAN FAILED.
One of his agents in Paris recently sought to approach, indirectly, a prominent Finnish refugee, representing that M. Plehve was anxious to secure an informal truce, and suggested that if the Russian Government could refrain from attacking the Russian Government, he would initiate important reforms in Russia. He said, further, that he would give any assistance in this way safe conduct to Mr. Plehve, where he could lay the views of the Finnish refugees before the Minister and the Emperor. The Minister thus approached Dobroff to consult his friends, but he did not obtain proof of M. Plehve's bona fides. The negotiations were then discontinued. M. Plehve, however, did not fail to furnish Dobroff with the version of the affair serving his immediate purpose.

JAPANESE REQUEST REFUSED.
The Japanese Minister has again pressed China to open Mukden, and Tientsin provinces to foreign trade, but the reply was that China had not the power to do so.

IMPERIAL BANK OF CANADA

Twenty-fifth Annual General Meeting of Shareholders Held in Toronto Wednesday.

At the 25th annual meeting of the stockholders of the Imperial Bank a managed institution was presented that will prove interesting reading to the many friends of that institution throughout the country. The statement, which appears elsewhere in this issue, is without doubt the best ever presented in the history of the bank. A feature, which is, perhaps, the most striking, is the exceptionally strong position of the bank as regards convertible assets. The Imperial Bank has always maintained a comparatively strong position in this respect, and with expanding business it is as strong in that direction as ever. It is satisfactory to be able to state that the bank's assets are in a position to meet any emergency. It has been keeping pace with the rapid development of the Northwest, and is easily maintaining its lead in that important part of the Dominion.

Chamberlain's Policy Along Canadian Lines

Ottawa, June 18.—Mr. Fielding's speech in the House early this morning is regarded as the first official announcement of the policy of the Dominion Government on the question of Imperial preferential trade. To-night the speech is the subject of much comment, and is generally described as a most important and significant deliverance. Mr. Fielding's words, as reported in Hansard, are as follows:

"My hon. friend (Mr. Tarte) seemed to congratulate himself upon the idea that the cause of protection was making vast progress in England. Well, I think he was a little hazy in that. Has the hon. gentleman forgotten that, only a few days ago, when the question of corn duties came up in the British Parliament, only 28 members were found to be in favor of the duties? My hon. friend will find it in that vindication of the view that England is running away from free trade. And even the more moderate and comprehensive policy of Hon. Chamberlain, which has my sympathy, is only acceptable because it is following the Canadian policy."

"It is recognized in England today that the line that Mr. Chamberlain is taking is the outcome of the policy of Canada, and therefore, what Mr. Chamberlain is doing is precisely what we have been doing for seven years in this Dominion. But even that more moderate and more comprehensive policy of Mr. Chamberlain is only meeting with a moderate degree of support at present. My sympathies are with the right hon. gentleman, and I trust he may go ahead and that his movement may make progress, but there is no use in our pretending to-day that England is accepting Mr. Chamberlain's ideas on the corn duties, or even the larger and more moderate ideas of Mr. Chamberlain."

"Mr. Chamberlain is going to have an uphill fight before he accomplishes his object. Our hearts go out to him, but at the same time let us not shut our eyes to the fact that he is encountering a great measure of hostility, and that he is not going to win in a moment."

Later on, while replying to Mr. Bourne, who said that Chamberlain's speech meant the ruin of half our manufacturing interests, Mr. Fielding said: "Several years ago Mr. Chamberlain took the position that a mutual preference such as was sought by us could only be obtained by our adopting in the colonies a policy of free trade. We told him frankly that so far as Canada was concerned we could not agree."

"What he proposed to-day is a mutual preference in which there shall be moderate duties on our side and moderate duties in England on those things upon which we care to have them."

ORANGE RIVER COLONY AFTER THE BIG WAR LACK OF NEWS FROM SOMALILAND AND RUMORS

Lieutenant Governor of Orange River Colony is Causing Alarm in London, No Word Has Been Received

SPEAKS ABOUT THE FUTURE OF THE COUNTRY GENERAL MANNING FOR THREE WEEKS

AS TO COMPENSATION, A Difficult Question Which Has Not Yet Been Definitely Settled By the British

Toronto, June 18.—Major Sir Hamilton Goud-Adams, Lieutenant Governor of the Orange River Colony, who is guest at the Queen's Hotel, was interviewed this morning by a reporter of the Times upon the general condition of affairs in the most recently acquired portions of the Empire. Sir Hamilton said that South Africa had made marvelous strides since the close of the war. Great numbers of people had returned to their homes, besides the prisoners who had been brought back to the country. He did not know of a single act of violence, of robbery with violence, being committed in the Transvaal or the Orange River Colony since the surrender of arms. He considered that in view of the fact that guerrilla warfare had been carried on for some time, and that the people had got accustomed to robbery and murder, acts of a nature could have been expected. However, since the surrender, life and property had been absolutely safe. Some natives had been murdered for unknown causes, probably because they had given information to the British during the war.

BORNE MARRY KNOLSH.

The English and Borne were commencing to intermarry, and he had direct evidence of the fact, because he signed their marriage certificates. The Borne, however, were undoubtedly watching the attitude of the British toward the natives, particularly with reference to any attempt being made to extend to them the franchise. The compensation of those who had served in the campaign was most difficult matter, and no definite settlement had yet been arrived at, although advances had been made to those taking up farms, which had been destroyed during the war. No definite settlement would be arrived at until every claim had been considered, as the authorities had no intention of compensating men who had broken their oaths, and they desired to exercise great care

Man Hunt In Grey County

Collingwood, June 18.—Interest in the capture of the murderers of Glory Whalen is at a white heat to-night and an armed posse of police expects shortly to surround two suspects and lodge them in safe keeping.

Repeated reports have lately come to town of three being secreted in the bush on the 10th line of Grey, in the County of Grey, a negro and a white man, who subsisted by stealing chickens, ducks and geese from the neighbors in the vicinity.

These two persons are supposed to be the perpetrators of the murder of Glory Whalen, in the vicinity of Collingwood.

Lawyer A. A. Bond, Chief Warden and Night Policeman, left to-night for the locality in which the men are supposed to be.

It is their intention to sweep in twenty special constables and surround the bush where these men are, at ten o'clock to-morrow morning, and then effect their arrest. All the constables will be heavily armed, so as to meet all emergencies, as these men, if they are the murderers wanted, must be desperate characters.

least they should pass over cases in which compensation should have been given. A considerable number of the people seemed afraid to take up their farms and commence to stock them, as they believed, the value of the work which they did, would be taken into consideration, when the claims were adjusted, and that they would, therefore, suffer as the result of the work.

MUCH IMMIGRATION.

British immigration was coming into the country very fast, especially the artisans, who were settling in the towns. And up to the time he had left South Africa, all British farmers had been settled in the Orange River Colony. The farms were being taken up by the Dutch were of the smaller type, about 1,000 acres, and many of the former large landowners had been compelled to sell some of their farms in order to properly stock a small farm. The larger farmers owned farms of from 500 to 2,000 acres. Grazing was, of course, carried on upon every farm, as they all generally contained hillside for that purpose.

WAS NOT SLOW

Here and Big River and Thief Arrested in Two Days.

The following communication was received by Chief Constable on June 17th last, from J. C. Ruse, Chief Constable, Cobourg: "Solea from Wm. Haskins, (Centerton, a white horse, light bay, (coming pattern) McLaughlin make, new harness, old harness and collar. Arrest any person found with same, and wire." From the same source the Chief Constable received the following yesterday: "I have found white horse and buggy and have them arrested in Campbellford." (Signed) J. C. RUSE.

POLICE COURT

A Young Man Sent Pay a Fine for Stealing.

The case of young KORTHE, who was charged from Wednesday, came up before Police Magistrate Dumble yesterday morning. He was charged with being drunk and disorderly. The defendant failed to satisfy his Honor about his innocence, and was sentenced to $25 and costs, amounting in all to $30, to be paid in ten days.

The case of the young lady who had been charged for wages was dismissed by the Magistrate, who ordered the wages to be paid, but that the servant must pay the costs as she had not given a month's notice according to law.

INSPECTING THE BRIDGES

The County Council Takes a Trip to Gan-nan's Narrows.

Yesterday the Warden and members of the County Council, accompanied by the County Engineer, Mr. Decher, and a number of other gentlemen, visited Gan-nan's Narrows, where it is proposed to place a floating bridge. The party drove to Chemung, where they were met by Mr. Boyd's private launch, and where Mr. W. B. Kelly, of Bridgeport, joined them, and then proceeded to Buckhorn, where they had dinner.

Returning, the party stopped at the Narrows, and experienced what many of them never enjoyed before—a trip over the water on the ferry. As many of our readers know, the ferry is nothing but a scow, propelled by a whiplash.

It is proposed to build a bridge across this neck of water, connecting Harvey with Buckhorn, and shortening the distance of hundreds of settlers to town by many miles. The Dominion and Provincial Governments will, it is understood, contribute a thousand dollars each. After a stay of a couple of hours at the Narrows, the party returned to Bridgeport and reached home about six o'clock.

There will be a meeting of Mrs. Mayrow's chorus class on Monday evening in the Y.M.C.A. All the numbers are requested to be present.

This Week Only
All this week we will sell Lambs, croquet sets, footballs, and all sporting goods, at positively the lowest for the value of any place in town. Call and get our prices before buying. Times Bookstore, Market block.

TOWN COUNCIL MEET IN SPECIAL SESSION

Ald. Morrison Reports Substantial Progress In Regard to the Street Railway Franchise

ALD. BEST AND THE MAYOR CROSS SWORDS

THE STREET RAILWAY.

At last night's meeting of the Town Council, Ald. Morrison, chairman of the Committee on Franchise, reported that substantial progress was being made in the matter of the street railway. The American Cereal Company had submitted to the committee the draft of a franchise, which they had amended to safeguard the Town's interests, and had referred back to the Council company. The Franchise committee considered the proposed franchise to be an exceedingly favorable one, and expect to hear further from the company any day.

Ald. Best, Ald. Morrison replied that his committee were prepared to recommend the acceptance of the tender of the Cereal Company for street lighting at $40 per lamp.

SURFACE DRAINAGE.

Ald. Best, chairman of the Board of Works, reported that no work had yet been done on providing better surface drainage for George street, as a large amount of permanent improvements was still under way, and the Street Commissioners were not prepared to go on with this work.

His Worship here pointed out that the present condition of George street as to surface drainage was far from satisfactory, the town was liable any day for damage through storm water flooding business premises. At the beginning of the year, the Council had decided that plans should be made, and tenders called for a thorough drainage system from George street along Hunter street west to the creek, and the matter had been referred to the Board of Works. Ald. Best, chairman of the Board of Works, had objected to the tenders submitted on the grounds that they were too high, and provided for a greater expenditure than was necessary; the tenders were for an 18 inch pipe, when a 15 inch one would meet all requirements. The Board of Works then decided to advertise for tenders for a 15 inch pipe and that the work should be proceeded with without unnecessary delay. But Ald. Best, in his wisdom, thought fit to strike out that recommendation from his report of his committee to the Council.

Ald. Best replied that his reason for striking out the clause in question from his report was that the Town Engineer had no plans prepared for the drainage system as submitted.

Best had no authority to strike out the clause in question from his report; the only change made from the original plans agreed upon was that of an 18 inch pipe to a 15 inch one. He did not think any man had a right to overrule the Council.

Ald. Best replied that there was no considerable unnecessary expense for surface drains in the original plans.

The Mayor claimed that the Board of Works had in May passed a resolution, calling for tenders and plans for a 15 inch pipe drainage on Hunter street, from George street to the creek, and Ald. Best had no right to strike out that recommendation out of his report to the Council. The real difficulty, he continued, was the attitude of the chairman of the Board of Works, who would not co-operate with the Town Engineer because he has not confidence in him. And it is now for the Council to say whether they have confidence in the Engineer or not.

Ald. McWilliams pointed out on troubled waters by moving, seconded by Ald. Fennie,—That the Board of Works be instructed to proceed with the work of surface drainage as agreed upon by the Board, either by contract or day labor, as expedient as possible.—Carried.

The Council then went into Committee of the Whole, with Ald. Best in the chair on the Mayor's invitation.

THE BAND STAND.

A plan to authorize the execution for the construction of a band stand in the Victoria Park, at a cost of $400, passed its several readings.

Stocks—The MARKETS OF THE WORLD—Grain

To Canadian Investors

THE GREATEST MINING PROPOSITION EVER OFFERED.

I am pleased to state that I have completed arrangements with the Consolidated Nevada Mining Company for the sale of a block of their treasury stock in Canada. It is a proposition I can honestly recommend, and has unlimited possibilities. The tremendous possibilities of WEDKIND and TONOPAH is becoming plain every day to the entire country. The spring rush into these NEVADA mining camps will equal or exceed that into Cripple Creek, Idaho or Nome. The strikes recently reported from Wedkind and Tonopah have created the greatest excitement and the rush will soon be on.

Everyone is waiting NEVADA mining stocks and prices are rapidly advancing. Now offer better opportunities for profits than do the shares of.

The Consolidated Nevada Mining Company

Properties in the heart of the Wedkind district. High grade ore and lots of it. We are certain to cut the RICHEST VEIN IN THE DISTRICT very soon; then it's all off.

Stock now selling at 15c per share. Limited quantity only.

Send in your orders quick. Address:

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

Is what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and from which absolute safety is guaranteed, and yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

Thus the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer:

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, among whose mines, to secure funds for the extensive development of its numerous mining properties and oil lands, offers a limited amount of its Treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Cripple Creek, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done, and a great amount of self supporting lands as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of oil lands in Humano County, Colo. In order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $1.00 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with no individual liability. This is one of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Profits have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The price of this stock is now at a low level, and it is a great opportunity to place as many of these mining properties upon a solid and self supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so.

The new railroad from Denver to Salt Lake, which is now building will be of incalculable benefit to the Company, furnishing transportation for ores and supplies, besides immediately increasing values.

The Oro Rico Mining Syndicate

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 20 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS. Vast ledges of ore running from $5.00 to $80.00 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso smelter gave returns from $79.80 to $23.00 per ton. This is not a five year contract, it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans.

No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLARS FOR DOLLARS for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGEMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your foresight you will win money, a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now waiting with the stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now waiting with the stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now waiting with the stock sold at par.

I can offer the Stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO-DAY—to receive it may slip your memory. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 75% per month.

COPPER IN CAPE BRETON

Canadian and English newspapers generally refer to the discovery of the large body of copper ore which has been unearthed at Cheticamp, C.B., and from the accessibility of the situation, they argue that Cape Breton should become a prominent copper producer. The Canadian Gazette, London, has the following item from its Nova Scotia correspondent:

A big vein of copper-gold ore, over 100 feet wide and extending for over a mile, has been struck on the property of the Eastern National Copper Company at Cheticamp. It is actually over 100 feet wide. The strike will become one of the most important mining sections of Canada. The company, who are developing the district, are planning to start work on the vein as soon as they can. They have started one pay break ten feet wide on the outcrop, which gave an average value of $10 a ton in gold, silver and copper. In the striking of the great vein, the company was found to be gradually widening, and this led the engineer in charge to make a further investigation by prospecting, and the result is the present announcement that the vein is actually over 100 feet wide. The development has proceeded far enough to prove the existence of a large body of ore, and thousands of tons have already been blocked out. Large smelter works are projected.

The Late Dr. Gatling.

The fearful instruments of destruction which modern warfare has developed have not always been the inventions of professional soldiers, but in some cases have been devised by civilians with a purely philanthropic intent. Take the Gatling gun for example, the inventor of which, Dr. Richard J. Gatling, died in New York the other day, aged eighty-five. The idea of his destructive gun was suggested to him early in the Civil War by the spectacle of the great number of soldiers sent home for burial, who had died, not from bullets, but from disease in the hospitals. It occurred to him that there were too many men in the service. He thought something could be invented whereby one soldier could do the work of a hundred, the other ninety-nine could stay at home, and there would be fewer widows and orphans in consequence. So he invented a gun which would throw hundreds of bullets by merely turning a crank. But though this gun made war more destructive, it did not reduce the number of soldiers as he had anticipated. The feeling there is reason to believe, sought to mitigate the evil he had unintentionally wrought by turning his inventive genius to the arts of peace, and his last years were spent in perfecting a new plow he had invented, which, it is expected, will revolutionize agriculture on the great farms of the West. The plow runs by gasoline motor of sufficient power to propel the machine with the shares at any depth up to twelve inches. The plow not only plows, but harrows, rolls and seeds the ground at the same time, thus saving one-fourth the cost of planting.

Fattery.

"I find that fattery goes a great way with people," remarked a popular woman, "and it is astonishing how thickly you can spread it on. I used to think that fattery should be valued; that you admiration should be inducted rather than openly expressed; but, bless me, that is delirious thrown away! I find that there is no more certain way of getting what you want than to flatter the man who will not only please, but completely the most extravagant compliments, and take all that you say in perfect good faith. Of course, tact must be employed. There is an obviously fulsome fattery that only annoys—the fawning, sweetly sweet people who have the same sugared phrases for everyone are boring—but in a quiet, sensible way, to deliver a compliment as if it were an indisputable fact; always telling, and as I say, one need never be afraid of making it too strong!"

Repates.

Miss Reekay (patronizingly)—Rather embarrassing for you, I should think, always to be blushing when you shouldn't. Miss Daymure—And equally embarrassing for you, I should think, never to be blushing when you should! — "Smart Set."

Remarkable Discovery of Gold, Silver and Copper Ore Made on Property of the EASTERN NATIONAL COPPER COMPANY, Limited, of Cheticamp, Cape Breton

ORE BEARING SCHISTS FROM 75 TO 100 FEET WIDE

The out crop of the extension of the deposit has just been cut on the opposite side of the mountain from which the work was commenced, proving that the ore body extends through the hill.

M. R. M. V. GRANDIN, engineer in charge of the development work, reports the discovery of an immense body of gold, silver, and copper bearing ore from seventy-five to one hundred feet wide on the property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, at Cheticamp, Cape Breton. This is probably the first known instance in Eastern Canada of the unearthing of a large deposit of metaliferous ore such as made the mining industry of British Columbia, the Western States and Mexico of great magnitude. The discovery in Cape Breton tends to confirm the opinion of mining experts that Cheticamp is one of the most important mining districts in Nova Scotia. The Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, owns some of the finest sections of this district and has about completed the proving of a body of ore estimated to contain 100,000 tons, worth from $10 to $15 per ton. The main shaft is a 120 feet all in one and the tunnel from which the mine will be worked has been commenced from the opposite side of the hill. The Company expect to commence the installation of plant for treatment in three months' time. Surface buildings, etc., have all been erected.

Thousands of tons of Ore already in sight. Every day adds to the proved value of the mine

THERE is no other form of mining investment than gold-copper deposits, as they occur in immense veins and carry regular values. Many of the private fortunes of the United States owe their origin to a lucky investment in a gold-copper proposition. The property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, is undoubtedly one of the most valuable in the country. Besides its extensive mining claims the mining company controls timber for mining and building purposes and will also have natural water-power. The extension of the MacKenzie & Mann Railway from Broad Cove to Cheticamp this year will give this great mining enterprise rail as well as water communication with all points. The undertaking of this Company is a sound business enterprise, organized by a prominent Nova Scotia business man, without the heavy overcapitalization, watered stock, promoters' take-off, directors' perquisites, etc., which characterize many foreign companies. The company is capitalized at the moderate figure of $500,000, and one-half the entire capital stock has been placed in the treasury in reserve. 10,000 shares of the other half are being sold for development.

The Stock was started at $1 per share, and has advanced steadily to $3. Next advance will likely be to $5, and we expect it will be quoted at par—$10—within a year, based on ore actually blocked out. Less than 1000 shares will be sold at the present figure of three dollars. Applications for Stock should be addressed to

No Charity

One of the town clergymen complains that it is impossible to find a home for a poor old Protestant lady, who has neither friends nor money, suffering from a painful malady and is able to work. If there are the facts, the county council has much more to remember the sympathy of everyone, in every walk of life, in this his saddest hour. First came the loss of his wife, whom he loved very dearly, and whose kindly companionship he missed so sorely. Only a few years ago his brother Robert was accidentally killed by falling down an elevator at Hamilton, and whose help and encouragement he so prized, and now his youngest son is taken from the home, leaving as it does distress on a cup that even now mania to the brain with sorrow.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

The 67th Regiment band gave a concert in Central Park last evening. The George street choir have engaged Mr. F. W. Wadell, of Boston, Mass., for a tenor tenor in singing. Old Montserrat when they complimented them very highly on their appearance and proficiency. Fulcrum Adams caught Mr. Hamilton's horse when running away yesterday, and showed his ability to lead a fractious horse. Mr. Board's new house, No. 220 Water street, will soon be ready for the inhabitants. Mr. M. McIntyre is doing the carpenter work, which is quite suitable to him. Mrs. Hugh Wadell entertained the young ladies of her Bible class last night at her beautiful residence. A most enjoyable time was spent.

Home Come Festival

The great Home Come Festival, promoted by the Board of Trade of Toronto, is close at hand. Since the preliminary announcement was published considerable changes have been made in the program. The festival has been considerably elaborated and as it now reads there are to be Dominion Day, July 1st—Arrival of contingents from Detroit, Rochester, Buffalo, Cleveland, Chicago, Milwaukee, Pittsburgh, Boston, Philadelphia, New York and other United States cities; band parades, some with bands, some in uniforms, some with singing choruses, and all with banners, flags, and other emblems; amateur regatta, open to all, including matches, baseball matches, etc., reception at the King Edward Hotel and at various clubs and open house everywhere. Thursday, July 2nd—Old Days' Parade with banners and flags, huge garden party on the University lawn. Monday—grandest Yacht Regatta ever held on this continent and brilliant illumination of the bay and harbor, with fireworks and innumerable beacon fires. This fireworks fest is to cost thousands of dollars. Friday, July 3rd—amazing open air horse show and parade, many regattas and garden parties and entertainments at the Island. Saturday, July 4th—Demonstrations in honor of United States visitors, drive around the city, canoe regatta, championship horse match and football gathering. Between forty and fifty thousand dollars will be expended on these various entertainments. Seats and concessions. Reduced rates have been secured on all lines of travel, particulars of which can be had of local station agents.

CHURCH NOTES

At St. Andrew's Church to-morrow morning the pastor, Rev. J. G. Potter, will address the young people of the congregation on the topic, "Christ the true guide to every young life." Parents are particularly recommended to this service. In the evening Rev. Jonathan Bate of Murray Street Baptist Church will preach and Mr. E. M. Lloyd will sing. St. Andrew's choir began a special course in vocal training on Thursday night, which will be continued during the summer months. A SAD DROWNING

MR. INNIS HAMILTON LOOSES HIS LIFE IN LITTLE LAKE

Yesterday afternoon while fishing—Body Found Late Last Night

Yesterday afternoon one of the saddest drowning accidents which has been a year, occurred on Little Lake. A little before twelve o'clock noon Mr. Innis Hamilton, youngest son of Mr. Peter Hamilton, left his father's office with a fishing tackle, saying that he was going to try to catch a fish. In the afternoon he went to the lake, put up both sails and let out his trawling line, all going well until his line caught something in the water and overboard his boat. He at once seized the side of his boat and called for help.

Mr. Howard Bennett, of Ashburnham, heard someone saying that a man was drowning. He ran with lightning speed to the shore, jumped into a boat and called to the drowning lad, life also whistled to him, and heard him call, "Help! Help! Help!" The canoe turned over and the young man sank, but soon rose again to the surface. Young Bennett, a stout, robust young fellow, strained every muscle and made strenuous headway towards the swimmer. The drowning man heard and saw his would-be rescuer coming, but his strength was fast giving out, and he sank again beneath the surface. Only to reappear once more and make one last desperate effort to keep his head above the water. Meanwhile Bennett was using the work of two men and very rapidly covering the space between them.

Hundreds of willing helpers were soon on the search for the body, which up to this time of writing, had not been recovered.

A terrible gloom is cast over the whole town by this sad event. Mr. Peter Hamilton, whose health is not good at present, has the deepest sympathy of everyone, in every walk of life, in this his saddest hour. First came the loss of his wife, whom he loved very dearly, and whose kindly companionship he missed so sorely. Only a few years ago his brother Robert was accidentally killed by falling down an elevator at Hamilton, and whose help and encouragement he so prized, and now his youngest son is taken from the home, leaving as it does distress on a cup that even now mania to the brain with sorrow.

The young man was about 17 years of age, and was a great favorite among the young people of the town. We extend to Mr. Hamilton and family our sincere sympathy.

THE BODY FOUND

The body of Innis Hamilton was found last night shortly before ten o'clock, by Mr. George Gauthier. The young man, in his fight for life, had got through the weeds into the clear water and within 100 feet of the shore, but being so exhausted, sank in about 15 feet of water.

A Sad Death to Avenge

The death occurred this morning of Lizzie McKee, wife of Mr. Robert McKee, formerly of Iowa. After an illness of several months duration, the remains will arrive Saturday at the 11.30 a.m. C.P.R. train. The funeral will take place from the residence of Mr. Bullen's father, 20 Sherbrooke street, at 10 o'clock Saturday afternoon, and proceed to the Little Lake cemetery for interment.

Barns Burned

During the electric storm on Tuesday last the barns of Mr. Thomas Graham were struck by lightning and burned to the ground. Mr. Graham, who lives on the boundary between Ashburnham and Oshana, and who had suffered the loss of his barn, had a large quantity of oats, hay, grain, agricultural implements, harness and rigs, and had the further misfortune to have only $600 insurance on his property. Had the wind not suddenly changed his dwelling would also, undoubtedly, have been destroyed.

CHURCH NOTES

At St. Andrew's Church to-morrow morning the pastor, Rev. J. G. Potter, will address the young people of the congregation on the topic, "Christ the true guide to every young life." Parents are particularly recommended to this service. In the evening Rev. Jonathan Bate of Murray Street Baptist Church will preach and Mr. E. M. Lloyd will sing. St. Andrew's choir began a special course in vocal training on Thursday night, which will be continued during the summer months. Any persons wishing to take advantage of this special work in vocal culture may attend at the opening of the hour on Thursday evenings in St. Andrew's. No charge is made for training.

Health Officer's Association. He also suggested that the Association hold its next meeting here if the Council and Health Board are agreeable. The Council decided to extend a hearty invitation to this Association to hold its next annual meeting in Peterborough.

From the Ontario Power Company, asking permission to erect poles on certain town streets.—Board of Works.

From the Town Engineer, recommending that the Ontario Power Company's request for permission to erect poles and wiring on certain streets be granted.—Board of Works.

From J. A. Ash, Aylmer street, asking that the sidewalk be moved outside the trees in front of his residence.—Board of Works.

From the Secretary of the Union of Canadian Municipalities, recommending that the third annual convention be held in Ottawa in September next.—Received.

From the Secretary-Treasurer of the Water Commissioners, enclosing the following resolution, passed by that body on June 16. That in consideration of the fact that the Water Commissioners are now doing the work formerly done by the Directors of the Water Company, and for which $700 per annum was paid, it is advisable that the Commissioners be paid $150 each per annum, out of the revenue of the waterworks department, and that the Council be asked to confirm this agreement, also that the Water Commissioners be authorized to pay the Town Solicitor $50 for extra services on account of the Waterworks Department.—Committee of the Whole.

From W. H. Moore, chairman of the Town Trust Commissioners, pointing out that the latter would require $412.50 for payment of the interest on Waterworks debentures, and if this is provided or agreed to be provided, the Commissioners will be prepared to take up at par all the four per cent. debentures which the Town is offering for sale, to be applied by them on sinking fund account.—The Town Treasurer was authorized to issue a cheque for the amount asked for by the Town Trust Commissioners.

From the police force, asking for summer holidays.—Committee on Appointments.

A petition for a granolithic sidewalk on Aylmer street, between Perry and Lake streets, was referred to the Board of Works.

PRESENTATION TO PASTOR

Rev. C. L. Thompson is presented with an address and a purse of gold.

On Thursday evening, at the residence of Mrs. W. Wadell, Ashburnham, an address and presentation were given to Rev. C. L. Thompson, who in a few weeks will be moving his connection with Ashburnham to go to Foxboro.

Mrs. Wadell presented Mr. Thompson with a purse of gold, while Mr. A. Powell read the following address:

Rev. C. L. Thompson, Mark street, Ashburnham.

Rev. and Dear Sir,—It is with feelings of deep regret to us that your term of minister in our congregation has expired. We know that in the midst of change we can expect nothing else. And yet a feeling of sorrow in the most natural of the circumstances where the tie is broken between pastor and people.

We have been helped in spiritual things by your ministry, and certainly in the temporary affairs of the church, we have been highly successful under your able and wise leadership.

the choir, Mrs. Thompson and your daughters will be greatly missed. In fact you and your family have become so endeared to us as a people that we will miss you very much in the work of the church, and also in the home life of the congregation, where, by wise counsel and tact, you have often helped us more than you know.

Deaths are more effective than words, and in proof thereof we ask you to accept our golden appreciation of your services by the acceptance of this bag of gold. We as a people will always be interested in your welfare, and you Godspeed in the Master's service.

Signed on behalf of the congregation.

A. A. FOWLER, W. CHROW, M. J. MCINTYRE, M. CARTON.

A short reply was made by Mr. Thompson, who expressed appreciation of the kindness shown him during his stay in Ashburnham.

laughing outright; and when he rejoined Madeline he repeated it to her, as though it were an excellent jest.

She, however, did not smile. On the contrary, a rather uneasy and anxious look crossed her face as she glanced at Marjorie.

Late in the evening Mr. Hyde asked for some music.

"You play, Marjorie," said Madeline, and the suggestion was so warmly seconded by all three gentlemen that Marjorie could not but comply.

"I wonder if you can play my favorite," said Mr. Hyde.

"What is it, sir?"

He rose, and placed a piece of music in front of her. It was Mendelssohn's "Hear My Prayer."

"You wish me to sing as well as play?"

"If you will."

Marjorie's skill as a musician was far beyond the average, and her voice was exquisite—so sweet, so rich, so pure.

As the beautiful strains ran through the room, everyone present was entranced.

Mr. Hyde seemed deeply moved.

Marjorie, turning round, saw him raise his handkerchief to his eyes.

"Miss St. Clair, your voice is divine!" exclaimed Edgar Hyde, with enthusiasm.

And both Charles and Madeline echoed the sentiment.

Mr. Hyde laid his hand in authority on the head of the young player as she sat at the piano.

"You have given me a great pleasure," he said, in a slightly faltering voice, but very earnestly. "God bless you, my dear."

CHAPTER IV

The Locket.

The next day passed pleasantly in company with the young men, who would spend, Madeline said, at least a week or two at Deneland.

There had been a hard frost for two or three days and the ice on the lake was quite strong enough to make trial of it.

Madeline and Marjorie, attended by the two young men, went to make trial of it.

Mr. Hyde, though declining to put on skates, stood on the bank and watched them for some time.

"You might invite a few of your young friends, and make a skating-party of it," he suggested to his daughter.

"Sir Edward Mortimer and his sisters would be glad to come, I think; and perhaps the O'Learys. What do you say?"

At the mention of Sir Edward Mortimer, the two young men exchanged glances, and seemed exceedingly amused.

Marjorie saw their amusement and wondered what caused it.

That, too, she was soon to understand.

"Skating by torchlight would be fine fun," said Charles Hyde. "How would St. Valentine's Day do for it, sir?"

His brother muttered a word of dissent under his breath.

He looked angry and disturbed. His uncle gazed at him intently for a moment or two then said in a slow, thoughtful tone—

"You don't like St. Valentine's Day, do you?"

"No, sir—do you?" demanded Edgar, turning suddenly upon him, and speaking with almost fierce abruptness, then he suddenly turned away, and skating quite to the other end of the pool.

Marjorie paid less attention to these little incidents than she might have done had not her mind been almost wholly engrossed by something else—something else being neither more nor less than the manner of Mr. Charles Hyde towards herself.

All day long he had scarcely left her side; when he did so, it was with reluctance, and he returned as soon as he could.

Marjorie's heart beat high as she noticed this, but with his acquaintance, short as it had been, her acquaintance to these little incidents than she might have done had not her mind been almost wholly engrossed by something else—something else being neither more nor less than the manner of Mr. Charles Hyde towards herself.

There was a frankness about him which was very winning, and this, coupled with his attractive face and high intellectual capacity, could scarcely fail to charm a girl so young, so inexperienced, and so impressionable as Marjorie.

The clear, observant eye of Mr. Hyde saw all this as he went forward.

He made an attempt to detach his stepson from the society of the lovely young stranger; nay, his countenance even lighted up with benevolent pleasure as he watched them.

It might have been one of the dearest desires of his heart to bring about an attachment between the two.

Madeline, on the contrary, seemed displeased by her cousin's attentions to her companion.

When she could keep him apart from her she did so, and seemed, moreover, to speak of her two cousins.

Of Edgar she said little. The bare mention of his name was enough to bring the flush to her cheek and the love-light to her eyes.

She loved him, and was not yet far enough with Marjorie to speak to her of her love.

So much Marjorie was quick to understand.

"Come and sit with me for a few minutes," she said.

And, as they sat beside the fire together, she began almost immediately to speak of her two cousins.

"Livable"

"I don't think I ever heard it before," said Mrs. Farren, decidedly. "Livable" is a nice girl dear through, and if anybody ought to get along easy with a tryin' mother-in-law, she ought. A more livable person I never knew."

"Livable" repeated her listener. "Livable? That must be a local word. I don't think I ever heard it before."

"It may be local," rejoined Mrs. Farren, a little loftily, "and it may be bad, and it may be good; but anyway it's just what I mean. Billy's livable. She's brought up in a big family, and she's used to be, if she want to be, comfortable herself and let other folks be comfortable, too. There were more livable folks when I was a girl than there are now, and I think the big families have got down to it, though of course not everything."

"There were plenty of people then who never got their corners worn down, no matter how many brothers and sisters they had; but even when they rasped, those days, they got along together after a fashion. Nowadays, hand! Sometimes it stumps me fair and square why the nice people I know in nice families can't seem to stand each other's little ways."

"Oh, I don't say it isn't so when the doctors say they can't—and it generally ends in doctors—why, I suppose they truly can't. It's nerves, and nobody understands nerves unless the doctors do."

"I'm a long way from being sure that they do. But just you count up some time the families where there's always one member mysteriously off visiting, and then the number of folks you know that separate themselves naturally away together, if only they could hit it off—one sister and only surviving bachelor brother, and mothers and only daughters, and all sorts of family remnants that ought to be each other's best comfort. But as they try living together, or has hysterical spells, or is ordered off quick to travel somewhere where the climate doesn't agree with the other one. They're fond enough of each other, generally, and they aren't generally ugly-tempered; they just aren't livable."

"It can't be endured, always, and it can't be cured, sometimes; but I'm firm in believing it could be prevented most times. If, when folks first began to harden in their own little crankums, and fret over the cracks of the folks they are most for, they'd stop and think where they were going for, why, nine times out of ten they'd pull up in time, and get their nerves and feelings and foolish frettings tight in hand before they run away with 'em."

"Yes, that's what I surely do believe. And outside the great, big, deep foundation virtues, if I had a daughter, the little virtue—if it is a little virtue—I'd rather have her have than any other would be just that—being livable. It's an all-round, lifelong blessing to whomsoever it comes."

"It may be good or it may be bad or it may be local," asserted the listener, thoughtfully, "but whatever it is as a word, livable is a good thing to be. I'll own that."

An "American" Duel.

A Heidelberg student has just recovered from the effects of his own foolishness, after lying for weeks at death's door. The story is so deplorable that it deserves to be made known. Last July some Heidelberg students—all mere lads—had a violent altercation about a girl. It ended in the manner with which the duel was to be more original than the ordinary run of German students' duels. It was to be a so-called "American duel," although it is an insult to American common sense to call it such. The duellists drew lots as to who should kill himself, and the lot fell upon a young idiot of nineteen, a student of medicine and son of a high government official at Karlsruhe. He had his choice of three modes of suicide, and selected cutting open his arteries. His fellow-students drew a picture of his "death-mask," placed a couple of skulls on the table by the side of it, solemnly said farewell to the doomed man, and left him in his room. The landlord, suspecting something was wrong, forced the door, and found the student lying in a pool of blood complacently. He had done his best to comply with the terms of the duel, but was not quite dead. While medical aid was being summoned the other students returned to see if the sentence had been carried out. In disgust at the result, one of them kicked the body of the almost lifeless youth, saying, "Why, the fellow's alive! He's only disguised himself!" And this is the much-vaunted German university life!

These Bill Boards!

Humor is hardly the quality one expects to find on the editorial page of the London "Times," yet it gives a most effective turn to a plea for the restriction of the advertising billboard nuisance. "Let this," says the "Times," "be the speaking of Gray's 'Elegy':"

The courier tells the knell of parting day;
The loving hand winds slowly o'er the hair,
The plover's homeward pious his weary way;
And leaves the world to darkness and to me, and consider whether such lines could ever have been written if the poet, musing in Stoke Pogis churchyard, had looked in one direction and seen the lowering billboards past somebody's advertisement of a packet of cake in another, and seen the weary plover considering whether he should buy some gaudily illustrated nostrum warranted to ease his weariness; he a third, and eyed some parish board offering him as oil to illuminate the glimmering landscape as it faded on his sight."

What a Jealous Wife Found.

A Payette woman suspected that her husband was in the habit of kissing the hired girl, and resolved to detect him in the act. Saturday night she saw him pass quietly into the kitchen. The hired girl was out, and the kitchen was dark. The jealous wife took a few matches in her hand, and, hastily placing a shawl over her head, as the hired girl often did when she had the time, she went into the kitchen and found the husband and the hired girl in an ardent manner. With heart almost bursting, the wife prepared to administer a terrible rebuke to the faithless spouse, and, tearing herself away from his fond embrace, she struck a match and stood face to face with the dead man. "Dearest," "Prize-Godfather!"

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay.

It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds; the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash? A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurons, the Baldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at from $1.00 per share down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

There are many persons who assert that there is nothing in it for the average investor and that it does not pay to invest small sums in stock. Let such persons ask themselves what returns they can hope to get through banks or real estate speculations, for sums of under $100.00, and then consider the following:

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1890 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Butte & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

Malloy, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

Nor does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. One mine only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours.

The Alaska Treadwell ore sells $2.38 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par.

No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management. Respectfully submitted,

THE TWO-TEN OIL CO.

of Boulder, Colorado.

Capital Stock, 1,500,000 shares. In Treasury, 500,000 shares

TRANSFER OFFICE: BRISTOL, CONN.

This Company has a perpetual lease on 20 acres of proven oil land in SECTION NINE (9) of the Boulder district, and this section and the adjacent section have been found to contain oil in paying quantities throughout the entire district.

Our Well No. 1 came in, in January and is now pumping and shipping Oil regularly to the Refinery.

The Directors have decided to put down well No. 2 at once, and they now offer a block of the Treasury stock for the next 30 days at

10 Cents per Share,

It is a well known fact that a 15 barrel well will pay over 100 per cent. profit upon its cost.

This is no longer a speculation for we have proved that oil is on our ground, and we now have oil in paying quantities, with two wells pumping we can soon pay dividends, and every well we put down increases our earning capacity.

This is a business proposition, managed by business men. For further information and subscriptions to stock, address,

IN MEMORIAM

Of William McCreary who died April 20th 1903.

Dear brother, thou hast left us, and the land we loved so well. But 'tis God that best behest to us, He calls all our sorrowing heart.

Peaceful be thy silent slumber, Peaceful be thy grave so low. Then no more wilt join our number, Then no more wilt join our row.

Now no more his smile shall greet us, And no more his voice shall greet us. For the Father's gently whispered, "Come to me, home home and rest."

Now our home is sad and lonely, For the one we loved so dear, And his chair is now in vacant, And his loved one is not here.

At evening he was taken, And to that heavenly shore, To the land where Jesus beckons, From this frail pain for evermore.

Yes, dear Jesus, Thou didst call him, To that bright and happy world, To be free from all his suffering, And be present with the Lord.

Yes, dear Willie, we will meet you, When the day of life is fled, There in Heaven with joy to greet you, Where no sorrowful tears are shed.

READ THIS: This Company owns one of the best and best situated gold mines in the world, in the Baker District, Baker Co., Oregon, and has for its neighbors such mines as the Bonanza, Red Key, Kevita, North Pole, I amble, Colorado and Glacier, which are producing from $20,000 to $500,000 each per month. This great property for which the undersigned is Fiscal Agent is more promising than many of the big producing mines at the same stage of development.

The Company has three full claims, with two large veins, one claims feet and the other twenty-two feet at the surface, showing good gold values and already free milling.

The Company owns the property outright, holds a free from all debt and encumbrances and in order to equip the minersville miners machinery and to continue development work, a limited number of shares will be sold for a short time only at 15 cents per share, as announced above.

Investors who wish to place orders in large or small amounts can do so better than in any other development. All particulars describing the mine, and its claims, payable to

To Canadian Investors

THE GREATEST MINING PROPOSITION EVER OFFERED.

I am pleased to state that I have completed arrangements with the Consolidated Nevada Mining Company for the sale of a block of their treasury stock in Canada. It is a proposition I can honestly recommend, and has unbounded possibilities. The tremendous possibilities of WEDEKIND and TONOPAH is becoming plain every day to the entire country. The spring rush into these NEVADA mining camps will equal or exceed that into Cripple Creek, Dawson or Nome. The strikes recently reported from Wedekind and Tonopah have created the greatest excitement and the rush will soon be on.

Everyone is waiting NEVADA mining stocks and prices are rapidly advancing. Now offer better opportunities for profits than do the shares of

The Consolidated Nevada Mining Company

Properties in the heart of the West. High grade ore and high grade veins in the RICHTEST VEIN IN THE DISTRICT very soon; then it's all off.

A GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

Is what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and the return is absolutely safe and certain, and yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

Thus the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer.

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, Colorado, offers a limited amount of its Treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Cripple Creek, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done. It is proposed to place as many of these mining properties upon a shipping and self supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of oil lands in Huerfano County, Colo. In order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $1.00 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with no individual liability. This issue of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Fortunes have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be made by investing at the right time. The profits on this stock can be secured at such a low price as this is now offered for. Now is the time to get in before an advance in the price is made.

The new railroad from Denver to Salt Lake, which is now building will be of incalculable benefit to the Company, furnishing transportation for ores and supplies, besides immediately increasing values.

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 30 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.

Vast ledges of ore running from $500 to $800,000 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $79.80 to $222.00 per ton. This is not a five per cent. a month scheme, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans.

No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLARS FOR DOLLARS for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your foresight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now waiting in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the stock at present price. It will soon be 50 per cent. higher.

I can offer the Stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO-DAY, as tomorrow it may slip your memory. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 25% per month.

Liquidation Ceasing—Short Selling Growing Less

New York, June 22.—The recent change in price and the dullness of the market would indicate that it would be temporarily a two-sided character in which the element of "buy and sell" trading will be a feature. Liquidation ceasing owing to the fact that selling for short account has practically terminated, owing to the unattractiveness of the short side at the present low price level and consequently investors will not be intimidated into selling.

Everything considered, the market has given a good account of itself, and restoration of confidence in the future because of national financial condition is now admitted to be of the best. The better outlook in the labor and anti-trust situation and the absorption of the standard stock issues by the ordinary investor, as well as by large insurance companies and other cautious corporations is certain to immediately stimulate values. Quotations may be of a saw-tooth character for a few days and purchases at present prices and on foot of a point of two or three percent and secure quick profits.

It is a good market to buy into. The fact that it becomes better as the selling impulse is on the wane.

Stock was most uninteresting during the day and it developed little more than varying, professional efforts to beat its possibilities in either direction.

It is now a week and a half to day of accumulation and one naturally looks for accumulations of deposits and of selling bills for disbursement on that day. The accumulation of sterling will probably take place early in the week, and may be completed by the close of it, as otherwise one would have to depend upon the more expensive form of remittance by cable.

What little news came up during the day was in the wake of an unfavorable character. This is a considerable establishing over railroad power rates throughout the Northwest but affecting principally coal haulage from the Mississippi and Missouri rivers.

Passenger business remains to very little activity, as compared with freight traffic and also as freight business is plentiful and rates maintained the railroads are going to suffer no matter what excessive coal a source of passenger agents show secure the traffic which is running.

W. F. DEVER & CO.

Copper Ranch Gold Mining and Milling Company.

No. 10036, incorporated under the laws of Colorado, 1901. Capital stock, $1,000,000 divided into 1,000,000 shares, $1.00 each. Five hundred and fifty thousand shares were placed in the treasury at organization and the stock held by the officers and directors was purchased by cash. The property of the company consists of 170 acres in Huerfano County, Colorado, including the best of the Colorado River.

The development work consists of about 218 feet of shaft and 100 feet of drift. Six men are at present employed. The character of the ore is gold and copper averaging in value $24.00 per ton.

This is the first year that active development work has been done upon the property, and thus far no dividends have been paid. Considerable ore has been blocked out, and the company is raising funds to enable them to erect a mill as soon as possible. It is expected that dividends will be paid sixty to ninety days after the mill is in operation. No salaries are paid to any of the officers except the manager, who is at present drawing $75.00 per month.

The company have no debts, and have $1,000 cash on hand. They value their plant at $5,000 and their buildings and real estate at $6,000. At the present time they have stock valued at $45,000 still remaining in the treasury.

The company have filled out my report blank in detail, and have given me a comprehensive statement. Mr. Rogers who is the general manager, is well recommended as a thorough and practical mining man and the officers and directors are of proven ability and high character and standing. It is my opinion that the company is entitled to the consideration of investors. It seems to be organized along good lines, and there is little likelihood of any serious mishap. The officers are William E. Alexander, president; Seth Ketchum, vice-president; Thomas Fielding, secretary; William Rogers, treasurer and general manager.

ORE BEARING SCHISTS FROM 75 TO 100 FEET WIDE

The out crop of the extension of the deposit has just been cut on the opposite side of the mountain from which the work was commenced, proving that the ore body extends through the hill.

M. M. V. GRANDIN, engineer in charge of the development work, reports the discovery of an immense body of gold, silver, and copper bearing ore from seventy-five to one hundred feet wide on the property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, at Cheticamp, Cape Breton. This is probably the first known instance in Eastern Canada of the unearthing of a large deposit of metaliferous ore such as made the mining industry of British Columbia, the Western States and Mexico of great magnitude. The discovery in Cape Breton tends to confirm the opinion of mining experts that Cheticamp is one of the most important mining districts in Nova Scotia. The Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, owns some of the finest sections of this district and has about completed the proving of a body of ore estimated to contain 100,000 tons, worth from $10 to $15 per ton. The main lode is down 130 feet all in one and the tunnel from which the mine will be worked has been commenced from the opposite side of the hill. The Company expect to commence the installation of plant for treatment in three months' time. Surface buildings, etc., have all been erected.

Thousands of tons of Ore already in sight.

Every day adds to the proved value of the mine

THERE is no safer form of mining investment than gold-copper deposits, as they occur in immense veins and carry regular values. Many of the private fortunes of the United States owe their origin to a lucky investment in a gold-copper proposition. The property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, is undoubtedly one of the most valuable in the country. Besides its extensive mining claims the mining company controls timber for mining and building purposes and will also have natural water-power.

The extension of the Mackenzie & Mann Railway from Broad Cove to Cheticamp this year will give the great mining enterprise rail as well as water communication with all points.

THE SOMALILAND SITUATION IS CONSIDERED GRAVE, MULLAH THE AGGRESSOR

For Chamberlains Cause, Liberals Endorse a Resolution Condemning Chamberlain's Policy

Government Accused of Using False Suggestions Regarding Germany and Canada

Liberals Deny That Canada Has Really Had Any Grievance with Germany

London, June 23.—The parties are grinding on their armor for their fight for and against Chamberlainism. Many members of Parliament, as well as many leaders of the iron and steel, engineering and electrical trades, have owned a fund and are appealing for contributions to Mr. Chamberlain's presidential campaign. These manufacturers include Sir Alfred Hickman, M. P., ex-president of the British Iron Trade Association; Gust. Kren, and Nettelfeld, the British Westinghouse Electric Manufacturing Company, and Messrs. & Sons. The fund which they are raising is to be supplementary to that of the Central Conservative office, and is to be used to carry out a vigorous campaign throughout the country. It is also significant to note that 150 Unionist members sympathetic with Mr. Chamberlain, will meet to-morrow under the chairmanship of Sir Herbert Maxwell, M.P., to originate a FREE TRADERS ALSO ACTIVE.

The Chamber Club is asking subscriptions for literature and lectures throughout the three Kingdoms. The committee of the National Liberal Federation, representing official Liberalism, is to meet on July 1st to endorse a resolution condemning Chamberlain's policy and calling upon all to "resist the taxation of food and a tariff war with the colonies, thus threatening the stability of the Empire."

These resolutions will be moved by Hon. H. H. Asquith, ex-home secretary, who is rapidly becoming the real leader of the Liberal party.

THE GERMAN ISSUE AGAIN.
Liberal journals are accusing the Government of using false suggestions regarding the relations of Canada and Germany. They deny that Canada has really had a grievance, and assert that for three years no representation had been made by Germany regarding the difference against her by Canada. The matter was never brought up at the absence of urgency or a strong Canadian grievance.

THE STANDARD.
The standard, the Government organ, still hesitates to admit predilection to favoring Mr. Chamberlain, but warns against premature decision. It says: "Cautious critics will postpone enthusiasm for Mr. Chamberlain's plan until we know what it is." It especially urges Mr. Chamberlain to keep his taxation proposals independent from old age pensions, with which they are not connected. "If it is right to modify our tariff, we ought to do so without offering a huge bonus to the working classes in order to gain their assent to the change."

London, June 23.—Imperial reciprocity still claims the chief place in British journals. Today's Berlin telegrams to the Times show the anxiety of the German Government to convince Englishmen that there is no real rivalry between Germany and Canada. A semi-official statement in the Cologne Gazette declares that the talk about the promise

The Slaughter of the Jews

The slaughter of the Jews has its reverberation throughout the world. The Russian press, indeed, has now become so much interested as to propose a remedy for our disability. Some of the foremost journals advise the Government to publish a book telling us how well Russia and the United States gave out on, diplomatically, ever since our existence began. The American press would review this book, the argument goes, and public opinion would be softened. Many Russian papers—the one which began this movement being among them—are full of information and culture, but their native up-on this particular point is infantile. What have Russia's diplomatic decisions, on the chess-board of world-politics, to do with this question, even if some of these decisions have been fortunate for us? Another childlike device is to speak only of the Jewish slaughter, in accounting for American opinion, and to omit all mention of the Finns. Now, the slaughter of the Jews has analogies in this country which take us open to a powerful to quiver. We have our race prejudices and our violent expressions of them. The treatment of the Finns goes against convictions which are not mere virtuous indignation and gaily sympathy, but solid, lasting instincts, on which we act. Russia officially removes the most intelligent men she has, for mere independence of thought. No wonder Russia keeps quiet on that subject when she is trying to work up an intense, and throwing aspersions on our relations with England, which, as a matter of fact, rests on ideals and principles of thought held in common. One of the most interesting currents of opinion brought out by the Kishineff massacres is Jewish. Higher Jewish thought takes almost unanimously the position that Christianity has not yet approached very near to giving us a doctrine of practical efficiency in this world. It has done much, the Jewish thinkers admit, but the reign of its saints on earth hardly seems as yet assured.

A STRANGE TRIBE

A Search Being Made for the New Tribe of Labrador Indians

New York, June 23.—Leonidas Hubbard Jr., has left New York for northern Labrador with an exploring party to search for the tribe of Labrador Indians, who have been seen by only one white man, is now dead, and whose notes are in the possession of Mr. Hubbard. Mr. Hubbard is accompanied by Mrs. Hubbard, Dillon Wallace, a lawyer, and had-brain Three Indian, named George, who has been in this country for the last two years, and who, after the arrival of the party in Labrador, will serve as the guide. The expedition of the expedition will be borne by Captain Whitney, who, in the event of failure to hear from the explorers by next November, will send out a relief expedition.

The party will go by steamer and sailing vessel to the most northerly trading post in Labrador, 100 miles north of Hamilton, and will then strike overland. The Nascoyup live remote from all other northern tribes, and are said to possess an extraordinary degree of intelligence and to be distinguished by many strange customs.

Jeking, China, June 23.—Not until Saturday last was the coffin of Li Hung Chang, who died a year ago last November, placed in its last resting place in the tomb erected to his memory, near the temple of his native village in Fukien Province. The casket lay long upon the ground, covered with a mantle of purple silk, on which were embroidered in letters of gold "The universe is in mourning."

Astronomers made careful calculations in order to find a propitious date for the interment "laying away" of great Chinese statesman, but such a date was not found until recently. On the door of the tomb is inscribed: "He shook heaven, and upset the earth." In front of it arises a huge altar, covered with candelabra, vases and golden censers.

QUEST OF GOLD IN GREAT SOUTH SEAS

Romantic Search for an Immense Sum of Hidden Gold

FIFTY MILLION DOLLARS

Capt. Brown Tells of How He Started to Look for a Treasure Valued at $10,000,000

Sydney, June 23.—A case which has just been brought before the courts here has led to some remarkable and romantic disclosures concerning a search for hidden treasure in the South Seas.

A few weeks ago the schooner "Hermes" arrived at Port Jackson with an expedition organized by a San Francisco syndicate, to look for a vast amount of treasure alleged to be hidden in the South Seas.

The exact location of this island is known only to Captain James Brown, who is in charge of the schooner. No word had been received from the expedition since its departure. To this action the other members of the expedition objected, and finally they applied for, and have now obtained an injunction restraining Captain Brown from disposing of the schooner. The story of how the expedition came to be started was related by Captain Brown to an interviewer.

"In 1833," he said, "there was trouble between the Spaniards and the Americans, and as it was feared the Spanish gunboats would bombard the city of Callao the authorities transferred the whole of the national funds to an American schooner called the Black Hawk, under Captain Smith, which sailed from Callao, Peru."

"The treasure was said to be worth $10,000,000. It consisted of a great quantity of jewelry, church services, plate, and barrels of silver dollars. Captain Smith sailed from Callao with this valuable freight, and went to Cook Island, where he was then little known. He took the treasure ashore, buried it in the ground and left a secret sign to mark the spot."

Which, many and murder followed. Captain Smith and another man were the only persons to return to the mainland. The captain went home to Spain and related his experiences to his son.

"In the latter part of 1840, succeeded Captain Brown. 'I was made of a New York ship, lying at Kingston, Jamaica, which in those days was a great rendezvous for pirates. There I met the acquaintance of Captain Smith's son, who was made of a fine schooner, which he was fitting out ostensibly for pearl-fishing."

"In reality he was going for the Ochoo treasure. I had no difficulty in inducing him to take me as mate, and in due course we arrived at Cook Island. We had no difficulty in finding the treasure, which we quickly transferred to the schooner. Then we set sail for a certain cove where the Tahitian group, encamped a cove there, and concealed the treasure with some more we had added to it."

"Directly after this the schooner was mysteriously burnt with the captain and crew on board; but I managed to escape and returned to Australia in a small yacht with $1,000,000 of the treasure."

"So as not to attract attention, I first went to the West Indies and eventually I had made my money there. Then I bought a cattle and sheep ranch at Mount Gambier, and later went on to England. After that I returned to America, and from that time until taking charge of this expedition was in business as a shipbroker in Providence City, Rhode Island."

"I am quite ready," said Captain Brown in conclusion, "to start for the island where the legal treasure is concealed."

DEATH OF MR. JOHN SMITH

Another Old and Respected Citizen Passes Away

It is with deep regret that we announce the death of Mr. John Smith, who occurred at his late residence on Monday afternoon.

The deceased gentleman has been all his life a resident of this city, and although somewhat advanced in years, he was still a very active and energetic man.

His family consists of the following members: Thomas, Michael, Henry, John, Nellie, Mrs. Moffat, and Mary, who have the profound sympathy of the entire community, including very many warm and intimate friends.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, corner of Park and Charlotte streets, this morning at nine o'clock to St. Peter's cathedral, and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery for burial.

A NEW FLAG

An Unexpected Revenue Augments the Fund

The friends of the 6th Regiment will be pleased to know that the treasurer of the "Colours Fund," Mr. T. A. Hay, has received $200 from the Warden of John's church, being the proceeds of the military service held in that church on May 31st.

The public contributions to the "Fund" are: Queen Victoria's Jubilee Day, 1897, $12.25; the Royal Choral Society, 1898, $21.25; the concert and military service in St. John's church, for the year 1902, being added together with interest brings the grand total up to $39.00.

The present colours have been in use for over 25 years, and are so faded and worn as to practically deter their further use.

It is to be hoped that the public will take a more active interest in this matter, and that the Regiment will, in the near future, be presented with new colours.

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT

An Old and Respected Citizen Injured by a Cow

The many friends of Mr. John Habb, so well known, and so highly esteemed, will regret to learn that, by accident, his leg was broken near the hip joint. It appears that he was taking his cow to pasture and had a beautiful gown of white, when a cow became entangled around his feet, and threw the old gentleman heavily on the ground, causing a serious and painful fracture. He lay in the field for some time before assistance arrived. He was immediately taken to the hospital, where his injuries were attended, where he has since rested as well as could be expected.

The injured man was a resident of 17 Babine lane, and has lived nearly half a century in Peterborough, and has always taken a deep interest in public affairs. The Times joins with his numerous friends in wishing him a complete and speedy recovery.

TWO CATHEDRAL WEDDINGS

Two Young Couples Married Yesterday

St. Peter's cathedral was the scene of two very pretty weddings yesterday morning. At eight o'clock Miss Matilda Mossbauer, daughter of Mr. Jos. Sawyer, was united in marriage to Mr. Archibald A. Braut, of Toronto. The nuptial knot was tied by the Rev. Father McCall. The bride-maid was Miss Mildred Braut, sister of the groom, while Mr. Fortunate Sawyer, brother of the bride, was best man. The bride looked charming in a dress of white, with hat to match. The happy couple were the recipients of the congratulations of their many friends, in which the Times cordially joins.

The marriage of Miss Annie L. Quinn, of Peterborough, and Mr. James J. Hickey, of Iowa, was solemnized in St. Peter's cathedral yesterday morning by Rev. Mr. O'Brien, in the presence of a number of intimate friends of the contracting parties. The bride, who was dressed in a beautiful gown of white, was accompanied by her sister, Miss Lizzie Quinn, while Mr. Frederick McFadden performed the duties of groomsmen. The Times is pleased to add its congratulations, and join with many friends in wishing the happy couple peace, pleasure, prosperity, and plenty, during long untroubled lives.

We are glad to say that Mr. and Mrs. Hickey are to take up residence in town on Elm street.

EXPLORING CANADA

James Barr Tells of His Trip to Canadian North West

Montreal, June 24.—James Barr, of London, England, brother of Robert Barr, the novelist, was in town today. Mr. Barr's visit here was purely one of pleasure, as he had just returned from an interesting trip through Northern Ontario travelling some three hundred miles by canoe.

To a Star reporter Mr. Barr gave a few details about his trip. In company with three companions, all from England, and with two Indians as guides they travelled all through the lakes and rivers of the North American continent as far north as Lake Abitibi. This was beyond the pale of civilization, and the travelers had according to their accounts, a splendid season of fishing and other sports. Mr. Barr said they tried to get through to James Bay, but the Hudson Bay Company said that the whole country from Lake Abitibi for three hundred miles north was nothing but one huge swamp, and that the trip further was a bad one.

The return to Manitoba was made by the White Fish River. It was found that the river system could be used in a mountainous region, and they were obliged to finish the remainder of the trip to Manitoba on land. Speaking of the country he passed through, Mr. Barr said he did not think it would ever make much of a settler's country. It would take years and years, he said to clear the land. It is the intention of Mr. Barr and his friends to go to Roberval-sur-Mer, and take another canoe trip up the Lake St. John District region. An endeavor will be made to get through to St. James Bay by the lakes and rivers that are known to exist in these parts.

Advocates Irish Rebellion, Chicago Man's Address at a Meeting in Kildare

London, June 23.—The Times, in an editorial to-day, says that the past result of the recent British operations against the Mad Mullah in Somaliland appears to be that the Mullah has now established himself in British territory. Mr. Hordick's last speech regarding the operations was more confident than was justified by the facts. "The fact that an undisturbed withdrawal is about the best we can hope for, and that the Mullah has marched, with all his army, into our territory, are proof enough of the gravity of the situation."

ADVOCATES IRISH REBELLION.
Dublin, June 23.—At a meeting of the Irish physical force party, held at Hornstown, Kildare, J. Keating, representing the Ancient Order of Hibernians, of Chicago, advocated Ireland's emancipation by armed rebellion.

He urged the Irish Parliamentary party and the United Irish League, and, referring to the comparative failure of the Mullah in Somaliland, said that the United States, and that the Mullah had only pennies for bread, but millions for lead.

THE BALKAN SITUATION.
Vienna, June 23.—The Balkan situation has not undergone any improvement since European attention was attracted by Serbia. The activity of the Macedonian bands continues unabated, and the outlook in the Vilayet of Adrianople have not grown any better.

The Albanian guard, but the dimensions of the Albanian occurrences, which unquestionably happened in the Vilayet, are at present a matter of conjecture.

KAMMER'S HAMBURG SPEECH.
London, June 23.—A special to The Times from Berlin says the newspapers, and especially The Post and the Neue Nachrichten, criticize the Kaiser's Hamburg speech on the ground that he attributes too much to his grandfather, and not enough to Bismarck. Still, the vast majority of educated Germans deeply venerate the memory of William the First as a national hero, and are well aware what the nation owes to the first Emperor.

THEY PROCLAIM THE HERITS

To the World of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills.

Mr.—That the world may know of the merits of Dr. Clarke's wonderful Little Red Pills, I ask the newspapers to publish the following: I was, for years, a martyr to stomach trouble, and had no hope whatever of being cured; but on seeing a testimonial from a friend in Ontario, in one of the Toronto papers, I resolved to write to him, and found that he had actually cured me, and had no more splitting headaches now, no burning pain in my stomach; in fact, have a new lease of life.

MRS. JAMES HUNTER, MIAMI, MA.

—I was troubled with rheumatism for 20 years, and could get absolutely no relief from the doctors. I saw Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills, and I bought a box. I took them, and I am now a healthy man. I have no splitting headaches now, no burning pain in my stomach; in fact, have a new lease of life.

REMARKABLE CURE.
Mr.—We have the following proposal to readers of The Times. To any one who is a sufferer from rheumatism (no matter how long standing), or any blood ailment, accompanied by, and will give Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills a fair trial, and are not fully cured, we will refund the money paid for the pills. If no good results follow, we will forfeit the cash. We have yet to know of a single case where this wonderful medicine has not been almost entirely successful in its work of relieving suffering humanity.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, blood, nervous, coughs, hoarseness, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the disease has been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases yield, for sale by Graham & Walsh, Peterborough, Price 25c. per box, or 5 boxes for $1.25.

POSTUM COFFEE

AN HONEST DOCTOR

SPEAKS OF COFFEE DRINKING.

ABOUT coffee drinking, a prominent Chicago physician says: "I have the best of reasons for naming coffee as among the most dangerous of slow poisons. My own personal experience outside of the general experience gained by my practice has taught me the truth."

"At about 16 I became a member of a young people's society whose pledge barred the use of all intoxicants, tobacco, tea and coffee until the age of 21. I kept my pledge and early temperate habits were formed. Up to about my 30th year I was an athlete; no one had better health or spirits."

"A short time after passing thirty I began the use of coffee at breakfast with an occasional cup at evening parties. The first symptoms of ill health I remember came soon and later sore mouth and stomach trouble followed. Finally well marked dyspepsia supervened. My bowels sympathized, of course, also my nervous system became impaired. Dizziness attacked me and tremulous hands rendered writing exceedingly difficult. My diet had to be restricted. Experienced medical advisers forbade all fruits."

"Several attacks of gastritis troubled me and bowel complaint became quite frequent."

"I am now past 60 years of age. About 18 months ago I saw a shrewdly written statement of Postum Cereal Coffee. I gave it careful reading and thought, and as an experiment substituted Postum for Java and Mocha. For the first three days of the change I felt keenly the loss of the stimulant, after that the nutrient quality of the Postum more than compensated the deprivation, and an astonishing change came in recurring hunger three times daily; I could scarcely wait for meals, a sensation I had not had for more than thirty years."

"Now my health is excellent. I eat fruits of all kinds and foods as my appetite demands. I am regaining my nervous tone and my strength is increasing daily. Except my change from coffee to Postum I have made no change in my mode of living."

"Do you wonder that I name coffee as the most dangerous of slow poisons?"

"I believe there are thousands suffering as I suffered." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

The Oro Rico Mining Syndicate

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 30 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.

Test ledges of ore running from $1.00 to $800.00 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $79.00 to $250.00 per ton. This is not a five per cent. a month scheme, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans.

No business in the world is made as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the dictation of your foresight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock sold at par. The new Mining Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the stock at present price. It will soon be 50 per cent. higher.

I can offer the stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO-DAY—to-morrow it may slip your memory. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 25% per month.

Naming The Baby.

Mr. Johnson looked upon from a letter thoughtful, reminiscent smile. "Well," he said to his sister, who was fidgeting about the room, waiting for his news, "judging by Ella's letter, they've had just about such a time naming that baby as people generally have with their first. You might as well sit while I tell you about it." Mr. Johnson sat down with an air of protest, but with great alacrity.

"Ella writes that she had some thoughts of calling the baby Laura, after mother," said Mr. Johnson, with his finger at the first sentence of the letter, but before she had a chance to mention it, Frank said he wanted the baby named for her. Then—well, I might as well read it out to you. Here's what she says:

"Of course I was pleased to have Frank want her named for me, but right away we began to have letters from the relatives. Aunt Myra said if the baby had her name, she should have all the family silver and something in the bank for a nest-egg. Frank's mother wrote that if we felt like naming the baby for Frank's grandmother, Hannah, she should be real grateful, and there was a set of pearls and a gold necklace that would fall to our baby."

"While we were debating the matter, each of Frank's three sisters wrote me proposing a fancy name—Beatrice and Leonora and Francesca. We said them all over with Bennett and couldn't tell which sounded best."

"Then came a letter from Cousin Mary saying that she'd been looking up things in the genealogical rooms and here was our chance to do honor to our only distinguished ancestor, Betsy and she trusted we would see the propriety of giving baby that revered name."

"And yesterday I heard from Mattie Knowles and she said of course there would be no hesitation in my mind about a name. As soon as she heard of the dear baby she said to herself 'Now Ella can pay her loving tribute to the memory of her childhood's friend and companion, sweet little Julia Anne.'"

"So you can imagine, father, how much discussion has come from all these letters, and how thankful I was when at last the matter was settled."

"Well, how was it settled, I'd like to know?" demanded Miss Johnson, impatiently; but her brother shook his head. "She doesn't say," he replied, at which Miss Johnson reached out her hand.

"Give me that letter!" she cried, but her brother stayed her grasping fingers. "Hold on!" he said. "Here's a crimson cover on the first page that I'd over looked!"

Once more he adjusted his spectacles, and read the last words: "Frank says perhaps you wouldn't understand, but I said you would, that of course we've named the baby Laura, just as I'd always intended."

"How would you define 'archaic' as distinguished from 'work'?" asked the teacher.

"Explain," answered Johnny, "is work you like to do, and work is creative you don't like to do."—Chicago Tribune.

A Moonlight Pastel.

The moonlight fell full upon the green.

greenward was soft, however, and the moonlight sustained no serious injuries. Two figures might have been seen sitting in a secluded book. They were conversing in a painfully evident manner. The voice of the youth rose and fell to the music of the sea, and finally staggered to its feet and remarked:

"Wine, damn it, I am in love. I have arrived at this conclusion not hastily, but after careful introspection and experimentation. Since first I met you I have been troubled, my most alarming symptom being an aching void. To-night the throbbing of that void has been so strong that I have been able to locate it in my heart."

The voice of the youth choked with mingled emotion and tobacco, both of which he had been swallowing right along. Spreading a handkerchief upon the ground, he fell upon his knees, averting in his impetuosity the last bond of connection between his suspenders and his sky-blue trousers.

"Oh, fairest of maidens!" he pleaded, "enter now into that emptiness and fill it with thy light and lavender perfume."

The fairest of maidens smiled sadly and abruptly. Her face wore that far-away expression so characteristic of Fife's Peak. Her mind was wandering down the dim corridors of memory and had far to go. Her silence had the delicate odor of pearly gum. The youth pressed her for an answer until his arm ached with the exertion.

Finally, after consulting her notebook, she made reply:

"At present I am heart-free. However, Jimmy Brown is scheduled for two weeks from next Monday; until then I am thine."

As the fateful words fell from her lips the youth caught them before they hit the ground and pressed them to his bosom. The maid leaned over and planted a kiss on his youthful brow, coyly removing her teeth as she did so.

After regulating their hearts so as to run seek and meet, and combining their thoughts into one idea, they wandered out into the cold, unfeeling world, and naught could be heard in the palmy atmosphere save the strident basso of the dyspeptic toy alligator.

"Judge."

The Englishman Impaled.

War between the Scotch and the English is on once more. This time swords and long bows are not the implements of vengeance, but the pen of authors. Not long ago the publication of "The Unspeakable Book" aroused much resentment among the dwellers in Caledonia by its unjust criticism of the Scotch people. A counter-thrust has now appeared from the pen of Angus McNeill, entitled "The Egregious English."

This is made up of scathing irony, sarcasm, criticism, and hypercriticism, directed against the English people and some of their customs and institutions. In brief, Mr. McNeill says England is decadent. Her sense of business is "Wille boys"; her journalists are tied to acres of string; her employed men are curried slavers; her women are as heavily as caused by Her Blood & Cheeks, Bloodless Lips and Dull Eyes

Paragon also is a medicine. Suddenly she seems to lose strength, like a young lady because her vitality is steadily decreasing. Dark circles appear under her eyes, which become livid and dull. Her appetite drops, for no girl can be contented and happy in such condition. This may be quickly corrected by taking Paragon. It supplies what is lacking in the blood and restores the system to its normal condition. It creates a natural healthy color for the face. Every organ of the body is benefited by Paragon. It rebuilds the entire system, makes new tissue, strengthens weak flabby muscles, makes the people fat and sleek people well.

No name of Anaemia is to be feared. It may take time, but if persistently used will cure in the end. It will give you a well-developed form, clear complexion, pure blood and will restore the bloom to faded cheeks and color to the lips more quickly than any other remedy. Every woman who desires a vigorous constitution, and the good looks that come with good health, should take Paragon after each meal regularly. It is a wonderful tonic for the brain, the nerves and the blood, and acts also as an efficient but harmless regulator of the menstrual flow. In fact, for all diseases peculiar to women and growing girls, Paragon is the only equal as your drug-gist can tell you.

Curious Case of News

Professor Curie of Paris, who, aided by his wife, discovered and extracted from pitch-blende the strange substance called radium, recently remarked that he would not venture into a room containing one kilogram of radium because it would probably destroy his eyesight, burn off his skin, and even kill him. Radium gives off more abundantly than any other known substance the mysterious emanations named Becquerel rays, which are supposed to consist of almost infinitely minute particles. They are driven off with a velocity as high as 100,000 miles per second, and cause serious inflammations upon the hands of persons working with the substance. They also give rise to luminous effects.

In consequence of the construction of the great Annapolis dam on the Nile, 600 miles above Cairo, the famous temples on the island of Philae are partially submerged when the reservoir is full of water. But the civilized world would not willingly see these magnificent relics of antiquity destroyed, and accordingly an elaborate system of underpinning the buildings was adopted. Some of the colonnades and temples were found to be resting on fractured stone beams, broken by subsidence of the soil. Heavy steel girders, enclosed with rubble masonry and mortar, which protect them from corrosion, were placed under the broken foundations, and the masonry was carried down to bed rock beneath.

The work was done in the face of considerable danger, but without accident. The project of climbing the loftiest mountain on the earth, Mount Everest, in the Himalayas, whose tremendous head rises, according to trigonometrical measurements, 29,002 feet above sea-level, has now reached a stage immediately antecedent to the actual attempt. A party, led by Mr. Eckenstein, an experienced climber, has set out for the foot of the great peak. Several celebrated mountain-climbers have expressed the opinion that the feat is feasible, but only by the method of gradual ascent, whereby the adventurers may become insured to the effects of a rare atmosphere.

Months, and even years, may be spent in ascending to higher and higher levels, a long pause being made after every considerable advance. The highest ascent now on record is that of Aconcagua, in the Andes, the elevation of which is 22,000 feet, 5,922 feet, or more than a mile, less than the height of Everest. Recent press dispatches announce the discovery by a professor in Prague of a lamp lighted by means of bacteria. Of this report "The Lancet" (London) remarks: "We suppose that the discovery amounts to an improved method of feeding photographic bacteria, the existence of which has been known for some years. The experiment is quite simple and easily succeeds. All that is necessary is to place the fresh fish heads or herring in a two or three per cent. solution of common salt, keeping the mixture at a temperature of about 7 degrees C. above freezing point. After a few days it will be found that not merely the fish but also the whole of the mud in which it is placed glows off a pale greenish light, which becomes more and more brilliant as little sugar is added. Doubtless by paying attention to the needs of these specific bacteria by supplying, for example, highly stimulating food—more intense light than was hitherto the case has been obtained. It is even suggested that the bacteria light might afford a safety-lamp for the miner."

Probably few persons who go up or down Broadway or any other important thoroughfare of New York city have ever stopped to ask why the hands on the faces of nearly all the big wooden clocks that swing as signs over jewelry stores indicate that it is eighteen minutes past eight o'clock. Three clock hands indicate, according to the New York "Tribune," the exact time in the evening when Lincoln, accompanied by his wife, left the White House on April 14, 1865, to go to Ford's Theater, Washington, where John Wilkes Booth, the actor, shot him. The man who first originated this wooden clock sign idea had a workshop in a downtown street in 1865, and shortly after the assassination he conceived the idea of painting the hands on all his signs to point out this special time. His successors in the business continued the practice, as did other men. There is probably not a great street in New York city to-day that has not one or more of these reminders.

Spelled the Scene.

Romero De Renteria was crossing a bridge when his attention was attracted by the shrieking of someone in the murky depths below him. It being quite dark, he could not see the person who was evidently in danger; but, guided by the calls for help, he rushed to the side of the bridge, poised for a moment on the railing, and leaped into the river, shouting: "Keep up your courage, girl! I will save you!"

Once in the water, he swam with steady strokes to her side and seized her in his strong clasp. There was but little current, and he called: "Tell the stage-hands to shake her up a little! This scene will go bad from the front!" But the water remained calm, and he slowly dragged the dripping form of the young woman to land. With strenuous efforts he lifted her to the shore and clasped her in his arms.

"What calcium man is rotten!" he growled. "I should have said 'The spot light from the time I jumped.'"

Even when the people who had witnessed his feat rushed up to congratulate him on his bravery he would listen to them, but strode off, muttering: "And they didn't have anyone back of the set to throw up a bucket of water to make a good splash. Miserable stage-management! What is the drummer doing to, anyhow?"—Judge.

One day a woman was in a garden. The last lesson we learn is to pardon ourselves.

"The countess has learned his lesson," said the countess.

"Yes, he has learned his lesson," said the countess.

Some Letters of Recommendation.

The bearer of this has been my husband now for several years, and is only leaving me because we both feel the need of a change. He is willing and obliging, a first-rate man about the house, runs errands and carries bundles cheerfully, never ticks about expenses, and is useful to one night out a week. I can cordially recommend him to anyone looking for a good, durable article.

Mrs. A. Tongue.

The young lady who bears this I have loved passionately for some time, and she is leaving me now only because I cannot afford to have her any longer. She is easily loved and responds readily to caresses. She is very fond of flowers and candy, and expects regular supplies. She likes to go to the theater and eat anything on the bill of fare. Anyone who wishes to be passionately loved and broke at the same time will find her up to all his requirements.

THEY PROCLAIM THE MERITS

To the World of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills.

To the Editor of The Times—

Mr.—That the world may know of the merits of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills, I ask the newspapers to publish the following: I was, for years, a martyr to stomach trouble, and had on hope, whatever of being cured; but on seeing a testimonial from a friend in Ontario, in one of the Toronto papers, I resolved to write to her and found that she had actually been cured of the same trouble by Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. I at once bought three boxes and took them according to directions, and they almost cured me. I purchased three more boxes, and am thankful to say that I am entirely cured. I have no splitting headaches now, no burning pain in my stomach; in fact, have a new lease of life.

MRS. JAMES HUNTER, Misses, Man.

Removable Offer.

Mr.—We make the following proposal to readers of The Times. To any one who is a sufferer of rheumatism, neuralgia, paralytic, coughs, heart trouble, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the blood is poisoned, we will send Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills as a trial, and are not fully and completely cured, we will refund the money paid for the pills. If no good results follow, we will forfeit $10 each.

We have yet to hear of a single case where this wonderful medicine has not been almost entirely successful in the work of restoring suffering humanity.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, neuralgia, paralytic, coughs, heart trouble, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the blood is poisoned. The most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walton, Peterborough. Price 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.50.

Don Jose Laborde took $20,000,000 out of one mine in less than ten years.

Don Jose Laborde will yield many more millions in the same length of time.

Copper, Gold and Silver exist in Don Jose's mines in quantities equally as rich as those of the famous Laborde mine. Laborde did not save the copper. We will save it all.

SAFETY AND PROFIT. By investing in the stock of the DON JOSE MINES COMPANY at the present stage of development, the SAFETY of your capital is absolutely assured, and your PROFITS begin the instant you become a stockholder.

Buy into a mine that is already a producer and where the stock is yet within the reach of your means. A few months hence this stock will be 100 or 200 per cent. higher.

AN OPPORTUNITY like this seldom comes before the public—the "lucky" generally reserve it for themselves, but the Don Jose mine business is a Cooperative Company and no matter how valuable their stock may become, the voice of the smallest stockholder will always be respected on a par with the largest.

READ THIS!

This Company offers one of the safest and best invest-merits, as its property is located in the famous Hampton District, Baker Co., Oregon, and has for its neighbors such mines as the Bonanza, Bull Boy, Earls, March Peak, Llamble, Columbia and Crocker Oregon, which are producing from $50,000 to $200,000 each per month. This great property for which the subscription Fiscal Agent is more promising than many of the big producing mines of the same stage of development.

This Company has three full claims, with two large veins, one sixteen feet and the other twelve-two feet at the surface, showing good gold values and strictly free milling.

The Company must be paid for its rights, being free from all debt and encumbrances and in order to equip the mine with modern machinery and to conduct development work, a limited number of shares will be sold for a short time only at its par value per share, as announced above.

Investors who wish to place money in large or small amounts can do so better than investigate this proposition. All information cheerfully furnished, and all cheques payable to

The corner stone of the new Campanile will be laid April 22, 1903, and the Venetian authorities are projecting much ceremony for the occasion. At present the courtyard of the Doge's palace is entirely occupied by fragments of statues and bas-reliefs saved from the ruins. Some of them will be employed in rebuilding the Campanile, while the others are destined for a museum. The subscriptions for all sources so far aggregate $250,000. The restoration will cost $500,000.

The new civilization of the plains is pictured by a recent incident ten miles from a Kansas town. A farmer, riding under an awning on a silky plover, met at the end of his furrow, the rural mail wagon. The driver tossed the farmer a bundle of mail, and as the team took up its steady course back across the half-mile field, the farmer unfolded the daily paper, printed that morning two hundred miles away, and read the happenings in China and the news of the political campaign.

Germany is reported to publish about 25,000 books in a year. Great Britain is credited with between 6,000 and 7,000 a year, of which about 1,500 are new editions. France turns out 15,000 new books and Italy 9,500 in the same time. The year's total new books is 70,000. Many of the modern books, the London "Express" remarks, are written for the moment only. They are merely enlarged magazine articles. If there is a revolution or a big disaster, or a war, the men on the spot promptly rush out a volume apiece. Of course, these works do not last; but they pay at the time. Not 10 per cent. of one year's books continue to sell or to be remembered a twelvemonth later.

Charles Fere calls attention, in the "Revue de Medecine," to the fact that the skin possesses a certain odor, which varies according to the individual, the age and the race. Says the "Medical Century," in an abstract of Fere's paper: "The nervous system seems to exert much influence over the odor of the cutaneous secretions. Hammond cites the case of a woman who always gave out an odor of pineapple when she was in a temper, and another who smelt of violets when suffering from an hysterical attack. The special point to which the writer desires to call attention is that delicate odors are inherited, or may even extend to side branches of the same family. Dogs are always so to recognize this odor even when it is so subtle as to escape the observation of the practice, one day gave him a copy of "Joe Miller's Jest Book," with the remark that he "might find something new in it."

Two German aeronauts, Doctor Mieths and Lieutenant Hildebrandt, recently had a remarkable experience in the heart of a thunderstorm. They ascended from Tegel at three o'clock in the afternoon, and, passing through a mist, came suddenly into a thunder-cloud. From a height of 660 feet the balloon was shot a mile upwards, and then as suddenly it dropped half a mile. They made the curious statement that, although they did not see the lightning, they were deafened by the thunder, while pelted with rain, hail and sleet. The balloon leaped and plunged so swiftly that at times the car was on a level with the gas-bag, and the tow-ropes were above their heads. After about half an hour of this experience the balloon fell from a height of 7,200 feet, descending upon a thick wood of beeches, branches of which broke the fall and saved the lives of the adventurers.

Wisdom.

Young Bird—What an extraordinary development of legs it's got! Old Bird—Of course—that's why they call it a "spring" chicken—"Ally Shop's" Mall-Holiday.

The humor of this has been in our play for more than a year, as conductor, and has given complete satisfaction. During that time he was never known to stop a car at the right corner, or to speak a civil word to a passenger. We are sorry to lose him.

St.-as Railway Company. The humor of this has been my type-writer for two years past, and only leaves me at my wife's urgent request. She has a kind, gentle and loving disposition, and is a most desirable companion. She enjoys the theater very much, and is fond of long drives. I shall miss her.

Glaring Effrontery.

Uncle Absalom Ashby was much given to retelling old and hackneyed jokes. An acquaintance of the practice, one day gave him a copy of "Joe Miller's Jest Book," with the remark that he "might find something new in it."

The next time he met the old gentleman he asked him, "Well, uncle, what do you think of that book I gave you the other day?"

"I don't know who that 'ere Joe Miller is," indignantly responded Uncle Absalom, "but I do know he's a thief. He's got hold of a lot of my best stories and printed 'em, condemn him!"

Husband—You're not economical. Wife—Well, if you don't call a woman economical who saves her wedding-dress for a possible second marriage I'd like to know what you think economy is.—Philadelphia "Inquirer."

THEY PROCLAIM THE MERITS

To the World of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills.

Mr.—That the world may know of the merits of Dr. Clarke's wonderful Little Red Pills, I ask the newspapers to publish the following: I was, for years, a martyr to stomach trouble, and had no hope whatever of being cured, but on reading a testimonial from a friend in Ontario, in one of the Toronto papers, I resolved to write to her and send her what had actually been cured of life some trouble by Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. I at once bought three boxes and took them according to directions, and they almost cured me. I purchased three more boxes, and was thankful to say that I am entirely cured. I have no splitting headaches now, no burning pain in my stomach; in fact, have a new lease of life.

MRS. JAMES HUNTER, MARIANA, MEX.

Remarkable Offering. Mr.—We make the following proposal to readers of The Times. To any one who is a subject of rheumatism, (no matter how long standing), or any blood disease, consumption, indigestion, and all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormrod & Walsh, Peterborough, Price 50c. per box, or 4 boxes for $2.00.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Gonorrhea, same price, 50c. will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

To Canadian Investors

THE GREATEST MINING PROPOSITION EVER OFFERED.

I am pleased to state that I have completed arrangements with the Consolidated Nevada Mining Company for the sale of a block of their treasury stock in Canada. It is a proposition I can honestly recommend, and is an uncommonly profitable one. The Consolidated Nevada Mining Company is a company of the highest character, and its stock is one of the best in the market. The company has a large and valuable property in Nevada, and its stock is one of the best in the market. The company has a large and valuable property in Nevada, and its stock is one of the best in the market.

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

Is what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and the loss thereof absolute safety is substituted, and yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

Thus the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer:

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, Colorado, offers a limited amount of its treasury stock for sale.

The company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Oropesa Creek, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done. It is proposed to place as many of these mining properties upon a slipping and self supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of oil lands in Huerfano County, Colo., in order to accomplish this the company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $1.00 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with individual liability. This is one of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Fortunes have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are usually very large, and the risk is eliminated.

Now is the time to get in before the price advances in the price is made.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

STOCK MARKETS

Are Not Attacking Prices.

New York, June 25.—Liquidation has run its course; real stocks fail to come upon the market, and those already sold have gone into the hands of people willing to hold them, recognizing their present cheapness.

The wheat, though attractive enough, are not attacking prices as heretofore. It is a question on their part that they expect the market to be consequently dangerous to self-reliance, as they do, that their efforts to bring over long stocks.

Coming upon our market is a hard process, and free selling on their part simply makes their position untenable and invites a reaction for them, such as they received a little over one week ago.

On the other hand, the market is not so much as they are willing to absorb offerings at going prices, the bullish contingent shows no immediate inclination to advance prices save when shorts overplay their position—hence the present dullness of the market.

The vast wheat crop being gathered is also well worthy of consideration. Prices that the farmers will receive, therefore, will be good, as the world's visible supply is the lowest since 1899, except in case of crop statistics have been collected. This fact insured another year of good times. There is no gaining the facts.

A logical and careful consideration of the above facts, taken as a whole, leads the thinking men to view with favor the future and cause the inevitable conclusion that the present deadlock will be broken by a period of better prices.

To buy stocks now and to hold them patiently will, in our opinion, be to make money.

An extremely dull market, more or less aimless in fluctuations. C. F. I. left, then a little higher, and a record yesterday's best prices. Stocks were steady. A spasmodic upward movement directly after the opening in T.C.I., the stock jumping to 62-1/2.

Later, Met. and Ex-Div. and was strong, as was Man. B.R.T. was inclined to be heavier. The Pacific were firm. Grangers heavy and dealings limited. Cereals were all higher, as foreboded in these letters the past few days. They still look like going higher. Cotton was higher but more active; its upward price is out of all reason. Stocks should be held to buy on all dips.

Treasurer's letter, "Most Prosperous Year, this Country Ever Had."

W. F. DEVER & CO.

New York, June 25.—There is a wide-spread opinion of the Stock Market as uninteresting as was that of yesterday. The day's news brought no new factor into the calculation. Broadly speaking the future of the market depends on the action of the money market, all other situations combined. The cotton crop reports are not particularly ominous from day to day. The grain market yesterday showed strength due wholly to the aspect of the day's crop reports.

Happy the money market has so far given no trouble whatever and the first of July is getting close at hand.

New York, June 25.—Another day almost entirely without feature or interest. Sales to noon 130,000 shares.

The Chicago grain market and the ever speculative interest was aroused was in that centre. It is the opinion of a great many shrewd observers that though the steady absorption of stocks by investors during the past few months, have reduced the floating supply of the better class of securities materially, the market is likely to be irregular for some time to come owing to the uncertainty of the crop situation. The influence will affect the grainers especially. Consequently would make purchase of these items on speculations only.

Chicago, June 25.—It has been a bad session for short sellers at all stages. Several times of late we have commented on the fact that the shorts were in shape for a comeback, and that in wheat the greatest strength was shown by the North-West and the Northwest, the market close in touch with harvest conditions. South-west reports, and with spring crop conditions northwest.

A Convincing Prophet.

Is forecasting the attempted phylloxera of the Chicago market. "The London Spectator" says that this is only another instance of the length to which the credulous Eastern mind can be carried. It gives a parallel case of wild speculation among the Jews of the Middle Ages in the case of a supposed miracle wrought in the East.

One day, a year or two ago, there appeared among them a Murr, naked like himself, and apparently differing in no way from his fellows. Yet in a short time he was able to make the members of the tribe surrender to him their wives, their cattle and other possessions simply on the strength of his own declaration as to his powers.

It is asserted that he could confer on devoted disciples the power of flying. No one asked him to fly himself; it seemed never to occur to them. Yet a number of men climbed to the tops of the highest cypress-trees in the village, and leaped into the air.

When they were found to be dead, it is only reasonable to suppose that the survivors set upon the false prophet and killed him. Nothing of the sort! On the contrary, he was sufficiently devout, and he found no difficulty in inducing others to follow his example.

At last, after his first misadventure twenty men made the process of flying from the tops of trees to the ground. He was arrested through foreign agency and thrown into prison. But even then the natives believed in him to such an extent that they resented any interference in the matter.

Wegish Bruder.—I've just spent a week at Lord and Lady Bland's place. My friend—You have! Why, which of them invited you? "Neither," said I, "I never shall Lord and Lady B. I was speaking to you just now, so I need not say. But think the other invited me."

ORE BEARING SCHISTS FROM 75 TO 100 FEET WIDE

The out crop of the extension of the deposit has just been cut on the opposite side of the mountain from which the work was commenced, proving that the ore body extends through the hill.

M. R. V. GHANDIN, engineer in charge of the development work, reports the discovery of an immense body of gold, silver, and copper bearing ore from seventy-five to one hundred feet wide on the property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, at Cheticamp, Cape Breton. This is probably the first known instance in Eastern Canada of the unearthing of a large deposit of metaliferous ore such as made the mining industry of British Columbia. The Western States and Mexico of great magnitude. The discovery in Cape Breton tends to confirm the opinion of mining experts that Cheticamp is one of the most important mining districts in Nova Scotia. The Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, owns some of the finest sections of this district and has almost completed the proving of a body of ore estimated to contain 100,000 tons, worth from $10 to $15 per ton. The main slope is down 130 feet all in one and the tunnel from which the mine will be worked has been commenced from the opposite side of the hill. The Company expect to commence the installation of plant for treatment in three months' time. Surface buildings, etc., have all been erected.

Thousands of tons of Ore already in sight.

Every day adds to the proved value of the mine

THERE is no other form of mining investment than gold-copper deposits as they occur in immense veins and carry regular values. Many of the private fortunes of the United States owe their origin to a lucky investment in a gold-copper proposition. The property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, is undoubtedly one of the most valuable in the country. Besides its extensive mining claims the mining company controls timber for mining and building purposes and will also have natural water-power. The extension of the MacKenzie & Mann Railway from Broad Cove to Cheticamp this year will give this great mining enterprise rail as well as water communication with all points. The undertaking of this Company is a sound business enterprise, organized by a prominent Nova Scotia business man, without the heavy over-capitalization, watered stock, promoters' take-off, directors' perquisites, etc., which characterize many foreign companies. The company is capitalized at the moderate figure of $600,000, and one-half the entire capital stock has been placed in the treasury in reserve. 10,000 shares of the other half are being sold for development.

A Limited Amount of Stock is Offered at $3.00 per Share (Thirty Cents on the Dollar). - Par $10.00

The Stock was started at $1 per share, and has advanced steadily to $3. Next advance will be to $5, and we expect it will be quoted at par—$10—within a year, based on ore actually blocked out. Less than 1000 shares will be sold at the present figure of three dollars. Applications for Stock should be addressed to

Lost Appetite Quickly Revived

A Fitful Appetite is generally associated with a general weakness of the system. Ferrous is the best tonic and appetizer should be taken after each meal and a rapid improvement is sure to follow.

Distaste for food often follows La Grippe and fever, or is brought on by over excitement or worry. It is a dangerous condition and unless it is quickly remedied it will result in the regular use of Ferrous. A new and wonderful medicine is Ferrous. It instantly imparts a real zest for food, and gives power to the stomach to digest and assimilate all that is eaten. Dyspepsia and indigestion are quite unknown to those who use Ferrous, simply because it digests food so quickly that it has no time to ferment or sour on the stomach.

Ferrous regulates the bowels, quickly remedies various disorders and causes all the organs of the body to perform their functions with proper regularity. If the liver is torpid, or the kidneys not eliminating as they should, they are soon restored to normal action, and the poisons that might otherwise be retained in the body to cause disease and ill health are carried off through natural channels.

The greatest need to perfect health is Ferrous. Young girls who have been accustomed to eat almost nothing at breakfast, soon put over the bad habit by taking Ferrous, and as a result grow into healthy vigorous women. When people get up in years and lose the strength and vim of youth they need good food and blood to enable them to resist the trials of our vigorous winter, and this is where Ferrous can be used to great advantage.

Both the young and the old, the weak and the strong, male and female can derive untold benefit from Ferrous. It is guaranteed to maintain no organs or injurious drugs, and will do just what is claimed for it.

Druggists recommend and sell it for 60c. per box or three boxes for $1.50. Send to your address by mail if price is forwarded to N. C. Peters & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Interesting Items.

A Detroit publishing firm is to issue "The Smiths," a monthly magazine for people named Smith. This is something new in the line of magazines. It opens a new and promising field. Of course the Browns must have their periodical. Likewise must the tribes of Jones, Williams, White, Johnson and many others.

Joseph H. Perkins of Syracuse, N.Y., will soon publish a work containing the biographies of nearly 60,000 Americans. If he can show any means of living so as to reach the 100-year mark, his book ought to have a wide circulation. Mr. Perkins will produce statistics to show that there are 4,000 people now living in the United States who are 100 years old or more.

France has a special association for discovering a remedy for seasickness. In September, 1901, it held an exhibition at Orléans. The investigations have also been continued, partly with the aid of a steamer lent by the Belgian Government. The results are now made public in a book written by Dr. Madou of Paris. It contains various rules as to diet, clothing, etc., but points out no sure remedy.

No freight except live stock and perishable goods is to be moved on Sunday, according to the new rule of the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad. An exception in favor of coal is made during the continuation of the shortage; but aside from that, the movement of freight will have their Sunday at home for the first time since they entered the service. It is worth noting that the management of the road expresses the belief that the law will enable the men to move as much freight as in any week as they have been moving in seven.

Notwithstanding all denials from hotel managers on the Continent, regarding complaints made by tourists of systematic signaling by means of marks on luggage passed between servants from hotel to hotel as to the quality of the charge holds good, for a Nice correspondent writes to Henry Labouchere of London "Truth" that he finds upon enquiry that there is no doubt such a system is in existence. But a method more favored than that of affixing luggage labels in positions, the significance of which is understood by servants in hotels all along the Riviera, is to convey the same information by means of shakings. "The shakings," says the correspondent, "that if you have not been over-generous to the servants, wipe off the chalk-marks you may see on your luggage after leaving any hotel."

A Very Impolite Dog.

A man in New York City, writes a correspondent, is the owner of a small but pure-blooded Skye terrier, named Rex, whose intelligence is remarkable. Some of Rex's bright performances certainly are the result of reasoning power, which used to be regarded as the gift of the human family alone.

Rex sleeps at the foot of his master's bed upon a soft rug of his own. He is a dog of good habits, better behaved than many children, in fact, but like a child, he insists upon his rights: his own spot before the fire, his own corner of the sofa, his own bed and what is most interesting, his own bedtime.

Often in the evening when visitors remain beyond ten o'clock, Rex enters the parlor, walks anxiously about, and in the very midst of the conversation with a worried air that cannot be mistaken. If the visitors still remain, he will rise and yawn, then mildly whimper, and with rapidly wagging tail seek his master's side and look expectantly up into his face, as if to say, "If you don't let me go, so that we may retire."

If all these tactics fail, he will drop his ears and tail and walk to the door, sometimes giving a sharp, cross bark, his whole manner indicating deep displeasure of such late hours.

Twice in his life he has done more than to hint at his wishes on occasions of this kind.

One wet evening a stranger, who was visiting the family, called upon the dog and the old dog, who was then in the hall, extended beyond the hour for Rex's retirement. As usual, the dog displayed his displeasure and evident opinion that the gentleman was overstaying his welcome, but no notice was taken of him, with the air of desperation, he marched into the parlor with one of the caller's rubbers, and set it at his feet, and then quickly retired with the other, which he placed beside him. Then, with a triumphant look in his eyes, he backed off and stood looking at the stranger as if to say, "There! Do you understand that hint?"

His second exploit was even more remarkable. On this occasion a half-dozen people had been playing whist with his master and mistress. When the game was over, between ten and eleven o'clock, they still stood or sat about the room, engaged in conversation.

Rex was tired, and thoroughly out of humor. No one was to give a hint to him, and nothing that he could do attracted any attention. There were too many visitors to urge them all to depart by producing their overcoats, even if they were tired, but a brilliant idea came to him. He dashed into the sleeping room, seized his master's nightgown, which lay ready for use upon the bed, and dragging it behind him, spread it at his master's feet in the parlor before the full view of the assembled guests.

This stratagem was so successful, for, amid shouts of laughter and the consternation of the master, the callers all good-night.

Feminine Frailty.

"My dear Gertrude, how glad I am to see you! Do you lunch here often? I am quite frequently fascinated."

"I don't like the music; it is so weird, so deliciously barbaric. We will eat here and eat together. Walter, bring me a salad, French dressing—see that the oil is very fresh and warm and tea."

"Gertrude, dear, I always dance so lightly; I have really little appetite; sleeping, waiter, and a pot of tea. Why, here comes Jimmie Gray! They may be engaged to Mrs. Kidd's grand wedding. I don't believe it. Hello, Jimmie! How do you do? What a pleasure to see you! Gertrude, aren't you? May you lunch with us, Jimmie? Certainly. We were just about to give our order; you are quite in time. Walter, blue points and then consommé. I hope they have a decent entrée to-day. Yes, Jimmie will have mutton with the french. You know my wife's tastes. Now—some soup. The rest of our order when you bring the oysters. I am delighted to see you, Jimmie. Please tell me all of the news!"

THE RUSSIAN COURT HAS GONE INTO MOURNING FOR TWENTY FOUR DAYS

at Railway Guards Fire Into a Crowd of Strike Sympathizers

Richmond, Va., June 21.—Six men were wounded, two of them seriously, by a crowd of strike sympathizers who fired at railway guards who fired back at the city limits. Two of them seriously hurt, being peppered in the back with buckshot. Exciting scenes were enacted in the east-end efforts were made to operate under the protection of the militia.

All sorts of missiles were hurled at the cars, and obstructions placed on the track. Finally the cars, under the pilot of a detachment of howitzers, with gagging guns, were taken to the east end. Many shots are now being fired. It is proved in the event that the military is unable at that time to cope with mob to order out the fire department and have streams from the hose directed against the crowd.

At 1 o'clock tonight Sheriff Solomon, of Henrico county, decided to ask for troops. He made the request and the governor issued orders to the military authorities accordingly.

How They all Laugh

"To think of scientific food helping me out of double-headed indigestion!" said a Mr. LAURENCE WOOD.

"I tried to read the published statements about Grape-Nuts in a cynical way, finally realizing they were true. One day a neighbor (who on calling on I was lying down) said (and feeling terribly dull) 'I believe you eat entirely too much food and especially too much cream.' I said, 'I eat Chinese food and use Grape-Nuts.' He laughed heartily and said 'I am sure you have been reading the newspapers too.' Yes," she replied, "and I have become a convert, for my husband, who, you know, is the doctor, has tried the diet, and while nervous system was completely put down has got so well and hearty by giving up the heavy meat breakfast and living on a diet of cooked fruit, Grape-Nuts and cream, a cup of Postum or breakfast. He is a new man and has put me near physician for two months."

"I did not wonder that she was enthusiastic, so I began that evening to use Grape-Nuts, eating nothing else but sweetened cold supper. I felt a little nervous, and tonight better than night than I had for months."

"The family all laughed at me, but the next morning I ate my Grape-Nuts and cream, some stewed fruit, a cup of Postum or Coffee. That I felt comfortable with myself, and the whole world at large, and my feelings were so good and comfortable that I concluded to keep on with my new food."

"After about two weeks of this kind of diet my family began to see the change in me. I had lost my nervous, cream, irritable manner, and I could sleep all night soundly. My complexion was rosy and my complexion was good, clear, with a tinge of rosy color. I am glad to state that in a month I had gained ten pounds and my family all became converts to Grape-Nuts which we have used now for some time. We are all in perfect health and my grocery bill nothing so large and it used to be."

"I am now so well and strong that I feel able to do anything that I want to. Husband says the food should be called 'Gold-Nuts.' I notice a remarkable change in my facial complexion. Formerly I looked so sickly and I find in my book or any anything, now that in all changes, I can read easily and think logically from problem to conclusion, an excellent evidence, to my mind, of the health-building power of Grape-Nuts. spective places again—all but the bit of blue enamel; that he had slipped inside his own purse—and prepared to leave the room.

"Have you got it?" cried Madeline, excitedly, standing in an agony of suspense.

"Safe enough. I hope she won't miss it for a day or two. And if you are wise you won't say a word of all this to anyone—no one, mind you."

And he looked at her with significance.

"I won't," she answered faintly, and then she hurried back to her own room.

CHAPTER VI

Madeline's Warning.

The next day, Madeline was well enough to sit up in a cosy little room adjoining her bedroom.

There was, indeed, no reason why she should not have gone downstairs, but this she seemed strangely reluctant to do.

She looked even more beautiful than she had been before her illness.

Her paleness made her eyes seem larger and darker.

There was a softened, chastened look on her face, which became well, and made Marjorie's heart go out towards her with added tenderness.

The two girls were alone together during the earlier part of the day.

Marjorie thought Madeline seemed sad, and wondered why.

In her heart she suspected that the sadness had some reference to Edgar Hyde.

"Marjorie, when did Mrs. Thornton say she should return to England?" asked Madeline, breaking a rather long silence, during which she had seemed sunk in painful thought.—Mrs. Thornton was the lady who had engaged Marjorie as a companion.

"In a month from now."

"Marjorie, come here, I want you."

And, with an appealing gesture, she showed that she wished her to come and kneel beside her chair.

Marjorie obeyed with a tender smile. Madeline took the fair young face in both of her hands, and looked at it with a long, loving, wistful glance.

"Marjorie, I think you know I love you."

So earnestly she spoke, with such a sad, gentle pathos, that involuntarily the tears started to Marjorie's eyes.

"Yes, Madeline, I know that. How could I help knowing it?"

"And you love me?"

"I do—indeed I do."

"Then, if I ask you to do a very strange thing—what you must needs think strange—you will not misunderstand me? You will not doubt my love for you?"

"Dear Madeline, you know I should never do that."

And Marjorie pressed more closely to her friend.

"Well, Marjorie, I want to suggest something to you which I believe will be for your good and mine. As soon as Mrs. Thornton returns to England go to her."

Marjorie could not repress her surprise.

"And leave you?" she exclaimed, looking up at Madeline with startled, wide-open eyes.

"Yes, and leave me," replied Madeline, steadily, though in a tone of unutterable mournfulness. "Don't ask me the reason, Marjorie—only believe that I am acting for the best."

"What can be the reason?" thought Marjorie; and then a suspicion leapt into her mind which made her cheeks burn, and her eyes droop hurriedly beneath her friend's glance.

She remembered the unwelcome attention of Edgar Hyde; the admiration which shone boldly in his glance whenever it fell on her.

Had Madeline got some knowledge of these things, even in the confinement of her bedroom, and was this why she wanted her to go away?

Her suspicion was confirmed when, only a few minutes later, Madeline began to speak of him.

"I think you must have guessed what he is to me, Marjorie," she said, in a low voice, and glancing down at a magnificent diamond ring she wore on her finger.

"I have guessed you were engaged to him—yes."

"Marjorie, you don't know—you can't dream how I love that man!"

Madeline spoke with sudden energy. Her pale cheeks glowed.

She interlarded her fingers in a listless fashion, which showed plainly enough the agitation of her mind.

Marjorie knew not what to say.

She sat in silence, making no answer beyond a gentle curve with her hand.

"To some women love comes only as a curse—a bitter curse," went on Madeline, vehemently, while the red spot glowed more brightly in her cheek. "It has come so to me."

"Oh, no, Madeline! Surely—surely, not!"

"It has. It is my curse and punishment that I love Edgar Hyde with a mad, blind love for which I am ready to sacrifice myself, body and soul."

"Punishment, Madeline!" echoed Marjorie, in surprise. "Punishment for what?"

Madeline did not answer the question. She played with her fingers more restlessly than ever, and proceeded, in a low tone, more so though she was speaking to herself than to Marjorie.

"Great heaven! how I love him! When I think of the depth and passion of it, it frightens me. I am frightened at myself—at my own heart. Oh, the misery—the misery of such a love!"

"Dear Madeline, surely he loves you, too?" Marjorie ventured.

"I don't know," said Madeline, abruptly. "I don't know what to think about it. I am afraid to think. It would drive me mad."

"Did he give you that ring?" questioned Marjorie, softly, noticing that she was plucking at it nervously, as though it had been composed of red-hot metal, and was burning into her flesh.

She ceased to pluck at it as Marjorie asked the question.

"Yes," she said dully. "He gave it to me."

After a moment she added, with a sudden return to her former vehemence—

"Marjorie, never, never love unless you are certain the man is worthy of you, and that he loves you with a passion equal to your own. If you do, you would be happier dead. Aye, better a thousand times for me to be lying in the cold churchyard than to be eating my own heart out, as I am doing now."

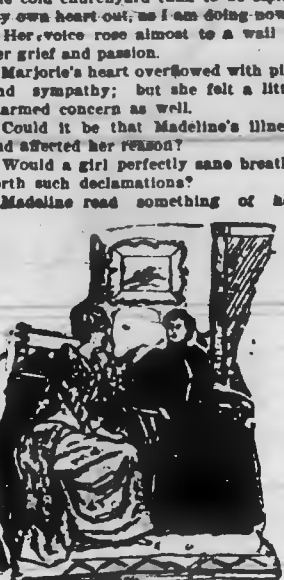

Her voice rose almost to a wail in her grief and passion.

Marjorie's heart overflowed with pity and sympathy; but she felt a little alarmed concern as well.

Could it be that Madeline's illness had affected her reason?

Would a girl perfectly sane breathe forth such declamations?

Madeline read something of her thoughts, and, in a moment, by a strong effort, became calm again.

"I'm frightening you, Marjorie," she said, with a faint, sad smile. "Forgive me. I am a little weak still, and I suppose that is what makes everything look so gloomy to me just now. Let us talk of other things. You have not told me if you will do as I wish, and go to Mrs. Thornton as soon as she returns to England."

"If you really wish it, of course I will," said Marjorie—not coldly—she was too fond of Madeline for that—but sadly, and with some show of surprise.

"I do wish it, Marjorie. I can't tell you why—not now. But some day you shall know, and then you will see that I acted for your good."

"I'm sure of that, and I'll do what you wish, Madeline."

"My father will try to persuade you to stay, and—"

"But let no one persuade you, no one," she repeated vehemently, though still in that husky tone. "Be firm, and let them see you have quite made up your mind. If you stay here, you are—"

She paused abruptly, almost as though in terror.

What the word was she had arrested on her lips, Marjorie could not guess; but she saw the wild energy of her glance.

The next moment there came a tap at the door.

"It is my father," whispered Madeline. "Mind, not a word of this to him."

She threw herself languidly back among the downy cushions of her easy chair and assumed a negligent, graceful calm.

"Come in," she called; and her father entered, and with him the English sw. Edgar.

"My dear, this is pleasant," was the older man's greeting. "To see you up and dressed after these days. I'm so glad, my love!"

And he stooped and kissed her. She winced as though his lips burnt. Marjorie saw this and wondered.

Then Edgar Hyde advanced and first taking his cousin's hand, kissed her on the lips.

The blood surged into her face, her whole frame trembled.

Fixing her beautiful eyes full upon his, she murmured a word or two which was inaudible to all save him, but there was no mistaking the reproachfulness of her tone.

He answered lightly, and with a laugh.

She whispered a further word or two and the blood mounted to his brow, while a look of hot displeasure fired his eyes.

He dropped her hand and stood beside the window, looking out rather moodily.

Marjorie slipped quietly away. She felt she was not wanted.

Whether anyone noticed her departure or not, no one tried to stop her—not even Madeline.

She went downstairs with a troubled heart. For one thing, she didn't want to go to Mrs. Thornton.

She would rather have remained at Cambridge—anywhere where she could be in the all too fascinating company of Charles Hyde.

And the other thing, the thing that troubled her most of all, was that she was certain Madeline had meant to warn her against this very Charles Hyde when she had said, with such extraordinary vehemence:

CHAPTER VII

In the Wood.

As she went through the hall she put on her hat and cloak. She would go into the wood for a few minutes, she thought.

Her mind was in such a tumult that she made her farewell and return.

She longed to feel the fresh, frosty

The Somersland Ferry

Aden, Arabia, June 15.—The society regarding General Manning's force in Somersland, East Africa, has been a flying column from Barbara got in touch with him at Danet, where Manning arrived without encountering any opposition.

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would reel into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay.

It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds; the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash?

A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurons, the Baldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. Today he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at from $1.00 per value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $8,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1890 is now worth $7,600.

Mallory, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

[Nor does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining.—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore sells only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 1,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours.

The Alaska Treadwell ore mine $2.38 per ton; the stock 100 per cent. above par.

No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management.

THE TWO-TEN OIL CO.

of Boulder, Colorado.

Capital Stock, 1,500,000 shares. In Treasury, 500,000 shares

TRANSFER OFFICE, BRISTOL, CONN.

This Company has a perpetual lease on 20 acres of proven oil land in SECTION NINE (9) of the Boulder district, and the section and the immediate vicinity have the best and largest number of producing wells in the entire district.

Our Well No. 1 came in in January and is now pumping and shipping Oil regularly to the Refinery.

The Directors have decided to put down well No. 2 at once, and they now offer a block of the Treasury stock for the next 30 days at

10 Cents per Share,

It is a well known fact that a 16 barrel well will pay over 100 per cent. profit upon its cost.

This is no longer a speculation for we have proved that oil is on our ground, and we now have oil in paying quantities, with two wells pumping we can soon pay dividends, and every well we put down increases our earning capacity.

This is a business proposition, managed by business men.

Napoleon's Housekeeping-Book.

The discredit that the name of Napoleon has brought on historical relics, and the sale of the account-book of Napoleon, "Napoleon's Housekeeping-Book," at St. Helena. This very suggestive and, I believe, authentic volume was put up to auction at 400 fr., and with difficulty worked up to 400 fr. by the Paris correspondent.

"Napoleon went over it once a week, signed it, and made any observations that occurred to him on the margin. His handwriting is beautiful, and his observations are always in the line of a housewife. He wrote the observations in a legible hand, for Napoleon's direction. He often dined on kid or lamb or mutton in the early days of his captivity. He rejected his doctor's advice. From the middle of 1820 he lived almost entirely on chicken and fruit, and occasionally had veal broth, with rice. The price of everything seems exorbitant. Napoleon's account began in January, 1819, and ended on May 2, 1821. He lived to an old age. After his death all his personal property was sold by his grandchildren. A. M. Dablin, a well-known collector, who began by collecting letters of Queen Victoria to Louis Philippe, which an 1848 mob sent out of the windows of the Tuileries, bought the Napoleon account-book. It enables those who have a little imagination to picture to themselves faithfully Napoleon at home, at St. Helena."

This account-book confirms me in an impression I have long had as to the ferocity of Napoleon's mind. The more I learn of that mind the more I am in balance it seems to me. It runs in a childish way from subject to subject, shows a childish impatience of contradiction, and of all that stands in the way of his desires. One sees this disposition in slave-owners and in persons who have without long preparation, won great situations. Their caprices become their master. Napoleon had for his agent in ministering to his needs the most brainy people in Europe, and in his time the least groovy and most spontaneous. The handwriting throughout his life may be taken as a measure of his mind. Had he been a drunkard's scrawl. Could his handwriting have been so deep, so dark, so heavy, so full of character and intellect. It looks like a drunkard's scrawl. Could his handwriting have been so deep, so dark, so heavy, so full of character and intellect. It looks like a drunkard's scrawl.

Stocks—The MARKETS OF THE WORLD—Grain

To Canadian Investors

THE GREATEST MINING PROPOSITION EVER OFFERED.

I am pleased to state that I have completed arrangements with the Consolidated Nevada Mining Company for the sale of a block of their treasury stock in Canada. It is a proposition I can honestly recommend, and has unlimited possibilities. The tremendous possibilities of WEDKIND and TONOPAH is becoming plain every day to the entire country. The spring run into these Nevada mining camps will equal or exceed that into Cripple Creek, Nevada or New. The strikes recently reported from Wedkind and Tonopah have created the greatest excitement and the rush will soon be on.

Everyone is watching NEVADA mining stocks and prices are rapidly advancing. None offer better opportunities for profits than do the shares of

The Consolidated Nevada Mining Company

Properties in the heart of the Wedkind district. High grade ore and best of it. We are certain to cut the RICHEST VEIN IN THE DISTRICT very soon; then it's all off.

Stock now selling at 15c. per share. Limited quantity only.

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and then there is absolute safety in the investment, and yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

An arrangement has been made with the Trust Company to guarantee to the purchaser the return of amount invested within a given number of years. To substantiate this guarantee they issue to the purchaser a stock and bond, which is secured by first real estate mortgage deposited with another Trust Company for the specific purpose of securing the bonds the underwriting company issues.

Thus the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer.

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs. It is offering about 100,000 shares of its treasury stock for sale at 20 cents per share.

The company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Cripple Creek, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done.

It is proposed to place as many of these mining properties upon a shipping and self-supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-five hundred acres of oil lands in Montano County, Colo., in order to accomplish this the company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $1.00 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with no individual liability. The issue of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The directors of this company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown themselves to be men of integrity and high character.

Fortunes have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are usually very good, especially when the stock can be secured at such a low price as this is now offered. Now is the time to get in before the price in the market rises.

The Oro Rico Mining Syndicate

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 30 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS

Yard ledge of ore running from $5.00 to $100.00 per ton. Five claims of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $75.00 to $100.00 per ton. This is not a fine prospect, it is a mine. It is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans.

No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLARS FOR DOLLARS for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your foresight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now waiting until the stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now waiting until the stock sold at par.

I can offer the Stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO-DAY—to-morrow it may slip your memory. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 25% per month.

STOCK MARKETS

A BETTER MARKET AHEAD

New York, June 24—It cannot be said too forcibly that the money market for the last half of this week has been very carefully and skilfully handled. The Pennsylvania R.R. has already a heavy borrower on six months' notes given to pay for its purchases of Reading; these notes are not yet matured. It is altogether probable that the question of gold-exchange will be raised actively during the first half of this week, although the reasons for expecting gold are greatly reduced by the fact that it cannot arrive on the other side until well after the 1st of July. The demand for anthracite larger, and supply smaller at all points. The oil market is very active. The price of oil, 33 cents, may not increase 22.37, all roads. 3rd week June, gross income 12.35 per cent. Rumor of action regarding Wabash, interest at Directors' meeting. Banks look to sub-treasury since Friday $100,000,000, and the Rio Grande, especially the preferred, are excellent speculative or for investment at the present time. The one at the other, the N.Y. Central, of Colorado, are both good to buy and hold. Their intrinsic worth and earning power are bound to increase in both instances with the passing years.

We advise the purchase of N.Y.C. at going price and believe this is fully warranted by plans under way.

THE GOULD STOCKS.

Buffalo, N.Y., June 29, 03

Dear Sir:—I over a group of stocks gave indication of buying grounded on bottom prices; the Gould stocks are doing so. We firmly believe no mistake can be made buying into them at present. Mr. P. looks exceedingly attractive and we have no doubt but what it will again sell well above 120 when the bull inclination again strikes the market. It is carrying its semi-annual dividend of 2-1/2 per cent. at present just recently declared, and the regularity of the company show it to be earning regularly twice the 8 per cent. annually that it is at present paying. Every time it could have been bought near par in the past two years it has been a purchase at a price to 100% below the value. We believe it is a splendid "buy proposition" at the moment. It can't go down very much and it can go up a great deal. The K. T. shares look well also; the large decline from last September has made them look good now, especially as a group and net earnings are keeping up, and past five years extraordinary expenses which have been charged to operating account, are about finished. Recent reported reduction of operating expenses and the statement of some of the directors of the company that such improvements are about completed, are proofs of the fact. It has earned for the year the 4 per cent. called for upon its preferred stock, and 1-1/2 per cent. upon its $5,000,000 common stock. In the low 20's the common is an unusually good bargain under such conditions, and the preferred will participate properly anywhere below 60. You can make no mistake in buying either.

W. F. DEVER & CO.

When they Missed it.

It was their first baby. The young mother was in a perfect rapture. It was an ugly baby, but she did not know it. Her father was like her. All of them are like her. But the father had dark misgivings. His salary was only twelve a week, and babies are expensive luxuries. Her father was rich, but he had frowned upon their union, and had hated and scorned her as a supporting one in her low tastes. One day, when the baby was about a month old, the father came home from the bank in the city and found his wife weeping. She was not happy when the baby was out of her sight. "What is it, Jennie?" asked her husband gloomily, for he was not mountain as to the bluntness conferred by the baby. He was also sleepy. "Oh, Charlie," she chirped, "I heard from papa to-day."

Charlie looked gloomier than ever. "Don't say anything, dear," she pleaded, for she knew her husband's opinion of her father. "He has heard of our baby, and though he has not yet determined to forgive us, he has sent us a check for fifty pounds for dear baby's sake."

At first the young husband's face lit up with pleasure, then it shadowed.

"Aren't you glad, Charlie?" she asked with a quivering lip.

Then he smiled joyfully.

"Yes, darling," he whispered, "and what a play it won't be."

Watered Stock.

A woodman, said the New York "Sun" was one day chopping a tree overhanging a stream, and, finding in his work to find with a pleasing millstone, he dropped it into the river.

The woodman sat down comfortably and proceeded to smoke his pipe. Mercury, hearing his lamentation, appeared before him, and upon being informed of the loss of the stone, he at once dived into the river and brought up a golden millstone.

"Is that yours?" asked Mercury.

"No," replied the man.

Mercury thereupon plunged into the water for a second time and brought up a silver millstone. He then showed him the one he had just brought up.

The gold, being pleased with the man's honesty, presented him with the gold and silver millstones also.

The man told his friends about this and the Marvelous Gold and Silver Millstones were at once organized with a capital of a million or so. They bought up all the rivers and ponds in the country and honest woodmen were employed in lumbering to drop from time to time the stone and get gold and silver ones for their honesty. The stock did very well.

That is the true derivation of the term "watered stock." As for the millstone, the stone of it all, the woodman who properly, should be the gold.

ORE BEARING SCHISTS FROM 75 TO 100 FEET WIDE

The out-crop of the extension of the deposit has just been cut on the opposite side of the mountain from which the work was commenced, proving that the ore body extends through the hill.

MR. M. V. GRANDIN, engineer in charge of the development work, reports the discovery of an immense body of gold, silver, and copper bearing ore from seventy-five to one hundred feet wide on the property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, at Cheticamp, Cape Breton. This is probably the first known instance in Eastern Canada of the unearthing of a large deposit of metaliferous ore such as made the mining industry of British Columbia, the Western States and Mexico of great magnitude. The discovery in Cape Breton tends to confirm the opinion of mining experts that Cheticamp is one of the most important mining districts in Nova Scotia. The Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, owns some of the finest sections of this district and has already completed the proving of a body of ore estimated to contain 100,000 tons, worth from $10 to $15 per ton. The main slope is shown 120 feet all in one and the tunnel from which the mine will be worked has been commenced from the opposite side of the hill. The Company expect to commence the installation of plant for treatment in three months' time. Surface buildings, etc., have all been erected.

Thousands of tons of Ore already in sight. Every day adds to the proved value of the mine

THERE is no safer form of mining investment than good gold-copper deposits, as they occur in immense veins and carry regular values. Many of the private fortunes of the United States owe their origin to a lucky investment in a gold-copper proposition. The property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, is undoubtedly one of the most valuable in the country. Besides its extensive mining claims the mining company controls timber for mining and building purposes and will also have natural water-power. The extension of the Montserrat & Main Railway from Broad Cove to Cheticamp this year will give this great mining enterprise rail as well as water communication with all points. The undertaking of this Company is a sound home enterprise, organized by a prominent Nova Scotia business man, without the heavy over-capitalization watered stock, promoters' take-off, directors' perquisites, etc., which characterize many foreign companies. The company is capitalized at the moderate figure of $500,000, and one-half the entire capital stock has been placed in the treasury in reserve. 10,000 shares of the other half are being sold for development.

A Limited Amount of Stock is Offered at $3.00 per Share (Thirty Cents on the Dollar). - Par $10.00

The Stock was started at $1 per share, and has advanced steadily to $3. Next advance will be to $5, and we expect it will be quoted at par—$10—within a year, based on ore actually blocked out. Less than 1000 shares will be sold at the present figure of three dollars. Applications for Stock should be addressed to

ONE MORE

Hope springs eternal in the human breast, and especially in the consumptive breast. So there will be new hope on account of the very latest "cure" for consumption. This cure is "made in Germany," and seems to have its merits even if it may be turned out to be a failure. It is called "Mucosa." Robert Schenker, a German merchant, in traveling in North-western Australia, learned that the natives used as a remedy for consumption a decoction made by boiling the leaves and roots of the eucalyptus tree. He also noted, it is said, that natives living where the eucalyptus grew abundantly were free from consumption and that natives having consumption sometimes moved into the eucalyptus country with beneficial results. Mr. Schenker, with the aid of a chemist, prepared the combination of flowers of eucalyptus, powdered charcoal and pulverized eucalyptus leaves, now called "Mucosa." When the mixture is heated, the eucalyptus evaporates and, with the small quantity of sulphur, forms a vapor given off, which is the "cure." The treatment is by inhalation. The substance is placed on a heated plate in a closed room. It rapidly evaporates, filling the air with an aromatic, penetrating odor. The patient breathes the fumes with any convenience to himself.

Experiments made with human beings and animals had good results. A patient having a bad case of consumption, who had been in the hospital for some time, was brought to the hospital. The patient was brought from the poorest class. Only three were admitted to the ward who were beyond any possible doubt suffering from progressive tuberculosis. A considerable number of the cases had the disease in such an advanced stage that hope of relief by any ordinary means had been abandoned, and yet nearly fifty percent of the patients were discharged, cured. Some of the patients were permitted to remain in their ordinary occupations while the treatment was being administered. The hospital records show that as soon as the treatment began there was an abatement of symptoms. The bacilli disappeared rapidly from the system; the irritating and wearying cough passed away; the appetite returned. One of the most remarkable cases of recovery was that of a patient who had been in the hospital for some time. The patient was brought from the poorest class. Only three were admitted to the ward who were beyond any possible doubt suffering from progressive tuberculosis. A considerable number of the cases had the disease in such an advanced stage that hope of relief by any ordinary means had been abandoned, and yet nearly fifty percent of the patients were discharged, cured.

Mr. Richard McCallum

Antiphies of Great Men.

It is a natural human trait to desire kindling with great minds, and for this reason the world loves to hear of the little weaknesses, inconsistencies, and illogical prejudices of its intellectual giants. The following, then, a carefully compiled and as far as the writer knows, absolutely authentic list of the antiphies of certain past masters, may prove of general interest, thinks "Punch."

Shakespeare, it seems, displayed a forced abstinence from vitriol.

Lord Chesterfield failed to have the chair upon which he was just sitting down withdrawn from under him.

The Iron Duke (and it may be recalled in passing that Lord Roberts of our own day has a similar aversion) would grow quite uneasy if shut up in the same room with a mad dog.

Dr. Abernethy, a man proverbially intolerant of mere facts and crotchets, had yet a strong personal objection to sleeping in damp sheets.

Shall we wonder, if he could avoid it, write with a broken rib?

Charles never liked being alluded to as a "famous" idiot.

Kate would go out of his way to avoid a lunatic with a knife.

Faraday, the great chemist, disliked the sensation of nitric acid on his hands.

Mary had a great distaste for either the flavor or perfume of bad eggs.

Mendelssohn did not like the sound of a finger being drawn across a slate.

A thumb-nail caused him similar disgust.

Darwin would walk about or stand about in a freshly-painted coach.

Dr. Johnson hated to have anyone run and butt him in the waistcoat.

Sir Walter Raleigh had a marked objection to prison life; and Lord Burleigh, his great contemporary, never liked to slip off a carbuncle with his tongue between his teeth.

DRUGGED WITH CHORAL

American Official and Wife Hounded at Porto Rico

San Juan, Porto Rico, July 1.—The Lusitania, an American steamer, was on the Marine Hospital Service, who is apparently acting as a quarantine for the Lusitania, and Mrs. Lusitania, were drugged and rubbed at the Hotel Lusitania. Chorals was placed in their hands. (While they were under the influence of the drug, the Lusitania had a great sensation here, as the Hotel Lusitania is the leading hotel of San Juan, Lusitania came here recently from New Orleans. He was formerly on duty in Washington.)

A well known citizen of Stirling Ont., cured of Chronic Catarrh and Irritable Sore Throat by Catarrhose.

A Remarkable Case Exciting Great Interest in Stirling, which, if possible adds to the popularity of Catarrhose as a cure for Catarrh, Bronchitis and Throat Trouble.

Catarrh is one of the most distressing ailments and at the same time hardest to cure disease. This has been Mr. McCallum's experience.

"For many years," he writes, "I have suffered from Catarrh and constantly larynx and coughed, so that my throat was always in an inflamed irritable condition.

"Doctors' medicine did not help me in the least, and all other remedies I used were quite useless. In consequence it was time wasted in suffering now and then, in another using a greasy ointment, and so on. Not one of them was the least bit of good.

"I heard Catarrhose favorably spoken of, and tried a sample, and it really benefited me more in a few hours than years of treatment with doctors' and other so-called remedies.

"Receiving such immense benefit from the sample, I got the complete outfit, large Hard Rubber Inhaler, etc., and but a few weeks of its use completely cured me of Catarrh and throat trouble.

"I recommend Catarrhose as the most satisfactory Catarrh remedy on the market. Every word said about it is true."

(Signed) "Richard McCallum."

Now perhaps you need a remedy like Catarrhose. It is the only treatment that is applied locally as well as systemically. The Inhaler clears the air passages, stops larynx and coughing, and purifies the breath.

The Catarrhose Tablets which are used in conjunction with Catarrhose Inhaler, drive all the poisons from the blood and build up the system to a healthy, vigorous condition.

The complete outfit costs $1, at all drug stores, trial also $5, by mail from N. O. Palmer & Co., Kingston, Ont. Buy Catarrhose today.

A GILT EDGE INVESTMENT

Investors should not fail to take advantage of this offer.

The patrons of the Times should read carefully the following article copied from the "National Banker" of Chicago, of date May 25, 1903.

Mr. R. J. Kidd, Fiscal Agent for Peterborough, is to be congratulated on securing the agency of the Oro Rico Mining Syndicate for this section and the Times speaks for him every success in disposing of the stock.

"Among the mines now operating in California that are the cynosure of public consideration and have every element of stability, permanence and profit for investors, we take pleasure in mentioning the Oro Rico Mining Syndicate, located in San Bernardino County, in that State. This property represents the last (large, consisting of 18 claims, the Quartz Hill with claims, and the Minnehaha, also with 6 claims, comprising 640 acres, a vast area of mineralized wealth. This mining property is an absolute group of producing mines for many years ago they pushed the project stage. The ores are a valuable combination of gold, silver and copper, with gold predominating; silver and copper being merely a small percentage of the mineral product. The immense ledges of ore below that abound on this property and which have given return on shipments of $100,000 to $250,000 per ton indicate beyond any question of doubt that this entire area is bedded with gold and only needs modern appliances of machinery and the paraphernalia of a complete mining outfit to make the shareholders in the Oro Rico Mining Syndicate possessors of valuable stock and a large and ready dividend paying interest. It is estimated that $40,000.00 has been expended in labor alone in the development of this splendid mining property; add to this fully $40,000.00 more in the purchase of these mines and their mining equipment and we have over $100,000.00 invested in one of the best properties in that country. The capitalization of the company is very small being merely $100,000.00. 2,000,000 shares of the par value of $1.00 each, have been set aside for the treasury, and the company is now offering 100,000 shares, the money derived from this sale to be devoted to the purchase of a large stamp mill, the present mill, just ready for operation, having only a capacity of 15 tons daily and insufficient to mill the vast ore bodies that permeate this valuable group of mines. The soundness of the fact that the ore is ready to be mined is sufficient to keep the present mill in operation for many years.

Early in 1904 this company proposes paying a quarterly dividend which they estimate will be about 10 percent on the par value of the stock. This is unusual and emphasizes the profit making and profit sharing ability of the Oro Rico Mining Syndicate. The National Banker in recommending this stock as one of the best purchases in the market today wishes to direct particular attention to the fact that the company have no debts, pay no salaries, and the company is now offering 100,000 shares, the money derived from this sale to be devoted to the purchase of a large stamp mill, the present mill, just ready for operation, having only a capacity of 15 tons daily and insufficient to mill the vast ore bodies that permeate this valuable group of mines. Early in 1904 this company proposes paying a quarterly dividend which they estimate will be about 10 percent on the par value of the stock. This is unusual and emphasizes the profit making and profit sharing ability of the Oro Rico Mining Syndicate. The National Banker in recommending this stock as one of the best purchases in the market today wishes to direct particular attention to the fact that the company have no debts, pay no salaries, and the company is now offering 100,000 shares, the money derived from this sale to be devoted to the purchase of a large stamp mill, the present mill, just ready for operation, having only a capacity of 15 tons daily and insufficient to mill the vast ore bodies that permeate this valuable group of mines. The soundness of the fact that the ore is ready to be mined is sufficient to keep the present mill in operation for many years.

MR. R. J. KIDD, FISCAL AGENT, PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO

The Oro Rico Mining Syndicate

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 20 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS. Want ledges of ore running from $5.00 to $50.00 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $75.00 to $100.00 per ton. This is not a five per cent. a month mine, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans. No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGEMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the dictation of your fore-sight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you valued until the Stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the Stock at present price. It will soon be 50 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mines and returned full of enthusiasm. The mines are turning out more richer than expected.

I can offer the Stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO-DAY—to-morrow it may slip your memory. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 25% per month.

England's "Guinea-Pig" Aristocracy.

We are all "ladies and gentlemen" now, but the ladies and gentlemen themselves—the bitter enemies of the latter—have not been so. The majority of them of being either the one or the other, says an English journalist. Shopkeepers sell their goods, "Guinea-Pigs" sell their wares. The following advertisement, which was quoted from a well-known London newspaper, bears out the charge: "A lady of title, moving in the best London society, is prepared to introduce a lady of means. Luxurious home in the West End, carriages kept. Terms must be liberal. The highest references offered and taken. Address Box —."

"A lady—a member of one of the old country families, having a beautiful place in the country, would receive a young lady during the winter months and introduce her to the society of the neighborhood. Good hunting, hospitable country. An unique opportunity."

"A West End drinker who desires to extend her connection wishes to meet with a lady, or ladies, who would introduce her to the society of the neighborhood. Liberal commission offered. The strictest confidence may be relied upon. Address —."

"An old-established firm of wine merchants (day) is desirous of obtaining West End orders. A high percentage given to ladies or gentlemen introducing business."

"To noblemen or gentlemen of position in society able to influence capital. A large sum wanted by an old-established firm. Genuine concern. Particulars in confidence through —."

"A young lady, rich, desires to spend the season in London, and to be introduced to the best set in society. Would pay handsomely for services rendered. Absolute secrecy guaranteed. Address Box —."

Our commercial friendships! Not content with selling worthless shares, ill-considered horses, impure wines and unscrupulous agents, the "ladies and gentlemen" of the day apparently sell each other to middle-class aspirants for social distinction and to tradesmen! They complain that their servants receive commissions, and accept commissions themselves! Our selling society is a combination of traits for all the trades! That explains, perhaps, why London "society" has become an object of general pursuit; it is the only "gentlemanly" profession left, now that competitive examinations bar the way to appointments and obscures under the Crown. How popular in the West End should be the well-known hymn as revised by Anderson Ward:

"I want to be an agent,
And with the agents stand!"

"This is tough luck," said Ham, merrily, as he leaned over the side of the ark. "What's wrong now?" queried Sam. "Why, all this water to fish in," replied Ham, "and only two fish!"

except an honest "Old Water" Song.

Josh Green—That, Mandy, is a freescape. I don't know as I like explain, exactly how th' freescape down the dinged thing, but s'pose it works on th' principle of a lightning-rod.—"Ladies' Weekly."

An Awkward Distinction.

Mr. Hanks—I wish you'd composed that with us to-morrow, please. There's only four of us—two very nice fellows—and yourself.—"Pick-Me-Up."

An Organ Out of Order.

The manner in which a gang of boys in Warsaw have been discovered broken up makes curious reading. A domiciliary visit had to be paid by the police to a house, and on the arrival of the officers no opposition was offered to their entry. Inside one of the rooms, however, they found a man playing a musical organ, and all the time the visit lasted the man remained at the house. As they were about to leave the house the officer in charge of the police, being something of a musician himself, asked the performer to play the Russian National Hymn before they left. This the man did, but the officer was not pleased with the performance, and complained that the player did not put enough expression into the melody. The man explained that he was unable to do so, as the loud pedal arrangement of the organ was out of order. The officer at once volunteered to repair it, and, in spite of the protests of the performer, set to work to do so. Great was his surprise on opening the instrument to discover that the pedal would not work because bundles of forged notes had been stuffed into the instrument. Arresting everyone in the room, the police carefully examined the organ, and found, besides the noted documents which revealed the membership of the gang of boys.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed tenders, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed, "Tender for Sub-structure of Bridges," will be received at this office until 10 o'clock on 3rd July, 1903, for the substructure of two new bridges, crossing the Welland Canal, one at the Town of Welland, and the other at the Village of Port Robinson.

Plans and specifications of the work may be seen on and after 2nd June, 1903, at the office of the Superintending Engineer of the Welland Canal, St. Catharines, where forms of tender may be obtained.

In the case of firms there must be attached to the tender the actual signature of the full name, the nature of the occupation and residence of each member of the firm, and further an accepted bank cheque for the sum of $5.00 must accompany the tender. This accepted cheque must be endorsed over to the Honorable the Minister of Railways and Canals, and will be forfeited if the party tendering declines to enter into contract for the work at the rates and on the terms stated in the offer submitted.

The accepted cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective parties whose tenders are not accepted.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

Six orders, L. K. JONES, Secretary, Department of Railways and Canals, OTTAWA, June 1903.

Newspapers inserting this advertisement without authority from the Department will not be paid for it.

MEXICO'S RICHEST MINES ARE IN MICHOACAN

Solomon, in all His Glory, Had None Richer.

Don Jose Laborda took $20,000,000 out of one mine in less than ten years.

Don Jose Laborda will yield many more millions in the same length of time.

Copper, Gold and Silver exist in Don Jose's mines in quantities equally as rich as those of the famous Laborda mine. Laborda did not save the copper. We will save it all.

SAFETY AND PROFIT. By investing in the Stock of the DOWNS LAMINA COPPER AND GOLD MINING COMPANY at the present stage of development, the SAFETY of your capital is absolutely assured, and your PROFITS begin the instant you become a stockholder.

Buy into a mine that is already a producer and where the stock is yet within the reach of your means. A few months hence this stock will be 100 or 200 per cent. higher.

AN OPPORTUNITY. This is the golden chance before the public—the "insider" generally reserves it for themselves, but the Don Jose mine is a Cooperative Company and no matter how valuable their stock may become, the voice of the smallest stockholder will always be respected on a par with the largest.

To Canadian Investors

THE GREATEST MINING PROPOSITION EVER OFFERED.

I am pleased to state that I have completed arrangements with the Consolidated Nevada Mining Company for the sale of a block of their treasury stock in Canada. It is a proposition I can broadly recommend, and has unlimited possibilities. The tremendous possibilities of WEDDLE and TONOPAH is becoming plain every day to the entire country. The spring rush into these NEVADA mining camps will equal or exceed that into Crisp, Clark, Dawson, or Tomba. The mines recently reported from Weddell and Tonopah have created the greatest excitement and the rush will soon be on. Everyone is waiting NEVADA mining stocks and prices are rapidly advancing. None offer better opportunities for profits than do the shares of

The Consolidated Nevada Mining Company

Properties in the heart of the Weddell district. High grade ore and lots of it. We are certain to cut the RICHEST VEIN IN THE DISTRICT very soon; then it's all off.

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and the return absolute safety is guaranteed, and yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be paid?

Then the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer.

STOCK MARKETS

PENNSYLVANIA

New York, June 30.—At no time since the panic days succeeding the free silver law has such an opportunity presented itself for the accumulation of first class securities at prices which will not only yield a high rate of interest to the investor, but also provide an extraordinary speculative profit in the advancement of price for the security itself.

Among the many good things now to be had it seems to us that none offers a better opportunity to the investor and speculator than shares in the great Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

A fair example of the business given to this road from distinctly local interests we might mention that a single street car line in Pittsburgh—the Carnegie—operated by the entire nation of the country.

To those all familiar with stock market affairs it is well to know that this company has recently placed upon the market an additional issue of stock but perhaps all have not yet thoroughly grasped the far-reaching importance of this move and what it means to the future of the company.

This issuance of this stock is not for the purpose of either buying or building parallel lines or for stock jobbing of any kind but simply to provide funds for the necessary improvements which the present and prospective business will warrant.

From among these improvements will be the great terminals in the metropolitan district, but on Long Island and in Manhattan, which will provide facilities for handling the enormous traffic of this road, both passenger and freight, in such a way that the investment will pay for itself many times over.

New York, June 30.—Wheat closed at 142½¢, corn at 37½¢, oats at 37½¢, rye at 37½¢, barley at 37½¢, clover at 37½¢, timothy at 37½¢, alfalfa at 37½¢, and other feeds at 37½¢.

Yesterdays items of news contained nothing of particular importance to color the stock market as a whole or in part. One element of danger by a serious disturbance in the money market, which even the syndicate managers feared could not be altogether avoided.

All doubt in this respect, however, came to an end at 11 o'clock on Friday, for there was no money market on Saturday, and Friday's call loans were unusually easy in anticipation of a good bank statement.

The other element of danger was a market speculation in Nature and led to do with the market for Penna. R. R. stock. A supported market is always to be feared. The feeling of relief was so great that there was no monetary disturbance over the Penna. Railroad transaction that the necessary disturbance prior to the first of July have been disregarded.

Yesterday's call rates naturally advanced during the afternoon and there is little doubt that will rise strong and higher today and tomorrow. Erie will probably earn 4 per cent. on all stocks this year. Strong bull sentiment in Reading. Trade interests more bullish on sugar. Livermore more bullish on wheat. Buy stocks on all small breaks.

Woman's Failure in Her Sphere.

Woman who chooses to stay in the home will be glad to know that the men are coming to their senses. Do you say, Charlotte Teller, in an interesting article in "Everybody's Magazine," Miss (or Mrs.) Teller starts off with the cheerful declaration that "woman has failed in her own peculiar sphere" who has "never made any apparent effort to change her environment by inventing ways and means; consequently her work is still disorganized and generally inefficient." But man is hurrying to her rescue. He is undoubtedly bringing order out of a domestic chaos by taking the various household occupations into the business world. It would be pleasant to record that he is doing this from a sense of gallantry, but it would be true—he is undertaking the work for business reasons, and for those reasons he is almost sure of success.

Man has taken weaving out of the home and put it into the factory, and he has taken over the manufacture of well high every article worn by every member of the household, from the shoes. He has solved the lighting problem, doing away with the troublesome kerosene lamp, and has developed the modern lantern, robbing wash-day of its old time horror. He has solved the problem of the kitchen. He has solved the problem of the kitchen. He has solved the problem of the kitchen.

"When man stepped over the kitchen threshold he showed his daring. But his scheme was again a valid one: it paid him to do it. He began to eat fruits and eat in his garden. He began to grow fruit from the home of the probable consumer and sent either canned or stored in refrigerator-cars which had come into being with the demand for them. From the foods for those who must cook, before hurrying off to work in the morning, delicacies for the opulent, and health foods for those who have acquired conscious distinction from too great unconscious servitude, were put in the market.

"The tendency of all occupations to leave the home has never been regarded as dangerous, yet it means that man is robbing woman of her sphere. He is finding labor in the home and calling for more of it upon the market-places and in the factories. Woman will answer the call and step into the industrial open with the assurance that her presence is needed there more than in the household, because man has stepped into her place in the laundry, the kitchen, and the sewing-room. He is doing his work better than she ever did it, because he is working on the principles he has found to underlie good results in any trade—division of labor and organization. When he has undertaken a domestic problem, he has looked it squarely in the face, and if the equipment was not equal to the demands of the situation, he has invented new and improved machinery. He has learned the value of co-operation between man and man, and between man and machine, whereas woman is so strongly individualistic with regard to her bread and butter as to be almost sure of success.

The out crop of the extension of the deposit has just been cut on the opposite side of the mountain from which the work was commenced, proving that the ore body extends through the hill.

M. M. V. GRANDIN, engineer in charge of the development work, reports the discovery of an immense body of gold, silver, and copper bearing ore from twenty-five to one hundred feet wide on the property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, at Cheticamp, Cape Breton. This is probably the first known instance in Eastern Canada of the unearthing of a large deposit of metallic minerals as such as made the mining industry of British Columbia, the Western States and Mexico of great magnitude. The discovery in Cape Breton tends to confirm the opinion of mining experts that Cheticamp is one of the most important mining districts in Nova Scotia. The Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, owns some of the finest sections of this district and has about completed the proving of a body of ore estimated to contain 100,000 tons, worth from $10 to $15 per ton. The main slope is down 130 feet all in one and the tunnel from which the mine will be worked has been commenced from the opposite side of the hill. The company expect to commence the installation of plant for treatment in three months' time. Surface buildings, etc., have all been erected.

Thousands of tons of Ore already in sight.

Every day adds to the proved value of the mine

THERE is no other form of mining investment than gold and copper deposits as they occur in immense veins and carry regular values. Many of the private fortunes of the United States owe their origin to a lucky investment in a gold-copper proposition. The property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, is undoubtedly one of the most valuable in the country. Besides its extensive mining claims the mining company controls timber for mining and building purposes and will also have natural water-power. The extension of the MacKenzie and Mann Railway from Broad Cove to Cheticamp this year will give this great mining enterprise all as well as water communication with all points. The undertaking of this Company is a sound business enterprise, organized by a prominent Nova Scotia business man, without the heavy over-capitalization, watered stock, promoters' take-off, directors' perquisites, etc., which characterize many foreign companies. The company is capitalized at the moderate figure of $500,000, and one-half the entire capital stock has been placed in the treasury in reserve. 10,000 shares of the other half are being sold for development.

A Limited Amount of Stock is Offered at $3.00 per Share (Thirty Cents on the Dollar). - Par $10.00

The Stock was started at $1 per share, and has advanced steadily to $3. Next advance will be to $5, and we expect it will be quoted at par—$10—within a year, based on ore actually blocked out. Less than 1000 shares will be sold at the present figure or three dollars. Applications for Stock should be addressed to

Readily Noticed by Her Blackish Cheeks, Bloodless Lips and Dull Eyes

Perhaps she is sixteen. Suddenly she came to lose strength. Her healthy face became far less vital than it had been. Dark circles appeared under the eyes which had been lustreless and dull. Her appetite dropped, for no girl can be contented and happy in such condition. This may be quickly corrected by taking Ferrumox. It supplies what is lacking in the blood, purifies and strengthens it, and keeps it in perfect order. Ferrumox makes plenty of red corpuscles that manufacture themselves in a healthy ruddy complexion. It aids the stomach to do all its work, and creates a natural healthy relief for food.

Every organ of the body is benefited by Ferrumox. It rebuilds the entire system, makes new tissues, strengthens weak flabby muscles, makes this people fat and sick people well.

No case of Anemia is so chronic for Ferrumox. It may take time, but it eventually will cure it. It will give you a well-developed form, clear complexion, pure blood, and will restore the blood to its normal state and color. It will strengthen weak flabby muscles, make this people fat and sick people well.

Every woman who desires a vigorous constitution, and the good looks that come with good health, should take Ferrumox after each meal regularly. It is a wonderful tonic for the brain, the nerves and the blood, and acts also as an efficient but harmless regulator of the menstrual flow. In fact for all diseases peculiar to women and growing girls, Ferrumox is as good as your druggist can tell you.

Three weeks treatment costs 50c. or three boxes for $1.50. Sold by druggists and chemists. In Canada everywhere, or sent by mail if forwarded to N. O. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL

AN APPEAL TO AID THIS MOST WORTHY INSTITUTION

All Classes of Citizens are Invited to Contribute—A Noble Work of Charity Being Performed

We publish below a letter from Rev. F. J. McCall, the esteemed Rector of St. Peter's cathedral, which we earnestly commend to the favorable consideration of our readers. There is no greater work of charity than caring for the sick, and this appeal, we are sure, will be liberally responded to. The following is Rev. Father McCall's letter:

Dear Sir,—For some time previous to last year St. Peter's Parish held, annually, a picnic for the purpose of paying off the indebtedness of St. Joseph's Hospital and assisting in its maintenance. Last year this manner of procuring money for the purposes was discontinued, and an appeal was made to the generosity of the people last year.

The most generous manner in which this appeal, made in the cause of charity, was responded to, left no doubt that the hospital was highly appreciated by all classes in the community, and showed that the people were most anxious to assist in the institution by their annual contributions, and that the aid of a picnic was no longer necessary for that purpose.

For this reason I again take the liberty of asking your assistance in carrying on this most commendable and charitable work.

The hospital is maintained in the most efficient condition. Its doors are open to the sick of all denominations. Since its establishment hundreds of poor patients of the Town have been received within its walls and given all the care and attention that the necessities of their cases demanded. A ward of the hospital is set aside for the care of contagious diseases, and the danger to the community, arising from this source, is a large extent diminished. By its great work of charity it has taken care of the poor and alleviated the suffering of the destitute sick and has undoubtedly saved the lives of many of our citizens.

It is a very considerable debt on the hospital and the revenue is barely sufficient to defray the expenses of its maintenance. The burden of supporting this institution rests mainly with the congregation of St. Peter's Parish. The Sisters of St. Joseph's Community, who are in charge of the hospital, voluntarily devote their lives to this charitable work, and an appeal is now made to the people, in whose midst it is being done, for their co-operation.

Your assistance is asked for a most deserving charity, and situated in our own midst, looking after our own poor, and sick, and their bereaved relatives, our citizens from a financial border that would otherwise rest on their shoulders.

I feel confident that the work that is being done by the hospital will receive your commendation and that you will aid it by your contribution.

A list of the contributors will be printed and distributed on the second Monday in July next.

Thanking you in advance for your contribution, I am, sincerely yours, W. J. McCall, Rector of St. Peter's Cathedral.

KILLED AT THE LIFT LOCK

Wm. Craig, of Ottawa, fell 50 feet to his death.

Yesterday morning about 10 o'clock, Wm. Craig met with death at the lift lock. It appears that Craig, with F. Murphy, Ashburnham, and R. Smith, Sheridan street, were riveting at the eastern junction, which was raised about twenty-five feet below. They were standing on the scaffolding, which by some means gave way. Murphy hung on to the steel work and escaped unharmed. Smith jumped and alighted upon some concrete work about twenty-five feet below. He received a nasty fall and a bad sprain of his right ankle. Smith is a heavy built man, and his escape from death was very narrow. Craig was very fortunate, and he fell on a concrete approach to the lock about fifty feet from where he was working. He was picked up unconscious and was conveyed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he died in about two hours.

Craig's home is in Ottawa, where he has a wife and three children living. He was twenty-eight years of age.

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Mr. John Kincaid fell with a bad hip in the Park.

While working on the new band stand which is being erected in Victoria Park, Mr. John Kincaid, the contractor, fell from the scaffolding, and fell about half-past ten he was engaged painting on the band stand, and was standing on a scaffold about eight feet from the ground. The horizontal beam of the scaffold rested upon two cross pieces nailed to the side pillars of the stand. Mr. Arthur Ash was wiring the structure, and when he stepped from his ladder to the scaffold, the scaffold broke and both men fell to the ground. Mr. Kincaid had both bones of the right leg near the ankle fractured. He was removed to his home, corner of London and Harvey streets, and his injuries were attended to by Dr. Carmichael and Dr. Eastwood.

Mr. Ash had his arm painfully, but not seriously bruised.

The Times extends its sincere sympathy to Mr. Kincaid, and joins his many friends in the hope that he will soon be around again.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

The steamer to Stony Lake will now be on.

Considerable local matter has been crowded out of to-day's issue.

A complete electric light system has been installed in the Barnard House by Alexander & Miller, Brook street.

The many friends of Mr. E. B. Stone, London, are pleased to see him on the streets again. He says he has been in London in the winter.

Mr. John Marston, Vancouver, in the guest of his sister, Mrs. Robert Nall. His many friends will regret to learn that Mr. Marston is seriously ill.

At a meeting of the Quarterly Officers of George street church, a resolution was passed to extend to Rev. Dr. Outram, of Belleville, to succeed Rev. J. P. Wilson.

A PAVING PROPOSITION

The Barber Paving Company Want to Pave Our Streets

Mr. J. C. Castle, of the Barber Paving Company, New York, was in town yesterday and Monday, interviewing the members of the Council in regard to paving our streets. This company is said to be the largest paving concern in the world, having plants in 123 cities and towns.

To the Times Mr. Castle said that Peterborough streets could be paved for about $1.50 per yard. The Macadam foundation which we have would save us about $2 per yard. This would mean that for $1.50 per yard the company would not only pay the cost of the pavement, but would keep it in order for ten years. This, Mr. Castle says, would be cheaper than our present system. A dollar and a half per yard would mean about $3000 a block.

The matter is to be brought before the Council at an early date.

CHILL WINDS

Are the dread of those whose lungs are "weak." Some fortunate people can follow the summer as it goes southward, and escape the cold blasts of winter and the chill air of spring. But for the majority of people this is impossible.

Family cures and medical obligations hold them fast.

"Weak" lungs are made strong by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures the obstinate cough, breaks the inflamed tissues, stops the hemorrhage, and restores the body to the enervated body.

"I am a railroad agent," writes I. R. Lee, of Berkeley, Calif., "and for years past my work has been keeping me in a constant state of nervousness, and I have been stepping out frequently into the cold air, which has become a chronic and deep-seated. Doctors failed to reach my case and advised me to try a higher air, but, fortunately for me, a friend advised me to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and I have been taking the first bottle I was better, and after taking about five bottles I am now feeling as well as I have ever felt in my life. I have found no necessity for seeking another climate."

Sometimes a dealer, tempted by the little more he paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines, will offer the customer a substitute as being "just as good" as the "Discovery."

NERVOUSNESS

Or depression caused by weak unhealthy nerves, are responsible for more sickness and suffering than any other disease. If you have a nervous system, your vitality is being wasted. Do not let a nervous system, which is the most important part of your body, become weak and diseased. Do not let a nervous system, which is the most important part of your body, become weak and diseased.

KIDNEYS AND BLADDER.
Have you pain in the back, a dull feeling in the region of the kidneys? At these times your water comes freely, a large quantity light in color, while at other times you do not make a quart of water. If it is dark in color, you make a small quantity, or you may have a nervous system, which is the most important part of your body, become weak and diseased.

PAY WHEN CURED.
You need pay nothing until you are cured. A thorough examination of your system is free. If you cannot pay, we will treat you. Do not let a nervous system, which is the most important part of your body, become weak and diseased.

In the last case mentioned the negro was lynched for having "seriously wounded" two men five years ago.

On Wednesday another lynching, probably a colored one, the Rev. C. H. Thomas, advised a meeting of negroes at Belleville, Ill., to meet their agents and buy guns to defend themselves if the hanging and burning of negroes is not stopped by the regular authorities. Meanwhile, however, the regular authorities are more interested in preserving the peace among the semi-barbarian people of Russia (who do not vote in Presidential elections) than among the highly civilized and Christian people of the United States.

FREE POSTAL DELIVERY

To the Editor of The Times.

Dear Sir, - While on a tour of inspection of the time watching out for the public interest, I should pass in my opinion on the proposed legislation, I think it will be of the greatest value to the public.

of both institutions should recommend a free postal delivery - free, I think, when the intention is to double existing postage rates for the use of the public. The thousands of dollars yearly are spent for postage on drop letters or mail bags at the expense of the economy proposed in this doubling the postage. I am informed that for people doing business within two blocks of the post office who think it more convenient to get their own letters, besides being at liberty to get them upon the arrival of every mail instead of only twice a day, as proposed, and if we are not at home when the delivery comes round, we will have to go without our mail or else incur the expense of providing mail boxes for the use of the public. The other small fraction of the citizens, they seldom use the post office, not nearly as often as they go to market or do their shopping, when it becomes convenient to call for their letters, as the proposed change makes no provision for the mailing of letters, it would suffice to call for our letters at the same time, as a change proposed by a few busy bodies.

Yours, etc.,

CONSENTENCY.

July 2nd, 1903.

YUKON TELEGRAPH LINE

It is to be thoroughly overhauled and repaired.

Ottawa, June 29. - The Department of Public Works is about to thoroughly overhaul the Yukon telegraph line, especially that portion between White Horse and the Alaskan boundary.

A special force of men will leave White Horse soon, and traverse the entire stretch of line northward to the Alaskan boundary.

Supt. J. B. Chapman, the main undertaking of the Yukon telegraph service was installed, through the Yukon and British Columbia wilderness, the charge of the organization and equipment of the new crew.

The fact that the line have not been down so much that spring as in previous years is perhaps due largely to the fact that the experienced men have been of profit to the line in preparing against the most probable break.

Mr. H. H. Blomstedt

Ottawa, June 29. - In a sermon on John Wesley last night in connection with the 100th anniversary celebration, Rev. S. O. Blomstedt said that if the Methodist Church had paid less attention to harping on such minor questions as amusements and (detested more attention to attacking evil and sin, and could not be the deplorable rotten state of affairs in Ontario politics to-day - a Province supposed to be one-third Methodist.

The Oro Rico Mining Syndicate

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, El Paso County, California, consisting of 30 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks unless already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLARS FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the fore-sight that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your fore-sight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock sold at par. The new Mining Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the stock at present price. It will soon be 50 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mine and returned full of enthusiasm. The mine is turning out more gold than expected.

I can offer the stock for a short time only at 30 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO-DAY to receive it may slip your memory. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 75% per month.

Anecdotal.

Thomas V. Powderly, formerly Commissioner-General of Immigration, met Senator Ferguson of Pennsylvania just outside the White House the other evening. "How's your good getting along?" a question asked Mr. Powderly. "The Senator said he was doing very well, but I suppose you might as well call it good as anything," he replied. "Up my call is looking on the bright side."

"Odds You?" Cannon sometimes gets asked for his metaphor when addressing the United States House of Representatives. While arguing against a bill in favour of a railroad, he once began in precisely the same terms as follows: "The railroad has been before the Senate on their knees praying and praying and praying," then, suddenly changing his tone, he concluded: "and, gentlemen, it is time to call their hand."

When a shot was fired in the wings of the Grand Opera House during the third act of "Carmen" on Zelle de Lussac's opening night, a disappointed spectator who considered Tennyson's Don Juan about "the time" remarked with a sigh of relief, "Thank God." Three about him, who shared his feelings, snickered sympathetically. But their smiles were turned to looks of laughter when Don Juan presently bobbed up serenely, and the talkative was exclaimed tragically: "Ye gods, her aim was bad! She missed him!"

An Englishman used to meet the great philosopher, Arthur Schopenhauer, every morning walking with his ugly pointer along the promenade in Frankfurt-on-the-Main. Schopenhauer's eccentric appearance, deeply immersed in thought, excited the Englishman's curiosity to such an extent that one day he could contain himself no longer, and walking up to the philosopher, addressed him abruptly thus: "Tell me, sir, who, in the name of fate, are you?" "Ah!" Schopenhauer replied, "I only wish I knew that myself!"

Net Goodwin was examining a canvas at an art exhibit in Boston the other day, when the painter of the picture approached him and said: "You seem to like that picture?" "Like it!" answered Goodwin. "A man who would perpetrate a thing like that ought to get six months." "Why, what do you know about painting?" he exclaimed. "You're only an actor. How can you know a bad picture?" You never painted one. "No," drawled Goodwin, "that's true enough. But I know a bad egg when I run across it, and, would you believe it, I never laid one either."

When Dr. Sewell, for many years warden of New Orleans, Orleans, was seriously ill, about a year ago, the doctors of the college, and, indeed, all his friends, despaired of his life. The senior fellow of the time, wishing to have all things in order, wrote to the Home Secretary for leave to bury the warden in the college chapel. Before the next college meeting the warden had recovered. He presided at the meeting, and with no little enjoyment read the Home Office's letter permitting his own burial. "It gives me great pleasure," said he, "to congratulate the senior fellow on his deliverance from the college and college."

not, however, truthfully say that I regret that both were wasted."

The late Dr. Joseph Parker, the great non-conformist preacher, would accept nothing but third-class fare when he visited his old home in the village of Port Robinson.

"Well, Dr. Parker, as to your fee?" "It is fifty pounds," the deacon demurred. Dr. Parker insisted. Finally the fifty pounds was paid. Then Dr. Parker said: "How this is not for myself. Some time ago you had $50 and $50—mentioning a somewhat obscure minister—to preach here. You know that his church is a struggling one and that he is a poor man with a large family. You refused to pay him more than his bare railway fare. To redeem this inquiry on your part I have charged you fifty pounds, and I shall send it on to him as his fee for the sermon he preached here."

The Rev. Washington Gladstone, after a lecture at Harvard, discussed with a number of students the Christian religion. The students, as is sometimes the way with young men, manifested a lack of faith. They were not ashamed of this lack, either. They seemed, on the contrary, to be proud of it. "I," said a lad of eighteen years, a freshman, "I am an agnostic." He spoke pompously, his hands in his pockets. He regarded narrowly the effect on Mr. Gladstone of his bold words. "You are an agnostic?" said the clergyman. "I am an agnostic." "What is an agnostic?" Mr. Gladstone asked. "Tell me, you, just what meaning you attribute to that word?" The lad swung round to the room. He still kept his hands in his pockets. "An agnostic," he said, frowning, "why, an agnostic is—ah—fellow—fellow—who isn't sure of anything." "How does it happen, then," asked the clergyman, "that you're sure you're an agnostic?"

"Puff"—Effectively Impossible.

The Canadian Parliament has passed a motion forbidding the import, manufacture, or sale of cigarettes—Morning Paper. Though "tis at best, a very old And somewhat feeble joke. For, though Canadian cigarettes Must not import or sell, They'll find that those they make themselves Will serve them just as well! —London "Truth."

Our Strictly Policed Women.

No women in the world are so strictly policed as ours for they watch each other. Huge incomes without any responsibility attached to the spending of them, lack of daily rational occupations, and a frank indifference to art and literature—not to mention politics and science—have turned our "Smart Set" into idle doxies, gorgeously dressed (and too often freshly painted, I fear), some of which can say, "Bismarck, Bismarck, I have been talking into them—Er."

WELLAND CANAL

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed tenders, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed, "Tender for Sub-structures of Bridges," will be received at this office until 10 o'clock on July 24, 1903, for the substructures of two new bridges, crossing the Welland Canal, one at the Town of Welland, and the other at the Village of Port Robinson.

Plans and specifications of the work may be seen on and after 22nd June, 1903, at the office of the undersigned, Engineer of the Welland Canal, St. Catharines, where forms of tender may be obtained.

In the case of firms there must be attached to the tender the actual signatures of the full name, the nature of the occupation and residence of each member of the firm, and further an accepted bank cheque for the sum of $1,000 must accompany the tender. This accepted cheque must be endorsed over to the Honorable the Minister of Railways and Canals, and will be forfeited if the party tendering declines to enter into contract for the work at the rates and on the terms stated in the offer submitted.

The accepted cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective parties whose tenders are not accepted. The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
L. K. JONES, Secretary,
Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, June 1903.

MEXICO'S RICHEST MINES

ARE IN MICHOACAN

Solomon, in all His Glory, Had None Richer.

Don Jose Laborde took $50,000 out of one mine in less than two years.

Don Jose Laborde Mines will yield many more millions in the same length of time.

Copper, Gold and Silver exist in Don Jose Laborde area in quantities equally as rich as those of the famous Laborde Mine. Laborde did not save the copper. We will save it all.

SAFETY AND PROFIT. By investing in the Stock of the DON JOSE LABORDE MINES, you are assured of the SAFETY of your capital is absolutely secured, and your PROFITS begin the instant you become a stockholder.

Buy into a mine that is already a producer, and where the stock is yet within the reach of your means. A few months hence this stock will be 100 or 500 per cent higher.

AN OPPORTUNITY like this seldom comes before the public—the "insiders" generally reserve it for themselves, but the Don Jose Laborde Mines is a Cooperative Company and no matter how valuable their stock may become, the voice of the smallest stockholder will always be respected on a par with the largest.

Look into this investment at once as there will be but a limited number of shares sold at the present low price. For particulars and price, address

TRANSFER OFFICE; BRISTOL, CONN.

This Company has a perpetual lease on 20 acres of proven oil land in Oklahoma Territory, in the Oklahoma district, and this section and the immediate vicinity have the best and largest number of producing wells in the entire district.

Our Well No. 1 came in in January and is now pumping and shipping Oil regularly to the Refinery.

The Directors have decided to put down Well No. 2 at once, and they now offer a block of the Treasury stock for the next 30 days at

10 Cents per Share,

It is a well known fact that a 16 barrel well will pay over 100 per cent. profit upon its cost.

This is no longer a speculation for we have proved that oil is on our ground, and we now have oil in paying quantities, with two wells pumping we can make pay dividends, and every well we put down increases our earning capacity.

This is a business proposition, managed by business men.

A Bit of Blue Enamel

or Traced by a Valentine.

"Come upstairs and let's have a look at it," said his brother, impatiently. "I never knew such a careless fellow. The horse would have been right enough if you'd let it alone."

And he cast an almost savage look at him.

All three gentlemen left the room together, Charles, leaning on his brother's arm.

In about ten minutes Edgar came down, looking cross and sullen.

"Is his foot really much hurt?" asked of Madeline, while Marjorie was conversing with the secret anxiety she shared not show.

"Oh, yes, he's hurt right enough," replied Edgar, crossly. "What did he want to go meddling with the horse for? His cursed folly may—"

He stopped short, biting his lip in some confusion, as the door opened to admit his uncle, and, behind him, Charles, with his injured foot in a large slipper and his face a trifle paler than usual.

Marjorie sent a glance of sympathy towards him, and he acknowledged it. The horse would have been right enough if you'd let it alone."

And he cast an almost savage look at getting near her presently, and taking her hand for a moment with a gently reassuring pressure.

"My dear, let me have a little music," said Mr. Hyde, turning to Marjorie; and she went to the piano, and played his favorite airs from Handel and Mendelssohn.

He praised her efforts, but scarcely seemed to enjoy them so much as usual.

He leaned back in his easy chair with his hand to his head, as though not quite well.

"Have you a headache, uncle?" asked Charles, with kindly interest.

"Yes, my boy, I have. One of those stretched headaches which make me feel ill altogether. I think, if you'll excuse me, I'll go to bed."

He rose as he spoke, and prepared to go good-night.

"Isn't there anything we can do for you?" asked Marjorie, gently, as she took his hand.

"No, my dear, nothing. A night's rest will do me good; but nothing else. God bless you! Good-night."

Then he took leave of his daughter and nephews. Never had Marjorie seen him more genuinely benevolent and kind. His fine countenance was not quite so bright and joyous as usual, but tenderness beamed over his every feature.

Long, long was it before Marjorie forgot his face and words, and the night after he had retired.

Charles was the first to go, then Marjorie; then Edgar and Madeline were left alone together.

When Marjorie reached her chamber, she remembered something she had left in the drawing-room, and went down stairs to fetch it.

What was her amazement, on opening the drawing-room door, which stood slightly ajar, to see Madeline kneeling at the foot of Edgar Hyde, imploring, her beautiful face expressive of a perfect agony of supplication!

Neither of them noticed that the door had been opened. It had made no sound, and their eyes were fixed upon each other.

Marjorie stood on the threshold, almost dreading to be seen, and yet, for the moment, feeling in her agitation, almost powerless to retire.

"Edgar, Edgar! think of yourself, think of me, think of—"

Her voice broke into a convulsive sob, and Marjorie could not catch the word.

"The man's brow was black as night. He scowled fiercely on the beautiful woman who was now clinging frantically to his knees, uttering an impression, and shook her off so violently that she fell forward on the hearth-rug with a deep, tearful sob, as if her heart was broken."

Marjorie stole away, still unseen. She shut herself up in her chamber and racked her brain vainly in efforts to discover what these things could mean.

CHAPTER X

What Marjorie saw, what Edgar Hyde could not sleep that night, and even when she did, she was disturbed by uneasy dreams.

Again and again in her dreams her father's murder was enacted before her eyes.

She saw the murderer steal away from her victim as he had done on that Valentine's morning nine years ago.

He stole away, but she was in pursuit of him—always in pursuit.

She sought him across deep waters and through dark woods, and always at the critical moment, just when she seemed able to hand him over to justice, an intangible obstacle intervened, and the weary pursuit had to be begun again.

From one of these oppressive dreams she awoke with a start, to find herself lying in an uncomfortable posture, and a pale moon, newly risen from behind a bank of clouds, stealing its rays into her room.

Mainly About People.

The minister called at a certain Canadian home just after he had come to his new pastorate. The small boy was present long before his mother came downstairs to greet the dominie. Trying to be cordial, the minister said, "How do you do, my little man?" "The five of us, six in school and three on the cars," was the delightful reply.

P. T. Barnum was a great practical joker. On one occasion he notified the dealer from whom he bought a large amount of supplies that half the pepper he sent him was pure. The dealer indignantly denied the charge, and quite a warm correspondence followed, it being finally ended by Barnum, who enquired whether half the letters in the word "pepper" were not p's.

On April Fool's day, the audience at an amateur dramatic performance in the Naval Academy at Annapolis was startled when one of the instructors made his appearance before the curtain about the time the performance was to begin, and solemnly announced: "I wish to make an announcement—a very sad announcement. Under the circumstances, I scarcely seem fitting that the entertainment should proceed. Word has just been received that one of the navy's vessels has gone down with all on board!" A hush of horror followed this gravely delivered speech, for most of those in the audience were connected by close family ties with the navy. "What was the name of the vessel?" came a voice from the rear of the hall. "The submarine boat 'Holland,'" replied the instructor, as he dodged and made a hasty exit.

A correspondent of the London "Outlook" tells a story which he heard Lord Dufferin relate of Sheridan Le Fanu's father—the Archbishop of Meath—a great stickler for punctuality, a regard his son did not share. One morning young Sheridan, then about eight years old, descended unusually late for breakfast, and was met at the door by his father, with in hand. "Is this right, sir; is this right?" demanded the prelate in stern tones. "I don't know, sir," replied Sheridan, looking at the watch and pretending to observe the question applied to it and not to his conduct. "But I rather think it's fast." For this impertinence young Sheridan was condemned to write an essay on "The Three Ages of Man." Here is what he wrote:

"There are three ages of man: First—When he is engaged in planning every conceivable mode of wickedness. This is known as the age of innocence. Second—When he is putting his wickedness into operation. This is called the prime of wickedness. Third—When he becomes anxious about his soul and turns to religion. This is dotage."

Thomas A. Edison is of the opinion that it was eager that first turned him toward inventing the incandescent light. He was, of course, in the early days, and Edison was then quite the inventor that one reads of—poor, enthusiastic, never sleeping. He lived in a small house, innocent of anything approaching a laboratory; scientific apparatus were in every room, and the money went to the collector for the gas company. He had been to the house often, but Edison, hardly heeding his calls, had waved him away, saying, "Don't bother me." On this last, all the collector's instructions were peremptory. He must turn off the gas. "But, sir," protested Mr. Edison, "I can't stop this experiment to-night. I'll pay the bill, of course. I didn't know about it. I'm sorry, but I can't stop with no laboratory." But the man was a gas collector and the lights went out. "That night, as I sat hapless in the darkness," says the great inventor, "I swore a deep oath, and I vowed that I would put all the gas companies in the world out of business. I haven't done quite that, but I did the best I could."

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay.

It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds; the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash? A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortunes of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurons, the Baldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at $1.00 per share down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $2,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1880 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

Mallory, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

Nor does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore sells only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours.

The Alaska Treadwell ore sells $2.38 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par.

No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management. Respectfully submitted,

A LIMITED NUMBER OF SHARES IN THE

The Minersville Gold Mining and Milling Company

Will be sold at 15 CENTS PER SHARE, PAR VALUE, $1.00.

Full Paid, Non-assessable and No Personal Liability.

READ THIS!

This Company offers one of the most and best investment opportunities in the world. Its property is located in the famous Boulder District, Idaho, and has for its neighbors such mines as the Bonanza, Red Boy, Kureka, North Pole, Columbia, Colorado and Crocker Oregon, which are producing from $100,000 to $200,000 each per month. This great property for which the underdeveloped Boulder District is more prominent than any of the big producing mines at the same stage of development.

The Company has three full claims, with two large veins, one six feet and the other twenty-two feet at the surface, showing good gold values and strictly free milling. The Company owns the property outright, being free from all debt and encumbrances and in order to equip the mine with modern machinery and to complete development work, a limited number of shares will be sold for a short time only at 15 cents per share, as announced above.

Investors who wish to place money in large or small amounts can do no better than to investigate this proposition. All information cheerfully furnished, and all cheques payable to

To Canadian Investors

THE GREATEST MINING PROPOSITION EVER OFFERED.

I am pleased to state that I have completed arrangements with the Nevada Mining Company for the sale of a block of their treasury stock in Canada. It is a proposition I can honestly recommend, and has unbounded possibilities. The tremendous possibilities of WEDGEMAN and TONOPAH is becoming plain every day to the entire country. The stock is sold into these NEVADA mining camps will equal or exceed that into Grizzly Creek, Nevada or Tonopah. The strike recently reported from Wedgemans and Tonopah have created the greatest excitement and the result will soon be on.

Everyone is waiting NEVADA mining stocks and prices are rapidly advancing. Now offer better opportunities for profits than the shares of

The Consolidated Nevada Mining Company

Properties in the heart of the Wedgemans district. High grade ore and rich in it. We are certain to cut the RICHEST VEIN IN THE DISTRICT very soon; then it's all off.

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all capital investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and in less than absolute safety is substituted, and yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company. You will naturally ask what this stock is and we will tell you. It is an investment in absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to you.

An arrangement has been made with the Trust Company to guarantee to the purchaser the return of amount invested within a given number of years. To substantiate this guarantee they issue to the purchaser of the stock a gold bond, which is secured by first real estate mortgages deposited with another Trust Company for the specific purpose of securing the bonds the underwriting company issues.

Then the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer:

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, in making effort to secure funds for the extensive development of its numerous mining properties and also of its oil lands, offers a limited amount of its treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Grizzly Creek, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of work and plant work has been done. It is proposed to place as many of these mining properties upon a shipping and self-supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas in its vast foldings of thirty-six hundred acres of oil lands in Hamilton County, Colo. In order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $100 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with no individual liability. This is one of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Fortunes have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are usually very great, especially when the stock can be secured at such a low price as this is now offered for. Now is the time to get in before an advance in the price is made.

The new railroad from Denver to Salt Lake, which is now building will be of incalculable benefit to the Company, furnishing transportation for ore and supplies, besides immediately increasing values.

STOCK MARKETS

The Wonderful Showing of Erie

Buffalo, N. Y., July 3.—The Erie R. R. Co. is up with a wonderful statement for May. Its report cannot fail to draw attention to the remarkable possibilities of the stock market. The Erie R. R. Co. has added to the gross total in a single month and over six hundred thousand dollars net. Despite the coal strike the profits of the road in eleven months are two million dollars greater than for the same period a year ago. The net increase for May equaled 60 per cent. The increase alone in net for one single month is only $11,238 of a year ago. On the second preferred stock, the increase alone in net for the eleven months would pay four per cent. on the first preferred stock, and leave a balance of over one hundred thousand dollars. A great statement for June, the last month of Erie's fiscal year is a certainty. It is expected to be the best monthly statement ever filed by the company.

In round figures in 1907, Erie earned $3,000,000 before charges, and 10 per cent on its first preferred stock. On the income basis of that year, with the probable addition of $2,000,000 further profits, results would show the amount required to pay dividends called for on the two preferred stocks and but a fraction short of four per cent net for the common stock. To buy the coal stocks, (any of them) at going prices will be to all intents and purposes placing yourself in more position to make money. Everyone of them are in the natural order of events bound to appreciate in value this summer; three agencies to be no mistake in the way of their improvement. We strongly commend all the Erie issues and the Reading, Ontario & Western, Norfolk & Western and Chesapeake & Ohio shares to light and to the eyes of the common investor. Erie is usually a good reason for a summer in the market value of their shares.

Market continued its march of improvement and stocks were in an eager demand at the advanced prices as they were at the lower figures. Steel preferred advanced over two points. All the Industrials were in good demand. Atchafalpa, and N. Y. C. sold ex-div. The railways were strong also. Improvement was general. A small reaction occurred during the day. It simply occurred in the buying demand. We are very bullish on the share market.

July 2.—Yesterday's volume fell considerably short of that of Tuesday. The improving market of Tuesday that at present and probably for some time in the future there is and will be greater activity on an advancing market than on a reactionary one. In the afternoon the market was inclined to follow the money market, the price of cotton and the Chicago grain markets.

London market off a seller of our securities and continued through the day, to the extent of 40,000 shares, evenly divided between liquidation and short sales.

Clo. Fuel declined sharply under heavy selling by Butler, Trice and Black & Co. Reports were current that the company was preparing to arrange for raising a lot of new capital which would supercede the existing $1,000,000 stock.

MURDERS IN CANADA

An Insane Laborer Kills His Wife Near Napue

Napue, June 29.—A most brutal and senseless murder occurred on Saturday at Napue, a village 10 miles from Hamilton, and about 10 miles from the city of Toronto. The victim was a woman named Mary, the wife of a laborer. The murder was committed by the laborer, who was insane. The body was found in a field near the village. The police are investigating the case.

It appears that the laborer was laboring under a delusion. He was a peasant, and that the Lord commanded him to play the devil and he was only carrying out the command of the Lord. He was a man of low intelligence and was easily led astray by his delusions.

The day before (Friday), about five o'clock in the morning, the laborer came to the house of his wife. He was in a state of excitement and was talking to himself. He was holding a knife in his hand.

Constable Cuddy's house in his back yard, and only partly dressed, and armed as a man, he entered the house. He was in a state of excitement and was talking to himself. He was holding a knife in his hand.

ORE BEARING SCHISTS FROM 75 TO 100 FEET WIDE

The out crop of the extension of the deposit has just been cut on the opposite side of the mountain from which the work was commenced, proving that the ore body extends through the hill.

MR. M. V. GRANDIN, engineer in charge of the development work, reports the discovery of an immense body of gold, silver, and copper bearing ore from which five to one hundred feet of ore has been completed. The ore is of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, at Cheticamp, Cape Breton. This is probably the first known instance in Eastern Canada of the unearthing of a large deposit of metallic minerals such as made the mining industry of British Columbia, the Western States and Mexico of great magnitude. The discovery in Cape Breton tends to confirm the opinion of mining experts that Cheticamp is one of the most important mining districts in Nova Scotia. The Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, owns some of the finest sections of this district and has almost completed the unearthing of a body of ore estimated to contain 100,000 tons, worth from $10 to $15 per ton. The main slope is down 120 feet all in one and the tunnel from which the mine will be worked has been commenced from the opposite side of the hill. The company expect to commence the installation of plant for treatment in three months' time. Surface buildings, etc., have all been erected.

Thousands of tons of Ore already in sight.

Every day adds to the proved value of the mine

THERE is no other form of mining investment than gold-copper deposits as they occur in immense veins and carry regular values. Many of the private fortunes of the United States owe their origin to a lucky investment in a gold-copper proposition. The property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, is undoubtedly one of the most valuable in the country. Besides its extensive mining claims the mining company controls timber for mining and building purposes and will also have natural water-power. The extension of the MacKenzie & Mann Railway from Broad Cove to Cheticamp this year will give this great mining enterprise rail as well as water communication with all points. The undertaking of this Company is a sound business enterprise, organized by a prominent Nova Scotia business man, without the heavy over-capitalization, watered stock, promoters' take-off, directors' perquisites, etc., which characterize many foreign companies. The company is capitalized at the moderate figure of $500,000, and one-half the entire capital stock has been placed in the treasury in reserve. 10,000 shares of the other half are being sold for development.

A Limited Amount of Stock is Offered at $3.00 per Share (Thirty Cents on the Dollar). - Par $10.00

The Stock was started at $1 per share, and has advanced steadily to $3. Next advance will be to $5, and we expect it will be quoted at par—$10—within a year, based on ore actually blocked out. Less than 1000 shares will be sold at the present figure of three dollars. Applications for Stock should be addressed to

HUGE WAR IN THE EAST IS NOW LOOMING OMINOUSLY IN THE HORIZON

Latest Despatches Say That Turkey and Bulgaria are on the Eve of Bloody War

Russia Ready to Take a Hand in the Trouble

Turks Waiting to See Which Way the Wind Blows

London, July 3.—That war between Turkey and Bulgaria is inevitable, who know the real situation will tell. The Turks are devoting the most strenuous efforts to put the inhabitants to the sword, and therefore, means likely to involve the great powers in a war that will mean thousands of lives and possibly the map of Europe being redrawn. Turkey is not the weak that many suppose her to be, at the same time she needs only the other great powers to give her the strength to fight. No war combination was so far from being a pretty fight. There are no men on earth than the Turks. They have a natural aptitude for life. The Turkish soldiers on the frontier, according to travelers have recently been among them in black bread and olive oil, and they are not only cheerful and contented as they have only been pleasure hunt. Greece, long known to be a country of danger, and Bulgaria will probably be the same unless the powers of Europe interfere in half. There are two sides to the story, and the "unpleasant" is not always as black as he is painted. As a matter of fact, the Bulgarians have been fighting in Macedonia, although the Bulgarians are quite naturally, Bulgarians, who, like the Macedonians, are Christians, side with the in their rebellion against Turkish domination and have recently furnished the Macedonians with arms, ammunition and even recreation, then, hardly blame the Turks for their actions. They would be either or from human if they refrained from doing so. Sympathy with the Macedonians is a natural result of these facts. If the Bulgarians had not fought with the Turks their villages would not have been burned and their people killed.

Japanese Gain Ground

A despatch to the Cologne Gazette from St. Petersburg says Russian sources in China report that the Japanese are gaining more and more influence with the Chinese Government in consequence of the Chinese belief that Russia is intentionally hampering China's development. It is added that notwithstanding the prohibition there has been large importations of arms into China from the Philippines and Japan. Yokohama, July 3.—It is rumored here that the Japanese naval manoeuvres off the island of Ma Su Pho (south of Korea) will be followed by a Japanese demonstration in Chinese waters. London, July 2.—The Australian Jews sent a resolution to Sir Marcus Samuel, Lord Mayor of London, in regard to the Kishineff massacre. It was similar in tone to the communication from the American Jews, which was forwarded to the Czar by the United States Government. Lord Mayor Samuel communicated the resolution to the British Foreign Office, which sent a reply, stating that the question referred to the internal affairs of Russia, and it was impossible for Great Britain to make any representations to that country on the subject.

FEW CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS DIE

South in the R. port Made to the Boston Convention
Boston, Mass., July 1.—Gratifying in the highest degree to the 8,000 Christian Scientists who crowded the Convention hall yesterday afternoon were the evidences of remarkable growth of the church as shown in the annual reports. The clerk of the mother Church reported an increase in membership of 3,000 the last year, making the total membership 27,000. This increase is the largest for one year in the history of the church. There are 600 organized churches, a gain of 50 during the year. The number of societies not organized, but holding regular meetings is 200, a gain of nine. Particular significance was attached by the followers of Mrs. Eddy to the announcement of the death of a member of the church at the rate among members of the Church as being but 2.21 per 1,000, against 18.75 per 1,000 in the City of Boston in 1902. The supreme hour of the convention came when representative leaders from all sections of this country and Europe gave reports of the condition of the faith and told of their triumphs. One of the most interesting reports was that of George W. Reed, of Berlin, which indicated a growth of two hundred per cent. in the year, and showed that the Christian Science text-book had been elevated in Russia, Hungary, Italy, Italy, Belgium, Holland and South Africa.

HOW CANADA VIEWS CHAMBERLAIN POLICY

Mr. W. A. Gill, of London, After This country's Opinion
Montreal, July 4.—"In connection with the proposal made by Mr. Chamberlain looking toward inter-imperial preferential trade, the opinion of Canada in that regard is much sought after in the Mother Country. These remarks were made at the Windsor Hotel by Mr. W. A. Gill, of London, England, who is representing the Morning Post of that city, in a quest after information as to how Canadians generally view the new fiscal proposals. Mr. Gill, after interviewing the most prominent business men in the city, many of whom he has already interviewed in London, has already formed a definite opinion. He has already seen a few of those prominent in the public world at Washington. "What views do the American publicans entertain as to Mr. Chamberlain's proposals?" asked the reporter. "There is as yet a great deal of uncertainty," replied Mr. Gill, "just as there is in London, and this is likely to continue in both countries until the proposals are made by a definite shape. The American publicans seem doubtful, as do many still in the United Kingdom, as to whether the Chamberlain programme will ever crystallize into definite proposals. It is not yet clear what the attitude of American business men generally." "What led principally to the recent great awakening in England in Canada and her affairs?" inquired the reporter. "Perhaps the war had more to do with that than anything else," responded Mr. Gill. "The people of Britain were grateful for the share which the Colonies, as a whole, and especially Canada had taken in the defense of the flag. And then again it is felt in Britain, as also in the United States that Canada is already a very important country, and will be more so as the years go by. At first the people of Britain thought that Mr. Chamberlain sought to commit them to a definite line of conduct on the trade question, but now they have come to see that he had in mind nothing more than an enquiry on the subject. His political opponents are now consequently directing their attention to seeing that the enquiry is conducted along proper lines. A large majority of the people in the British Isles are in favor of the most exhaustive enquiry, not only at home but throughout the colonies, and it is because of this disposition on their part that I am here."

JAPAN SENDS PROTEST

Britain and Flowery Kingdom Join in Naval Precautions
London, July 3.—A despatch to the Daily Mail from Tokyo says it is reported that Japan is sending a protest to Russia regarding the latter's action in Manchuria. It is also stated that Great Britain and Japan are sending gunboats to the Yalu River to watch the Russians there.

MR. M'NICHOLL IN WINNIPEG

Does Not Think Government Transportation System Would Pay
Winnipeg, July 2.—General Manager M'Nicholl, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, now in the city, interviewed regarding the rumor that the Government will build a transcontinental railway, said: "Such a railway could not earn money enough to pay for the axle grease." He did not believe there was any likelihood of the scheme being undertaken, and felt that the West had all the railway facilities it could support.

LYNCHING IN CALIFORNIA

Negro Hanged and His Body Riddled with Bullets
Columbia, S.C., July 4.—Charlie Evans, a negro, who was charged with attempting to assassinate Mr. Phillips and his daughter at Norway, Sunday night, has been hanged, and his body riddled with bullets at that place. He and three other negroes had been arrested and placed in the town guard house and placed in the station around it. The guard was overpowered by a mob, and the three were taken into the woods near the town. All except Evans established their innocence.

IMMIGRANTS FOR WEST

Adria Arrives from Hamburg with 673 chiefly Catholics
Halifax, N.S., July 4.—The steamer Adria arrived from Hamburg yesterday. She had on board 673 emigrants, principally Catholics, of whom, 563 were for Canada, and 110 for the United States. The Adria had a fine passage out. There was one death during the passage. Of the emigrants 514 were men, 118 were women and 41 were children. They were bound for the lower provinces, the majority of them having through tickets for Manitoba, etc. These bound for Western Canada left by train last evening for their future homes. A few were detained to undergo medical examination.

FAVOUR THE ENQUIRY

Resolution Passed on Preference by Free Trade Delegates
London, July 4.—At a meeting of fifty free traders, held in the committee room of the House of Commons, yesterday afternoon a resolution favoring an enquiry into Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's preferential tariff proposals was carried by a vote of 40 to 10. The resolution was that if they resulted in any departure from free trade, it would be disastrous to the country. Lord Curzon, chancellor of the exchequer in Lord Salisbury's administration, was mentioned as the originator of the proposals. It was declared that if they resulted in any departure from free trade, it would be disastrous to the country.

DIDN'T KNOW IT WAS LOADED

William Holbrook Shot in Thigh in Exam
Ottawa, July 3.—One of those unfortunate accidents which disturb the serenity of a busy street about 8 o'clock and fifteen-year-old William Holbrook has the ball of a thirty-gauge revolver in his thigh. The boy, who lives on Fourth Avenue, had gone to see his uncle, Amos Smith, 338 James street, to borrow a revolver, which he wanted to take with him on a camping trip. He found the revolver in a box, and he did not know it was loaded. He fired it, and the ball entered the front of his right thigh. The boy ran into the home of Dr. Leamer, who was summoned, who found the ball had passed in a slanting direction toward the knee. It is probable that a stiff leg will be the most serious consequence of the accident.

VENEZUELAN REBELS PLAN SECESSION.

Will Erect New Republic in Bolivar
New York, July 3.—News has been received from Trinidad that at a meeting held there by the principal Venezuelan rebel leaders, General Nicholas Rolando was elected unanimously to succeed Gen. Marcos as chief of the revolution. It was also decided to form a new Republic, to be called the Republic of Guyana, comprising all the eastern portion of Venezuela now in the hands of the rebels. This extends from the Gulf of Paria to the River Orinoco, and includes the rich Orinoco territory. The proposal is to make Gen. Rolando president of the new Republic. It is said certain English capitalists are interested in this programme.

SISTER: READ MY FREE OFFER

Wise Words to Sufferers From a Woman of Notre Dame, Ind.

I will mail, free of any charge, this Home Treatment to any lady suffering from female troubles. You can cure yourself at home without the aid of any physician. It will cost you nothing to give the treatment a trial, and if you decide to continue it, it will cost you about twelve cents a week. It will not interfere with your work or occupation. I have nothing to sell. Tell other sufferers of this (small) task. It cures all, young or old.

69 If you feel a hotting-down sensation, sense of impending evil, pain in the back or bowels, cross feeling up the side, a desire to cry frequently, hot flashes, weariness, frequent desire to urinate, or if you have Leucorrhoea (Whites), Displacement or Pulling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Tumors or Growths, address MISS MRS. SUMMERS, NOTRE DAME, IND., U. S. A. for the FREE TREATMENT and FREE LITERATURE.

TO MOTHERS OF DAUGHTERS I will explain a simple Home Treatment which speedily cures Leucorrhoea, Ovary Displacement and Prolapse, Irregular Menstruation in young ladies. It will save you anxiety and expense and save your daughter the humiliation of explaining her troubles to others. Plunkett and health always result from its use.

Wherever you live I can refer you to well-known ladies of your own spinster county who know and will gladly tell you how this Home Treatment really cures all diseases of the female system. Write today, as this offer will not be made again. Address MISS MRS. SUMMERS, NOTRE DAME, IND., U. S. A.

The Oro Rico Mining Syndicate

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 30 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGEMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the dictation of your foresight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the stock at present prices. It will soon be 50 per cent. higher.

I can offer the Stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO-DAY—to-morrow it may slip your memory. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 25% per month.

A FINE INVESTMENT

Boston and New Mexico Copper Company
Stock a Safe Venture

To the Readers of The Times:

Sir—If we can secure your attention long enough to read this, we have interested you.

Never in the history of the United States has there been such prosperity, such an abundance of capital seeking investment, such an exceptional offer to investors.

This is a sweeping statement, but as you well know, while thousands have invested and are reaping profits, now and then there is an exception, which makes the investor not only wealthy but, according to the extent of his holdings, very wealthy. The great difficulty in mining for copper is the large outlay of capital required before any tangible results can be obtained.

Now we invite you to an industrial enterprise where all the large investments have already been made and promptly—definitely—boasted. We invite you to invest in a mine proved by mineral experts and surrounded on all sides, as you will see by reference to the accompanying chart, by properties of some of the most prominent mining capitalists in the world.

We are not asking you to invest a dollar for nothing; the product, that has been done by others who are now ready and anxious for our copper, since we own one of the richest claims in the world.

Less than two years ago the Boston and New Mexico Copper Company, located in Sierra County, New Mexico, was a wilderness; time and time again experts had called attention to the immense deposits of copper in this section. Geological speaking, some great upheaval of nature caused a break between two ranges of mountains, and the mineral treasures were exposed to the surface.

To own one of these treasures with facilities for mining and marketing was a fortune to the possessor.

Many About People.

There's a late story about Christian Science. A Boston mother said to her little daughter: "If you had my faith, darling, you would have no toothache."

The child replied: "Well, mother, if you had my toothache, you wouldn't have any faith."

When Major-General Samuel B. M. Young, a United States army officer, was presented to the Kaiser during a recent visit to Germany, Emperor William asked him to look at the Kaiser's portrait.

"Not this way," General Young said to have replied. The Kaiser then enquired what parts he had visited, whereupon General Young said: "I have visited St. Louis, Cincinnati and Milwaukee." The Emperor roared with laughter, and took General Young to the Empress, to whom he repeated the witticism.

Not long ago United States Senator William F. Frye of Maine was summoned to prepare a will for a man who was very ill. It was necessary, of course, to secure two witnesses, and they had to be sent for. While awaiting their arrival, Senator Frye thought it his duty, no minister being present, to talk seriously to him. He told him that he was very ill, and that it was likely he would soon depart this life. "And are you ready to meet this great change?" Frye asked him. "I will be," was the reply, "as soon as those d—n witnesses get here."

The old story of the man who saw on the rail of the organ gallery in a little Western church a phylax bearing the words "Don't shoot the organist. He is doing the best he can," has lately been matched by another somewhat like it. A man recently returned from a mining region where, one Sunday, he attended a service in the only church of the region.

As he entered, the strains of an organ, apparently in great distress, reached his ears, and when he was seated he looked up to discover who the player was. On the back of the paragon organ which stood on the platform was a neatly lettered square of pasteboard which read: "Come up and try it yourself!"

Perhaps the best anecdote of Horace Greeley is that relating to Greeley's comment upon himself as a blunderer. He had made in an editorial by writing the word "Cattaraugus" when it should have been "Chautauque."

When the editorial appeared Greeley went up into the composing room in a great rage and called out: "What put that 'Cattaraugus' in there?" The printer all gathered around him, amused at his anger, until one of them, pulling down from the hook the original editorial, showed him the word "Cattaraugus" which he had written it. When Greeley saw the situation he assumed an air of the greatest meekness and drawled out: "Will someone please kick me down those stairs?"

When you are with the scientists do as scientists do. Do not, by your ordinary emotions, if you are making a discovery or confirming a known fact. The experience may not always be agreeable. Witness the plight of a guest at a dinner party who is asked to contribute to the conversation. He is always ready for use. Dissatisfied with a but, buttered biscuit, a young child threw the biscuit aside across the table, and hit the victor.

The father and mother took no notice of the incident, and naturally, the guest imitated their example. A second biscuit followed, and the guest was struck on the chin. He was about to make a remark, but the mother warned him to be quiet. "Sh-h-h!" she exclaimed. "The professor is observing him."

A lady's coachman—a crusty old fellow who had been in the service of the family in her father's time—gave her great trouble and annoyance on several occasions by not carrying out her instructions. At length his conduct became unbearable, and she determined to dismiss him. Calling him into her presence, she said with an much superiority as she commanded: "I cannot stand this any longer, John. You must look out for another situation. You will leave my service at the end of the month." The old servant looked at her in amazement for a minute, and then the characteristic "loyalty" came to the surface. "Na, na, my lady," he said. "I drove you to the bank to be baptized, I drove you to your marriage, and I'll stay to drive you to the grave."

Frederick of Prussia was an inveterate snuff-taker. There seems to have been some bad feeling between him and Count Scherwitz. His Majesty presented the Count with a snuff-box, on the inside of which was inscribed: "The Count produced the box at dinner and showed it to the Duchess of Brunswick. 'What an excellent portrait of his Majesty!' remarked the King. 'The King looked somewhat annoyed. 'Is it not a fine portrait?' said the lady, handing it to her neighbor. 'Most excellent!' was the reply; and the box began to travel in amusement for a minute, and then the characteristic 'loyalty' came to the surface. 'Na, na, my lady,' he said. 'I drove you to the bank to be baptized, I drove you to your marriage, and I'll stay to drive you to the grave.'

Interested Motives.

The first missionary who landed in New Guinea had many difficulties to contend with, of which the most persistent was the suspicion of the natives.

Bar. James (Gibson), who was there twenty years ago, says the prevailing theory was that the missionaries had been compelled to leave their own land on account of hunger. This was the conversation that took place shortly after his landing.

"What is the name of your country?" "Baritani," which is the native corruption of Great Britain.

"Is it a large land?" "Yes."

"What is your chief?" "A woman named Victoria."

"What a woman!" "Yes, and she has great power."

"Why did you leave your country?" "To teach you, and to tell you of the great Spirit who loves us all."

"Have you coconuts in your country?" "Yes."

"Have you yams?" "No."

"Have you sugar?" "No."

"Have you sweet potatoes?" "No."

"Have you breadfruit?" "No."

"Have you plenty of coconuts and breadfruit?" "Yes, a great abundance."

"You have nothing to eat in Baritani, but have plenty of coconuts and breadfruit with which you can buy food."

This Company has a perpetual lease on 20 acres of proven oil land in the immediate vicinity of the best and largest reservoir of producing wells in the entire district.

Our Well No. 1 came in, in January, and is now pumping and shipping Oil regularly to the Refinery.

The Directors have decided to put down well No. 2 at once, and they now offer a block of the Treasury stock for the next 30 days at

10 Cents per Share,

It is a well known fact that a 15 barrel well will pay over 100 per cent profit upon its cost.
This is no longer a speculation for we have proved that oil is on our ground, and we now have oil in paying quantities, with two wells pumping, we can soon pay dividends, and every well we put down increases our earning capacity.

This is a business proposition, managed by business men.

A Bit of Blue Enamel

or Traced by a Valentine.

The wan light looked curiously upon her, in her nervous and overwrought condition.

She got out of bed, with the intention of drawing down the blind.

But as she stood at the window, with the cord in her hand, she saw something which made her start violently, and strain her eyes to see more.

Her bedroom was at the back of the house.

It overlooked the wood; and, creeping down the slight eminence, under cover of the shadow of the trees, she saw two men coming towards her.

The stealthiness of their movements suggested guilt.

Across Marjorie's mind there flashed a recollection of the attempted burglary at Sir Edward Mortimer's house.

Were these two men the thieves, and were they coming to Deselade?

"I had better alarm the house, at any rate," was her swift thought.

But before she put it into execution, she took another look at the two men, now scarcely a dozen yards away, and in the full rays of the moon.

A shriek rose to her lips—a shriek which she repressed only by the most desperate effort, for in the men who approached, with the gait of midnight thieves, and carrying small bundles in their hands, she recognized her benefactor, Mr. Hyde, and his eldest nephew.

In one horrible moment the truth flashed upon the anguished girl.

These people were the thieves—this seemingly estimable family with whom she had found a home were a gang of desperate criminals, who assumed this disguise the better to carry out their schemes.

While she still stood beside the window, a third form came stealing down the hill from the wood.

It was a man, and as he drew nearer, the moonlight shone upon him, too.

Marjorie gave a little moan as she recognized her lover.

His crippled foot had been all a pretence—made with what motive she could not guess, but doubtless for the furtherance of some nefarious scheme.

He was walking very quickly, running almost, as though in desperate haste to reach the shelter of the house.

Marjorie left the window, and sank into the easy chair beside the bed.

A deathly faintness was stealing over her. She was aghast, and trembling from head to foot.

A new and more horrible suspicion had come into her mind, and she felt sick and dizzy beneath the overwhelming shock of it.

If these were indeed a gang of thieves, might it not be one of them who had murdered her father?

They were in possession of the locket. What more likely than that Made-line's account of how she had obtained it was false, and that one of the men beneath that roof was guilty of her father's blood?

The question was—which?

She asked it of herself with shuddering dread.

Surely—oh, merciful heaven! surely not Charles—not the man who had loved so dearly to whom her young heart had clung with such warm, trusting faith.

Madeline had sought to prejudice her against him. Could it be that she had done it to keep her from taking in love with her father's murderer?

There was agony in the thought—black, bitter agony.

She buried her head among the books and shook with grief and fear.

Presently she roused herself to think and plan.

The clock struck one.

She remembered then that it was St. Valentine's Day, the anniversary of her father's death.

How strange it on that very day she should be fated to discover his murderer.

Half mechanically she went to the chest of drawers, and, unlocking the various receptacles, looked for the bit of blue enamel.

It was gone! The ivory box was empty!

It could scarcely be said she was surprised at this. It only confirmed her terrible suspicions, and they need of little confirmation.

Of course, these desperate criminals would do away with the evidences of their guilt if they could.

She, a poor unsuspecting girl, had been easily duped by them.

But there was a sharp sting of agony in the thought that it was Charles who had stolen it, where she kept the bit of enamel.

She could not doubt that his was the hand which had stolen it.

As she sat on the edge of her bed in an agony of grief, her hands clasped, her pale lips moving in a convulsive appeal to heaven for strength, she heard sounds below—voices raised in fierce anger, and mingled with a woman's sob.

Flinging a dark dressing-gown round her trembling form, she opened her chamber door very softly and listened.

The voices came from the hall below.

She advanced a step or two, slowly, slowly, until she reached the top of the staircase, from where she could get a view of the whole group.

In the centre stood the elder Hyde.

Marjorie now saw his face for the first time without the mask of good humor which had served so well to disguise his villainy.

It was almost demoniacal with rage, and he was storming and cursing in the most horrible fashion.

It was Charles at whom his wrath seemed chiefly directed, and who stood almost with folded arms and down-bent head, without answering a word.

At the foot of the staircase stood Edgar, his face livid, his dark eyes flaming, and beside him, and only in her night-dress, was Madeline, her

The Boy.

This unspeakable little creature, which is well called "The Terror of the Neighborhood," is perhaps the most feared and dreaded of all animals, and the one that causes the most aggravation.

Most people have the same instinctive desire to throttle a boy at sight, and on general principles, that they have to kill a snake. Unfortunately, the law prevents this, and as it has been found inexpedient to keep it confined like a lion or a jackal in a steel cage, out of harm's way, human beings have been unable to protect themselves against a creature so bloodthirsty that it finds its chief delight in torturing its victims.

This causes everyone to view the advent of a boy in a community with alarm, while the presence of two or three degrades the value of property and makes nervous people flee from the vicinity.

Although naturalists have devoted much time to the study of this subject, they have never been able to definitely classify the boy, owing to his partiality for the obnoxious traits of all the other animals. Physically, it is all stomach and yell, with a rudimentary heart and no soul.

Notwithstanding all this, however, the boy is greatly esteemed as a household pet, and is quite generally kept in that capacity. Indeed, few families are satisfied and happy without one, although after having received one they never know another minute's peace and quiet as long as they have it about the house.

This is the most startling fact in all natural history, as having observed their friends' boys, one would think that no money could induce a person to undertake to raise a creature that was so much trouble.

In looks the boy presents a curious anomaly, as it changes at different ages. When it is quite young, and at the time, it may be observed, that most people select it, it is soft and beautiful, with an angelic expression that appeals strongly to female owners and causes them to rave over it.

As the boy gets stringy and long-legged, with pale green freckles and warms, and generally uncouth and unpromising appearance. Fortunately, however, by this time its owners have become attached to it; otherwise it would be cast out to perish.

The habits of the boy afford a most instructive study. It sits steadily from the time it gets up until it goes to bed, and devours the most indigestible substances with perfect impunity. Green apples, liquorice, hunks of bread and meat, doughnuts and whole pots of jam disappear down its throat without making the slightest commotion in its stomach.

When it is not opening its mouth to poke food down, it is opening it to emit a series of hideous sounds, so properly called a boy's howl, or boy's shriek. These sounds are unintelligible to human beings, but are apparently understood by its mates.

Naturalists also call attention to the fact that a boy is the only animal that spends its time in play, and it has been further observed that it soon wearies of any sport that does not hurt someone else. Another curious thing is that although a boy can play all day, he becomes ill and weary the minute work is suggested to him or he starts to school.

This is probably constitutional. Occasionally a boy has been known to do a few household tasks, but it requires so much energy and trouble to make it do any useful work that few people have the physical strength to attempt it.

Boys are also fickle, and frequently bite and kick when a pretty girl desires to kiss them, and stroke their hair. In time, however, they can be broken of this bad habit, and taught to endure female caresses with much equanimity.

The chief characteristic of a boy is his aversion to soap and water. In this it is like the cat, and it is with difficulty driven near the bath tub. It also balks at being dressed up and shown off before company. Now and then, it is true, you find one who will consent to be adorned in faunlike collar, and who will get into the most ridiculous little frocks without the whimper, but these are very rare exceptions.

Boys are mongrels with a strong streak of the wild in them, and it is for this reason that one who owns a boy believes that he is a wonder and will be a future winner in the show. He also bitterly resents the suggestion that his boy resembles the same characteristics of other boys, or would be guilty of such a thing as breaking windows or ringing old maid's door bells.

Most people, as has been said, like to keep a boy themselves, but all, without exception, object to their neighbors', and those who have none get even by prophesying evil things of the boy across the street. Sometimes, however, the creature turns up well, and then we all brag that we know it when it was a boy.

Came Out Just Even.

To illustrate how far wrong one may go in trying to estimate the goods and ills in a man's life, a speaker at a recent public dinner told this story: Two young Englishmen met at a college reunion after twenty-five years. They had been close friends in the old days, but had lost track of each other since.

"Well, Bill," "Well, Charley," "Tell me about yourself. Where have you been, and what have you done? What has your life been all this quarter of a century?"

"Well, Charley," said "Bill," reflectively and somewhat sadly, "I'm about where I was when I started out, twenty-five years ago."

"Yes; just about in the same place."

"But something must have happened to you."

"Yes, I've been married."

"That's good."

"Well, I'm not so sure—she was always a terrible shrew."

"That's bad."

"Well, I don't know. There was one consolation, she was rich."

"That's good."

"Well, I don't know. She was also stingy."

"That's bad."

"Well, I'm not so sure—she was always just."

"That's good."

"Well, yes, I suppose so. But she died."

"That's bad."

"Well, I'm not so sure. She left a great deal of money."

"Of course. That was—well, money is an advantage."

"Yes, it certainly is; but she didn't leave any."

"That's bad."

"Well, it might have been worse. She left me a fine house."

"That's good."

"Well, I'm not so sure—while it lasted, but the house burned."

"That's too bad."

"Yes, that was bad. It wasn't insured either. So I'm just where I was when I started."

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay.

It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds; the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash?

A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. (Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the poor of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurons, the Haldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied.

W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. Today he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at $1.00 per value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

There are many persons who assert that there is nothing in it for the average investor and that it does not pay to invest small sums in stock. Let such persons ask themselves what return they can hope to get through banks or real estate speculations, for sums of under $100.00, and then consider the following:

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $8,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1890 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in Tanarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $6,000.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

Malloy, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

Need it require immensely rich ore for successful mining?—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. One mine only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours. The Alaska Treadwell ore sells $2.38 per ton; the stock 100 per cent above par. No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management. Respectfully submitted,

To Canadian Investors

THE GREATEST MINING PROPOSITION
EVER OFFERED.

I am pleased to state that I have completed arrangements with the Consolidated Nevada Mining Company for the sale of a block of their treasury stock in Canada. It is a proposition I can honestly recommend, and has unlimited possibilities. The tremendous possibilities of WEDEKIND and TONOPAH is becoming plainer every day to the entire country. The spring rush into these NEVADA mining camps will equal or exceed that into Chippie Creek, Davidson or Noma. The strike recently reported from Weledind and Tonoah have created the greatest excitement and the rush will soon be on.

Everyone is waiting NEVADA mining stocks and prices are rapidly advancing. None offer better opportunities for profits than do the shares of

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and then thereof absolute safety is substituted, and yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company. You will naturally ask, "What is the nature of the investment?"

The answer is, "It is a guaranteed investment, and that it will be returned to you."

An arrangement has been made with the Trust Company to guarantee to the purchaser the return of amount invested within a given number of years. To substantiate this guarantee they issue to the purchaser of the stock a gold bond, which is secured by first real estate mortgage deposited with another Trust Company for the specific purpose of securing the bonds the underwriting company issues.

Then the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer.

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs.

Many other things, to secure funds for the extensive development of its numerous mining properties and also of its oil lands, offers a limited amount of its treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Chippie Creek, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done. It is proposed to place as many of these mining properties upon a shipping and self supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of oil lands in Huerfano County, Colo. In order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $1.00 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with individual liability. This issue of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Fortunes have been made by investments of this kind, and money more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are usually very good, especially when the stock can be secured at such a low price as this is now offered for. Now is the time to get in before an advance in the price is made.

The new railroad from Denver to Salt Lake, which is now building will be of incalculable benefit to the Company, furnishing transportation for ore and supplies, besides immediately increasing values.

STOCK MARKETS

Buffalo, July 3.—In early January and July, which are great interest-paying and dividend periods, there is always made or less a reinvesting of the sums received by owners of stocks and bonds, and many advance purchasers are made a few days before the actual anticipatory of the event.

The remarkable success of the new Iron-ore "boom," demonstrating the ability and willingness of the public to absorb good offerings has given a great stimulus to this class of buying, and the markets are now feeling a confidence and buoyancy that is not to be mistaken for a mere passing fancy. It did much to re-establish confidence and buoyancy in the fears engendered by the bears in their recent hostile demonstration against prices.

The Erie report was an eye-opener as it were, and right on its heels will come another magnificent report from another corner, the Reading. It is anticipated that the Reading will show an increase in net earnings for the month of May in excess of fourteen hundred thousand dollars. Just imagine what that means. The Erie and Reading reports recently issued were equally as good, and the Erie Steel Car Co. will make another remarkable showing. In each instance these reports are "record breakers," and the fact that a continuance of such reports is anticipated by the officials of each of these companies speaks volumes for the immediate future. The market went entirely too low as it was, it was fear and lack of confidence, not facts, and the actual report of the future that depicted prices. The work of repair should consequently be more or less speedy. We very much doubt if the market has afforded as good an opportunity for buying, either in the past three years or in the distant future.

Those who will come in early at the inception of the new upward swing, will do better than those who wait later when it is well in progress. You must not fear the temporary reactions that occur from time to time. Many of them are solely to induce people to sell their stocks.

New York, July 3.—Opening was fractionally lower, and during the first hour price movements were very narrow. Hocking Valley continued its weakness of yesterday with a sharp break of 4-1/2 points in the initial quotations. Aside from this the early market was without particular feature. Some nervousness was shown for five days, and showed a decrease of over four millions. Loans increased $2,587,000 while deposits decreased $129,000. Its publication had no effect on prices and the traders were out of town for the holiday and market was practically flat the balance of the day. Some activity may be expected after holiday, with gradually improving prices. We are well on the Reading and would give it the preference in purchasing. Sales 167,300.

The Mother-in-Law.

Very little is known of the origin of this species, writes Dorothy Dix in her "Studies in Natural History." Many people who have had opportunity of studying it at close range believe that the first one was the original serpent in Eden that put Eve up to making trouble for Adam, and that its descendants are still wandering about the Garden of Eden. In confirmation of this theory, writers hold by many men of experience, it is pointed out that the Mother-in-Law is generally the First Aid to the Divorced, and that in families where none is kept the wife generally lives and dies without eating of the apple of knowledge, and finding out that she is married to a brute and a poor, persecuted angel.

Generally speaking, the Mother-in-Law is indigenous to Europe and America, only a few scattering ones, and those of a feeble character, being found in Asia, and none at all in Africa, which accounts for the large number of recent years to the latter country.

Naturalists have no trouble in placing the Mother-in-Law among the predatory and man-devouring animals, but much difficulty has arisen in settling upon a claim to which it belongs, some students contending that because of its mania for putting its finger in everybody's pie it pertains to the genus ferus intermedialis, while others hold that its arbitrary temper and determination to rule the roost indicate that it is a species of the genus feminis hospitibus. An eminent authority, however, advances the opinion that while both of these theories are true, they do not go far enough, and that the Mother-in-Law is, perhaps, the finest specimen extant of the genus feminis stirps troubled.

In appearance the strange animal is what is described as bird-faceted, being particularly noticeable for the set of its jaw and the fact that it presents, from every aspect, an unyielding appearance. As a general rule, it is as small as it is brittle with furies as a porcupine does with quills. Its voice is also of a peculiarly grating and harsh quality, and has the extraordinary power of affecting men's nerves to the extent of driving them to drink.

The chief characteristic of the Mother-in-Law is its inability to let people alone. It can no more see a man and his wife happily going their own way in peace without wanting to throw a bomb in between them, than a dog can see a horse grazing in a meadow without snipping at its heels. This is not intentional mischief. It is just the nature of the beast, and it can't help it. It is built that way, with an insatiable mania for butting into affairs where it is not wanted. No man can hope to run his house, or play anything but second fiddle, who keeps a Mother-in-Law on the premises. As may be supposed, knowing the danger to which they will be exposed, and seeing the fate that has befallen their friends, no man desires to have such a household pet, but no credit and glory is the Mother-in-Law that it comes upon him unawares, and the first thing he knows one of these creatures is inalienably attached to his establishment. A great many men are able by strenuous labor to keep the wolf from the door, but comparatively few are ever able to fight off a Mother-in-Law.

Let it not be thought, however, that this bloodthirsty animal has been made in vain. Not without reason is it well called the Widow of Monogamy, for no man has such a horror of polygamy as one who has a Mother-in-Law.

ORE BEARING SCHISTS FROM 75 TO 100 FEET WIDE

The out crop of the extension of the deposit has just been cut on the opposite side of the mountain from which the work was commenced, proving that the ore body extends through the hill.

M. R. M. V. CHANDIN, engineer in charge of the development work, reports the discovery of an immense body of gold, silver, and copper bearing ore from seventy-five to one hundred feet wide on the property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, at Cheticamp, Cape Breton.

This is probably the first known instance in Eastern Canada of the unearthing of a large deposit of metaliferous ore such as made the mining industry of British Columbia, the Western States and Mexico of great magnitude. The discovery in Cape Breton tends to confirm the opinion of mining experts that Cheticamp is one of the most important mining districts in Nova Scotia. The Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, owns some of the finest sections of this district and has about completed the proving of a body of ore estimated to contain 100,000 tons, worth from $10 to $15 per ton. The main lode is down 130 feet all in one and the tunnel from which the mine will be worked has been commenced from the opposite side of the hill. The company expect to commence the installation of plant for treatment in three months' time. Surface buildings, etc., have all been erected.

Thousands of tons of Ore already in sight

Every day adds to the proved value of the mine

THERE is no safer form of mining investment than good gold-copper deposits, as they occur in immense veins and carry regular values. Many of the private fortunes of the United States owe their origin to a lucky investment in a gold-copper proposition. The property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, is undoubtedly one of the most valuable in the country. Besides its extensive mining claims the mining company controls timber for mining and building purposes and will also have natural water-power.

The extension of the MacKenzie & Mann Railway from Broad Cove to Cheticamp this year will give this

FERROZONE

Will give you an Appetite and good digestion comes health and strength

Ferrozone will in one week give you a splendid appetite, and will improve digestion and assimilation that full health will be derived from everything eaten.

There is nothing like Ferrozone to create a keen healthy relish for food for the brain, and a tonic for the nerves and brain. To those leading a sedentary life it is a perfect boon.

The renowned Dr. J. J. Turner, D.D., the well known Keweenawer of Ferrozone: "I have pleasure in saying that I have found Ferrozone a remarkably good preparation. It keeps up one's appetite, cures nervousness and sleeplessness, and perhaps the very best tonic I have used. Being in the form of chocolate coated tablet, it is both pleasant and convenient to take and is well worthy of my highest recommendations."

This is an example of the way people speak of Ferrozone who have used it, and should be convincing evidence of its unusual merit. It is warranted to cure indigestion, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, Rheumatism, Kidney and Liver Troubles, Catarrh, and all other diseases arising from impairment of blood or nerve tone.

Refuse to accept a substitute for Ferrozone. Every drugstore sells it 50c. per box, or three for $1.25. Prepared by N. C. Tolson & Co., Hartford, Conn., and Kingston, Ont.

S. O. E. NOTICE

The members of Lamsdowne Lodge, No. 25, S.O.E., are requested to meet in their hall at 315 sharp to-day (Saturday) for the purpose of attending the funeral of their late Bro. Spenceley.

J. J. TURNER, President.

A Three Pound Lance

Two of our local sports took a day off yesterday to try their luck at booking lunge in the Little Lake. After spending a few hours patiently waiting for a nibble a fine lunge was caught and it put up such a stubborn battle for freedom that the anglers began to wonder whether they had a 30 or 35 lb. fish. An eye witness, who happened to be an interested spectator, judged from the difficulty they encountered in landing their prize that they must have hooked a good sized "Sturgeon" but wouldn't it be a "Sturgeon" if it was a 30 lb. lunge.

Married at Niagara

An event occurred at Niagara Falls, N.Y., on April 22nd, of interest to many in Peterborough. Mr. Richard Simons, youngest son of Mr. Peter Simons, the well known merchant tailor, and Miss Mae Tison, of Alton, Pa., were married by Rev. Father McNabb, at St. Mary's church. Mr. Simons for the past three years has been a member of the Bennett & Macdonald Company, and is now filling a summer engagement through the Niagara Falls. They have many friends in wishing him a long and happy life.

Quaker Picnic Day

The picnic under the auspices of the employees of the American Cereal Company will take place today to Jubilee Point. The steamers City of Peterborough and Water Lily have been chartered for the occasion, and will leave the wharf at 7:30 and 8 a.m. Music for the day will be furnished by the 67th Regimental Band. A fine programme of sports and games has been arranged, and the winners will receive valuable prizes. Mr. A. P. McDonald is the chairman of the committee and has working with him a strong committee, so that a good day's outing is assured.

Cheese Men Observed

Toronto Star of late several complaints have been received by the secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance from several sections of the Province regarding the fact that work is being done by cheese factories on Sunday. On Saturday night milk is taken in by the factories, and this milk is worked over by the factory owners on Sunday. This violation of the Lord's Day Observance Act is under consideration of the alliance, and it is quite probable that they will take legal steps to put a stop to it.

A Talented Vocalist

Miss Nellie Davies who has graduated with honors as Associate of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, has returned home. The following extracts from "Toronto" concerning the exercises of the Toronto Conservatory of Music were held last evening before a very large audience. Hon. Richard Harcourt presiding. The programme was of the highest order, the students showing a really remarkable degree of proficiency. Of the vocal pupils Miss Helen Davies showed remarkable talent in her singing of "Hear Ye, Israel," from "Mendelssohn's Elijah." Her voice was especially sweet and pure, and her enunciation perfect. Miss Helen Davies sang an excellent "The Rose Tree," which was well received. Her rich, dramatic voice is an advantage.

Extending Double Track on Grand Trunk
The Grand Trunk have given out a contract for the construction of another section of their main line on the Middle Division between Sarnia and Hamilton. The successful contractors being Messrs. Ross & McCreary, who have done much railway building in Canada. The contract embraces that portion of the main line lying between Sarnia and Hamilton, a distance of 22 miles, and the work will be continued eastward through Stratford, London, Ingersoll and Woodstock.

The work of completing the second track on the Western Division between Kingston, Huron and Chicago is progressing very favorably, and the total distance between Montreal and Chicago over the main line will be completed within a comparatively short time. There are only some 65 miles to be finished on the Western Division, and but a few miles between Toronto and Port Hope, and the line between Toronto and Niagara Falls is completed.

THE LATE MR. GEO. W. HALL

Sudden Death of One of Peterborough's Most Known Citizens

Yesterday morning the community was startled to hear of the death of Mr. Geo. W. Hall, who passed away at eight o'clock. He was apparently in his usual good health on Friday evening, and on Saturday morning he was found in the adjoining room, heard by his husband breathing heavily. He at once went to him, and tried without success to revive him. A doctor was at once summoned, and everything possible was done to bring Mr. Hall back to consciousness, but without success. He lingered until 8 o'clock, when he passed away.

It appears that some years ago Mr. Hall had a stroke of apoplexy, which rendered him unconscious for about five hours, and it was thought that he was suffering from the same cause yesterday morning and would soon recover, but this hope proved groundless.

The deceased was born in Peterborough, where he has lived during his life of fifty-two years. For many years he conducted a successful business in town, but for the past number of years he has been working at his trade as a tinsmith, being last employed at the Cereal Works, where he worked on Monday. He was a member of the Methodist Church, and was a member of the Peterborough Lodge, A.F. and A.M., and of the Corinthian Royal Arch Chapter, and was a highly respected citizen of the town.

He leaves a wife and five children, Everett, of St. Catharines; Florence, George, Fred and Arthur, of town. The afflicted family have the sincere sympathy of the community in their great bereavement.

The funeral will take place from his late place of residence, 210 Simcoe street, tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock and proceed to the Little Lake cemetery for interment, and will be conducted by the Masonic Order. The Grandmen and the Tinsmiths' Union will also be in attendance.

—Mr. J. R. Robinson, Boleysay's progressive merchant, was in town yesterday. He came by boat to the harbor and returned by way of Lakeside and Burleigh.

—Special dividend on croquet sets and hammocks at Times Bookstore today and Saturday.

A MAN CAN'T swim in shackles.

It isn't a question of being able only to keep afloat. The man who is suffering from malnutrition is like the fettered swimmer. His stomach and the allied organs of digestion and nutrition are diseased.

It is not a question with him of winning the race, but of simply keeping up under any circumstances.

Whenever disease affects the stomach, it is affecting also the blood and the health of every organ of the body.

For blood is only food converted into nutrition and nutrition is the life of the body and every organ of it.

Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It purifies the blood and enables the perfect nutrition of the body which means perfect health.

"For six long years I suffered with indigestion and my liver and kidneys, which baffled the best doctors in my country. I was told to take a 'cure' of medicine from three doctors I grew so bad I could hardly do a day's work. I would have died of the disease, and I am glad to say I owe my life to Dr. Pierce."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach, blood and lungs.

The Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1000 pages, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 cent stamp to pay expense of postage and mailing.

SUMMER COLDS

Produce Chronic Catarrh.

Madame Isabelle Ellen Barnes.

Madame Isabelle Ellen Barnes, 12th Governor Grand Lodge of Free Masons of England, in a letter from Hotel Sarnia, Chicago, Ill., says:

"This summer while traveling I contracted a most persistent and annoying cold. My head ached, my eyes were sore, and I found my appetite, health and good spirits. Doctors prescribed for me all manner of pills and powders, but all to no purpose."

"I advised with a druggist and he spoke so highly of a medicine called 'Fennell's' that he induced me to try a little bottle of patent medicine. However, it proved such a help to me that I soon purchased another bottle and kept on until I was entirely well."

Madame Isabelle Ellen Barnes.

Summer colds require prompt treatment. They are always grave, and sometimes dangerous. The promptness and safety with which Fennell's acts in these cases has saved many lives. A large dose of Fennell's should be taken at the first appearance of a cold in summer, followed by small and repeated doses. There is no other remedy that medical science can furnish, so reliable and quick in its action as Fennell's.

Address: The Fennell Medicine Company, Columbus, Ohio, for a free book entitled "Summer Catarrh," which treats of the catarrhal diseases peculiar to summer.

With a View to Military Action — Turkey Massing Troops on the Bulgarian Frontier

Turkish troops are being steadily increased on the Bulgarian frontier. At the same time the situation is rendered more critical than it otherwise would be because of the strained internal condition of Austria-Hungary.

THE GREATEST MINING PROPOSITION
EVER OFFERED.

I am pleased to state that I have completed arrangements with the Consolidated Nevada Mining Company for the sale of a block of their treasury stock in Canada. It is a proposition I can honestly recommend, and has unbounded possibilities. The tremendous possibilities of WEDKIND and TONOPAH is becoming plain every day to the entire country. The spring rush into these NEVADA mining camps will equal or exceed that into Grizzly Creek, Lawson or Nome. The strike recently reported from Wedkind and Tonopah have created the greatest excitement and the rush will soon be on. Everyone is watching NEVADA mining stocks and prices are rapidly advancing. Now offer better opportunities for profits than do the others.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLARS FOR DOLLARS for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the dictation of your foresight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the stock at present price. It will soon be 50 per cent. higher.

I can offer the Stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

A Great Actor's Great Career.

London "Outlook." From a merchant's office stool in Newgate street to the unchallenged headship of the English-speaking stage is an epitome of the career of John Henry Burroughs, now Sir Henry Irving, Knight, LL.D., whose appearance this week on the boards of Drury Lane in Sardou's "Dante" is the event of the London dramatic season. But how much between the early struggles—bordering at times on privation—of this stage-struck Somerset lad; his hard but invaluable nine years' apprenticeship in the provinces in the old "drift" days before the actor's trade had become a profession; his triumph in "Hunted Down," which attracted the notice of Boucicault and led to his first London engagement; his epoch-making tenure of the Lyceum; his tours in the United States—all these are milestones in his career, and familiar to most playgoers. It was he who in our time was able to falsify F. B. Chatterton's flummery that "Shakespeare spells bankruptcy." In his own person, by his magnetic influence, Irving has been to the younger generation of actors and actresses, too, a stimulating and vivifying force; a worthy custodian of the traditions of Garrick, the Kembles, the Keanes, and Macready. Such passages in his life as the presidency of a local club, justice at a banquet in his honor, his delivery of the Rede lecture at Cambridge prior to receiving his degree, his triumphant appearance as Shylock before a German audience at the Berliner Theater, and his "command" performance on several occasions before royalty are added laurels to the brow of this great actor.

To mention Sir Henry Irving's name without linking it with that of his colleague, Ellen Terry, is impossible. The two have been so closely united in their art, almost without a break, for twenty-four years, that old playgoers resent the suggestion that the sense of a private grievance, the presence of the actress in management at the Imperial when the actor is at Drury Lane. But these things seem to be among the inevitables of the dramatic world. All the same, when one conjures back vivid memories of Miss Terry playing Ophelia to Sir Henry Irving's Hamlet, Marguerite to his Mephistopheles, and Madame Sans-Jones to his Napoleon, it is hard to stifle the feeling that this combination ended, some of the finest work done on our stage. People went, of course, to the Lyceum "to see Irving," but in so speaking they never forgot that they would see Ellen Terry as well.

The professional careers of Miss Terry with "Mr." Irving dates back, led, further than the Lyceum days, for these two young people were playing together in "The Taming of the Shrew" at the old Queen's Theater under the management of the "Widow" and "Nat," though Miss Terry is out of the "Nat," "Dante," is she a novice in Sardou's plays, for she was not, just three years ago, the leading lady in "Robespierre," which Sardou wrote specially for the Lyceum company? An unkind fate at times has decreed that she should enact the tragedy queen; but, as we all know, her truest successes have been in that species of comedy where gentle raillery and the display of wit and realistic merry mischief divide her work. Theater-goers of to-day are often unaware that Sir Henry Irving, too, possesses the gift of comedy to a degree which in the former judgment of some—overhead the large and realistic—warrant for that view is to be found in his impersonation of such characters as Digby Grant in "Two Roses," Jingle, and Jeremy Diddler. But his career was not in what is called the "lighter" branch of his art when he enlisted under Bateman's banner at the Lyceum, where his Burgomaster in "The Bells" took London by storm some thirty years ago, and to whose management he ultimately succeeded.

In poetry, and the drama tragedy is supposed to have a bracing and ennobling effect on the emotions. The tragedy of Sir Hector MacDonald, which is a tragedy of the highest order, would only furnish the materials for a coroner's inquest and a sensational paper. Sir Hector MacDonald's tragedy, that has ended the career of Sir Hector MacDonald, and is a tragedy of the highest order, would only furnish the materials for a coroner's inquest and a sensational paper. Cinderella Revised.

With some petulances Cinderella no longer that the pumpkin has been transformed into a golden carriage. "Does it not delight you?" asks the fairy godmother. "Oh, of course it is very pretty and all that," concedes Cinderella; "but surely you do not expect me to go to the ball in such a plain style?" "Pleasant!" asks the fairy godmother. "Why, that's the finest transformation I ever did in all my career." "Yes; but the automobile is the thing." "All right," grumbles the fairy godmother. She gives her wand another sweep, and the golden carriage becomes a huge tumbler, puffing and panting and ready for the spin. "How sweet!" chirps Cinderella. "But you're not going along!" she exclaims to the fairy godmother who begins to vanish. "Not much!" declares the fairy godmother. "No automobiles for me. Even a fairy has to adopt some measures of self-protection."—"Judge."

Author's Early Struggles.

A magazine of recent date contains several moderately interesting letters written by Blackmore, for which the publishers undoubtedly paid a good price yet "Lorna Doone" was offered to sixteen publishers before it found acceptance. The original manuscript of "The Bells" by Poe, was considered a great bargain when it was purchased a few years ago for two hundred and seventy-five dollars; but "The Gold Bug," now so frequently mentioned as a perfect example of the short story, was many times rejected. Thackeray was at first laughed at when he proposed having his printed work republished in book form. Many of his novels, including "Vanity Fair," appeared in "Fraser's Magazine." Jane Austen was likewise unfortunate, for it took her ten years to find a publisher for her first three novels. Fielding, too, found difficulty in disposing of "Tom Jones." Great Britain, however, did not contain all the unappreciative publishers, for Motley's "Rise of the Dutch Republic" and Mrs. Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" met with similar difficulties in America. For Charles Dudley Warner's "My Summer in a Garden" was rejected by two Boston publishers.

To come to more modern instances, Archibald Clavering (under the name of "Mr. Barnes") was rejected by every publisher in America, and England, too, before the author published it himself. In a yellow paper cover, and made a fortune. Many a worse book has appeared since in far more sumptuous binding. Irving's apprenticeship lasted ten years; his "Mistral" was declined by Blackwood, Bentley, Cassell and several other publishers before it was accepted by the Messrs. Longman, upon the recommendation of Andrew Lang. "John Strange Winter" wrote industriously for six years before her first cheque—for ten English shillings—came as a reward. Clara Louise Burnham's first two novels were declined. Walter Besant's first manuscript was refused by several publishers, and was finally destroyed by the author in a moment of despair. David Christie Murray's first book met with a similar fate. Harris's first stories had all been many times rejected before he put them together and tried to sell them under the title "Auld Licht Idylls." Even then the book manuscript was declined by many publishers. Edna Lyall's "Donovan," a book that made a fortune for its publisher, was many times rejected. Marie Corelli's "A Romance of Two Worlds" was again and again refused.

Sarah Grand's first book, "Ideals," was several times rejected. It was then thrown into a drawer, where it remained undisturbed for seven years before the discouraged author again offered it to a publisher. "The Heavenly Twins" was repeatedly declined. That clever bit of fiction, "The Tenor and the Boy," written by a short story, was declined by every publisher or magazine editor to whom it was offered; but as a chapter in "The Heavenly Twins" it created a furore. The author has been obliged to explain again and again why that cheap fiction was so popular. It was a short story, when Grand Allen first decided to write, he produced about a hundred magazine articles, every one of which was promptly declined by as many editors. He once confessed, however, that was the year from the time of the publication of one of his stories in a leading magazine before he was again successful in that particular quarter. Maurice Thompson once owned to having written a story that he could not sell, although he had offered it to every important periodical in the States and Canada. Even Mr. Howells's first work went begging; his "Venetian Life" was many times refused; and he, too, was holding a manuscript that he once tried in vain to sell. Riley labored for twenty years to get into one magazine; he was finally successful, but as they used to say in the concluding chapters of most national novels, "Joy does not kill," and the Hoosier Poet lived to get into the same magazine again. Perhaps no modern writer is more popular than Anthony Hope, yet all of his first work was rejected; his first five published books were only partially successful before the appearance of "The Prisoner of Zenda."—June "Bookman."

One Cause of Roosevelt's Success.

Much as the public at large respects and likes Mrs. Roosevelt, her fondest admirer is undoubtedly the President himself. Tinsley Streator, in "Good Housekeeping," relates that at one of the White House dinners he was asked by the President that it was wonderful how much Mrs. Roosevelt could do socially, and to how large a number she was able to extend White House hospitality; and the President looked pleased, and replied: "Yes, whether people may think of the President, I suppose it is pretty generally known that Mrs. Roosevelt makes a good mistress of the White House. I like her entertainments myself. Now, this is the sort of thing we all enjoy—it gives pleasure to her friends and is dignified in its entertaining. But," he added, "Mrs. Roosevelt is as good a mother as can be found in a good mother to six children, giving them her time and thought. You see, as she is in always attending to them herself, she manages to give me some time, too. Now, to-day she sits with me an hour and a half. She is a conscientious mother, let me tell you, with a heart full of love, always thinking of what is best for the children."

Strike Season.

The laborers were standing on masses about the huge rostrum erected for the present occasion. On the platform, speaking with the emphasis of a full-blown orator and with the allegorical gestulations of a Demosthenes, was the champion laborer of the hour. "Strike! strike! strike!" he shouted, banging his fist on the rail confronting him. "Strike! strike! strike!" he shrieked at the end of each platitudinous. "No doubt he was at one time in Congress," said another face individual to the man standing beside him. "Congress nutter!" said the tough one in reply. "Dat fellow used ter be a house ball umpire."—"Judge."

At the Pay-house.

"Where many people killed in the new tragedy?" "Yes, everybody except the author, and he refused to appear."—"Judge."

Men and Women.

It is a fact that the men and women of the world are not so different as they are made out to be. The men are not so much of a different color than the women, and the women are not so much of a different shape than the men. The men are not so much of a different color than the women, and the women are not so much of a different shape than the men. The men are not so much of a different color than the women, and the women are not so much of a different shape than the men.

OVER $1,000,000 ALREADY INVESTED.

Over one million dollars have been invested within a short radius surrounding on all sides the property of this company by Boston, New Haven and New York capitalists. All this has been invested quietly within the last two years, without any appeal to the public. Only one of these companies interested has put its stock on the market recently, and that at 60 cents on the dollar.

NOT A PROSPECT, BUT A WELL-DEVELOPED MINING PROPERTY. We have shown by actual mining that we have

A rich fissure vein. This company having paid a large sum of money for these properties, and also in the development of the same, now offer to the public 100,000 shares only of their stock in order to make further resources, so that when they start to deliver ore at the reduction works they can keep up the supply daily and by that means pay a dividend that does not fluctuate but that can be depended on by the stockholders.

TRANSFER OFFICE, BRISTOL, CONN.

This Company has a perpetual lease on 20 acres of proven oil land in SECTION NINE (9) of the Boulder district, and the entire district.

Our Well No. 1 came in in January and is now pumping and shipping oil regularly to the refinery.

The Directors have decided to put down well No. 2 at once, and they now offer a block of the Treasury stock for the next 30 days at

10 Cents per Share,

It is a well known fact that a 16 barrel well will pay over 100 per cent. profit upon its cost.

This is no longer a speculation for we have proved that oil is on our ground, and we now have oil in paying quantities, with two wells pumping to one case per day, and every well we put down to increase our earning capacity.

This is a business proposition, managed by business men. For further information and subscriptions to stock, address,

A Bit of Blue Enamel

or Traced by a Valentine.

her life had she witnessed such emotion as this.

But it did good.

It was more natural than that stony calm, and outraged nature was appeased by it.

Beneath Marjorie's sympathy and tenderness the wretched Madeline grew calm at last.

And then, in a broken voice, she began to try to tell her whole sad story.

"My father," and she shuddered as she spoke that word—"has been a thief ever since I was a little child. But I have not lived with him all my life. My mother and he had quarrelled, and I lived with her until she died. Then I was sixteen, and my father fetched me to live with him. He told me he wanted me in his business, and little by little, I began to see what that business was."

"He was no common thief, Marjorie, there was a diabolical cunning and cleverness in all he did. I had been well educated—as, indeed, he himself was—and he wanted me to help him to get the entire lot into the great houses he meant to rob. This I would never do, and he was fearfully angry with me, for he had a frightful temper when roused, for all his bland, pleasant looks. He said he wanted a woman in the business, and when I kept refusing he planned a cruel thing to bring me to his will."

"What was it?" questioned Marjorie.

"He threw me into the company of Edgar Monson—for Edgar's name was not Hyde. I must tell you; he was not my father's nephew, no relation at all, neither is Charles, Edgar's brother. They were both simply members of the gang."

Again she paused, then went on in a broken voice, and with many tears: "I know now that Edgar was deliberately set to employ every artifice to make me love him. He was represented in the best light to me. He won my sympathy, and, at last, my heart. How I loved him I could never tell you; I think that never in this world has man been loved by woman as he was loved by me. Well, I married him—not quite a year ago. He swore he would break with the gang, reform, go abroad with me, and live as honest life. I believed him—and a week after the marriage he laughed and boasted of the ruse he had adopted to bind me to him. I remember his very words—they burnt themselves into my heart."

"Not my pretty one," he said. "It is you I am going to reform. I am going to train you that you shall be the queen and head of the cleverest and richest gang of thieves in England."

"He did not do that, Marjorie. Try as he might, he could not bend me to his will. I hated and dreaded that life pursued me too much for that. But I never on loving him—I couldn't help myself. I loved him even though I soon saw he had ceased to care for me. Oh, what I have suffered—oh, Marjorie! Marjorie!"

Again she was convulsed with sobs and again Marjorie moaned her with all the tender sympathy a woman's heart can show a sister in distress.

After a few minutes had thus passed, she resumed her narrative:

"We came here—to this house—about six weeks ago. The object was to rob Sir Edward Mortimer. All the plate and jewels are kept on the premises there, and they expected a more than ordinarily rich booty."

"To achieve this, no expense was spared. This house was taken furnished; the servants were all members of the gang. We had been here only a short time, when he—my father—met with you. He had always said that a woman, young, and beautiful, and well-educated, would be invaluable to him; and it was his purpose to try to win you over. He showed you an advertisement which he pretended was his, and you believed him and came."

"Ah!" exclaimed Marjorie, in horror.

"Who could have suspected that a man who looked and spoke as he did, could have been so bad?"

"His pleasant countenance has been his capital always," said Madeline, bitterly, "and he has traded on it to the uttermost. With a view to impressing you favorably, he has assumed the appearance of great benevolence and piety; and this would have continued till he felt you were in his power."

"You were so young and so completely friendless that he made sure of winning you over in the end. You were to be tricked, as I was, through your affections. Charles had orders to do everything in his power to make you fall in love with him."

"Again an involuntary exclamation burst from Marjorie's lips.

"She saw the whole vile plot now from beginning to end."

"Her cheeks crimsoned, and she again turned pale."

"I did all I could, Marjorie, to save you from the snare," said Madeline, gazing on her very mournfully. "I dared not betray them. I dared not tell you the truth, but you remember how, whenever I could, I warned you against Charles. I hinted to you over and over again that he was unworthy of your love."

"Yes, I remember," acknowledged Marjorie; "and I thank you. It was not your fault that I wouldn't take your warning. Oh, Madeline, if I had I only had!"

And then, unable to bear her misery with calmness, she gave way utterly, and broke into tears.

"Dear Marjorie, don't grieve for him. He isn't worth one thought from your pure heart. Forgive me, darling, that I didn't tell you all the truth in time."

"I have only myself to blame," sobbed Marjorie. "You warned me enough. I ought to have believed you."

After a time she calmed herself, and turned to Madeline with gentle resolution.

"Go on, Madeline, tell me all."

"There is not much more to tell—just the end of the story."

For the Farmer.

A simple way to test the quality of all cake in to throw a few handfuls of the ground article into boiling water and let it cool. The amount of scum on the top will show the oil, along with the straws, chaff and light weed seeds contained in it; the sediment at the bottom will show the sand and dirt, while the odor will indicate whether it is made of sound or inferior seed. This last point is a very important one.

Potato-growing.

Few people study into the reasons for doing a thing, and instead of doing their work according to reason many do it according to "grandfather's rule," handed down from bygone days. When the soil was new, full of humus and plant food, and was light and loose, the roots could get through it to great lengths easily, and it cut off by a careless cultivator could get plenty of food in the circumscribed area; but now our soils have been robbed of all material which holds them up and keeps them mellow, and are sadly deficient in available plant food, so that a larger area is required to grow the plant, and an injury to the roots causes a failure of food and a lessening of the yield.

The ploughing and harrowing and extensive billing once in fashion is not the best method for the present time, and certainly is not the cheapest. It is said that when the potatoes were brought back to their native home from Ireland the practice of hilling was brought with them. I know of no other reason for it. In that country they made hills, to get them up out of the too moist soil; here we need more moisture as the roots are the means by which food is obtained; to cut off roots is to cut off food supply. The roots as they become old and tough lose the power to take in food, and the process is continued further out where they are smaller. The older the plant the further from the base is the food obtained. The growth and length of the roots are very great.

When the foliage is not more than ten inches high the roots are eighteen inches long; later they are from three to five feet. Should one wish to cut the roots carefully and get all the roots without breaking them, they would make a rope larger than a braid of a woman's hair. It is safe to say that by midsummer there is not an inch of soil in a potato field that is not filled with the roots. No deep cultivation can be given at this time without injury. Once I grew 100 bushels an acre without any cultivating at all. Potatoes grow in spite of, not because of, cultivation.

We cultivate to keep down weeds, to break up the crust and preserve the water supply, not to make potatoes grow. If you do not believe it, plant some early potatoes in a row, and see the method which will do all of these things best, quickest, and cheapest, without injuring the root growth, is the one we want and are seeking.

The previous preparation has much to do with the methods we can use, and the after treatment should always be kept in mind when planting any crop. Potatoes that are planted shallow must be hilled up some or they will be sun-burned; hence, level culture requires deeper planting. The new tubers are always attached to the stalk, and are always above the seed piece planted. Therefore, a shallow-planted potato must be covered by hilling to keep the new tubers covered. This hilling not only cuts off the roots, but gives the sun a chance to dry out the sides of the hills and decrease the yield.

Where the mark was shallow and the soil was not very mellow, I would plough deep between the rows, and use a one-horse plough or cultivator with very sharp teeth the minute the potatoes begin to come up and before the roots are long. I would turn the dirt into the rows, and completely bury the old potatoes.

At the first protruding tip. This will smother small weeds, cover them deeper and loosen the soil between the rows all the time. One operation, but a weeder across the rows should follow at once, to level and loosen the dirt that is on the plants. If you have no weeder use a harrow with "pig" teeth.

The roots are the canals and the water the agent which carries the food through them to the foliage. One must dig up the soil well, so the canal can get through it, and the capillary action will furnish water. This cultivation must be done, for no one ever succeeded in growing a good crop in hard soil, and it must be done before the crop is made (green) or it will be destroyed. After the first deep, thorough work, twice in a row, the teeth should not go deeper than two inches again at any time.

Where the tubers are covered four inches deep, as they should be, they should be harrowed with a smoothing harrow, or a spring tooth with teeth set shallow, twice before they come up. This will not tear them out; do not walk between the rows. Let the team walk on the hills. When they come up the ground should be as clean of weeds and as level as a house floor, mellow as a garden, and the undersides of the hills should be two inches high and have turned green, harrow or cultivate and follow with a weeder. Always use a weeder across the rows, as it will level down the dirt which is worked toward the plants, is less likely to cover with stone and takes out the weeds better. Work over the potatoes often enough to keep any crust from forming, to keep sprouting weeds killed, and raise a dust to drive away flea beetles.

Unless compelled by the manner of planting, do not hill up at all. The workings will work up a little soil, and there will be no need of surfacing toward the plant, but no deep trenching. By this method of using the team harrows and weeder the cost of cultivating should be only a few dollars an acre; for a boy, who costs 50 cents, and the team will harrow ten or twelve acres a day, and do it better than any man and cultivator.

The great trouble with all ordinary cultivation is that the weeds in the hill and the crust on it are not broken and both cause a loss, that the cost is too great and too much time is taken. To grow potatoes at from 10 to 20 cents a bushel we must adopt improved methods.—G. E. Chapman, in N. Y. "Tribune Farmer."

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash?

A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurons, the Baldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. Today he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at from $1.00 per value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $8,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1880 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

Malloy, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Fox owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

Does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining?—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore mills only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours. The Alaska Treadwell ore mills $2.38 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par. No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management. Respectfully submitted,

This Company offers one of the safest and best investments, as its property is located in the famous Stampeder District, Baker Co., Oregon, and has for its neighbors such mines as the Bonanza, Red Fox, Kureka, North Pole, Columbia, Colorado and Cracker Oregon, which are producing from $2.00 to $3.00 on each per month. This great property for which the undersigned is fiscal agent is more promising than many of the big producing mines at the same stage of development.

The Company has three full claims, with two large veins, one sixteen feet and the other twenty-two feet at the surface, showing good gold values and strictly free milling. The Company owns the property outright, being free from all debt and incumbrances and in order to equip the mine with modern machinery and to continue development work, a limited number of shares will be sold for a short time only at 15 cents per share, as announced above.

Investors who wish to place money in safer or smaller amounts can do no better than to investigate this proposition. All information cheerfully furnished, and all charges payable in advance.

THE IDEAL LIFE.

Joseph Silverman, D.D., Rabbi Temple Emanuel, New York.

And he said, Go forth and stand upon the mountain before the Lord—L. Kings, etc., etc.

There are times when we who have lived constantly in the valleys become dissatisfied with our surroundings, with the commonplace scenery, the narrow horizon and contracted vision, and look with envious eyes to the few who have succeeded in climbing to the mountain top. Then, under some sudden spell, we summon up courage, gather our feeble strength and attempt to climb the steep and rugged ascent. And when at last, after many trials and failures, we reach the summit we are fully rewarded for our exertions by the glorious sight before us and by the exhilaration of the upper air.

Those in the valley can see only a small part of the world's wonders—here a field, a garden, there a cavern, a river or lake. Upon the mountain top the sublime and awe-inspiring prospect of the world's wonderful design, beauty, majesty and power bursts full upon the eye. From below we saw only a few peaks; from above hundreds of peaks come into view, hundreds of smaller mountains, separated by undulations of green forests or by silver threads of limpid waters. From below we had a limited outlook, saw only our own confined surroundings; a few peasants, villagers or concited townspeople; beheld only petty affairs of mundane life, which seemed of such paramount importance to the denizens of the valley. From the heights we have, comparatively speaking, an almost unlimited horizon and can see at a glance many cities and villages, and in the distance hills and valleys, rivers and lakes, and beyond the mighty ocean embracing all things. From above all great cities seem but as tiny villages, men and women as tiny minuscules and our seemingly vast enterprises as the block houses of children at play. Standing there on the mountain top, in the very presence of the Lord, as it were, upon the throne of creation, we seem to realize a sense of our greater selves and our larger possibilities, and to feel that the people and the things we have left below are but the chrysalis from which we have escaped; that the world in the valley is but the stepping stone to the higher world above.

There are luminous hours in our lives when the soul yearns to emancipate itself from the limitations under which it was born and has continued to exist, and seeks to rise to some higher estate of manhood or womanhood. We have at our disposal the visions of men and women who have risen to spiritual heights which we aspire to reach. They seem to live on the mountain top of life and enjoy a greater and broader view of human affairs. They are men of unusual wisdom, profound reason, of uncommon common sense; men who stand on the vantage ground of truth, who love righteousness, exercise justice and walk humbly before their God; broad-gauged men, full of sympathy and love for humanity; whose souls men and women who smile benignly and speak graciously and wisely; philanthropists, who, like Divinity, are patient, long suffering and abundant in kindness and mercy.

In our better moments we yearn to stand upon such a lofty plane. Our ordinary lives seem commonplace, "wide, flat and unprofitable." We go constantly through the same routine of eating and drinking, sleeping and waking, the great masses team like thousands and millions and myriads of molecules and organized cells that contribute to the mechanism of the universe. We seem often to be only as the small teeth on the cog wheels of some cosmic life, rotating upon some another to move some other set of wheels and thus transmit power, vitality and growth to an infinite number of revolving wheels. Now and then some of us rebel against a cruel, at least an undesirable, fate. We aspire to some higher existence than that of the beast; we want to be something more than merely a part of a cog wheel; we have an ambition to be a power that moves the wheel, to be a conscious and active directing force, and a mere passive piece of mechanism. We wish to be not the clay that is moulded, but the potter who designs and executes the plan. In our better hours we reach out to such an ideal life that is far above our material, worldly existence, with its constant round of toil and care, coupled with only a modicum of pleasure.

It is such an ideal that reconciles us to the most bitter disappointments. It is the buoy that keeps us afloat in the tempestuous sea of life until some unexpected help comes to our rescue. The man without an ideal is lost in this world, selfish and cold-hearted world. He is subject to dependency, despair and a broken spirit that often follows bitter disappointment, and to the loss of health, happiness and integrity as a result of the deceit and ingratitude of selfish and treacherous friends.

At such a time the words "Go forth and stand on the mountain top before the Lord" appeal to us with a powerful force. Get thee out of the slough of despair, out of the valley where dwell the narrow and the evil minded, and stand on the heights of the ideal life, with the great and the good, before the Lord. This ideal forges the soul, brushes away the brooding care, drives away the lowering shadows and sends a ray of sunshine into our dark surroundings. We begin to feel that what we have lost is not all of life; there are still health, happiness and fortune in store for us; that the sea is never drained; that new friends can be made in place of the old; that all truth and justice, all appreciation and sympathy are not destroyed; that new love can grow even from the grave of a dead affection. The ideal gives new zest to life, a new halo to our surroundings. It awakens new opportunity and undying hope.

For the Queen's Nurses.

The King and Queen received at Buckingham Palace on May 21 a deputation from the committee of the Queen's Nurses' Endowment Fund, says The London Express, who handed over to their Majesty a cheque for £1,000, the subscription of four million contributors, which is the women's memorial to the late Queen and will be embodied in the endowment of the Queen Victoria Jubilee Nurses' Institute, towards which £200,000 was similarly collected in connection with the jubilee of 1887. After the deputation had been separately presented to the King and Queen, who cordially thanked them, the Marchioness of Salisbury, who presided, read a draft for £10,000, subscribed in England and Wales and by British residents abroad, together with a roll recording the names of the contributing counties and boroughs, and other details. The Countess of Cadogan, on behalf of Ireland, followed with a certificate for £2,000. The Duchess of Buccleuch had already presented the Scottish collection, which amounted to £12,000. Their Majesties, having endorsed each document with their names, the King replied in the following terms: "I am glad to see you on the success of your kindly labors, and I am very glad that so large a sum has been subscribed to so worthy an object as the Queen's nurses. It is an additional pleasure to the Queen and myself that this sum should have been collected as a memorial to my beloved late Queen."

The Queen, as patron of the Queen's nurses, also briefly expressed her thanks, and the deputation withdrew.

They Knew About It.

The Chicago Tribune is responsible for the following, which is applicable to others than those who live in that city.

"Say, boys," he broke in, "poor Jimmy Turner's dead."

Jimmy Turner was a jockey and trainer, well known on western tracks, and each member of the party heaved a preliminary sigh of regret at his falling off. But not one of them was surprised. No at all. Quite to the contrary. Every one of them had foreseen and predicted it time after time.

"Well, I'm not a bit surprised," said the first man. "The last time I saw Jimmy he looked mighty bad to me. Kind of peaked about the eyes."

"Yes," replied the second man, breaking in, "and he had that hectic flush on his cheeks for the last two months."

"I was telling my wife yesterday," went on the third member of the wise men's association, "that Jimmy wasn't long for this world. How long was he sick?"

"About a minute," said the newcomer. "He was run over and killed by a passenger train."

Should Have Been Spanked.

Before the Windsor Magistrates, The London Star says, a youth, aged thirteen, was charged with theft. Chief Constable Nicholas gave the lad a bad character, and said he threw him out of his mother and father, and locked them in rooms until they gave him money. The father said that once the boy looked downcast in room, prevented them catching a train, and demanded money before he would let them free. The boy was sent to the reformatory school.

The Dundee—You can "hammer for a week, but I don't let you out under a hammer."

Austrian Army Suicide.

Statistics of suicide in the Austro-Hungarian army tell a dark story. Even among the civilian population of that empire the percentage of suicide is high—1.5 per 1,000 inhabitants, as against .75 in Britain, though still lower than Germany, whose percentage is 2.7. Austrian army suicides are, however, as equal to those of any three other European armies put together. Britain's army of five men does not weary of its own existence. The percentage is 1.5 per 1,000, while in the Austrian army it rises to 12.5, double that of the German army, which may be described as a bad second, with a rate of 6.5.

Relics of Ancient London.

According to London papers, recently to hand, the workmen employed in the demolition on the site of the new Post Office House in the Old Bailey have unearthed a portion of the old Roman wall immediately behind the "Dead-man's Walk," the burial-place for executed malefactors in the old structure of the Old Bailey. A substantial piece of the old wall was known to exist at the back of Newgate, and there is a special clause in a contract for the present works there providing for the careful preservation of the relic. The old wall formerly ran almost parallel with the Old Bailey. The structure of the wall can be plainly seen on examination of the site, and is now being carefully excavated. Change of Life

A TIME OF INTEREST AND GREAT IMPORTANCE TO ALL WOMEN.

Menstrual health is produced by regularity during this trying period, and small wonder that women look forward with dread to the coming day, for it is a sign of a healthy system, and the beginning of an endless chain of troubles.

As soon as the unmistakable signs appear, women should take their time and pay attention to the signs. This can be accomplished by building up the system with Parvone, which produces blood, muscle, tissue, and strength to resist and ward off disease.

Parvone increases the assimilating power of the system, thereby strengthening and invigorating the whole system. It gives tone to the heart, regulates its action, removes disturbing influences, and it keeps the system in a state of perfect health. Parvone is a sensible and efficient tonic; it brings back strength very quickly, and few people are so strong and healthy as they would not be benefited by taking it.

Dr. Parvone is in every household, and is a very pleasant to take, one tablet after each meal. All reliable druggists sell it for 10c. per box, or three boxes for $1.25. By mail from N. C. Parsons & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Chamberlain's Election Funds

last, but you may be sure, that our people will not only consider any policy that the Secretary of State for the Colonies has to lay before his fellow countrymen.

"I have seen much change in English policy since the time of the late Mr. Chamberlain, and I am sure that the policy of the late Mr. Chamberlain, which was based on the principle of non-interference, is a policy which is now being abandoned."

London, July 6.—Mr. Wyndham, the Secretary for Ireland, speaking at yesterday's meeting of the London Union of Conservative Constitutional Associations, reiterated the fact that the Cabinet was united in holding that a review of British fiscal policy was being proposed by the Government in relation to the United Kingdom and the Colonies. He objected to the madness of the policy of the "open-eye."

A story is now going round in the Admiralty that the Admiralty is in command of a big election fund, which has been authorized to pay the expenses of candidates advocating his plan at the coming general election.

THE ADMIRALTY SUBSIDIES.
London, July 2.—The decision of the British Government to terminate its year from now the subsidies to the navy paid to certain merchant steamers for use as armed cruisers—announced in the House of Commons yesterday by Mr. Arnold Forster, the Secretary of the Admiralty—has caused the King's Steamship Company, as well as the Canadian, Lunenburg, Victoria, Umbria, Borneo and Australia, of the Canada Line; the Himalaya, Australia, Victoria, Arcadia, Britannia, Oceana, Peninsular, Oriental, Vallette, Maestri, Roma, Ostia, Balaia, and Paramatta of the Peninsular and Oriental Line; the Oceania, Maestri, Teutonic, Britannia, Germania and Adriatic of the White Star Line, and the Canada of the Orient Line. Mr. Arnold Forster said it was not the intention to entirely abandon the idea of subsidizing any vessels. There were certain things which could not be obtained by other means, and which could only be obtained by the Admiralty might, therefore, continue to subsidize for speed and other special qualifications which—particularly fitted ships for naval purposes, but every agreement would in future be made on condition that what was subsidized was something that could not be obtained in the ordinary course. The immediate cause of the withdrawal of the subsidies, but little doubt is felt that other means will be taken to encourage commercial steamship intercourse between the various parts of the Empire.

MR. DEVLIN IS CURIOUS
London, July 6.—Mr. C. R. Devlin, M.P., has the following questions to ask Mr. Joseph Chamberlain on Monday.

BARGAIN BABIES.

If he's ever for sale the most interesting bargain-hunting woman in the world would not look for a bargain baby. She would want the best baby that could be bought, regardless of price.

Every woman naturally craves a healthy, handsome child, and her craving can be gratified if she will but remember that the child's health is her own gift, and to give health she must have it.

My wife had been sick nearly all her life, and I had been sick nearly all my life. I had been sick nearly all my life, and I had been sick nearly all my life. I had been sick nearly all my life, and I had been sick nearly all my life.

My wife had been sick nearly all her life, and I had been sick nearly all my life. I had been sick nearly all my life, and I had been sick nearly all my life. I had been sick nearly all my life, and I had been sick nearly all my life.

My wife had been sick nearly all her life, and I had been sick nearly all my life. I had been sick nearly all my life, and I had been sick nearly all my life. I had been sick nearly all my life, and I had been sick nearly all my life.

My wife had been sick nearly all her life, and I had been sick nearly all my life. I had been sick nearly all my life, and I had been sick nearly all my life. I had been sick nearly all my life, and I had been sick nearly all my life.

My wife had been sick nearly all her life, and I had been sick nearly all my life. I had been sick nearly all my life, and I had been sick nearly all my life. I had been sick nearly all my life, and I had been sick nearly all my life.

My wife had been sick nearly all her life, and I had been sick nearly all my life. I had been sick nearly all my life, and I had been sick nearly all my life. I had been sick nearly all my life, and I had been sick nearly all my life.

My wife had been sick nearly all her life, and I had been sick nearly all my life. I had been sick nearly all my life, and I had been sick nearly all my life. I had been sick nearly all my life, and I had been sick nearly all my life.

THE T. A. S. GRAND STAND DISCUSSED IN COUNCIL

Ald. Morrison Refers the Question of Postal Delivery to a Committee of the Whole Council to Meet Friday Night

THE NEW GRAND STAND.

At last night's meeting of the Town Council, the question of the new grand stand at the T. A. S. grounds, being erected contrary to the building bylaw, was argued by Mr. R. M. Denison, who represented the students on McDowell street, and at the incipency of the proceedings, he was justly accused by every one that the stand has been erected contrary to the provisions of the building bylaw, therefore it would not be necessary for him to say anything further at this juncture.

Rev. Dr. O'Brien submitted that there is only one clause in said bylaw applying to the stand in question, and that is a sweeping one which reads that no wooden building of any kind shall be constructed within certain limits. The rev. doctor claimed might reasonably be applied to the construction of the stand. He came before Council not only as the representative of the T. A. S., which has a membership of 180, but also with the sympathy of a big majority of the ratepayers who recognize the good work being accomplished by this Total Abstinence Society, which is being treated unjustly owing to some technicalities in the law. Exceptions have been made in the strict letter of the law along Bethune street and King street to accommodate the interests of certain citizens, and he could not see why a similar exception cannot be made regarding this grand stand. It is not because the building is an infringement of the bylaw that such opposition has arisen, but because a few residents on McDowell street are opposed to it, and there are only two who view it as obstructing the stand. In Detroit and also in Ottawa grand stands built of wood have been erected in the heart of the city, and in the same manner some sound judgment why not accord the same privilege in Peterborough? Our stand is 90 feet from the nearest building, and occupies the rev. doctor, insurance agents, and the ratepayers in this vicinity will not support a grand stand which is practically dead in Peterborough because people have to go either to the Driving Park or Nicholas Oval to see a croquet or a baseball match, which they will not do, and the T. A. S. grounds are filling a long-felt want in furnishing opportunities for sport in the heart of the town. Some of these men who are objecting to the stand in question have never mentioned the building bylaw at all, but complain of the noise. Well this can't be avoided where matches are played, and the noise will be there whether the grand stand remains. It is not a money-making scheme, but has been suggested, and additional fee will be charged. We aim to encourage young men to go where they can enjoy healthy and legitimate recreation instead of patronizing the bar-rooms. "I might refer to many buildings which have gone up and are maintained in opposition to the bylaw, which, however, I do not think was ever made for such a construction as is at present being put upon it."

Mr. R. M. Denison replied that he was present as the solicitor of his clients who reside on the north side of McDowell street, and are opposed to the grand stand in question, and take exception to many of the statements made by the rev. doctor. He said there is a great danger of fire, as evidenced by the fact that on the site of present Central Park the same stand there some years ago for exhibition purposes were destroyed by fire, and although the houses in the neighborhood were not burned, their windows were broken and other damage sustained. These people claim there is more danger of fire from this stand than from the buildings referred to, as the former contains more inflammable material. In case of fire the trees which were planted along McDowell street some years ago and at considerable expense, would be destroyed. There is no case where such buildings in other cities are allowed to be erected. He has been erected contrary to the wishes of the people. Mr. Denison then went on to say that his clients claim that the unsightly appearance of the grand stand has considerably decreased the value of their property. McDowell street is one of the best residential streets in the town, and its residents are anxious to preserve it as such. The fact of this building bylaw being enacted was an innocent oversight. He expressed himself entirely in accord with what Dr. O'Brien had said as to the good work being done by the T. A. S., and the community as a whole are anxious to aid the doctor in his splendid work, but his feeling cannot be permitted to stand in the way of private rights of citizens.

Dr. O'Brien here remarked that some men take credit for the demolition of the stand by fire of the old buildings on the Central Park when used as fair grounds. He has offered to plant trees outside the fence on McDowell street to protect the trees of residents there in case of fire. He would be willing to submit the whole question to arbitration.

His Worship said the fire bylaw had been modified to meet the wishes of citizens on Bethune street and he could not see why a similar exception cannot be made regarding this grand stand. It is not because the building is an infringement of the bylaw that such opposition has arisen, but because a few residents on McDowell street are opposed to it, and there are only two who view it as obstructing the stand. In Detroit and also in Ottawa grand stands built of wood have been erected in the heart of the city, and in the same manner some sound judgment why not accord the same privilege in Peterborough? Our stand is 90 feet from the nearest building, and occupies the rev. doctor, insurance agents, and the ratepayers in this vicinity will not support a grand stand which is practically dead in Peterborough because people have to go either to the Driving Park or Nicholas Oval to see a croquet or a baseball match, which they will not do, and the T. A. S. grounds are filling a long-felt want in furnishing opportunities for sport in the heart of the town. Some of these men who are objecting to the stand in question have never mentioned the building bylaw at all, but complain of the noise. Well this can't be avoided where matches are played, and the noise will be there whether the grand stand remains. It is not a money-making scheme, but has been suggested, and additional fee will be charged. We aim to encourage young men to go where they can enjoy healthy and legitimate recreation instead of patronizing the bar-rooms. "I might refer to many buildings which have gone up and are maintained in opposition to the bylaw, which, however, I do not think was ever made for such a construction as is at present being put upon it."

Mr. R. M. Denison submitted that this is not a fire but a building bylaw, which provides for the manner in which buildings shall be constructed within certain limits. We have a perfect right to come here and construct a building of any kind. Mr. Morrison said the whole matter seemed a question of unreasonableness, and not one of danger from fire. He thought probably these people could be brought together and settle the matter by arbitration. Ald. Morrison moved, seconded by Mr. Morrison, that this matter be referred to the Legal Committee. Carried.

The adjourned regular meeting of the Town Council was continued in the Council Chamber last night, when there were present Mayor G. M. Rogers, in the chair, and Aldermen Edgewood, Morrison, H. Rush, O'Connell, Eaton and Denison.

From the Wm. Hamilton Mfg. Co., saying that on the 27th day of February, 1899, a bylaw was passed by the Town Council, stopping up and covering the Wm. Hamilton Mfg. Co., that part of Dowling street in the Town of Peterborough extending from Murray street northward to the line of the Grand Trunk Railway system. The bylaw provides that the same shall be executed until a resolution of the Council shall be passed authorizing same. They are now about to erect a large new brick building, about 80 feet wide by about 125 feet long, and the building will extend over greater part of that part of Dowling street which is mentioned in the bylaw. They would be very much pleased indeed if the Council could see their way clear to make a resolution so that they could get a deed of the land in question. Received.

From R. R. Hall, asking to be advised exactly where the Town Council stands the western limit of the right of way would extend along the river front opposite the station of the Ontario Power Co. - Board of Works.

ACCOUNTS.

A number of accounts were referred to the Finance Committee.

PHREASY COMMITTEE.

Ald. Eaton submitted the following report:

Gentlemen—Your Property, Building and Health Committee beg leave to report as follows:

For some time the accommodation of the Town Buildings has been insufficient, and difficulty has been found in carrying on the increasing business of the Town. One of the most pressing difficulties has been the want of a room for Committee meetings, in which the committee could discuss business, when necessary, without interruption, and with some degree of privacy, and the office room allowed some of the officers has become altogether inadequate for the amount of business that has to be transacted. The vaults are too small and it has been found necessary to rent a vault to hold some of the books and records of the Town. For we do not think the town has come to the point where it should incur the heavy expense of erecting new civic buildings. We therefore recommend:

1. That the offices at present occupied by the Tax Collector, and the room occupied by Mr. James English, be taken for an office for the Treasurer.
2. That a vault be built in the rear of this office.
3. That the Town Clerk's office be divided into two portions to provide for a committee room.
4. That arrangements be made with the Town Trust Commission for the use of the south store in the market block for offices for the Collector of Taxes, the Town Engineer and the Street Commissioner.
5. That the Chief of Police be given the office vacated by the Engineer, and that Mr. English occupy the room vacated by the Chief of Police. We also recommend that this Committee be authorized to have this work done and the alterations carried out.
6. All of which is respectfully submitted.

The report was referred to Committee of the whole with power to act.

LIGHT IN VICTORIA PARK.

Ald. O'Connell submitted the following report:

Gentlemen—Your Fire, Water and Light Committee beg leave to report and recommend that an offer from the Peterborough Light and Power Company to supply light in Victoria Park be accepted, and that the fire lights be placed in the Park; also that the drivers in the Fire Hall be given two weeks' holidays.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The report was adopted as read.

JOINT COMMITTEE.

Ald. Morrison submitted the following report:

Gentlemen—Your Joint Committee beg leave to report and recommend that the Chairman of this Committee be empowered to act in conjunction with the representatives of the County in the matter of repairing the locks bridge, as recommended by the Town Engineer.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The report was adopted as read.

BOARD OF WORKS REPORT.

Ald. Eaton submitted the following report:

Gentlemen—Your Board of Works beg leave to report and recommend that the applications of the Ontario Power Company for June last and June 18th, 1903, for permission to place poles and string wires on certain streets be granted, the poles to be placed subject to the approval of the Town Engineer.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The report was adopted as read.

Ald. Eaton moved, seconded by Ald. Eaton, that the property on Dowling street situated to by Mr. Hamilton in his communication above, be conveyed to the Wm. Hamilton Mfg. Co.—Carried.

COLLECTOR APPROVED.

A by-law approving W. J. Green collector of taxes for the year 1903 passed after several readings. The salary is to be $700 a year, payable in monthly instalments.

Ald. Morrison withdrew his notice of motion that the Government should be authorized to institute a free postal delivery in Peterborough on the grounds that such a petition would have no effect as account of the strong opposition offered to the scheme by a large number of merchants and a certain section of the press. At the same time, he urged that Council consider in Committee of the Whole the advisability of asking the Government to provide increased facilities at the post office and improved wheat delivery without unnecessary delay.

From R. R. Hall, asking to be advised exactly where the Town Council stands the western limit of the right of way would extend along the river front opposite the station of the Ontario Power Co. - Board of Works.

WHAT MR. GANEY IS DOING

Will Visit His Constituents at an Early Hour

Toronto, July 8.—Mr. R. R. Ganey, M.P.E. for Manitoulin, is in the city. He is at present representing Mr. Ganey, who said that he intended holding a series of meetings in Manitoulin, after which he expected to address meetings in various parts of the province. He would repeat his story made in the floor of the House, and would deny the Provincial Secretary and the Government to proceed against him for slander. He would not be under the protection afforded as a Member of Parliament.

FOURTY-FIVE PEOPLE MISSING

Over The Number Missing From Their Homes in the City

Manitowish, July 7.—There are more than forty-five people missing from their homes in the city at the present time. On Monday morning the remains of a young man, apparently about 20 years of age, with light mustache and light hair, was found in the river, as announced in yesterday's paper. Since the announcement a steady procession of relatives, Mr. Wilson, the deputy coroner, states that there never was any one day so much as a quest. The identification of the young man has not yet been completed, and, as a result, an inquest will not be held for a day or two.

ROWLEY'S TRIAL FIXED FOR MONDAY, JULY 20

Prisoner Pleaded Not Guilty to Several Charges

St. Thomas, Ont., July 8.—The full list of the indictments of George Rowley, ex-manager of the High Loan Company, have not yet been made public, but it is stated that the indictments are in the hands of Crown Attorney Dunlop, and which amount to nearly $50,000, are only a portion of Rowley's alleged stealings.

The audit of the books of the company is still in progress, but your correspondent is informed by one acquainted with the facts that the total amount of Rowley's defalcation will be between $175,000 and $200,000. The examination of the mortgages now going on shows that these documents have been tampered with as well as the ledgers. The indictments will have a statement of the affairs of the company read before the close of the week.

Rowley spends most of his time in reading and he always keeps the Blues by his side. His main aim is to take the goal for him by his relations.

WILL RUN TO ST. LOUIS

Grand Trunk Railway Men a Valuable Contribution

Montreal, July 8.—The Grand Trunk Railway will be running trains into St. Louis over its own line in August by means of the recently acquired Canadian Pacific line.

The St. Louis line will be operated jointly by the Grand Trunk and the Canadian Pacific, and the latter will have a separate board of directors.

The heading officials will be President Mr. Charles M. Hays; Vice-President, Mr. J. M. Merion, who is President of the Toledo, St. Louis & Western, and Mr. J. H. Muir, the secretary-treasurer.

The board of directors of the new corporation was elected yesterday.

Mr. R. A. Logan, the assistant to the general manager of the U. T. R., informed a reporter this afternoon that the through service to St. Louis would be in operation early next month, but that no decision had been made as to how many trains would be run each day.

MR. WHITNEY INTERVIEWED

Conservative Leader in Ontario is Expected to Retire

Ottawa, July 8.—Mr. J. P. Whitney, K. C., leader of the Opposition in the Ontario Legislature, was in the city yesterday, the guest of his brother, Mr. J. C. Whitney, manager of the Conservative Press.

Mr. Whitney is looking well after the election of the summer and is confident of the early triumph of his party at the polls. He said that his party charges that "As I said in the Legislature, I have no doubt that public opinion is satisfied that the Ganeys charge were the main substantiated, and they will play a part in the bye-elections when they may be brought on. There is, however, no certainty when the elections will be held."

Mr. Whitney will be speaking at North Bay, and he will be speaking at North Bay, and he will be speaking at North Bay.

THE PREFERENTIAL TARIFF AND PROTECTION

Significant Article in the London Economist

British Trade Grows

With Canada Despite American Slaughter Methods—The Canadian Militia, Chamberlain Wants a Conference

London, July 7.—There is a long and obviously inspired article in the current number of the Economist dealing with Canada's preferential tariff and explaining the American trade increase in Canadian markets.

It is pointed out that although there has been a rapid increase in British exports to Canada, the Americans sell their goods in Canada at prices lower than in the United States, and are also content with smaller profits than English manufacturers. Per capita, Great Britain sells seven times as much to Canada as to America.

The article maintains that, considering the advantages of the American over the British manufacturer, the wonder is that the British sell so much.

The writer concludes by saying: "A protective preferential tariff seems the best available expedient to save Canadian manufacturers from being bound hand and foot under the mercies of the United States industrial corporations."

The Economist circulates largely among bankers and business men, to whom this excellent statement of the working of the preference is bound to appeal.

THE PHYSIQUE OF THE RACE.

London, July 7.—The Bishop of Higon, the orator of the Anglican Church, dealing in the House of Lords yesterday with the question of the physique of the race, asked, "Were we sending to the colonies in sufficient quantity and quality, a race calculated to hold the Empire together and fulfil the destinies of the British people?" He deplored the diminution of the birth rate in Canada and the other colonies. "We ought not to be satisfied with an Empire of square miles. We were not bringing up, either in the Home Land or the colonies, the number of children necessary to bear the strain of the responsibilities of the Empire of the future." If a child, once a welcome addition to a home, was now regarded as a burden, then he declared the Empire to be doomed.

THE CANADIAN MILITIA.

London, July 7.—The Colonial Secretary has invited the Canadian Government to discuss certain proposed amendments to the Militia Act, presumably to deal with the proposition that the commandant may be a Canadian.

THE RUM TO CANADA.

London, July 7.—The Board of Trade emigration returns continue to show a satisfactory Canadian increase, namely, a total of 9,938 in June, as compared with 6,417 in June 1902, an increase of 51 per cent. Canada secured 24 per cent. of the total emigrants compared with 24. The emigration to the United States totaled 29,353, compared with 24,061, or a decrease of 24 per cent. Canada's total for the six months was 6,324 compared with 5,881, or 24 per cent. of the total.

ANOTHER OPERATION ON POPE MAY BE NECESSARY

In Spite of His Weakness the Pope Walked Unassisted to a Chair

London, July 8.—A special dispatch from Rome, filed at 2.30 p.m., says the Pope had another fainting fit to-day, but that the action of his heart is very stable, and that his condition has again become very critical.

8.00 a.m.—As a consequence of the operation performed yesterday, the cyanide and the iodine, which had been administered, proved that it was caused by venous circulation, due to pressure of the placenta on the lungs.

Berlin, July 8.—A despatch to the Lokal Anzeiger from Rome says the condition of the Pope has suddenly become worse, and that Cardinal Zerbini Vanutelli (the grand penitentiary) has been called in to administer absolution (in articulo mortis). The end, it is added, is immediately impending.

Paris, July 8.—A despatch from Rome says: "The condition of the Pope has become worse sleep morning. His weakness is increasing hour by hour. He is only intermittently conscious, and a catastrophe is imminent."

Blood Poisoning Feared.

Another great preoccupation of the doctors is the development of the patient's kidneys, as a result of which blood poisoning is feared. The outlook now is that the Pope's life may perhaps be prolonged more than could have been expected thirty-six hours ago; but the hopes of his recovery are still very small.

SELL COAL FOR CIGARETS

Montreal Hope Rural Fuel and Get the Wood to Exchange

Montreal, July 7.—"See those little boys stealing coal," said the manager of a big yard at Point St. Charles yesterday. "Well, I wouldn't say a word if they were just taking it home to their mother to be kept for winter use. But they don't do that. I'll bet a new hat that they take it to a little store a few blocks away, and get cigarettes for it."

Two little chaps had a small cart loaded up to their backs, and it was all they could do to pull it along. They had gathered a portion of the coal from the street, but most of it was actually stolen from the yard. Day after day boys are arrested, but it does no good, and only takes up the time of the police in prosecuting.

The two in question were watched, and they labored hard in the hot sun to draw the cart to the objective point. They were followed at a distance, and were seen to enter a small candy store, where they were seen to exchange the coal for cigarettes.

The watchers sidled up and looked apparently unconcerningly in the window, and there sure enough were the two arches receiving cigarettes from the women in charge. The coal was taken in and the two set off for home. The dealer estimated there was about forty cents' worth of coal in the load sold for two one-cent cigarettes.

THE PREFERENTIAL TARIFF AND PROTECTION

Significant Article in the London Economist

British Trade Grows

With Canada Despite American Slaughter Methods—The Canadian Militia, Chamberlain Wants a Conference

London, July 7.—There is a long and obviously inspired article in the current number of the Economist dealing with Canada's preferential tariff and explaining the American trade increase in Canadian markets.

It is pointed out that although there has been a rapid increase in British exports to Canada, the Americans sell their goods in Canada at prices lower than in the United States, and are also content with smaller profits than English manufacturers. Per capita, Great Britain sells seven times as much to Canada as to America.

The article maintains that, considering the advantages of the American over the British manufacturer, the wonder is that the British sell so much.

The writer concludes by saying: "A protective preferential tariff seems the best available expedient to save Canadian manufacturers from being bound hand and foot under the mercies of the United States industrial corporations."

The Economist circulates largely among bankers and business men, to whom this excellent statement of the working of the preference is bound to appeal.

THE PHYSIQUE OF THE RACE.

London, July 7.—The Bishop of Higon, the orator of the Anglican Church, dealing in the House of Lords yesterday with the question of the physique of the race, asked, "Were we sending to the colonies in sufficient quantity and quality, a race calculated to hold the Empire together and fulfil the destinies of the British people?" He deplored the diminution of the birth rate in Canada and the other colonies. "We ought not to be satisfied with an Empire of square miles. We were not bringing up, either in the Home Land or the colonies, the number of children necessary to bear the strain of the responsibilities of the Empire of the future." If a child, once a welcome addition to a home, was now regarded as a burden, then he declared the Empire to be doomed.

THE CANADIAN MILITIA.

London, July 7.—The Colonial Secretary has invited the Canadian Government to discuss certain proposed amendments to the Militia Act, presumably to deal with the proposition that the commandant may be a Canadian.

THE RUM TO CANADA.

London, July 7.—The Board of Trade emigration returns continue to show a satisfactory Canadian increase, namely, a total of 9,938 in June, as compared with 6,417 in June 1902, an increase of 51 per cent. Canada secured 24 per cent. of the total emigrants compared with 24. The emigration to the United States totaled 29,353, compared with 24,061, or a decrease of 24 per cent. Canada's total for the six months was 6,324 compared with 5,881, or 24 per cent. of the total.

ANOTHER OPERATION ON POPE MAY BE NECESSARY

In Spite of His Weakness the Pope Walked Unassisted to a Chair

London, July 8.—A special dispatch from Rome, filed at 2.30 p.m., says the Pope had another fainting fit to-day, but that the action of his heart is very stable, and that his condition has again become very critical.

8.00 a.m.—As a consequence of the operation performed yesterday, the cyanide and the iodine, which had been administered, proved that it was caused by venous circulation, due to pressure of the placenta on the lungs.

low anxious we are to be of service, if you will allow us."

He paused, then said:

"I think you perhaps may know who I am; my name is Mortimer."

"Sir Edward Mortimer—yes, I know. Indeed, I can't find words to thank you. You are only too kind. I wish I could make you understand how much I feel your kindness shown at such a time."

And then a recollection of her misery, and of her utter loneliness, swept over her, and she could not repress her tears.

They bowed down her pale cheeks. She was compelled to raise her hand-towelled to her eyes.

"Don't cry," said Sir Edward, so very earnestly, and with so much feeling, that the poor girl only cried the more.

"It is so very kind of you!" she sobbed.

"I thought everyone would mistake me for a miser."

Gently taking her hand, he led her back to her chair, and sat down near her.

"My dear Miss St. Clair, what I have to suggest, or rather to earnestly request, is that you will make my house your home—at any rate, until something can be settled for your future. My sisters wish this very much, and they would have come to you themselves, but they are both suffering from such bad colds that I wouldn't hear of them going out. They are longing to welcome you. May I have the pleasure of telling them you will be their guest?"

Marjorie raised her sweet, trusting eyes, still wet with tears, and gave him an earnest, grateful glance.

"If I knew how to thank you, I would," she said; "but, indeed, I do not. Your kindness is so very great, I am fearing that—"

"You feared that people might be such fools as to imagine you were in league with those scoundrels. Is that what you would say, Miss St. Clair? Dismiss the idea from your mind if it has really entered it. When I saw you that day in the wood, I was certain you could be no connection of theirs."

"And did you know them that they were—?"

Her lip trembled, and she could not complete the sentence.

"No; I cannot say that I did—not at that time. They had managed to escape a howling acquaintance with some of the people round about—myself among them; but I had a suspicion they were not quite what they represented themselves to be, and so I held aloof; and very sorry I was, I must tell you, to see you with that impudent young fellow, who called himself Charles Hyde, and who, I have heard, is the cleverest scoundrel of the lot."

Marjorie sighed faintly.

Sir Edward, perhaps guessing something of the painful truth, said no more of Charles Hyde; but, instead, reverted to the invitation his sisters had charged him with.

"Will you come," he pleaded, "at once? This is no place for you now." Marjorie shook her head.

"Don't think me ungrateful, Sir Edward, but I cannot come. I cannot leave here yet."

He looked at her in amazement.

"No," she went on more firmly, though with exceeding gentleness and meekness. "I cannot leave my friend, Madeline, who is in such terrible sorrow and distress. You have heard of her, no doubt, and if you have heard the truth, will know how greatly she is to be pitied."

"The daughter of one of those men—the wife of another, and she herself quite innocent of wrong, excepting that they forced her to keep the secret of their crimes. She has been the truest friend to me. She saved my life when I was all but drowned in the lake. She is ill, and her heart is broken. I cannot leave her—I would not leave her now for any world."

"Tell your sister I thank them with a full heart. Though I don't know them, I shall never forget their kindness—never, never! And please believe I thank you, too. I couldn't have dreamed anyone could be so kind as you have been to me. But I can't leave my friend. Oh, please forgive me, and don't think me ungrateful for saying so."

She rose, and put both her hands to her face as she spoke, in her warm, impulsive gratitude.

And she looked so sweetly lovely, with her face lighted up with generous feeling, that he pressed those little hands, and held them for several moments in his own.

However, he did not seek to change her resolution—perhaps he saw all efforts would be in vain.

"I shall send my sisters to you as soon as ever they can get out," he said.

And then, feeling he had no right to intrude upon her longer, he took his leave.

Marjorie resumed her seat by the fire, and leaning her cheek upon her hand, suffered her tears to flow without restraint.

Five minutes had passed thus when he heard a quick, firm step outside the door—the handle was turned by a lady's hand.

She thought it was Sir Edward come back for something, and turned a flushed, embarrassed face towards the door.

A faint shriek rose to her lips as she saw Sir Edward, but he was on whom she thought were dwelling—the man whom she had seen handcuffed by the office a few hours ago.

She sprang to her feet.

Her first thought was that he had escaped.

She looked at him wildly, and then took motionless, as though rooted to the spot.

He came towards her, swiftly, eagerly, his arms outstretched, his face glowing.

For the Farmer.

In all breeds of poultry it is the largest females which will produce the largest offspring; hence if you want to increase the individual size of the flock select eggs laid by the largest hens. The same rule holds good in regard to egg-producing qualities; if you want better laying pullets select the eggs for setting from the best laying hens. It pays to follow the laws of breeding, and to use as much care in selecting fowl as in buying fruit trees, farm implements or a horse.

No experiment station can make a fair and reliable comparison between the general purpose cow and the special dairy cow covering a brief period of time only. It is what a herd of general purpose animals will do for their owner through a series of years that proves their value. It is the income from a herd in the form of calves, growth, animals sold, milk, meat—all combined, that gives value to the general purpose herd. No limited experiment can measure the value of these several parts of one common whole in a short time.

The recent rains have greatly improved the crop outlook in this Province and the west. In the Province of Quebec the prolonged drought has had a very unfavorable effect on the growth of hay and grain. In Ontario up to the first week of the month rain was badly needed, but the moisture that has come since that has greatly improved the condition of the growing crops. In Manitoba and the west there has been a steady improvement in crop conditions, and the present outlook is exceedingly promising for another bountiful harvest.

Sheep Prospects in Canada.

The Farmers' Advocate writes in respect to the sheep industry:—"Now is their opportunity" (referring to the flock owners) "for selection and improvement, so as to be ready for the upward turn of the tide when it comes. Indeed, it appears to be close at hand. The demand for mutton continues to grow, and it is quite certain that its limit will not be reached yet awhile. Hence breeders may, we feel sure, look forward with confidence." It is quite certain that Canadian breeders will be far better and larger customers for our stud rams when the demand for their own stock is an increasing one. Thus the prospects for the demand during the coming season from Canada are probably better than they have been for some time past. Despite all the drawbacks which the sheep industry has to contend with in that colony, it ranks very high amongst the different sections of the general agricultural interest, and bids fair to become more important as it is at home. No matter what breeders of other varieties of live stock may say, there is no question that the key to successful farming is the same abroad as at home, namely the maintenance upon every holding of a flock of sheep, either breeding or otherwise, as the character of the holding may determine. The profit and benefit arising from sheep breeding and feeding is certainly larger and more general than from any other variety of live stock.—Farmer and Stockbreeder, London, Eng.

Broody Hens.

Very soon broody hens will be getting rather plentiful in many yards, and a few hints as to the best method of dealing with them will no doubt be acceptable. In the first place, it is perfectly natural for the hens of incubating varieties to develop their natural propensities during the warm season whenever a batch of eggs is laid. This propensity may be very persistent or the reverse, according to the race to which the fowls belong. Cochins, Brahmas, Indian Game, Malayas, Langshans, and their crosses or descendants, such as the Buff Orpingtons, Buff Rocks, Buff Wyandottes, etc., are very keen and frequent sitters during warm weather, and it takes more to break the habit of the first than birds with a milder tendency to incubate. Birds which are got rather fat and heavy are also rather difficult to break off, and it is a rule with those who keep incubating varieties to keep them only in fair bodily condition during warm weather. They will lay all the better in consequence. Whenever a hen becomes broody she should be kept away from the nest or laying house, and for preference put in a coop with a square bottom in the middle of the yard. The spars should be at least two inches from the ground, and about two and one-quarter inches between the spars. When a hen is placed inside she does not feel in a comfortable position. Her overprotective tendency is to sit, and to sit stiff, while she is forced to stand, and to stand upon a hard and uncomfortable surface. She to try to get off, and in her continued anxiety to secure more comfort outside the broody desire is forgotten. One feverish desire conquers another. This proceeding is not in the least degree cruel, and the bird quickly returns to laying again.

During the period of confinement food should be supplied sparingly, and of a kind which does not heat or stimulate. Broody hens drink a lot of water. Owing to their feverish condition, and a little Epsom salts put in the drinking water daily greatly helps to cool them down and break up the broody fit. A plentiful supply of green food should be given. It should be chopped up finely, and placed in a vessel at the side of the coop.

The company of a vigorous cockerel in a strange run sometimes cures as quickly as the broody coop. This is not always available, however.—R. G. in London (Eng.), Farmer and Stockbreeder.

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay.

It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds; the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash?

A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fair, the Fields, the Shurons, the Baldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at $1.00 per share down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $4,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1880 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $582.

$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend-paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Mallory, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

Nor does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore mills only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours.

The Alaska Treadwell ore mills $2.35 per ton; the stock 500 per cent above par.

No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management. Respectfully submitted,

ANOTHER HUGE CROP OF NORTH-WESTERN GRAIN

Mr. D. McNicoll, of the C. P. R., Claims That It Will Be About the Same as Last Year

THE RAILWAY CONDITIONS IN THE WEST

Denied That Settlers Last Year Lost Millions of Money Through Inadequate Facilities

Montreal, July 8.—The assertion made by Mr. D. McNicoll (Ralph Connor) recently in Toronto that the people of the Northwest have this year lost between $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 through lack of proper railway facilities has no foundation in fact.

This declaration was made by Mr. D. McNicoll, the general manager of the C. P. R., who has just returned from his annual tour of inspection to the Pacific coast.

"While there have been at times some slight difficulties in the handling of freight, there is no congestion at the present time. And certainly no difficulty has ever arisen that would aggregate the enormous sum mentioned by the noted author."

"All last year's grain is now out of the country with the exception of that which is required on the farms, and to keep the mills going. As for other freight it is being moved expeditiously."

"A great deal has been said in various quarters about the alleged congestion in the handling of the grain last autumn."

extensions to the C.P.R. in Manitoba, which General Manager McNicoll announced to-day, were being vigorously prosecuted, it is not likely that the company will undertake anything further in that line this year.

Out in Winnipeg it has been said that the projected line from Darlingford southwesterly to Kalmia would be immediately constructed, as also would that from Lander running west from Arthur. In the latter case the line has been graded, but the rails are not yet laid.

When asked this morning what was the intention of the company in regard to these two lines, Mr. Thomas Bligh, general manager of the C.P.R. in Manitoba, said:

"It is our intention to make a run for some of the farmers living south of Darlingford, to reach their market, and with that object in view a survey is being made. Construction is not yet commenced."

"In regard to the Lander line, we were so crowded with work that we

A GREAT SUCCESS

Park Street Baptist Sunday School Annual Picnic

The Park Street Baptist Sunday school picnic was a great success in every sense. The weather was perfect, the river banks, with foliage and blooming corn fields, were at their best. The docks of the City of Peterborough were crowded, when the ferryboat, carrying all the families, departed for a good time. The children, with their parents, were all in the boat, and over ten o'clock, then, with gilled baskets, refreshing children, fine weather, happy parents, and a most successful picnic, the children had it indeed. The children revelled in the grass and sun, and water, and with their large hearts and happy faces, did much to add to the enjoyment of everybody. Now, wasn't it a happy day?

"What about the election in Manitoba?"

"We haven't time to think of politics at the present time. The Robinson Government has done good work in the best interests of the province and everything suggests that their having another lease of life. There is no interest whatever taken in the campaign, and one hears nothing but 'what, wheat, in the west.'"

"So you are perfectly satisfied with the outlook, Mr. McNicoll?"

"Perfectly satisfied," was the reply. "We are going to astonish the whole world in that western land, which was thought at one time to be a white elephant on the hands of the Dominion."

AN ENJOYABLE EVENT

St. John's Sunday School Excursion Down the River to Jubilee

St. John's Sunday School excursion yesterday down the river to Jubilee Point, per steamer City of Peterborough, was a most enjoyable and successful event in every way. The arrangements made and carried out by the Success Club, of which Mr. James Bell is president, for the comfort and pleasure of the excursionists were admirable, and resulted in both the little folk and adults spending a very pleasant day indeed. Luncheon was made on board the steamer by the committee and served the little ones free; this was an unexpected and very acceptable feature of the programme. A good list of sports was run off at Jubilee, and a baseball match played between All Saints Boys' Brigade and a scratch nine. A very novel and amusing event was a tug of war between the ladies, who exhibited considerable muscular ability. The excursionists, numbering 265, left Jubilee for home at 6:30 arriving at the C.P.R. wharf at 3:30. The pleasure of the return trip was considerably enhanced by vocal selections rendered by Mr. Joe and Mrs. Martin Halpin, Mrs. and Miss Seward and the Misses Dawson; Miss Graham served as accompanist.

To Canadian Investors

THE GREATEST MINING PROPOSITION
EVER OFFERED.

I am pleased to state that I have completed arrangements with the Consolidated Nevada Mining Company for the sale of a block of their treasury stock in Canada. It is a proposition I can honestly recommend, and has unbounded possibilities. The tremendous possibilities of WEDEKIND and TONOPAH is becoming plain every day to the entire country. The spring rush into these NEVADA mining camps will equal or exceed that into Ophir, Cripple Creek, Dawson or Nome. The strikes recently reported from Wedekind and Tonopah have created the greatest excitement and the rush will soon be on.

Everyone is watching NEVADA mining stocks and prices are rapidly advancing. None offer better opportunity for profit than do the shares of

Properties in the heart of the Wedekind district. High grade ore and lots of it. We are certain to cut the RICHEST VEIN IN THE DISTRICT very soon; then it's all off.

of the best selected oil lands in Morgan and Elliott Counties, Kentucky, most of its holdings adjoin its present rich strike, and will drill immediately 12 more wells. The following is an extract from the Kentucky News in the NATIONAL OIL REPORTER, of April 11, last:

"Your correspondent predicts that by the end of this year only Ohio and Indiana will exceed Kentucky in production. The writer has been over nearly all of the property held by the Empire Company of West Liberty, and has no hesitation in saying that the territory is among the most promising in the entire State."

A LIMITED NUMBER OF SHARES OFFERED AT PAR, to continue development work. The Company's present production alone is sufficient to pay good dividends on its entire capitalization.

Vast ledges of ore running from $500 to $800,000 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $750 to $800,000 per ton. This is not a five per cent. a month scheme, but is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans. No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLARS FOR DOLLARS for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the dictation of your foresight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock sold at par. The new Mining Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the stock at present price. It will soon be 50 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mine and returned full of enthusiasm. The mine are turning out much richer than expected.

I can offer the stock for a short time only at 30 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO-DAY. Tomorrow it may slip your memory. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 25% per month.

THE WRATH OF GOD

J. E. Duryea, Minister of Grace Reformed Church, New York City.

He that believeth in the Lord hath everlasting life, but he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him.—John iii, 36.

These are precious and at the same time awful words. They come with the sanction of divine authority, and echo the voices of the prophets. They are spoken by John, the herald of Jesus, the Messiah, who confirmed them by His teaching, and their truth is proved in human experience.

Note the terms. "Life" means the perfect possession of every power of human nature. This includes the will to use each power. To have a perfect body would be glorious, but none possesses it. When Socrates saw one that seemed complete he cried, "Jove! how beautiful!" We have his enthusiasm. More splendid is the life of the spirit in man, and it is to this these words refer. Each of us knows some one who possesses in rare degree this life. Such interpret to us the divine; we instinctively feel they are of God. "On God and godlike men we build our trust." But even these have their faults; only One has ever lived on earth perfect in all things. Imperfection, unless righted, tends to death. Some are not stand still; they are ever growing better or worse. How we fight against the downward tendency, seeking help from such as we think can help us grow better! So we tie ourselves to the physician, the teacher, the friend. Is it not true that the best wish of your best money is that you may become better? And we have all found that, beyond a certain point, there is no help in a man. Once there came unto our world a Perfect Man, "the Son of God, with power." He gave Himself to the work of redeeming men from death to life, and thenceforth His spirit, He is a constant Saviour. "If that believeth in the Son has everlasting life."

"Believeth." It means more than assent to the statement of the Gospel. Faith is willing self-surrender to God. Only thus can His victory impart itself to us. This is possible for every one. They are self-deceived who think otherwise. All about us are those ignorant, weak and hard pressed as you are, who, because they open heart and mind to Him, are growing better. Are not they who refuse to do this fools and blind?

The condition for every one is obedience. It is so in all relationships. To effect a cure the physician must be obeyed, the teacher must be followed, the friend honored, and if the Redeemer is to save from death to life our part is to honor, follow and obey Him. And now note the alternative:—"He that obeyeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him." Perhaps you persuade yourself that this is a visionary statement and are indifferent to it. Remember, there is relationship between you and God. He is your "heavenly Father." God cannot be indifferent to you. You are and always will be His child. It is the worst blunder one can make to think that God is careless about him. Do the words, "the wrath of God," seem cruel words? No, they are the human relations explain them. We are more than inhabitants; we are citizens of New York, having certain inherent rights and obligations. His laws are the measure of these. If I choose to go contrary to these rules of conduct and commit myself to infringement of the law, the penalty of infringement of law is incurred. The convicted criminal is still a part of New York. The same conditions hold in the family.

divine government is illustrated by these analogies? Remember, the law is not a mere set of rules, it is a life. Still, the problem faces us, How can the God of love ever be wrathful toward his child? Well, undoubtedly, the Bible presents this, and so does Nature. She works by law, and to the obedient is beneficial. Electricity carries your message and moves your cars, but disobey her and she kills you. This is the meaning of applied science. And in the moral world the same principle holds. It is thus in friendship; refuse to love and honor your friend, and how her life rebukes you! By and by you meet and obey the law of the universe. It is the same in the same friendship that ennobled John. A great teacher said: "Men are ruined by their best and nearest friends, not by their indulgent friends, but by the noble example that is never followed, and the criticism that is never answered." Experience has taught some of us that this is true.

Now, so long as God is, every soul must feel His power. He that loves and obeys is blessed in the thought of God. The revelation of His kindness is uplifting and transforms the character that gratefully receives it. It is equally true that he that disobeys must suffer loss of good, for each soul has to touch God, and as they do this He becomes blessing or curse. You are either a better or worse man because God is. And this is the Gospel. You recall how Jesus loved Jerusalem, as she had never been loved by a son, and she rejected Him. Then it was Himself He could not save her people from. "O Jerusalem! If I had not come and spoken unto them they had not had sin!" Here the real power of disobedience. Men are not judged of God arbitrarily; they bring the doom on themselves. If you will to disobey, God's wrath must abide on you. There is no privilege you may not turn into a curse. The love of Christ shall be to your help or harm, as you honor or disobey Him. I desire above all else to make known God's love. It is a reality, it is the one power that can meet every need of man and can lift stained, broken lives into strength and beauty and perfection. I have tried to do this to

May. Only you must face the facts of life, and know the truth. God does care for you. He has given you the power to overcome all. His spirit—that you may become perfect. Identify your life with that of the Son, love Him, learn of Him, follow Him, and you shall become like Him. There are only three steps from earth to heaven—acts, habits, character. These same steps may lead downward to death. Which is your chosen way? Let this truth possess you; let it make you brave, hopeful, serious: Be men of God, living in His service, happy in His love, and you shall master any situation—you shall know life indeed. Amen.

Fleets of the World.
The annual return moved for by Sir Charles Pike, showing the comparative state of the fleets of the principal powers, was issued by the Admiralty. The London Daily Express summarizes it as follows:—

The following table shows the total number of vessels, built and building, to the credit of each power:—

	Building.	Total.
Great Britain	418	1,200
France	384	1,121
Russia	342	1,000
Germany	300	900
Italy	200	700
Japan	127	400

The vessels returned as building include those which are to be laid down in 1904. In the case of Great Britain there are three first-class battleships, four armored cruisers, three third-class cruisers, four scouts, fifteen destroyers, and ten submarines. France has one first-class battleship, one second-class battleship, two third-class battleships, and six destroyers. Germany has one first-class battleship, one second-class battleship, and six destroyers. Italy has one first-class battleship, one second-class battleship, and six destroyers. Japan has one first-class battleship, one second-class battleship, and six destroyers.

The following table shows at a glance how the powers compare in regard to the different classes of vessels actually built. Following each table are notes of the ships on the stocks:—

	First-class.	Second-class.	Third-class.
Great Britain	4	1	2
France	3	1	1
Russia	3	1	1
Germany	2	1	1
Italy	1	1	1
United States	1	1	1
Japan	1	1	1

Great Britain has fifteen first-class battleships building or on order. France has seven, Russia, and Germany eight each. Italy has one and the United States four. Japan has one second-class battleship building.

Cruisers. Pro. Unpro. Armed. tested. tested.

	Pro.	Unpro.
Great Britain	18	104
France	9	49
Russia	8	11
Germany	2	11
Italy	1	11
United States	3	16
Japan	6	12

The probable feature of this table is the great reliance which France continues to place on the torpedo-boat. She has no second-class or third-class vessels, either on the stocks or about to be built, while the other European powers have only the first-class vessels. She is concentrating more on her programme; Great Britain has thirty-four, and Russia only six. France also has forty-three submarines on her programme, and Great Britain fourteen. Russia is building two for two of these vessels, Italy three, and the United States five.

Of the British navy—something between a destroyer and a cruiser—there is the city, the power to be laid down. No other power is building these boats at present. The brand is exclusive.

In addition to the vessels included in the table, the fleet of the United States includes the following:—

	Pro.	Unpro.
Great Britain	112	15
France	14	5
Russia	6	122
Germany	20	18
Italy	11	1

She has no second-class or third-class vessels, either on the stocks or about to be built, while the other European powers have only the first-class vessels. She is concentrating more on her programme; Great Britain has thirty-four, and Russia only six. France also has forty-three submarines on her programme, and Great Britain fourteen. Russia is building two for two of these vessels, Italy three, and the United States five.

Of the British navy—something between a destroyer and a cruiser—there is the city, the power to be laid down. No other power is building these boats at present. The brand is exclusive.

In addition to the vessels included in the table, the fleet of the United States includes the following:—

	Pro.	Unpro.
Great Britain	112	15
France	14	5
Russia	6	122
Germany	20	18
Italy	11	1
United States	14	27
Japan	6	27

74 Producing Oil Wells.

One New Well Each Week.

8th Regular Quarterly Dividend

Was paid on June 2nd which makes a record that can be equalled by few if any oil companies. The National has made records ever since its stock was first placed on the market—records that make its stock worth more than any other stock now on the market and that enhance the value of the outstanding stock so that stockholders derive the benefit.

All Dividends are Paid Upon the Basis of the Selling Price of the Stock Thus Making Each Succeeding Dividend Larger than Its Predecessor.

Can you pick out any other company which is doing this? Every possible safeguard is thrown about this stock as an investment, in order that it may be one of the very safest investments on the market.

Our Books are Open to the Closest Inspection of any Investor or Stockholder.

THE BEST OPPORTUNITY

All Officers and Directors are Bonded in the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company.

for securing a reliable investment is now yours. You cannot make a mistake in the National Oil Co. stock, as every possible safeguard has been placed about it to insure investors. No other company protects its stockholders as we protect ours. The price has just been advanced to fifty cents which will give all who have bought an additional dividend, as we pay dividends upon the basis of the selling price of stock.

You can secure this stock now for 50 cents per share, but only 50,000 shares will be sold at this price.

A Magnificent InvestmentCHANCE OF A LIFETIME.

THE BOSTON AND NEW MEXICO COPPER COMPANY, incorporated
Capital Stock, $500,000. In Shares of $1.00 each, par value. Full and Free-associable.
Operating in the Oscura Mining District, at the foot of Oscura Mountains, near Esrey City, Precinct 6, Socorro County, New Mexico.

MODERN SMELTER JUST COMPLETED WITHIN A HALF-MILE OF PROPERTY
OVER $1,000,000 ALREADY INVESTED.

Over one million dollars have been invested within a short radius surrounding on all sides the property of this company by Boston, New Haven and New York capitalists. All this has been invested quietly within the last two years, without any appeal to the public. Only one of these companies interested has put the stock on the market recently, and that at 60 cents on the dollar.

NOT A PROSPECT, BUT A WELL-DEVELOPED MINING PROPERTY. (We have shown by actual mining that we have the copper in 80 acres.)

A trial flume vein. This company having paid a large sum of money for these properties, and also in the development of the mine, now offer to the public 50,000 shares only of their stock, in order to make further reserves, so that when they start to deliver ore at the reduction works they can keep up the supply daily and by that means pay a dividend that does not fluctuate but that can be depended on by the stockholders.

TWO-TEN OIL CO.

of Boulder, Colorado.

Capital Stock, 1,500,000 shares. In Treasury, 500,000 shares

TRANSFER OFFICE; BRISTOL, CONN.

This Company has a perpetual lease on 30 acres of proven oil land in SECTION NINE (9) of the Boulder district, and life estate and the immediate vicinity have the best and largest number of producing wells in the entire district.

Our Well No. 1 came in in January and is now pumping and shipping oil to the market.

The Directors have decided to put down well No. 2 at once, and they now offer a block of the Treasury stock for the next 30 days at 10 Cents per Share, after that price will be advanced.

It is a well known fact that a 15 barrel well will pay over 100 per cent. profit upon its cost.

This is no longer a speculation for we have proved that oil is on our ground, and we now have oil in paying quantities, with two wells pumping we can soon pay dividends, and every well we put down increases our earning capacity.

This is a business proposition, managed by business men. For further information and subscriptions to stock, address,

A Bit of Blue Enamel

or Traced by a Valentine.

"Marjorie, darling! my precious, precious love! Have you been very frightened all this while?" He would have taken her in his arms, but she shrank back, shuddering, though still without a word.

"He saw the horror in her eyes. He saw she shuddered at his touch."

"Darling, you mustn't shrink from me," he cried reproachfully. "It is time for you to hear, the whole truth now. I am as honest as the day is long. I have been here under false pretences all this time. I am simply the detective who has been sent to earth the cleverest set of thieves in England. Now, Marjorie, do you understand?"

The shock was too great. Her nerves were already too unstrung. She gave a little half-hysterical shriek of joy, and sank, almost fainting, into his arms.

When she had grown calmer she found herself seated at his side on the couch, his strong arm round her, his frank, sunny eyes smiling love and reassurance into hers.

And then, very rapidly and eagerly, he told her his little story.

He was a private detective—his real name Fred Trevor.

By birth a gentleman, he had been compelled, by a sudden change of fortune, to look about for the means of getting his own living, and he had elected to become a private detective.

One of his clients, who had been not only robbed but maltreated by the Hyde gang, had set him on their track.

But so amazingly clever were they, that they might never have been brought to justice had not an accident delivered them into his hands.

A young man named Charles Man-ah, one of the cleverest cracksmen in England, had been about to join the Hyde gang, when he was run over in London, and, as Fate would have it, was taken to the hospital by young Trevor.

He was badly injured, and died in a few hours.

But before his death he had said enough to convince the detective that here was a chance of capturing the entire gang.

Letters found on the dead man made it clear that, although he was to proceed at once to Denmark to assist in the meditated attack on Mortimer House, not one of the gang had ever seen him.

Trevor took the risk, and went; and, moreover, managed so cleverly, that no shadow of suspicion was excited as to his being other than he seemed.

It was his intention to arrest the whole gang the night the first attack was made on Mortimer House; but, through some accident, it was impossible.

The second time, he professed to have hurt his foot, so that he could not accompany them.

"And wasn't your foot really hurt?" questioned Marjorie, wonderingly.

"Not a bit of it. I was too old a hand not to know how to paint a bruise; and they, with all their cleverness, were, in some things, as green as grass. As soon as they had set out, I went after them, and, joining the police, followed them here. The whole lot were posted as usual, as I was, I arranged with the police that they should pretend to arrest me, too—we thought we might as well have unnecessary violence, and there's no knowing what they might have done if they'd found out how they'd been deceived. So I went to the police station along with them, and, of course, have had a lot of business to attend to; but I've come back as soon as I could, my darling, to you."

"I'm so happy now," whispered Marjorie, nestling more closely to him. "Forgive me, will you, for ever doubting you?"

And she looked into his face with such sweetly imploring eyes, that he could easily have forgiven her a great deal more than that.

"I've longed to tell you the truth many a time, Marjorie, but I was afraid of frightening you. If you'd known I was a detective, you'd have had to know they were thieves. And I don't burden my little girl with such a secret as that. I've laughed, many a time though."

"You remember how largely they used to talk about inviting Sir Edward here, and the rest of the county gentry. Of course, that was to make you fancy they were on visiting terms with them, and thereby they used to chuckle over it to me in private."

"But I had the laugh on them all the time. Do you remember, one night I told you a lot of stories of my college days? Well, they thought it was all 'make up' and humbug; it tickled them, little did they dream that all those tales were true, and that it was Trevor, the detective, who was telling them."

Marjorie pressed his hand.

"I'm glad you are—that you are," she whispered, gently. "It almost broke my heart when—"

"I know, dearest, I know. And Marjorie, I've got something else to ask your pardon for. Although I'm not a thief, in the main, I've stolen something away from you."

"What?"

"My love."

"I know, dearest, I know. And Marjorie, I've got something else to ask your pardon for. Although I'm not a thief, in the main, I've stolen something away from you."

"What?"

"My love."

Reading the Finger Tips.

When a lady of maidens would write away an idle hour, and foretell fate and fortune, it is not alone the lines on their hands that they consult, but the finger tips as well, says a New York Sun correspondent.

"Let me tell your future by your little finger," says one lively dame to her companion. "Give it a graceful curve. Yes, that is it. Now, let me see; you will—"

"Marry a tall, dark-haired man who looks like a pirate, I suppose," interjects her companion.

"I cannot go quite so far as that, nor tell whether he'll be the future husband or not, but I can tell you that he will be a tall, dark-haired man, and that he will be a pirate."

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING-VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay.

It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds; the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash? A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shermans, the Baldwins, the Clarkes and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $30,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at $1.00 per share down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $4,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.
$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1880 is now worth $7,600.
$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.
$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $5,600.
$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $682.
$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,600.
$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Malloy, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $30, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.
Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.
The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $100,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

Nor does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore mills only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 3,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours.

The Alaska Treadwell ore mills $2.35 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par. No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management. Respectfully submitted,

HIDALGO MINING COMPANY DOUGLAS, ARIZONA.

OFFICERS:—S. F. MEGUIRE, President; J. E. SUITS, Vice-President; E. R. PIRTLE, Secretary; C. O. ELLIS, Treasurer.

The Minersville Gold Mining
—and Milling Company—

Will be sold at 15 CENTS PER SHARE, PAR VALUE, $1.00.

Full Paid, Non-Assessable and No Personal Liability.

READ THIS! This Company offers one of the richest and best investments, as the property is located in the famous Picher District, Picher Co., Oklahoma, and has for its neighbors such mines as the Bonanza, Red Boy, Eureka, North Pole, Columbia, Goldenrod and Crocker Oregon, which are producing from $20.00 to $100.00 each per month. This great property for which the undersigned is Fiscal Agent is more promising than many of the big producing mines at the same stage of development.

The Company has three full claims, with two large veins, one extensive foot and the other twenty-two feet at the surface, showing good gold values and strictly free milling.

The Company owns the property outright, being free from all debt and incumbrance and is ready to occupy the mine with modern machinery and to resume development work, a limited number of shares will be sold for a short time only at 15 cents per share as announced above.

Investors who wish to place money in large or small amounts can do so better than in any other investment. All information cheerfully furnished, and all shares payable to order.

A placer and two quartz claims;

Two partially developed quartz claims;

One-quarter section patented land adjoining above;

All located in the Susanville Mining District, Eastern Oregon. Will be sold together or separately. Total price, $5,000.

We consider this group of properties to be unusually promising as a heavy producing mine joins a portion of the land, and near-by placer grounds are showing up very rich.

Womanly Troubles

SHOULD NOT BE ALLOWED TO UNDERMINE HEALTH AND BEAUTY, BUT SHOULD BE TREATED AT ONCE BY FERROZOLNE

It is impossible to go into details on this subject, but the experience of many a poor woman who is crippled for life, just because she didn't use a good remedy in time, should be a warning to others.

When the first signs of womanly trouble appear in a young girl, a great deal depends upon getting her over this critical stage, so that in years to come she will not develop green sickness or consumption.

As soon as the symptoms of (flushed face, headache, bearing down feelings, give her at once a course of Ferrozolne treatment which will carry her past the crisis.

In the adult woman if any irregularities occur, Ferrozolne will be found a remedy of remarkable potency and power.

Ferrozolne is the ideal regulator for the monthly period and causes all organs of the body to perform their work properly, and at just the expected time.

It purifies the blood, tones up the nerves and vital energies. The stomach is strengthened, and digestive and assimilative processes are improved by the good work of Ferrozolne. It regulates the bowels, cures constipation and piles, and replaces disease and decay by health and strength.

There is nothing better for the complexion than Ferrozolne. It removes the dark circles under the eyes, removes and cures all manner of skin eruptions, gives brightness and brilliancy to the eyes, a rosy tint to the cheeks, whitens the teeth and develops a well rounded plump and handsome form.

Ferrozolne is the ladies' favorite, and should find a place in every household. It is prepared in the form of a pleasant tasting tablet, convenient and pleasant to take. Price per box $1.00. It is sold by all druggists, or by mail from N.O. Peters & Co., Kingston, Ont.

The Late Miss May J. Manley
The demise of Miss Mary Jane, eldest daughter of Mr. Henry Manley is announced. She passed away on Wednesday evening after a lingering illness borne with true Christian fortitude and resignation. The deceased young lady was only 27 years of age, and was greatly esteemed and beloved by those who knew her. The funeral will take place this afternoon, from the family residence, No. 175 Edinburgh street, to the Little Lake cemetery. The Times extends its sincere sympathy.

New Physical Director
Since the resignation of Mr. Horace Ayres, the directors of the Y.M.C.A. have been on the lookout for a suitable young man to fill the vacant position. By a unanimous vote Mr. R. A. Alpin, of Toronto, has been given the call, and will assume the duties on Aug. 1st. Mr. Alpin comes to the Association very highly recommended. He has been connected with the Branches, Y.M.C.A., as Branch Department Secretary, and last year was assistant at the Toronto Central Y.M.C.A. He spent the latter part of the winter in the Y.M.C.A. Training School, and paid particular attention to the physical course under the leadership of Mr. J. Howard Crocker.

The annual outing of St. John's choir will be held on Wednesday, July 22nd. The steamer Lady of the Lakes has been chartered, and the day will be spent on the back lakes. The choir boys will go into camp on August 1st on Pigeon Lake, near Robinsons.

ADVANCE IN COAL

The Price is Likely to be 50 or More Very Soon

It is fortunate for those who secured their coal before the recent advance in price. It was then $7.00, and will probably reach $8.00 very soon.

This is not cheerful news to many. While the price is greater than it was two or three years ago, it is not natural that it should increase in sympathy with the increase in other prices. Miners are now receiving better wages, railways charge more for hauling and local coal dealers are under greater expense for labor, etc., than they were two or three years ago.

POLICE COURT NEWS

Heavy Fine for Breaching By-Law re Mark men's License

At the Police Court yesterday, William McCallie, a drunk, was fined $2. A rather interesting case came before Magistrate Dumble yesterday. Robert Gibson was charged by C.J. Hicks with refusing to carry three passengers to their home on Perry street. This, it appears, is contrary to the town by-law which regulates hacks. After hearing the evidence the Magistrate imposed a fine of $10 and costs, $14.50 altogether.

A Story of Evolution

To the Editor of The Times:—

Sir,—It is interesting to watch the evolution of ideas. Among the legends we have every grade, from the fables of the past to the modern and just. The same state of things exists in the medical fraternity, the grades run all the way down from the man who takes a faculty at a snap, through the learned and on up to the professional doctor, who will not allow himself to be made the victim of these modern sweat-shops. The Free Masons have never yet played upon the profession, but all the others, from the incorporated society of Bag Fellers to the Shakespeare Union, all swear to the medical. This has produced the new and distinct class of medical gentlemen corresponding to the learned jurist. Formerly it was called a "doctor," but now it is called a "physician." A doctor, had a now R. in asked what lodge he belonged to. The "underwriter" is not and cannot be on a level with better men, and nobody will ever think him so. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am, Sir, Yours truly, W. PRINGLE

Humor of the Day.

Some fellows marry poor girls to settle down, and others marry rich girls to settle up.—Philadelphia Record.

Mrs. Mann—This milk tastes as if it contained water.

Milkman—Great Scott! Did you expect I could put champagne in it?—Chelsea Gazette.

A youngster stood upon the street and cried, and cried, and cried.

For basket, dropped upon the pave, And broken eggs inside.

"Oh, me! oh my!" said Parson Good, As up he stepped to scan The fearful face and rampled head; "Where, now! Come, be a man!"

Then something very like a smile Revealed two rows of pearl.

"Please, sir, how can I be a man When I'm a little girl?"

—Philadelphia Ledger.

Here is a Bookie T. Washington divorce story:—

"Brother Turner's just been divorced from his wife," said Brother Smith.

"Is that so?"

"Yes, the Judge done good and give him his freedom this morning."

"What's he now?"

"Giving his freedom to Martha Johnson. She's Sister Turner by this time."

A Missouri woman sat up till 3 o'clock the other night waiting for her husband to come home. Then she gave it up and went upstairs, only to find him in bed fast asleep. "His dear old mother," she called it, made her so mad that she didn't speak to her husband for three days.

"Say, doctor, what's that last $3 item in your bill for?"

"Let me see. Oh, yes, I gave you a thorough examination on that day. Don't you remember?"

"Sure I remember. But do you suppose I'm going to pay for you for that when you took up an hour of my time and then couldn't find anything the matter with me, after all?"—Buffalo Express.

Automobile—You say I'm under arrest for going at an unlawful speed? Why, my good man, I wasn't running more than ten miles an hour at any time before my machine broke down.

Constable—That's all right, but how about after your old machine did break down?

Why, that explosion threw some of the pieces at least forty feet in the air at a speed of not less than fifty miles an hour both going and coming. I fixed the thing, and I guess I ought to know.—New York Sun.

According to Senator Bailey of Texas, there was in that State a Judge who had been robbed of a horse, and before whom the thief, when apprehended, was brought for trial.

Honor eyed the prisoner with deep satisfaction for a minute or so, and then delivered himself of the following: "Owing to a personal prejudice the court will not hear this case. It will, however, be tried by the jury, who will find a verdict in accordance with the facts and the law. In the meantime," he added impressively, "the court will go outside, bend a rope, and pick out a good tree."—New York Times.

"You look like a man who is fast going to the dogs."

"Do I, Jedd? Den my looks is deceiving." I goes from de docks faster I goes to 'em. Dere don't happen to be none on dese premises, I hope, mum?—Kansas City Journal.

"So you belong to the Don't Worry Club?"

"I do, and I'm glad of it, although my membership compels me to take a few chances."

"In what way?"

"I had to look looking at the gas meter and weighing my ice."—Washington Star.

Warden—He was the coolest and best thoughtful convict that ever broke jail.

Jenkins—That so?

Warden—Yes. He left behind him a note to the Governor of the State, which said: "I hope you will pardon me for the liberty I'm taking."—Daily America.

"But," suggested the subtle sleuth, preparing to raid a gambling house, "suppose we can't catch any of the owners."

"Well, take whomever you find, then," said the sergeant; "anybody will do in a pinch."—Punch Bowl.

Some think they help humanity. And all our sorrows gild. When unto each community A library they build. But though upon appearances Munificent they look, He is the true philanthropist Who doesn't write a book. —Jodge.

Hi—Wal, I s'pose yer son is a great help since he come back from the 'ar agriculture college. Instead of 'comin' out an' helpin' with the plough like he use ter, he does nothin' but lay round 'er house now, figurin' out 'er profit in crossin' punkins with pie plant, in order to raise punkins pie.—New York Sun.

At breaking all the rules of speech Fair woman is majestic. She hires an imported car, And calls her a domestic. —Philadelphia Press.

"My dear," whispered the husband who had accompanied his better half to the shop where she expected to purchase a spring gown, "I think that dress with the black lace fixings on it is nobby. Why don't you get it?"

"Oh, it would never do, answered the wife. "Everybody is wearing that style."

Then, here's another good-looking one—this one with the separate jacket and the strap fixings on the skirt.

"Mercy, no! Why nobody is wearing that style."

Knox—Why do you always put "dictated" at the bottom of your letters? You have no stenographer.

Knix—Well, you see, I'm a very poor speller.—Evening Wisconsin.

Mother's Girl.

There exists often a very beautiful companionship between the mother and her daughter. The intimacy is frank, free and sympathetic. But some day the mother feels as if something had changed the intimacy. The child is silent and sad, and seems to shun her mother instead of seeking her.

This change very often comes in the young girl is crossing the border line of womanhood. She is morbid, nervous, fearful as she enters upon this new experience.

The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will do more than restore the normal balance of mind and body. It will establish the woman's function upon a basis of sound health, as well as improve the appetite, nourish the nerves, and promote the general physical health.

"Two years ago my daughter's health began to fail," writes Mrs. Dan Hall, of Deseronto, Ont. "Everything that could be thought of was done to help her but it was of no use. When she began to complain she was so weak that she could not get out of bed. I felt I could not give her up as she was the only child I had, and I felt that I must do something to help her. I bought Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and I gave her a bottle of it. She took it for a week, and she was able to get out of bed. She took another bottle, and she was able to walk. She took a third bottle, and she was able to do her work. She took a fourth bottle, and she was able to go to school. She took a fifth bottle, and she was able to go to college. GREAT BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES

King Edward's Friendship Warmly Expressed, Hopes That the Two Nations will Meet Together for Peace

London, July 10.—Informally welcoming the American naval officers to England last night, King Edward took occasion to make an emphatic declaration in favor of closer relations between the United States and Great Britain.

His Majesty did not speak of any plans or even of an understanding, but he said that he desired the two nations to move together in the interests of peace for the world.

Some of the King's Ministers took advantage of the occasion to express on the American officers their cordial approval of the Monroe Doctrine and their desire that it be supported by American influence in a way which would place it above all criticism.

The royal welcome was extended to the American officers at Buckingham Palace, where the dinner given in their honor by King Edward was held and 50 guests were present.

On the conclusion of the dinner his Majesty expressed gratification at the acceptance of the invitation, and cordially welcomed Rear Admiral Christie and his syndicate to England. He asserted that what he said represented the sentiment not only of himself, but of the whole British people, and he offered a toast to President Roosevelt, for whom, his Majesty said, he "entertained the highest consideration and admiration."

At a luncheon given at the Pillar of Hercules, the visiting American naval officers, in an eloquent speech, echoed the wish of the King for the maintenance and promotion of cordial relations between the two English-speaking nations.

WILL GO TO WORK

Strikers May Accept Terms and Return to Work. New York, July 10.—Otto M. Edlitz, chairman of the Board of Government of the Builders' Trades' Union, announced today that the union will go to work on Thursday. The settlement among the unions is that most of them will accept the plan by the Board of Trade and Builders' Union, which is proposed to be controlled by Samuel P. Jones. Secret meetings of the union were held last night to consider the plan.

TO DEAL WITH STRIKES

Mon. Mr. Heigue Gives Notice of Amendment to Labor Bill

Ottawa, July 11.—Hon. Mr. Heigue gave notice of the following amendment to the bill respecting free labor: "If at any time when a strike is in progress, three persons or more assemble for any purpose which may reasonably be deemed connected with, or in sympathy with such strike, and if, while they are so assembled, any unlawful act of violence or intimidation is committed by one or more of such persons, or any unlawful threat is used by one or more of them, the whole in any way affecting free labor, or the employer against whom the strike is directed, members of his family, his employees, his property or persons making use of said property, the said assembly of persons shall be deemed an unlawful assembly, and each person forming part thereof, when such UNLAWFUL ACT OR THREAT is used, shall be deemed to have been a member of an unlawful assembly, and shall be punishable accordingly (unless punishable as a rioter as hereinafter mentioned), even although such person has not participated in such unlawful act or threat, unless the accused shows to the satisfaction of the court or judge that he formed part of the assembly only casually, without having any common purpose with the other members thereof, and that he did not commit or countenance any such unlawful act or threat."

BRONCHITIS

Scientifically Treated

The best authorities agree that bronchitis is treated most scientifically by Catarrhism, which goes right to the root of the trouble.

Bronchitis can be treated successfully only by a remedy carried direct to the affected parts along with the air breathed.

Catarrhism is a vegetable antiseptic and is inhaled at the mouth, and after passing through all the air passages of the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs, is exhaled through the nose.

The healing vapor of Catarrhism goes wherever the air you breathe goes, and reaches every part that is affected. No matter how deep-seated the bronchial irritation may be, Catarrhism is a sure to reach it.

Catarrhism protects and heals the inflamed membrane, stops the cough, breaks up the mucus, and is guaranteed to bring speedy relief and cure. By means of the inhaler Catarrhism treats the local symptoms of bronchial trouble very effectively.

It cleanses and imparts to the blood are driven off by perspiration, which is a wonderful tonic and stimulant for the entire system.

Perspiration is a valuable and timely builder, invigorates the appetite and digestion and makes the body so healthy and strong that bronchitis goes away for good.

A prominent steamboat captain well known throughout Eastern Ontario, Captain Dunlop, of Kingston, was perfectly cured of Bronchitis by Catarrhism. The Captain had suffered for many years, and says that Catarrhism is the best cure for Bronchitis on the face of the globe.

Dr. J. J. Turner, a prominent citizen of Nepean, Manitoba, speaks very appreciatively of Catarrhism as a specific for Bronchitis, and states that his wife could not get along without it.

Everyone that has used Catarrhism is satisfied that it is superior to all other remedies. It is delightful to inhale, simple and convenient to use, and relieves from the first breath taken through the inhaler.

To Canadian Investors

THE GREATEST MINING PROPOSITION EVER OFFERED.

I am pleased to state that I have completed arrangements with the Consolidated Nevada Mining Company for the sale of a block of their treasury stock in Canada. It is a proposition I can honestly recommend, and has unbounded possibilities. The tremendous possibilities of WEDEKIND and TONOPAH is becoming plain every day to the entire country. The spring rush into these NEVADA mining camps will equal or exceed that into Cripple Creek, Leadville or Nome. The strikes recently reported from Wehokah and Tonopah have created the greatest excitement and the rush will soon be on.

Everyone is watching NEVADA mining stocks and prices are rapidly advancing. None offer better opportunities for profits than do the shares of

The Consolidated Nevada Mining Company

Properties in the heart of the Wehokah district. High grade ore and best of it. We are certain to cut the RICHEST VEIN in the DISTRICT very soon, then it's all off.

OF WEST LIBERTY, KENTUCKY

CAPITALIZED AT ONLY $100,000.

Its first well will pump nearly 100 Barrels daily of High Grade Oil—

THIS COMPANY HAS 5,000 ACRES

of the best selected oil lands in Morgan and Elliott Counties, Kentucky, most of its holdings adjoin its present rich strike, and will drill immediately 12 more wells.

The following is an extract from the Kentucky News in the NATIONAL OIL REPORTER, of April 11, last:

"Your correspondent predicts that by the end of this year only Ohio and Indiana will exceed Kentucky in production. The writer has been over nearly all of the property held by the Empire Company of West Liberty, and has no hesitation in saying that the territory is among the most promising in the entire State."

A LIMITED NUMBER OF SHARES OFFERED AT PAR, to continue development work. The Company's present production alone is sufficient to pay good dividends on its entire capitalization.

The Oro Rico Mining Syndicate

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of the Mendocino, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 30 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.

Visit today of ore running from $100 to $500.00 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $75.00 to $200.00 per ton. This is not a five per cent. a month scheme, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans. No business in the world is safer or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLARS FOR DOLLARS for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGEMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your foresight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the Stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the Stock at present price. It will soon be 50 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mines and returned full of enthusiasm. The mines are turning out more richer than expected.

I can offer the Stock for a short time only at 50 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO-DAY—to-morrow it may slip your memory. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 25% per month.

Motor-Intoxication.

The crusaders against intoxicated motorists should turn some of their energy against motorists, observes the Paris correspondent of "Truth." We begin to find out that motor-driving produces an intoxication that may be as deadly with greater loss of life than the noxious violence of inebriates. M. Hachet Souplet, at the last meeting of the Société d'Hygiène et de Psychologie, spoke of the intoxicating effect of rapid motor locomotion. The mental and moral state of the driver become abnormal. He grows vindictive, furiously aggressive, and lets himself be carried away by the angry impulse of the moment. The high rate of speed works him up into the very same state of mind which makes the habitual drinker of alcohol regardless of consequences. Both abuse, swear, and use vile language. La bête est lâchée as much in the motorist whose pace is checked as in the drunkard in a combative mood. M. Hachet Souplet quoted a number of instances from police reports of trials of automobilists in which self-control and the sense of dignity entirely deserted gentlemen of high education and breeding. Dr. Berillon, an eminent man, corroborated everything M. Hachet Souplet said. He called attention to the conduct of motorists when arrested for excessive speed. In communications received from police commissioners they were uniformly spoken of as forgetful of all the restraints their social station required, and in a state of dementia. According to Dr. Berillon, they become as mad under the effect of the onward rush of the motorcar as the dancing devils of the Arabs in a fantasia. A human life appears of no account to a motorist going at high speed, to the dervish warmed by a dance, or to the Arab in the intoxication of a fantasia. Dr. Berillon knows a motorist who ran over a peasant and rushed on after he did so as furiously as before. He returned home in the state of depression that follows a long rush forward at the pace of an express train, and never gave a thought to his victim on the road until he read three days after how he had killed him. He then felt very sorry, declared himself guilty of the death of the peasant, and settled an annuity on his family. Dr. Berillon, after investigating into a large number of police cases against chauffeurs, believes they cannot help their reckless driving. The future steals on them. In setting out they intend to go at a moderate pace, but as they warm to the work they must rush on faster and faster. The flying landscape through which they tear forward produces the kind of giddiness which Arabs say takes hold of them in the fantasia. In this state motorists would run down those nearest and dearest to them as unthinkingly as though they were so many peasants. M. Berillon thinks that the only cure is to make the manufacturers of motors jointly responsible for the bones broken or lives lost by purchasers of their cars. Machinery would then be so constructed as to render a high rate of speed impossible.

More Intelligent Anticipation.

According to the "Academy," a Scotch newspaper contains the following: "One is inclined to think that the Persian astronomer-poet Omar Khayyam has been a diligent student of Shakespeare and Burns; if not, then the literary coincidences are somewhat remarkable." The writer goes on to observe that Omar should be styled the "Persian Burns." This truth held in the domain of the New Orient. From which we here gather a couple, clearly promising a rich harvest, thinks "Punch." Thus: There can be little doubt that Milton was a keen student of Marie Corelli. His picture of "Rasselas the Hero" only too obviously a feeble imitation of the great author's chief character in her novel "The Sorrows of Satana." Shakespeare, too, in Pericles' speech, refers to the "force of temporal power." It is not difficult to guess the meaning of the poem. Did Homer read Phillips? This question has been agitating the literary public for some time, and interest in the subject has been revived lately by an article in one of the reviews, in which the writer, after a long analysis of the poems, declares that the story of "Phyllis" "Ulysses" and that of Homer's last memorable hero. And yet the Greek made no acknowledgment whatever of his indebtedness!

Scott owed much to Crockett. A grand part of "Rob Roy," "Old Mortality," and other novels is strangely reminiscent of the master's work, and some passages seem to have been "lifted" almost entire from the pages of the Wizard of Plover.

One of Burns' chief claims to fame is that he wrote "Auld Lang Syne," and yet it seems never to have been pointed out that the refrain of the poem—"The Days of Auld Lang Syne"—is not really his, but the glees of the "Auld Lang Syne" to whom honor is due!

It would be impossible to mention every writer who owes something to Calverton, signs of indebtedness are everywhere. Julian Coeur surely borrows through Coeur's graphic description, and how often has the mighty Maximilian's phrase "The Eternal City" been borrowed by petty literary thievers? Well, too, who wrote "The Burial of Sir John Moore's Corps"? It is left to the writer with his glory? Who could have derived this idea but from the great scenes in which Storm is left in custody the same way, "alone with his glory"? But why go on? Instances of plagiarism such as these could be multiplied indefinitely.

An Aged Scholar.

A peasant woman named Madame Huc, in the Ham Commun of the Somme Department, has just put herself to school at seventy years of age. Displaying her illiteracy, the old dame at last summoned courage some months ago to ask the village schoolmaster if he would teach her to read. "There is not a moment to lose," said that worthy, with tender humor; "we'll begin this instant," and producing the alphabet, he there and then administered to his aged pupil her first lesson in the mysteries of A, B, C. But Mother Huc was an apt scholar. By infinite docility and diligence she was able to spell a little at the end of several weeks, could read a few letters, and can now indite a little letter as well as most of her class.

"The Domestic Exile."

American and Russian Jews.

The New York Tribune of Wednesday last, in an editorial under the caption, "America and Russian Jews," said in part: "The cry is still raised that the President does not interfere. He does not 'read the riot act' to Russia. Such sayings are, of course, sincere and disinterested when they are not ignorant. They are prompted by purely factional purposes. But best their accusations should perhaps describe some, it may be well to treat them for a moment with a seriousness which they do not deserve. Let us suppose for a moment that the Russian, or the German, or the British Government should seek to interfere in the negro lynching in America than the massacres of Khartoum. Suppose the Russian Government should 'read the riot act' to us on that account; or, seeing that a United States Senator had, in a private conversation, defended and approved such lynchings, should arraign the American Government as responsible for them. What would be the American reply? What would be the reply of those very critics who are now railing at the President for not reading the riot act to Russia? But the President might at first suggest to the Czar that religious liberty would be desirable in Russia, they say. The other day a French gentleman, of official rank was arrested in the suburbs of Washington for riding in the 'Jim Crow' section of a street car. Suppose the French Government should suggest to the President that equal rights for men of all races would be desirable in the United States. Suppose some foreign Government should make recommendations to this country concerning the desirability of letting negroes vote in the Southern States. There would be an outbreak of indignation from Maine to California against the impudent meddling of a foreign country in a purely domestic affair of this country. But that which is sauce for the American goose, is it not also sauce for the Russian gander?"

A Bit of Blue Enamel

or Traced by a Valentine.

"My bit of blue enamel!" she exclaimed, with an eager look.

"Yes. Will you forgive me? You know, dearest, when you told me about this, I saw it was necessary for me to get it into my own possession at once. They'd have soon got it if, I hadn't. I can tell you I didn't half like 'burgling' at my little girl's boxes and drawers; but I knew it would be all right in the end, and that she'd forgive me."

"Of course," said Marjorie, with another tender pressure of his hand.

After a moment or two she added, gravely:

"I am so grieved for Madeline."

"So am I. At first I took it for granted that she was as bad as they; but afterwards I decided differently; and when you told me of her kindness to you, I was deeply sorry for her."

"She knew I abstracted the bit of enamel from your drawer. I wanted to get some information from her, and so took her, or pretended to take her, into my confidence. She wanted the bit of enamel, but, of course, I didn't let her have it. She wanted to screen the murderer; I wanted to bring him to justice. Everything's fair in hunting such vermin down; but I can tell you I didn't like deceiving her."

"Poor Madeline!" sighed Marjorie.

"We'll never," said he for her age.

For Poultry-Keepers.

Poultry and Small Fruit.

Keeping of poultry combined with care of small fruit makes a land doubly useful, and the profit more than double, as each crop assists in the production of the other, while the waste enriches the soil, and, if well stirred, rotation of crops and health of fowls are better than if either is pursued alone.

With the exception of strawberries and grapes, fowls enjoy the shade of vines, without injury to the crops, and will do much good in picking up the fallen fruit, and thereby destroying the worm, which does much toward preventing the scourge of these insects during the earlier season. The shade, too, is very essential to fowls during the hot summer days, and while they scratch and wallow under the bush the working of the soil keeps the worms in a groggy and torpid condition. If the little chicks are free to run in the garden as well, their food will consist of worms and insects injurious to the plants; in this little detail, the profit from the fowls is increased. It will be many dollars during the year. Many breeders seem afraid to let their poultry have access to the garden and berry field, while I have always found their presence a benefit to the crop. My flock is healthy, free from lice and disease, always laying, and go about with a lively cackle, seemingly glad that they are so; and I can say from the just experience I give them nature's way as far as possible in chickenland.

To conclude, I think $30 worth of fruit, and $30 worth of eggs and poultry, can be raised on a single village lot each year.—Michigan Poultry Breeder.

"And it was really Edgar who killed my father?"

"Yes. He made a full confession" before he died. It appears he knew your father had the notes in the house that night, and determined to rob him.

"He was prowling about the window of your father's room, for he meant to get an entrance through that as soon as the light was turned down. But your father, so doubt, would by some memory of that mysterious dream you told me of, close the window, undisturbed and stood for a moment looking out. The robber, who was trying to hide behind a tree close by, felt sure he was discovered, and in his desperation, he stepped forward and stabbed your father to the heart. He fell where he had stood, just inside the room, against the window. Edgar secured the notes and the locket, and made good his escape, just as you came back to the room."

"It is just nine years ago today," said the parvula, in a low, awe-struck croon, "that my father was killed by St. Valentine's Day!"

"Oh, how mysterious it is!"

And she shivered a little as she spoke.

Her lover put his arm round her, and drew her fondly to the shelter of his strong young breast.

"Let us forget the sin and the misery, darling," he whispered. "We have brighter things to think about. This is St. Valentine's Day, sweet, and I think you know I want you for my valentine."

Great Demand for Chickens.

The present time is most favorable for the production, fattening and marketing of farm chickens. There has been such a substantial increase in the consumption of chickens and eggs within the last few years that it is not possible to rear a greater number of suitable market chickens than can be sold with profit. Last year there were not sufficient chickens sold in Canada to supply the home markets. As a result of the shortage the trade with Great Britain was lessened. This is unfortunate on account of the great demand for Canadian chickens in Great Britain and the good prices that are paid.

The chief of the poultry division, Mr. F. C. Hare, states that numerous letters have been received from produce merchants, poulterers and commission merchants who desire to learn in what localities chickens can be bought in great numbers and at reasonable prices. From several Canadian cities, and especially from Montreal, produce firms have asked to be informed where market chickens suitable for shipping to Great Britain could be obtained in the greatest quantities. The poulterers and commission merchants have repeatedly asked for the same information. The letter of a well-established produce house from London, England, was received last week. This firm wishes to "start an undertaking for the purpose of importing Canadian poultry to Great Britain." They desired in-

CHAPTER XIII.

Conclusion.

Later in the day, when the morning had worn into afternoon, Sir Edward doctored came again to Dunsdale.

Marjorie's lovely face had taken his very position making a claim on his compassion, it was scarcely to be wondered at, that he should take more than ordinary pains to be of service to her.

"To Miss St. Clair in the dining-room," he asked the policeman who stood on guard in the hall.

"Yes, sir."

"Alone?"

"No, sir—I think not."

"You think not? Who is with her, then?"

"Why, sir, I can't just tell you—that is to say, I'm not quite sure—"

The man was evidently embarrassed, and really did not know what to say.

Sir Edward passed by him hastily, and tapped at the door of the dining-room.

"Come in," said Marjorie's soft voice, and the butler, opening the door, found that she was alone.

Great was his anger as he recognized her companion.

"You!" he exclaimed, starting back at his surprise, while his face expressed unmitigated disgust and indignation.

"Hyde—or Trevor, to give him his real name—not the young baronet's angry glance with one of calm, smiling confidence."

"Sir Edward," he said, "Allow me to thank you for the kindness you have shown Miss St. Clair. She has been telling me of your visit to her this morning."

Sir Edward turned from him to Marjorie, who stood in silent confusion, a faint flush on her pale cheek, her eyes timidly dropped to the floor.

"Miss St. Clair, will you tell me who this woman?" he exclaimed, impetuously.

"May, let me tell you," interposed Trevor, stepping forward, and speaking with a frankness which must needs have dispelled all mistrust. "I am not what I seem, Sir Edward. I am not one of that gang of rascals, or I should scarcely be here now. Instead, I am a detective who has brought them to you, and I am here to stay."

"The detective!" exclaimed Sir Edward, in still deeper bewilderment.

"The detective and no other," said Trevor, laughing. "Marjorie, tell him that what I say is true."

"It is indeed it!" said Marjorie, clasping her hands together in her eagerness.

"I need no further assurance, Miss St. Clair," said Sir Edward, quietly, and he turned and gave his hand to Trevor.

of such a project and the possibility of obtaining poultry at greatly reduced prices in large quantities, and the best districts for the collection of them. Last fall a firm in Cape Colony wished a poultry trade developed with that colony, and shipped a consignment of chickens was made to Cape Colony, which arrived in a satisfactory condition and pleased the trade. A New York firm wrote that they desired to import Canadian chickens, and were recommended by the department to firms in the Maritime Provinces, from whom they purchased chickens and were compensated favorably by them.

The above and similar requests are of course of frequent occurrence in touch with the Canadian produce firms and packing houses that are buying and marketing chickens. The majority of our established firms are equipped with a complete plant for raising in Canada or Great Britain several times more chickens than they can buy. Their profits are diminished through scarcity of chickens. Nevertheless merchants in Great Britain, Cape Colony, the United States, and even in Australia, are looking to a supply of Canadian chickens to satisfy their growing trade.

The problem of supplying this wonderfully increased demand for chickens can be solved by the farmers alone. Instead of the farmer rearing fifty or a hundred chickens that receive little attention or little care, he should rear from 200 to 2,000 chickens annually. These should be of a utility type, such as can be found in the popular breeds, Plymouth Rocks and Wyandottes. The chickens should be hatched and reared by incubators and brooders, and when ready for market the cockerels should be placed in fattening crates and fattened. The equipment required to do this is not an expensive one. From $200 to $500 is the cost of incubators, brooders, houses and fattening crates for finishing 1,000 chickens. It is as necessary for realizing the great profit from the poultry business as threshing and mowing machines are for general farming. The work connected with finishing 1,000 chickens with the proper appliances is no more than is required for rearing 200 chickens by the natural method. It is necessary to a business that requires to be developed in the same manner as the butter, cheese and fruit branches. A substantial profit can be made from the poultry business without the aid of a farmer. In adjunct to farming, and with the same careful attention and financing.

The Dominion Department of Agriculture is endeavoring to increase the poultry raising industry by assisting the growing of the greatest number of high-class chickens, and to assist in the marketing of them. A revised edition of the booklet "Profitable Poultry Raising," which has been published, will be mailed without charge on application to the Commissioner of Agriculture and Dairying, Ottawa. The information it contains is of great value to the poultry grower, and should be in the hands of every interested poultryman in Canada.

"Fred," he said, with the frankness of a valetman. "And may I know your name?"

"Trevor—Fred Trevor, at your service."

"Trevor!—and Fred. Ohn it be—[at it impudently!]

"What's his name, Mr Edward?"

"That you should be the Fred Trevor."

(No he is not!)

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay.

It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds; the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash?

A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there is risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurtens, the Balchins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at from $1.00 per value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $4,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1890 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $682.

$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Mallory, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $30, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

¶Nor does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining.—The Home State in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore mills only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours.

The Alaska Treadwell ore mills $2.38 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par.

No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management.

READ THIS!

This Company offers one of the safest and best investments, as its property is located in the famous Elmer's District, Baker Co., Oregon, and has for its neighbors such mines as the Hanson, Red Pine, Nevada North Pole, Columbia, Colorado and Cracker Country, which are producing from $25,000 to $500,000 each per month. This great property for which the undersigned is Fiscal Agent is more promising than many of the big producing mines at the same stage of development.

The Company has three full claims, with two large veins, one eastern foot and the other twenty-two feet at the surface, showing good values and strictly free milling.

The Company owns the property outright, being free from all debts and incumbrances and is ready to begin the substantial modern machinery and to maintain development work. Limited number of shares will be sold for a short time only at its exorbitant price, as announced above.

Investors who wish to place money in large or small amounts can do so better than to investigate this proposition. All information cheerfully furnished and all cheques payable to order.

Constipation

Causes Headache, Abdominal Pains, Piles and in Severe Cases Insanity and Apoplexy

It is a common mistake to conclude that Constipation is not dangerous condition. Although at first it is only accompanied by slight inconvenience and pain, yet if not corrected, it will inevitably lead to very dire results. Great care should be used in selecting a remedy for constipation because if a violent purgative is employed, it is sure to set up pain, irritation and congestion, and result finally in piles. The experience of those who have tested all the cures for constipation seems to prove that Peruna is the most effective and satisfactory treatment. It makes the bowels so well ordered that natural and unassisted action is established. Nothing so equal to the immediate sense of comfort, it produces, and pain in the head, and stomach, and in the intestines, disappear almost at once.

Peruna is a very mild and certain cathartic, and never causes inflammation or distress. Peruna can be taken early as long as required and in no way interferes with business or pleasure, and nothing may be feared from its use, however prolonged it may be.

For Constipation, Piles and Bleeding Hemorrhoids, Peruna stands unrivaled. The doctor of the City Hospital Company, who suffered from piles, says: "Constant sitting on the wagon seat, produced a violent irritation, which combined with constipation of the bowels, brought on a severe attack of piles. I used with out benefit, different ointments, and other remedies, but got quick relief and most satisfactory results from Peruna. I can recommend Peruna to all who suffer from piles."

Peruna always cures, and can be purchased at any reliable drug store or 50 cents a box or three boxes for $1.50. Send to your address by mail if you are forwarded to M. C. Polansky & Co., Kingston, Ont.

A Brave Act
What might have been a drowning accident had it not been for the bravery of Mr. Louis Fowler, occurred on Monday, June 29th. It appears that Kenneth, the little five-year-old son of Dr. Fowler, who was visiting Mr. Louis Fowler, who lives near the lake, was with several other children, indulging in a bath in the lake. The children had a tug, with which they were having great fun. The tug drifted out into deep water, carrying Kenneth with it. The frightened children ran to Mr. Fowler for assistance, and he, being unable to swim, took two other lads and paddled out to the tug, who was nearly exhausted when rescued. It was a brave act, and one worthy of recognition, as the lad would surely have been drowned had assistance not been promptly rendered.

A PUBLIC MEETING

To be Called to Discuss Postal Delivery Matter

Those in favor of a postal delivery system are engaged in getting up a petition to His Worship, Mayor Rogers, asking him to call a public meeting to discuss the matter. We admit the present condition of things at the post office is almost intolerable. The government should be asked either to erect a more suitable building, or give us a free delivery.

DANGER TO CROPS

The Hot South Wind Threatens the Crops

Yesterday a prominent citizen, who seems to know what he is talking about, told The Times that there was grave danger to the crops owing to the hot weather. Wheat, oats, barley, etc., owing to the hot spring, is soft, and is exactly in condition to receive a blight.

OUR FALL SHOW

Bright Prospects for the Peterborough Industrial Fair

Extensive preparations are being made for the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, which will be held on September 22nd to 28th inclusive. The fair will be a farmers' exhibition with good prizes for horses, live stock, etc. The largest premiums that have been offered for some time will be given. The prize list has been printed and will be out about August 1st, and those wishing copies may obtain them from the secretary. The directors have met and appointed the various committees. No pains will be spared towards making our fall fair a grand success.

THE MARKET SQUARE

Complaints Being Made Regarding the Stock Pens, Etc.

Complaints have been made to The Times regarding the condition of the market square. The stock pens are usually in a more or less filthy condition; wagons and watering carts are allowed to stand in driveway, and no attempt appears to be made to pick up loose paper, etc., lying around.

One citizen, who takes great interest in having the town look neat and clean, said that the Council, when letting the market stalls, should bind the market clerk to look after the square and keep it clean, even if the price had to be lowered. This is good common sense.

ANOTHER BIG STRIKE

One Worth $25 per Ton Discovered by Copper Mining Company

The Times has received a letter from Mr. Thomas Fleming, secretary of the Copper Mining Company, Limited, Copper, Ont., stating that the company has made another rich strike of $25 per ton, in the second level 50 feet east shaft. The strike is on Vergen ground and has a height to the surface of 100 feet. Mr. Fleming says this is the highest grade strike made so far in the company's second level. The ore found in the first, or No. 1 level, is $24 per ton, and 100 feet deeper it has increased nearly three times in value, which speaks for itself.

It is the intention of this company to sink another 100 feet as soon as possible, as the ore strike is getting more valuable with depth.

POST OFFICE IMPROVEMENTS

Long Promised Alterations in Buildings Will Soon Be Made

The Times is in a position to state that the changes so long contemplated in the post office buildings are now likely to be made. The work would have been proceeded with some months ago, only that the matter of a free delivery for the town was under consideration, and the necessity for more room inside the building would not, with a postal delivery, exist.

Now that the free delivery system has practically been knocked out of the head, the contemplated improvements will now be made. These consist of a new tile floor and a double wicket. This may patch matters up for a short time, but what is needed is an entirely new office building, of twice the size of the present one, which is nothing short of a disgrace to the town. The sooner an agitation is begun for a new building the better.

THE LATE MR. JAS. LAING

Another of Peterborough's Oldest Citizens Passes Away

After an illness extending over a period of about 18 months, Mr. James Laing passed away on Thursday last, at his residence, Wilsley street, aged 70 years. The deceased came to Peterborough about 12 years ago, and has since that time made his home here. He was born in Ontario, and for many years lived in Hamilton, where he carried on the business of a cooper, selling out to his brother on removing to Peterborough. He leaves three sons and one daughter to journey through life hereafter. Thomas and May live in town and William and Wanda are in Hamilton.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at 2:30 from his late residence to Little Lake Cemetery.

Mr. Laing was highly esteemed by all who knew him, and his demise is generally regretted.

THE GLORIOUS TWELFTH

The Orangemen to Leave for Lakeland at 9 O'clock

To-morrow will be the 12th of July, and will be celebrated throughout Canada in the usual way. Two hundred and thirty years ago King William of Orange crossed the Boyne and routed King James. The Orange order for these two hundred and thirty years has been growing in influence and power, until to-day its members are numbered by hundreds of thousands, and its ramifications extend to every point of the world where the English language is spoken.

The local Orangemen will celebrate the day by a church parade. They will assemble at their lodge room on Simcoe street at 8:30 and proceed to the George street church, where the annual sermon will be preached by Rev. J. P. Wilson, pastor of the church.

On Monday the celebration proper will take place. The Peterborough brothers will go to Lakeland where a big demonstration will be held. A special train will leave the Grand Trunk station at 9 o'clock, returning at 11 o'clock.

FOR SYSTEMIC CATARRH

Peculiar to Summer Pe-ru-na Gives Prompt and Permanent Relief.

C. S. Rhoads, Indianapolis, Ind., writes: "For the past two years I have hardly known what it was to have a sweet, restful night's sleep. Cares and overwork seemed to weigh me down more than it should or would had I been able to get my proper rest. My doctor was unable to help me and ordered me to rest for a complete rest and change. As this was simply out of the question, and as I had heard several of the men under me speak of how much Peruna had helped them, I decided to try it and am glad indeed that I did. Six bottles made a new man of me. I eat well, sleep well and get up feeling refreshed and rested."

"My official duties are not half so hard and I certainly have good reasons to heartily endorse Peruna."—C. S. Rhoads.

C. S. Rhoads.

Judge Wm. T. Zenor, of Washington, D. C., writes from 215 N. Capital street, Washington, D. C.:

"I take pleasure in saying that I can cheerfully recommend the use of Peruna as a remedy for catarrh of the bladder and of the most excellent tonic for general conditions."

—Wm. T. Zenor.

Mrs. Amanda Morrill, 180 Reid street, Elizabeth, N. J., writes:

"I have been sick over two years with nervous prostration and general debility, and heart trouble. Have had four doctors; all said that I could not get well. I had not walked a step in nine months, suffering with partial paralysis and palpitation of the heart every other day, and had become so reduced in flesh as to be a mere skeleton, weighing only 85 pounds."

Stocks—The MARKETS OF THE WORLD—Grain

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and a low threshold safety is substituted, and yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are offering to investors by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

An arrangement has been made with the Trust Company to guarantee to the purchaser the return of amount invested within a given number of years. To substantiate this guarantee they issue to the purchaser of the stock a gold bond, which is secured by first real estate mortgages deposited with another Trust Company for the specific purpose of securing the bonds the underwriting company issues.

Then the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer:

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, many other things, to secure funds for the extensive development of its numerous mining properties and also of its oil lands, offers a limited amount of its Treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Oropesa Creek, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done. It is proposed to place as many of these mining properties upon a selling and self-supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of oil lands in Montano County, Colo., in order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $1.00 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with individual liability. This issue of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Partners have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are usually very great, especially when the stock can be secured at such a low price as this is now offered for. Now is the time to get in before an advance in the price is made.

The new railway from Denver to Salt Lake, which is now building will be of incalculable benefit to the Company, furnishing transportation for ore and supplies, besides immediately increasing values.

Government Report Disappointing

New York, July 11.—Corn acreage, 88,900,000 acres. Condition winter wheat, 75.8; spring wheat, 82.5; spring and winter wheat combined 80. Amount wheat farmers hands, 42.1, 600,000 bushels. Condition oats 82.3. Barley, 86.8. This was not as good as was expected.

CORN—Weekly corn report makes condition 81.7 and acreage 91 million bushels. This is one of the lowest conditions ever reported for July.

There have been but few July conditions below 85.

Liverpool cotton lower. Wheat unchanged. Corn 1-1 lower.

There are many elements complicating the situation, results of which cannot be foreseen. The stock market declined mainly and the few during the first four hours of trading was great enough to cause a serious disturbance in the minds of uninitiated holders. A selling movement started yesterday with the opening. At first a considerable block of Reading came out. During the next 2 hours U.S.S. was constantly pressed upon the market in round lots. At last when a rally was in progress, a selling order in 10,000 shares of Atchafalpa. Yesterday's news was meagre and unimportant. The Government crop was looked for, of course, with some interest. Some advance statements in reference to it apparently had a touch of inspiration.

11 a.m.—The market does not rally very well; they are waiting statement which is expected to be bad. Market looks as though it will be very weak and at its lowest.

Experiences Docet

There was once a curious and energetic youth who wished to see something of the world, so he went to his father and said:

"Father, my experience hitherto has been somewhat limited, and I wish to enlarge it. What would you advise?"

His father gave him one hundred dollars.

"Here, my boy," he said. "Go out and learn something."

By and by the boy came back and said:

"Father, I got as much experience as I could with that hundred, but I find that I need more to carry out certain investigations I am becoming interested in."

This time his father gave him two hundred dollars, and the youth went away rejoicing. After a while, however, he came back again and said:

"Father, I find that experience is somewhat expensive. Now could you?"

This time his father gave him five hundred dollars.

It was not long, however, before he was back again, and he said, "I have come to ask your kind assistance."

This time, however, the father shook his head.

"You have had some of the experience that can be bought with cash," he said. "I have seen you go out and try some of the experience that money cannot buy. This you will find to be fully as valuable as the other, if not more so."

So the son went away, exceedingly angry.

In the course of time, however, he came back. There was a bright smile on his face.

"Well," said his father, "how did you make out?"

"First-rate, father," said the now experienced youth, "and with the first hundred you gave me, I have secured a line of credit, so that last time I had everything charged. Here are the bills."

"Moral—It's a wise father who knows his own son—'Life'."

Surgery Seven Hundred Years Ago.

Scientific operations were performed on the human skull in America two hundred years before the coming of Columbus, says the Toledo "Blade."

The work was done in those early days with the aid of skulls and first discovered in Peru which illustrate the methods of those early surgeons. From the appearance of the skull it is also evident that a considerable proportion of those operated upon died afterwards. The trepanning was probably performed to cure the lives of those who had received a serious wound from a club or a stone. Considering that the surgeons of those early days worked with nothing more effective than a flint chisel or flint knife, the work is exceedingly creditable. Human skulls bearing the signs of similar operations also have been found in Europe, dating back to prehistoric times. The trepanning was also performed in the same primitive manner. The skull was also performed in this primitive way even as a cure for headache.

ORE BEARING SCHISTS FROM 75 TO 100 FEET WIDE

The out crop of the extension of the deposit has just been cut on the opposite side of the mountain from which the work was commenced, proving that the ore body extends through the hill.

MR. M. V. GRANDIN, engineer in charge of the development work, reports the discovery of an immense body of gold, silver, and copper bearing ore from seventy-five to one hundred feet wide on the property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, at Cheticamp, Cape Breton. This is probably the first known instance in Eastern Canada of the unearthing of a large deposit of metallic minerals such as made the mining industry of British Columbia, the Western States and Mexico of great magnitude. The discovery in Cape Breton tends to confirm the opinion of mining experts that Cheticamp is one of the most important mining districts in Nova Scotia. The Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, owns some of the finest sections of this district and has about completed the proving of a body of ore estimated to contain 100,000 tons, worth from $10 to $15 per ton. The main shaft is down 130 feet all in one and the tunnel from which the mine will be worked has been excavated from the opposite side of the hill. The Company expect to commence the installation of plant for treatment in three months' time. Surface buildings, etc., have all been erected.

Thousands of tons of Ore already in sight.

Every day adds to the proved value of the mine

THERE is no other form of mining investment than good gold-copper deposits as they occur in immense value and carry regular values. Many of the private fortunes of the United States owe their origin to a lucky investment in a gold-copper proposition. The property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, is undoubtedly one of the most valuable in the country. Besides its extensive mining claims the mining company controls timber for mining and building purposes and will also have and great water-power. The extension of the MacKenzie & Main Railway from Broad Cove to Cheticamp this year will give this great mining enterprise rail as well as water communication with all points. The undertaking of this Company is a sound business enterprise, organized by a prominent Nova Scotia business man, without the heavy over-capitalization, watered stock, promoters' take-off, directors' perquisites, etc., which characterize many foreign companies. The company is capitalized at the moderate figure of $600,000, and one-half the entire capital stock has been placed in the treasury in reserve. 10,000 shares of the other half are being sold for development.

A Limited Amount of Stock is Offered at $3.00 per Share (Thirty Cents on the Dollar). Par $10.00

The Stock was started at $5 per share, and has advanced steadily to $3. Next advance will be to $5, and we expect it will be quoted at par—$10—within a year, based on ore actually blocked out. Less than 1000 shares will be sold at the present figure of three dollars. Applications for Stock should be addressed to

Bilious Dyspepsia

A DREADFUL COMPLAINT ACCOMPANIED BY HEADACHE, SICKNESS OF THE STOMACH, VOMITING THAT CAN BE PERMANENTLY AND QUICKLY CURED BY PEBBLES.

Some persons have attacks of Bilious Dyspepsia very frequently, and feel as if they were about to die. The whole system seems to poison. The tongue becomes coated, the face a yellow pallor, and a bitter taste always noticeable in the mouth. At times the bowels are very constipated, but occasional acute diarrhoea is caused by the accumulation of bile in the system.

It is highly dangerous to allow such a condition to impair your life. It must be cured and the simplest and most reliable is Peppermint. It digests every particle of food eaten and prevents the waste products from clogging up the system.

Peppermint restores all deranged organs to a healthy, vigorous condition. It keeps the bowels well regulated, makes the kidneys eliminate all poisons from the blood, and supplies the necessary elements to build up and strengthen the entire body.

Mr. Louis Mankin, one of Peterborough's most enterprising and well known business men, during the past three years has been suffering from Bilious Dyspepsia. He was cured permanently by Peppermint and is so confident of its efficacy that he gives the following testimonial.

"About three years ago," says Mr. Mankin, "I had the Grippe which left me in a very low down condition. I finally developed into Dyspepsia. I was unable to eat but a few things and had a craving for food. I gave up treating with the doctor because they did not help me, and on the advice of a friend used Peppermint. It was only a few days before I was able to eat and feel much better. I had been strong and well, but now I was weak and ill. Peppermint gave me energy, vigor and health. I am now as well as I ever was. Price 50c per box or three boxes for $1.25. By mail from R. C. Peckham & Co., Kingston, Ont."

Organized a Relief Service
The Peterborough Dispensary and Relief Service, organized by the Rev. Mr. Wilson, held a meeting at the George Street Methodist church last evening, where a very instructive service was presented by the Rev. Mr. Wilson. The members of the order met at their hall on Dundas street at 8.15 in full force, and the Rev. Mr. Wilson presided over the service.

A Splendid Mining Proposition
Mr. W. W. Thomas, of Morris, Thompson & McCall, was in town on Saturday on business, and gave The Times a pleasant talk. The firm own some of the finest copper mining property in the world, and it is with a view of placing a block of stock on the Canadian market that brought Mr. McCall to Peterborough. Further details regarding the proposition will appear in these columns in a few days.

Peterborough Struck by a Mandate

The reporters on the local press have on various occasions found fault with the editorial staff of this paper, but they must now come forward with apologies and extend their condolences to the Ontario press. At their last meeting the members of that body gave a convincing exhibition of their staying powers, which we earnestly hope will not prove an act of rivalry. The News-Letter says that sitting down at 9 a.m. Monday till 4 a.m. Tuesday, and again on Tuesday afternoon and evening, the council decided to recommend that the contract for developing the additional water of 188,000 gallons be let as follows: The electrical work to the Canadian General Electric Company, of Peterborough. The estimated cost of completing this work is between $40,000 and $45,000 and the additional power provided will be 1600 horse power.

-The Board of Health will meet this morning.

THE GLORIOUS TWELFTH

The Local Organizers to Leave for Lakeside at 10 a.m.

The glorious Twelfth will be celebrated today in Lakeside. A special train will leave the Grand Trunk station at 10.30 and return again at 7. The organizers will meet at 9 o'clock this morning at the Orange Hall, Simcoe street, and at 10.30 will march to Lakeside, headed in a band, to the station.

FIFTEEN DAYS IN JAIL

James Dunnett (convicted of False Pretences)

James Dunnett was convicted of obtaining money under false pretences at the Police Court yesterday morning. The complainant was Mrs. R. Oliver. The defendant pleaded not guilty. It appears that the defendant had secured $100 for a job, which he understood he had completed, but it was subsequently proved that such was not the case. Dunnett was therefore found guilty, and was sentenced to 15 days' hard labor in the county gaol.

DEATH OF JUSTICE ARMOUR

Was Born in Ontario and Had Made His

Many in Peterborough will regret to hear of the death of Chief Justice Armour, Judge of the Supreme Court, which occurred in London, England, on Saturday, where he had come to represent Canada on the Alaskan boundary Commission.

Justice Armour was born in Ontario, in the house which was recently pulled down, which stood on Armstrong's hill, Ashburnham. Mr. A. H. Peck, of Ashburnham, is a brother-in-law of the deceased gentleman. He was 73 years of age. The remains will be brought to Canada for interment.

Medical Attention

The attention of the citizens of the town is respectfully called to the following enactment of the Public Health Act, viz., "All wells in this municipality, which are in use, whether such wells are public or private shall be cleaned out before the 1st day of July in each year."

Many have complied with the law already in this respect and to those who have not it is earnestly advised that they would do so without delay, as the hot season is upon us now and we cannot be too careful about the purity of the water which is used.

Victoria House of Refuge

Lindsay Peck, Messrs. J. A. Graham, W. A. McGee, members of the special committee appointed at the recent meeting of the County Council to take the preliminary steps in connection with the erection of a House of Refuge, met yesterday at the Court House. Mr. Graham was appointed Chairman. The committee discussed for some time, and it was decided to advertise for offers of a suitable site. At least 5 acres will be required in order to comply with the requirements necessary to secure Government aid, and it was decided that the location should be situated in Lindsay in order that the institution may enjoy the benefits of town sewerage, water and light.

Port Hope Defeat T.A.S.

The lacrosse match on Saturday afternoon on the Murray street school grounds between Port Hope and the T.A.S. was witnessed by a large crowd. The game resulted in Port Hope securing six goals and the T.A.S. five, although during the first quarter it looked like T.A.S. all the way, as they succeeded in catching goals to their opponent's 1, but Port Hope, who was without the aid of 6 of their men, changed the tactics of their play, changing their men and bringing their defence into play, which worked to advantage as the three minutes. For the visitors Grimes, on the defence, and Morrison in goal, were the stars, while Griffiths and McDougall played a grand game. For the home team, La Pierre, Muldon, McNeill, McCabe and Parrell played well. Muldon also played a steady game.

A disagreeable feature of the game was the manner displayed by the visitors for killing time and delaying the game, which made it very unpleasant for referee Lynch.

"To say a pleasant word to anyone was almost impossible."

"I was troubled with female weakness for eight years, and suffered more than I can tell," writes Miss Guss, Mount of Ontario, Dorridge Co., Ont. "My disposition was affected to such an extent that to say a pleasant word to anyone was almost impossible."

"I had two operations performed by one of the most skilled surgeons of the West, but did not get relief. Then, against my doctor's strict orders, I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and also followed the advice given in the common sense medical advice."

"After continued for three months, and to-day am as healthy and well as a woman can be. I cannot thank Dr. Pierce enough for the relief he has given me."

Womanly diseases, as a rule, spoil the "disposition," because of the extreme nervousness and suffering they cause. Happiness as well as health is restored to the woman whose diseased condition is cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

After eight years of suffering and two fruitless operations, three months' use of "Favorite Prescription" restored Mrs. Moore to perfect health. This great remedy for women's ills, establishes regularity, drives out the poisons, cures inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

The Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1000 pages, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of postage and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE GREATEST MINING PROPOSITION
EVER OFFERED.

I am pleased to state that I have completed arrangements with the Consolidated Nevada Mining Company for the sale of a block of their treasury stock in Canada. It is a proposition I can honestly recommend, and the unbounded possibilities. The tremendous possibilities of WIDEKIND and TONOPAH in becoming places every day to the entire country. The spring rush into these NEVADA mining camps will equal or exceed that into Grapple Creek, Dawson or Mesquite. The strike recently reported from Widenkind and Tonopah have created the greatest excitement and the rush will soon be on.

Everyone is watching NEVADA mining stocks and prices are rapidly advancing. From other better opportunities for profits than do the shares of Mainly About People.

A Yankee tourist who called on Robert Burns' widow, Jean Armour, a few years after his death, had the audacity to ask her: "Can you show me any relics of the poet?" "Sir," answered the old lady, with majestic dignity, "I am the only relic of Robert Burns."

Mr. William Kennedy, in his book, "Sport in the Navy," tells the story of a retired boatswain who hired a boy to call him every morning at daybreak with the words, "The captain wants you," merely for the pleasure of saying, "Tall him I won't come," and turning over and going to sleep again.

Among the guests at a dinner in New York given in honor of Daniel Webster was Dr. Benjamin Brandreth, the inventor of a celebrated pill known by his name. A witty guest proposed the following "voluntary toast": "To Daniel Webster and Benjamin Brandreth, the pillars of the Constitution."

On a recent day's outing in Westchester County, N.Y., Ernest Haskell, the artist, was painting a bit of the green hillsides when a farmer came along, looking at the half-finished water-color, then gazed, much puzzled, at three small figures containing water which the artist had put on the ground close at hand. Turning away with a look of disgust, he remarked half-aloud: "Homoeopath, N'gosh!"

An intimate friend of President Grant said to him one day, "General, my little boy has heard that all great men write poor hands, but he says he believes you are a great man in spite of the fact that you write your signature so plainly that anybody can read it." The President took a card from his pocket, wrote his name on it, and handed it to him. "Give that to your boy," he said, "and tell him it is the signature of a man who is not at all great—but that fact must be kept a secret between him and me."

It is told of Bishop Williams of Connecticut, for many years presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church in America, who lived all his life a bachelor, that he was talking one day with a young man from the West about a tax a Western State was trying to impose on bachelors, the tax to be increased a certain per cent. for every ten years of bachelorhood. "Why, bishop," said the young man, "at your age you would still be paying about $100 a year." "Well," said the bishop, quietly, and in his old-time vernacular, "it's worth it."

An Irishman, being annoyed by a howling dog in the night, jumped out of bed to discipline the offender. It was in the month of January, when the snow was two feet deep. As he did not return his wife went out to see what was the matter, and found him in his nightshirt in the middle of the road, with his teeth chattering and the whole of his body almost paralyzed with cold, holding the struggling dog by the tail. "Good gracious, Pat!" said she, "what would you be after?" "Rash!" said he, "don't you see I'm trying to freeze the beast?"

The old Bridewell baying ground, which is now the subject of legislation in the British Parliament, is the resting place of Miss Orwell, so often mentioned by the Charles II. dramatists, who died in Bridewell Prison, and left £10 for a sermon to be preached at her funeral, on condition that nothing should be said of her but what was well. The preacher got out of the difficulty rather neatly by saying: "All that I shall say of her is that she was born well, she lived well and she died well; for she was born with the name of Orwell, she lived in Cheshamwell and she died in Bridewell."

It has been said of the Southern dandy that he has not always a clear idea as to property rights, but on one point it appears that he is not in the least hazy. An old colored man in the days "before the war" was given one of his master's best horses, which he immediately great pride. One Sunday his master met him coming home from a camp-meeting in a pouring rain, bareheaded and holding his hat under his coat. Later on the master questioned him jokingly: "Why didn't you wear your hat, Jerry? Did you feel the need of cooling your head?" "You see it's like dia, sah," responded Jerry. "My head is yours, but my hat is mine, and nobbly I feels like taking care of it, sah."

When Lord Beaconsfield was at the height of his fame, one of his most ardent supporters in the House of Commons asked as a signal favor that he might bring his son to Downing street, and that "the greatest man of the age" would give the boy some wise maxim or word of wisdom which might in after years be the treasure and guide of his life. Lord Beaconsfield, old and gouty, pressed, but contented. The great page duly produced young hopeful, whom the veteran statesman thus addressed: "My dear young friend, whatever you do in after life, mind that you never ask who wrote the 'Letter of Junius' or on which side of Whitehall Charles I. was beheaded. For if you do either of those things you will be considered a bore, and that is something too dreadful for you at your tender age to conceive."

Simplified Oratorio. The new minister of the First Church in Banbury was consulting the organist as to the music to be sung on his first Sunday.

"And besides the hymn-tunes," said the organist, whose daily occupation was that of plumber and ironman for the village, "we always have two selections from the choir, from real classical music, generally from one of Handel's or Haydn's oratorios."

"Why, that is good news," said the minister, who was no mean musician and had a cultivated taste and ear; "but don't you find the music rather difficult for untrained singers?" "Well, they aren't untrained, for I train 'em," said the organist, with some resentment. "And besides that, when the music's difficult I alter it for 'em. I strike out all the endnotes and trills and things of that kind; and where the tunes run too low or too high I either cut it up or down an octave. Or if I can't do that I just have 'em quit singing and I put on the vox humana stop and play. So time till it gets into their range again. It's easy enough when you know how to do."

Very Natural Conclusion. O'Reilly (being entertained by the cook, who produces a bottle of oil)—"You'll excuse me, Norah, but it's me own private opinion that these plums is spoiled."

Norah—Shure this is not plums; thin's a halibut, and they kin from Spain. O'Reilly—Be hivin' thin they must have kin in the shiverage.

In the Crimes.

The current number of The Review de Paris, says The Daily Graphic of May 21, contains some "Notes on the Crimean War" which are remarkable for reason of the frank admiration manifested by the author, the late General Trochu, for the British army as he saw it in 1854. Here, for example, is Trochu's opinion of the parts played respectively by his countrymen and ours at the battle of Inkermann: "It is," he says, "inconceivable that the French were the saviors and the English the saved. But we have transported that so loudly that we have persuaded the world—and even ourselves—that but for us it was all over with them. And yet what would have happened to us if the English had not held the Rumidian in check during those few mortal hours? And my firm conclusion, expressed on the spot to General Boquet, whom I vainly (at least equal to his talent) will never forgive me, is that if we ended by saving the English, they began by saving us. It is pleasant, at a time of 'reproaches' with our old allies, to hear this generous appreciation of the British army by a distinguished soldier of France."

74 Producing Oil Wells.

One New Well Each Week.

8th Regular Quarterly Dividend

Was paid on June 2nd which makes a record that can be equalled by few if any oil companies. The National has made records ever since its stock was first placed on the market—records that make its stock worth more than any other stock now on the market and that enhance the value of the outstanding stock so that stockholders derive the benefit.

All Dividends are Paid Upon the Basis of the Selling Price of the Stock Thus Making Each Succeeding Dividend Larger than its Predecessor.

Can you pick out any other company which is doing this? Every possible safeguard is thrown about this stock as an investment, in order that it may be one of the very safest investments on the market.

Our Books are Open to the Closest Inspection of any Investor or Stockholder.

THE BEST OPPORTUNITY

All Officers and Directors are Bonded in the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company.

for securing a reliable investment is now yours. You cannot make a mistake in the National Oil Co. stock, as every possible safeguard has been placed about it to insure investors. No other company protects its stockholders as we protect ours. The price has just been advanced to fifty cents which will give all who have bought an additional dividend, as we pay dividends upon the basis of the selling price of stock.

You can secure this stock now for 50 cents per share, but only 50,000 shares will be sold at this price.

THREE UNDOUBTED BARGAINS

A placer and two quartz claims;

Two partially developed quartz claims;

One-quarter section patented land adjoining above;

All located in the Susanville Mining District, Eastern Oregon. Will be sold together or separately. Total price, $9,000.

We consider this group of properties to be unusually promising as a heavy producing mine joins a portion of the land, and near-by placer grounds are showing up very rich.

Act quickly, if at all interested.

TRANSFER OFFICE; BRISTOL, CONN.

This Company has a perpetual lease on 20 acres of proven oil land in western Colorado, where thousands of miles of well-~~side~~ pipelines and the vicinity likewise have the best and largest number of producing wells in entire district.

Our Well No. 1, sunk in January and is now pumping and shipping oil regularly to the refinery.

The Directors have decided to put down well No. 2 at once, and now offer a block of the Treasury stock for the next 90 days at 10 Cents per Share, after that price will be advanced.

It is a well known fact that a 15 barrel well will pay over 100 per cent profit upon its cost.

This is no longer a speculation for we have proved that oil is on ground, and we now have oil in paying quantities, with two wells giving us some sum pay dividends, and every well we put down in-

A Bit of Blue Enamel

or Traced by a Valentine.

He took her hand in his, and pressed it with a lover's tenderness. "I know what you're thinking of, darling," he said, "very softly. 'This Way has its memories for you, as well as its happy ones. But, sweetheart, try to let the dead pass by its door.'"

"I do—indeed I do. And I am not unhappy—no, don't think that, dear; only, my memories of this day are very, very sad ones."

"Of course they are, my pet. And yet, I've got something here for you that I think you'll like. It isn't exactly a present, because it was years already, but I've had something done to it, and I thought, perhaps you'd like to wear it now." In

"As he spoke he drew forth from a dainty case the locket which had played so important a part in establishing the guilt of Edgar Hyde.

"She took it, eagerly, and with a little cry of pleasure.

"The bit of old enamel had been put in place by no skilful hand that Marjorie herself could scarce tell where the locket had been broken, and when she opened it she found it contained her portraits of her father and mother, exquisitely painted in miniature, and encircled with beautiful pearls.

"Oh, Fred! How kind—how thoughtful!—how good you are!"

"And she stood on tip-toe to kiss him."

"I'm glad you're pleased little wife, get it done when I was in London. There was a fellow in Regent street who seemed to me to paint miniatures wonderfully well, as I thought he might as well have a try at them. Of course I had to lend him the original portraits to copy from. I took those off your desk, little woman, and gave him the originals."

"How good you are!" said Marjorie again, while a mist of grateful tears dimmed her eyes. "The kindest, a noblest, the tenderest husband the world!"

"I ought to be. Haven't I got the rarest of wives?"

"And again he clasped her dainty arm, and covered her lips with kisses.

"Are you happy, dear heart?"

"Yes, more than I help being happy," she whispered back, "when you are so good to me, and"—nestling very close—"when you love me so."

"Marjorie, I often think about our meeting. How strange it seems that you had not fallen into the clutches of that arch old scoundrel, Hyde, and I'd might never have met."

"Oh, but I think we would. We loved each other before now. I feel that we have been brought together somehow," said Marjorie, with a woman's sweet, simple faith, which is no weak strength, and perhaps, after all, much wiser than mere reason.

Her husband smiled, well pleased.

"Perhaps so, darling," he said; "at my rate, I like you to think so."

"Poor Madeline! I shuddered, Marjorie, at the very name." A little and once again when I think of her. She has passed all the suffering, while I—

"Oh, husband darling, heaven has spared me more than I deserve!"

"Hardly nothing more need be said to show that Marjorie Trevor is today one of the happiest young women in England.

"Nevertheless, her husband declared, "you make her shoulder if he reminds her of the time when she had been home among desperate criminals, and her father's murderer as romantically traced by 'A Bit of Blue Velvet.'"

THE END.

Rayless Fish in Boiling Water.
One of the most remarkable discoveries in the shape of a peculiar species of fish was that made at Carson City, at that time both the Hale and Norcross and the Savage mines were down what is known as the "2,900 foot pit." When at that depth a subterranean lake of boiling water was tapped. This accident flooded both mines to a depth of 666 feet from the surface. All were then pumped out, except that which had gathered in basins and the inaccessable portions of the pit, and when the water still had a temperature of 123 degrees—nearly boiling-hot—many queer looking Nit-blooded fish were taken out. In appearance they somewhat resembled the gold fish. They seemed lively and sportive enough when they were in their native element—but they are—notwithstanding the fact that they did not even have rudimentary fins. When the fish were taken out of the hot water and put into the bucket of water for the purpose of being transported to the surface, they died as quickly as a perch or bass would if plunged into a kettle of water that was boiling hot; not only this, but their bodies cooled off exactly as if it were boiling. Rayless fish are common enough in all subterranean lakes and rivers, but this is the only case on record of living fish being found in boiling water.

Anecdotal

On a result of the chronic state of affairs in America much attention is being given to the question of irrigation and the story goes that a minister who was asked to appoint a day of prayer for rain assured that the people ought to pray for it.

When Mr. Chamberlain arrived about to begin the speech which he made from the balcony of the Marine Hotel, at Durban, he was startled by the sudden appearance of a reporter who slid down a ladder and asked him to deliver a paper on the subject of duty, but, notebook in hand, Mr. Chamberlain was astonished. "Whom do you represent?" he said. "The entire nation of the Empire," was the reply.

It is said that one of the most lavishly illustrated sets of speeches ever made by Lord Derby, on the subject of the story of the manuscript of one of the most statesmanlike discourses, being asked up from the floor, where it had been found not only to be freely illustrated, but it was found to contain a "Preamble," but also to contain a "Conclusion" beginning: "But I am detaining you too long (Cries of No, no, no, and 'Go home')."

Mr. Bacon recently delivered by him at the Durban County Council. "How do you two men talk at the same time and understand each other?" he asked a lay plaintiff and defendant the other day. "I take pleasure in doing so," said a lay witness: "Hasten your veil and I'll back your hat a little. I want to see your eyes. A woman's eyes are sometimes more tell-tale than her mouth."

Numerous stories are told of the artist's insatiable vanity and self-consciousness of delighting to exhibit for the pleasure of startling his hearers. A friend, wishing to pay him the highest compliment, once said to him: "Mr. Whistler, you and Velasquez are two of the greatest painters." The artist replied: "Why you drag in Velasquez? Again, while you drag the Thames through one of Velasquez's gardens, a lady remarked to Mr. Whistler, the whole trip is a series of your superb sketches." "Yes," answered Whistler, "Nature is a series of sketches."

There is a story of a gentleman who, on visiting Mr. Vernon, came across a picture of a woman before building quite a name from the Washington monument. "Are you in trouble?" he asked. "No, sir," she replied; "thank you much. I am quite well to trouble, but I am a little cross because my when I came upon the tomb of the 'Father of Country.'" "I quite understand," said, kindly; "but, madam, you have made a mistake. This is not the tomb of a nation; it is over yonder. This is the tomb of my Quaker ancestor, and the lady rose and moved away."

What He Promised to Win her.

—You will love me above all?

—Passionately, my darling.

—And you will never come to love me?

—Never, my darling.

—And you will save your money?

—I will save your money.

—And you will never speak harshly to me?

—Never.

—And you will give up all your habits?

—Every one of them.

—And you will be good friends to me?

—Yes.

—And papa?

—Yes.

—And you will always do just mamma wants you to do?

—Yes.

—And just what papa wants you to do?

—Yes.

—And just what I want you to do?

—Of course.

—Well, I will be yours, but I'm not. I am making an awful mistake.

—Me Up.

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay. It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds; the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash?

A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurons, the Baldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at from $1.00 per share down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $4,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1880 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $682.

$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 37 dividend-paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was well below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Malloy, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Bay owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $0.000 monthly.

¶Nor does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore mills only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 tons a day. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours. The Alaska Treadwell ore mills $2.38 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par. No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management. Respectfully submitted.

DEAF FOR THIRTEEN YEARS

Geo. Warner, publisher of the Morning Times of Toronto, was almost totally deaf in both ears for a number of years. He experimented with thousands of different remedies and only got relief by using Catarrhones and is cured.

Mr. Warner says: "For the past thirteen years my hearing has been badly affected. The streets were as quiet to me as if I lived in the city of the dead. I could neither hear the noise of the street cars or sound of human feet on the pavement. I wore a large catarrhone in each ear for three days and I was able to hear a great change in my condition, which gradually improved until now I can hear a whisper across the room. I cannot tell you how much I appreciate Catarrhones, or of the wonderful results I have derived from using them. Catarrhones have not only improved my hearing but I am quite willing that you should use them."

Mr. Warner's unqualified testimonial is an abundant proof that deafness can be cured, even in old age, if Catarrhones are used. This remedy is scientific in its application and meets with the endorsement of prominent ministers and doctors all over Canada. Our best equipped health institutions always keep it on hand, and cases are recorded where the deaf have been cured with great success in the Government deaf and dumb institutions where other means prove all futile.

If your hearing is poor, if you have head aches or ringing in the ears, be sure and use Catarrhones. It is a regular miracle worker and is sure to help you. Complete outfit only $1. Trial size 25 cents. Sold by all druggists and N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE GLORIOUS TWELFTH

A Big Demonstration in Lakefield Village

MANY LODGES IN TOWN

A Large Turn Out of Local Brethren—Many Go to Fenelon Falls

The glorious twelfth was celebrated in Lakefield this year by the local Orange lodge. It was an ideal day. Though the day of the boys' home largest on the Orange banner the victory of Antrim was that which took place on July 12, 1890. This may be the destruction of a long cherished belief, but it is a usually true. But it does not matter, for the Orange population does not care so much for the historical facts of the rising against King James II., as the last march of the ill-fated house of Stuart, as for celebrating a traditional holiday in the good old-fashioned way. Though "Liberty" the favorite tune of Tristram Shandy's "Uncle Toby" was in the air, the traditional march of the "Orange" was the favorite tune of the day. The march was in the air, the traditional march of the "Orange" was the favorite tune of the day.

The love of color, of gaiety, the popular idea of having a good time, are the ruling features of a modern Orange celebration. The old fashion fights which used to characterize the celebration of the twelfth are an obsolete as the white duck trousers the old-time Orangemen used to wear. The silk hat still holds an honorable place in the paraphernalia of an Orange parade, and so do the garish displays of red and gold and purple. The white blouse, where he can be procured, is still in demand by the Varsity boys, and the Orange Young Britons and the Prentice Boys still go in for spectacular effects. The improved feeling is shown by the fact that cities of antithetical religious faith turn out and enjoy the fun and the spectacle with as good a spirit as their Protestant competitors.

Shortly after ten o'clock a procession was formed at the Orange Hall, and headed by the Campbellford band proceeded to the Grand Trunk station, where they embarked for Lakefield, where they were met by the Lakefield brethren and escorted through the village to the Orange headquarters at the agricultural grounds, where speakers were made by leading Orangemen and others. The brethren returned home at seven o'clock and paraded to the Orange Hall, where there were given the Orange dinner, which the best of the day.

NEW RETAIL LIQUOR STORE

Apprenticed to the liquor store opened out by Mr. Alex. Elliott.

Mr. Alex. Elliott, the well known progressive wholesale merchant, has opened out a thoroughly up-to-date retail liquor store, in the Snowden block. The premises have been put in order and fitted up elegantly. The store has been stocked with all the leading brands of liquors, cognac, ginger, etc. Mr. Elliott's long experience in the business enables him to cater to this trade as it never has been catered to before. He has imported direct from France, Germany, Belgium, Holland, and other countries, champagne from France and Portugal. The store is under the personal management of Mr. J. D. Brennan, who is thoroughly qualified to look after the needs of his customers. Mr. Elliott will, of course, continue his wholesale business, which has grown to large proportions. He now occupies two double stores, with a large stock of liquors, and, in fact, the whole of the Snowden block, except one small shop, is now monopolized by his liquor business.

ASHBURNHAM LOCALS

What is going on in Peterborough's Friday
—Everybody in the village reads the Times.
—The village watering cart is kept hustling these days.
—Those living in the vicinity of the Little Lake frequently see huge things being pulled in by lucky fishers.

—Mr. Billy Collins thinks that the insurance scheme won't go, and suggests that Ashburnham annex Peterborough, instead.
—Mayor Adams is anxious to keep the rate of taxation down, and he and the members of the council will no doubt be talking over the proposed sewer system before it will be adopted. People over here want low rates more than sewers.

—The Calcutti Brewing and Malting Company are enjoying a record breaking season of business prosperity. The demand for Calcutti's ale and lager is at present the greatest in the history of the Company's business, and the preference shown for their popular brew by town, county and district dealers, is on the increase. To keep up with the excessive demand, the company have to brew every day. During the months of May and June the brewery was half as much more malt than ever was used before in the same period.

—If Peterborough does not do the thing with regard to the supply of water, he will shut off his supply of water. This is the thumb-screw that will bring the town to its senses.

KILLED AT BRACEBRIDGE

James W. Hyatt, killed with a Fatal Accident

Mr. Hyatt, father of Mr. John Hyatt, for some time night operator at the G.T.B. station, Peterborough, was accidentally killed by a train at Bracebridge on Friday last. The remains were brought to Peterborough at noon yesterday, and on the departure of the 2 o'clock Grand Junction train were taken to Stirling, where interment took place. Several of Mr. Hyatt's friends accompanied the remains to Stirling. The deceased was known to a number of Peterborough people, who esteemed him highly.

A PECULIAR ACCIDENT

Mr. and Mrs. Kingston met with a Painful Mishap

Mr. and Mrs. Kingston, who reside on Louis street, accompanied by Miss Montgomery and Mr. Atkins, of Toronto, drove out to Chemung on Sunday. When about halfway across the lake, Mrs. Kingston discovered that her clothing was on fire. Her husband attempted to smother it, and had his hand badly burned. Mr. Atkins pulled off his coat and succeeded in smothering the fire, which by this time had destroyed much of Mrs. Kingston's clothing, besides scorching her hair. The inhabitants of the cottage in which the accident occurred, and Mr. Kingston, were very kind in their assistance, and Mr. Kingston's hair was saved.

Another Wholesale Business

It is a good thing to see the wholesale trade coming to Peterborough. The latest addition in this line is J. Perkins, Inc., who will open a branch here on August 1st. The firm has been in the wholesale trade for many years, and is well known in the business circles of the city. The new branch will be located on the corner of Simcoe and Bessie streets. Mr. John A. Cameron will look after the firm's interest in Peterborough, which is an assurance that the business will prosper.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

—The cheese board will meet tomorrow.
—The steam roller has been working on Simcoe street, between George and Water streets.
—The Bartender's Union is going to run an excursion to Lake Lake. The boys want to see a lot of water for a change.

—Beware of counterfeit $2 bills and $1 United States bills raised to $10. Both kinds are said to be in circulation throughout the province. It is said that many merchants have been victimized recently.

—Lindsay Post—Orillia band and firemen will run an excursion to Peterborough on Friday, August 6th. One of the Orillia canoes in town today, said the reason Peterborough was selected was because of that town's excellent park accommodation.

—Belleville City Council decided to sell the rails of the defunct street railway to the Belleville Portland Cement Company, the price agreed being $10 a ton. Some time ago the council was offered $16.50 per ton for these rails, and now Mr. Curtis has served the various aldermen with an injunction forbidding them to sell the rails at the price mentioned. Very likely he will hold them personally responsible.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

—Mr. Bristol, of Madoc, was in town yesterday looking up old friends.
—Miss Maggie Davidson and Miss Annie K. Peters are spending a week at Bessie's cottage, Bessie Lake.
—Misses Ethel and Beatrice Mayes, of Toronto, are visiting friends in town.

—Mr. Frank Mercer, London, formerly of Peterborough, is in town over Sunday, a guest of his sister, Mrs. Robert Neill.

—Mr. S. N. Moore's many friends will regret to learn that he is ill with an attack of appendicitis. We hope he may soon recover.

—Mr. Herbert Crowley, accompanied by his friend, Mr. W. R. Andrews, of Chicago, is visiting by Mr. D. R. Hennessey, of Ashburnham.

—Miss Helvie Brady of Toronto, returned to her home after spending a week with her mother, Mrs. J. H. Brady, and other Peterborough friends.

—The many friends of Miss Alice J. Kennedy will be pleased to hear of her success at the recent examinations in music at St. Joseph's Academy, Lindsay, she taking first-class honors in piano and theory.

—Rev. Dr. O'Brien has been elected to represent St. Peter's T.A.B. at the convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America, which meets in Pittsburgh, Pa., in August. This will be a high honor and will be largely attended convention.

CANOEING

On Saturday the Sturgeon Point Regatta was held, and it was one of the best ever seen. Paddlers from all over Ontario were present, and the races were fast and exciting. Blenheim defeated Melville, of Toronto, who was Canada champion, in a single paddle, in which sixteen canoesists took part. Bell, of Peterborough, was about a canoe length behind, taking 5th place, the others were not in sight. Here we might speak of the Orillia paddlers who won on July 1st, in a quarter mile, were not in sight at finish.

In the double, Bell and Stock took 3rd place, which was certainly a hard position to hold. Orillia won the war canoe race, which was very exciting.

In the sprint race, Bell was out and his canoe pulled in in 7 minutes and he was beaten by 1 ft. and by Blenheim, who was in a light racing canoe, while Bell was in a heavy one.

The boys are well satisfied with the result.

Sickness steals more savings than the burglar. Slowly, coin by coin, the money that has been so hard earned is paid out for drugs and doctors. Sickness is the worst enemy of the working man, and the common cause of the stomach often involving the heart, lungs, liver, or kidneys.

The use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will stop the stealing of the savings by sickness. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It cures diseases of heart, liver, lungs, kidneys, etc., when these diseases are caused by the diseased condition of the stomach and its allied organs.

About ten years ago I began to have trouble with my stomach. I was a doctor, and I knew the value of a good stomach. I had to lay off quite often two and three days in a week, my stomach was so bad. I had to get up and go to work in a dazed state. I was a doctor, and I knew the value of a good stomach. I had to get up and go to work in a dazed state. THE GREATEST MINING PROPOSITION
EVER OFFERED.

I am pleased to state that I have completed arrangements with the Consolidated Nevada Mining Company for the sale of a block of their treasury stock in Canada. It is a proposition I can honestly recommend, and has unbounded possibilities. The tremendous possibilities of WEDEKIND and TONOPAH is becoming plain; every day to the entire country. The spring road into these NEVADA mining camps will equal or exceed that into Chippewa Creek, Dawson or Nome. The strikes recently reported from Weidekind and Tonopah have caused the greatest excitement.

Everyone is watching NEVADA mining stocks and prices are rapidly advancing. Now offer better opportunities for profits than in the past.

The Consolidated Nevada Mining Company

Properties in the heart of the Weidekind district. High grade ore and lots of it. We are certain to get the RICHEST YIELD IN THE DISTRICT very soon; then it's all off.

FLORENCE OIL COMPANY

The Minister's Dividends.

It was a queer couple, says a preacher in a Massachusetts town, that drove up to the parsonage door. She was tall and angular, a typical "old maid," he was short, fat and jolly, with a sort of David Harum look about his eyes. He had a snug farm, well kept and paid for; and she was known as a neat, industrious woman, who had brought up a family of children left orphans by the death of her father.

Sard Cooper assisted the woman from the wagon as handily as he could with his stiff arm and stiffer knee. She walked up the path, and he followed her as they entered the parsonage.

"Reckon you can guess what we're here for, parson," he said. "My sister Jane, who has kept house for me right on to thirty years, died last winter, and it's been long since for me and the cows and pigs since. Miss Jones, here, has hovered them chickens of her sister's until they've got from under her wings and gone to town. Now 'tain't far cross-tile from my farm to hers, and I can run her house, and it would be better for both farms and house. So we thought we'd just drive over and get you to hitch us up for a spin. I'm going to be good to her and provide everything necessary, and she's going to be good to me and take care of me. So whenever you're ready, go ahead, only make it short."

The ceremony passed without special incident. After Sard had administered a sounding smack on Nancy's cheek, he turned to me and said, "Wal, parson, what do I owe ye?"

"Wal," I said, "you can give me what ever you choose, and I added, with a smile, 'Give me what you think she is worth to you.'"

In an instant his Yankee love for a trade came to the front, and seeing an old-fashioned copper cent out of his pocket, he said, "Parson, I reckon I won't be much very bad if I give you that to begin with. If I find she's worth more, why, you'll hear from me again."

He had the better of me; there was nothing more to be said. I made the entry of the wedding in my private record, and wrote against it, "Two, one cent."

A year from that day Cooper drove into the yard with a cord of fine hickory wood.

"You remember what I told ye when I gave ye that cent?" the woman's dividing said, as I thought I'd give ye dividend."

The following anniversary he drove in to the barn with a ton of hay, and said, "Neither dividend, parson. The wife is all right."

Every anniversary of the wedding during his way to parsonage dividend found its way to the parsonage. So in the end my cent became my biggest fee.

A Strange Stage Incident.

Stuart Robson tells a strange story of Laura Keane, with whom he played in the "fiction." The sight of a bottle of red ink was enough to upset her for a week, he says. "On one occasion we were playing a farce called 'The Lady and the Devil.' An important scene of it was when she was sitting at a table preparing to write a letter. A I, as her servant, stood at the back of a chair. 'Take your right hand off that chair,' she whispered. The stage dialogue proceeded. 'You are sure you can and Dan Baked at his bedside? 'Yes, madam; he's asleep, and his wounds will continue him to his bed for a week.' 'Is this the only paper that we have? Where is the ink? 'Here, madam, and I bent forward to place the ink within her reach, when, in my confusion at her remark, the vessel was upset and its contents trickled on to the top of her satin dress. The ink was blood red. I shall never forget the ghastly look that overspread her face, and I was so frightened that I never knew how the scene ended.

The next morning at rehearsal she told me I was doomed to ill-luck for the remainder of my days. She called the company together and gave them a detailed description of the 'awful scene' the night before occasioned by the young man who would never make an actor.

She told of a terrible dream she had had, in which some great person had been foully murdered before her eyes; how she had attempted rescue without avail; how he had fallen dead at her feet; and how his blood slowly oozed into her lap. It was a scene of horror and blood.

She was playing at Ford's Theatre, Washington, on the occasion when Abraham Lincoln was shot. Miss Keane was the only person who seemed to realize the situation. She ran to the box, and in a moment the head of the dying man was in her lap, while the scene of her dream was being pitifully enacted.

"These."

In his recent book, "Bar, Stage and Platform," Mr. Herman O. Merivale, whose father was permanent Under Secretary for the Colonies, and one of whose uncles was a rival of Niebuhr in scholarship, tells of an amusing experience of another uncle of whom the world has heard little.

This Mr. Merivale was a thorough-going cockney. London was as the breath of his nostrils; notwithstanding he purchased a country place, intending personally to supervise the crops. To this end he asked advice of a boocle friend, a man of many acres, who complied, and began with the kitchen-garden.

"Now look at these," said he. "You have a fine crop of these. First you must do so in July, then such and such things in September, and next year there will be something to remember."

"Quite so," assented Mr. Merivale, politely. "But I must begin at the beginning. In the first place, what are these?"

"Do you mean to say you don't know?" gasped the country gentleman.

"Haven't the faintest idea," said Mr. Merivale, cheerfully.

"These are potatoes!" his friend replied, divided between amusement and amazement.

When we remember what we think of when we are not anxious to know what others think of us.

Birds and Commerce.

The fact that the Government of India has just decided that no more bird skins and plumage shall be exported gives satisfaction to bird-lovers everywhere. The reason given for the Government's decision is that, owing to the wholesale destruction of birds, destructive insects have in all their own way, and crops in India have suffered alarmingly from this cause.

The feather trade is an important part of the commerce of London, as anyone who has seen the London and India docks warehouses during a feather sale can realize. The supply from India alone is enormous.

Picture veritable mountains of the feathers of the green parrot, which is a favorite with the plummer on account of its adaptability. Green, shimmering bills of millions of feathers that not long ago were the proud possession of the glowing dominions of the Indian woodlands, and through the glorious green a shimmer of sunset, that beautiful red which, for brilliance, is not surpassed anywhere in nature.

The effect of stopping this trade means greater prosperity for the ostrich, heron in South Africa, and possible legislative action as to the destruction of birds in the south of Europe.

THREE UNDOUBTED BARAINS

A placer and two quartz claims;

Two partially developed quartz claims;

One-quarter section patented land adjoining above;

All located in the Susanville Mining District, Eastern Oregon. Will be sold together or separately. Total price, $9,000.

We consider this group of properties to be unusually promising as a heavy producing mine joins a portion of the land, and near-by placer grounds are showing up very rich.

Act quickly, if at all interested.

ANOTHER RICH GOLD STRIKE

The Copper Ranch Gold Mining and Milling Company

Capital Stock 1,000,000 Shares, Par Value $1.00 Each. Fully Paid and Non-Assessable.

We have just made another strike on our property at the second level east of shaft, the value of the ore being $65 per ton—nearly three times as rich as the ore in our No. 1 level, thus showing that our mine is getting richer as depth is gained.

There is no risk in buying this stock. A dividend payer in a few months. Stock is being advanced on the true merit of the mine.

OUR NEW STORY

A Splendid Serial to Begin in the Times in a Few Days

The Times has made arrangements for the publication of a new serial, which will begin in a few days. The new story is entitled "Janet's Dream," and will be found to be of thrilling interest.

The Times has for some years made it a rule to secure for its readers only stories of surpassing interest, and it is being paid by a steady increase in its subscription list.

A PAINFUL ACCIDENT

A Son of Mr. James Edgar Franchise Was Injured

A very painful accident occurred yesterday morning to the ten-year-old son of Mr. James Edgar Franchise, a well-known contractor. The lad, while playing on Dublin st., in front of his home, was accidentally knocked down by a passing car, and a wheel of the wagon passed over his right leg, fracturing it at the thigh. The injured lad was conveyed to his home and medical aid was summoned, and the wounded limb was dressed. The injury, while painful, is not considered a very serious nature. He is doing as well as can be expected.

ANOTHER DROWNING ACCIDENT

Mr. Albert Dunford Met Death in the Ottawa River While Fishing

Another distressing accident occurred yesterday morning about 11 o'clock, by which Mr. Albert Dunford, a member of the Fire Brigade, lost his life by drowning.

It is stated that a party of three, consisting of Albert Mitchell, Arthur Ringer and Albert Dunford, left in a canoe to do some trawling down the river. When in the vicinity of Robinson's Island the canoe was by some means which cannot be explained, upset. Each man grabbed the canoe on coming to the surface. Dunford and Ringer decided to swim to the shore, which was only about 30 yards away. Mitchell remained in the canoe with the canoe. When the two first named got within about 30 feet of the shore, Dunford became exhausted and called for help. Ringer, who was slightly inebriated, tried to reach him, but the unfortunate fellow sank before assistance arrived.

Two farmers, who were near the shore, ran to the aid of the men, but arrived too late. Mitchell swam in with the canoe a few minutes later. Had it not been for the assistance of the farmers, it is very doubtful if Ringer would have been saved.

Mitchell and Ringer hurried back to town and reported the sad news. The fire alarm was sounded, and the members of the brigade and other willing scorers went to the scene of the accident.

The deceased was about 30 years of age, and was a valued member of the Fire Brigade. He leaves three children to mourn his demise; his wife predeceased him by some years.

The late Mr. Dunford resided at 114 Sherbrooke street.

The body was recovered about 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Mr. Charles Butcher, one of the firemen, in about eight feet of water, and was taken to Connet's undertaking establishment, where it is being prepared for burial.

Some Fine Views

Messrs. Oude, Queen's University students, are expressing this town for scenic views. They represent Underwood & Underwood, the largest view firm in the world. After inspecting their samples, we must pronounce them the finest we have ever seen. The variety is complete—everything that one could wish for, including realistic views of the (terrible) volcanic eruption of Mount Pelee, pathetic war scenes, beautiful landscapes, and views of the (terrible) volcanic eruption of Mount Pelee.

The young men will call upon our citizens.

"DABSTERS"

People Who Do Things by Piecework

Many people are convinced coffee is the cause of their sufferings and they are looking for relief. These people when they are not drinking coffee they feel better. They are getting well in small installments.

How much better it is to stop short, the coffee and shift to well made Postum and get well once and for all. As soon as this is done the destroying cause of coffee is stopped and a permanent rebuilding agent is not in your system.

Health comes back by Postum and as long as the right food is drunk and good and proper food is left alone the cure is permanent.

A lady of Bedford, Me., says: "I was always a great lover of coffee and drank it as steadily as I would have to play at times in the stomach and other troubles. I would leave off the coffee for a few weeks until I felt better, then would go to drinking it again."

"I continued this for years and paid dearly for it, until about a year ago I read a Postum Cereal article and bought and carefully prepared same. It filled the place of coffee from the start up far as flavor and taste go and it had righted my stomach troubles. I have improved so that my friends notice the change. I have exchanged sickness and misery for health and happiness. Through Postum I have got 'WELL' at last."

Name furnished by Postum Co. Battle Creek.

TO PREVENT BLIGHT

Now is the Time to Spray Potatoes to Prevent Blight

Mr. W. T. Macoun, Horticulturist, Experimental Farm, Ottawa, writes The Times as follows:

Notwithstanding the fact that year after year the potato crop in Canada is very much lessened by blight and rot, that this blight can be prevented to a large extent by spraying, comparatively few farmers spray their potatoes to prevent this disease. It has been known for about eighteen years that Bordeaux mixture will prevent blight, and it has been frequently demonstrated by experimenters and by other growers of potatoes that the crop is much increased by spraying. In order, however, to get potato growers to spray it is necessary to keep constantly demonstrating the value of it. The results of the tests made at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, in 1902 and 1903 should be sufficient to induce everyone who lives in a disease infected district to spray.

In 1901 eight varieties were tested. The average increase in yield was 84 bushels in variety, but, however, there was an increase of 171 bushels, and in another 155 bushels per acre.

In 1902, eleven varieties were tested. The average increase in yield of marketable potatoes, when sprayed, was 120 bushels per acre, the yield per acre of marketable potatoes from the unsprayed being 10 bushels 12 lbs. per acre, and from the unsprayed 100 bushels 14 lbs. The cost of the blue-grey, which is the best variety, was $7.50 per acre, or 114 lbs. at 7 cents per lb. In spraying large areas the cost would be less. At 40 cents a bushel, and increase of 120 bushels per acre, would mean $48, or after deducting the cost of the blue-grey, about $40.00.

The object of spraying is to destroy the spores of the disease on the foliage. If the mixture is not there when the spores are there the disease will usually spread very rapidly and even the tops are destroyed. The foliage should be kept covered with the mixture from the middle of July, when the spores may be expected to appear, to the end of the season and from four to five sprayings will be found necessary. In 1902 the vines were kept growing 18 days longer by spraying. The vines were sprayed on July 10th, July 22nd, July 30th, and August 13th, and probably even better results would have been obtained if another spraying had been made.

Formula for spraying to prevent Potato Blight and Rot: Copper sulphate (Bordeaux) 4 lbs. Water 100 gallons. The water should be 40° C.

Dissolve the copper sulphate with hot water, or by suspending for several hours in a wooden or earthen vessel containing 4 or 5 more gallons of water. Shake the lime in another vessel. If the lime when slaked is lumpy or granular it should be dissolved through coarse sieve or of fine sieve. Dissolve the sulphate of copper solution to about 20 gallons, and the lime mixture to about 10 gallons, and then pour the latter into the former, then dilute to forty gallons and stir the mixture thoroughly.

Stock solutions of copper sulphate and lime at the rate of 1 lb. to 1 gallon of water may be prepared and kept in several small bottles for use throughout the spraying season and diluted and mixed when needed.

While the potato beetles are active 8 ounces of Paris green should be added to each 40 gallons of the Bordeaux mixture. The mixture should be applied by means of a spray pump with a fine nozzle in order to get a fine spray, which is necessary to get best results.

RUSSIA WANTS A PLEDGE. HAS FORGIVING SPIRIT

Will Ignore Accusation of Unfriendliness Because Secretary of State Was Not Responsible for It

Washington, July 15.—The Russian government has recently, probably since the accusation of unfriendliness against it made in an official statement supposed to have been prepared at Ottawa, renewed the assurance given previously that there would be no opposition to Russia's part in the opening of the Manchurian port to American trade after the arrangements for the evacuation of Manchuria by Russian troops had been completed.

While these assurances, although in fact given, are regarded as marking a move forward in the direction of a favorable conclusion of the negotiations with China concerning Manchuria, they are by no means satisfactory to the administration. What has been said by Russia in renewing her pledges to observe the good faith in the evacuation of Manchuria, the administration made by the Chinese treaty commissioners at Shanghai to their American colleagues, that they were obliged to suspend the negotiations for the opening of Manchuria to American trade because Russia had objected to a continuance until she had completed her arrangements for the evacuation of Manchurian territory.

NEW COMET IN HEAVENS

Lick Observatory Predicts that it will be noteworthy.

San Jose, Calif., July 15.—Professor W. W. Campbell, of Lick Observatory, says:

The comet discovered by Horrida Marcellini, three weeks ago, has been under observation by various members of the Lick Observatory staff. It promises to be an unusually interesting object. Its brightness has increased very rapidly, until it is now as easily visible as a fourth magnitude star.

On Monday evening observers should experience no difficulty in detecting it about one or two degrees northward of the bright star Alpha Centauri. Its motion is carrying it southward about five degrees daily.

Our photographs have recorded two lengths. While it is unable to make predictions as to how bright a comet will grow, there is little doubt that this one will be fairly conspicuous object in the evening sky. In fact, I expect it to be the brightest comet of the past ten years.

THE DOG RUMANCE

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—Can you urge or suggest anything that would have the necessary effect of exterminating this unclean, and abominable pest which has become a daily nuisance in many sections of the town, where myriads of canines run about unrestrained, to the damage, annoyance, and disgust of the citizens of the neighborhood where they abound, the great majority of them wearing no leashes to show who they belong to or that their owners are taking any interest in the right to keep them. Where is the dog law that does not capture these vagrant animals and destroy them, and thus effect the much needed reduction in the number of these unclean and annoying mongrel brutes, which overrun our streets, yards and lawns, snapping, snarling and yelping at each other, at passing humans and animals, and at men, women and children, besides rummaging for food, of which they steal much and costly quantities from kitchens, sheds and other outbuildings, which is intended for much-needed families, besides committing continually heinous and disgusting nuisances everywhere, and especially on the lawns in front of our residences, where they play, fight, scuffle and scratch the mud, and thus disfigure.

And as they pass through them, as well as deposit bones and other rubbish thereon. They also make night howling, barking and yelping, sobbing rends of their much-needed families, and sleep, and at same time making the nervous systems of the sick and more sensitive occupants of the nearby houses.

Why in the world is it that people are so careless of the comfort and welfare of their neighbors as to keep dogs, fowl, or anything else which prove a constant source of provocation and annoyance to those around them, as well as to themselves, merely to gratify their whims, just as toys do harm to children? They prove to be a heavy expense to their owners in feeding them, especially where several of mongrels are kept, some of them being large, ugly and combative, and others, either useful or ornamental, but all the while a beastly annoyance to the people generally. Why, then, are they not banished as well as the pig nuisance, which was likely to prove dangerous to the health of the citizens? The cat pest is bad enough, in all conscience, but of all the public annoyances and nuisances we now have, had as some of the rest are, the dog nuisance is by far the most annoying, as no comfort can be had where there are no mongrels as they are in my section of the town, which is not an isolated exception. No matter how few of them there are, they are bad at heart, and the more of them there are, the worse it is.

ANTI-NUISANCE.

Gold in the Head

What's the cause in sneezing and sniffing, sneezing with purgatives or botching with atomizers?

Catarrhzone

A convenient inhaler treatment for the nose, throat and lungs, quick and pleasant.

Remedies people long ago abandoned the idea of "working out" a cold by means of laxatives and purgatives for the simple reason that the cure is as bad as the disease.

To cure a cold in about ten minutes (time for Catarrhzone). It is a most delicate, delicate, clean and very simple to use.

Catarrhzone is a vegetable antiseptic, and perfectly safe and harmless. Even children and infants can use it. The vapor is inhaled at the mouth, and after passing through the respiratory organs is exhaled slowly through the nostrils.

Catarrhzone never disappoints. It stops sneezing, coughing and running at the eyes, by a few inhalations. Inflammation, congestion and all irritations disappear with the use of Catarrhzone more quickly than can be told.

O. E. Collins, of Clarence Street, London, says: "I had a continuous cold in the head for years, and never could get rid of it. I used Catarrhzone and in a few minutes I was free of it. I am delighted to find a remedy that cures colds in a few minutes. Catarrhzone cures every time."

To carry a Catarrhzone Inhaler in the pocket means you won't have colds, catarrh or any lung trouble. It keeps them diseases away and is warranted to protect you against all the ills of winter. Complete outfit, including Catarrhzone Inhaler, costs $1.00. Small size, 50 cents. Druggists or N. O. Pollock & Co., Kingston, Ont.

A Weak, Pale, Despondent, Specimen of Humanity, Lacking in Vigor, Strength and Ambition.

Make Yourself a New Being—Renew, Revitalize, Reinvigorate Your Lost Strength.

You're a discouraged, weak, miserable wreck—old before your time. You're a victim of a plain, ordinary, but deadly ailment of the blood.

You're sick and not aware of it. You're a victim of a plain, ordinary, but deadly ailment of the blood.

Your stomach is crying out for assistance. Hadn't you better give it some assistance?

Your nerves require a good shaking, and the best thing for them is Pericon. Why don't you use this powerful remedy? It is intended for cases just like yours.

Pericon is superior for the blood and nerves to any curative agent the world has ever known. Its reparative power is a no longer a description on a trial will demonstrate.

With the use of Pericon comes strength to overcome the difficulties and battle of life. Digestion and assimilation will improve, appetite will grow better, and you will sleep peacefully, and presto—before long you will be healthy, strong and well.

These blessings are all obtained by the regular use of Pericon, and can be purchased at any reliable drug store for 50c, or three boxes $1.25. Sent by mail to your address if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES REPORTERS

Turner's Popularity
Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, the popular and wide-spread tent and awning men, received an order from Fort Erie Jockey Club, for new building flags in fancy colors. The order was filled on Monday for Tuesday's race.

Complaints have reached The Times regarding Sunday fishing that is extensively indulged in. Our informant says that one can sometimes count a dozen or more fishing parties between here and Napanee on a Sunday morning. What are the County Commissioners doing? (Where are the local fishery inspectors?)

Vice Royal Remembrance
Yesterday morning His Worship Mayor Rager received from Lord and Lady Minto an autograph photograph of each, as memento of their visit to Peterborough, and a recognition of the hearty civic and public hospitality extended them. The photograph will be placed in view on the display cabinets of Roy's studio, Bazaar street.

THE LATE MRS. ALEX. BRADEN

Death of an Old and Greatly Esteemed

We regret to record the death of Margaret Braden, widow of the late Alexander Braden, Esq., who died at the residence of her son-in-law, The deceased lady was 83 years of age, and had been in good health for several months.

Of a kindly disposition, the deceased was greatly beloved by all who knew her. She was a constant member of St. Paul's church, Mrs. Braden leaving two children to mourn her departure—Mr. (Thomas) Braden, of Brith, and Mrs. G. S. McKee, of town.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at two o'clock, from the residence of her son-in-law, 782 Water street, to the Lakeside cemetery.

"Lives of rich men, if we knew them, Might not seem so blamed sublime,
Of the stomachs fastened to them,
Keep them doting all the time."

Wall Street Post.

The grand for money and four pounds a week the train so hard that it takes away the power from the stomach and so fastness, lawyers, doctors, merchants, great actors, school teachers and even thinking and successful business men suffer from a lack of power to digest food.

Fact! Fact! fact! and a deplorable fact.

But there's a way out of it. An old (but healthy) money maker was an invalid for almost 8 years. During this time and two years after, he studied Food, Hygiene, Therapeutics, Medicine and Nutritional Therapeutics.

He got well and during the 12 years of his recovery and study developed a way for brain workers to keep well. He has been over the hard and rough road step by step. Does an expert count for anything? Can he point you to the rocks that ruin men? Can he give you the safe and healthy business?

Since he got well he has made 10 or 12 million dollars which is one evidence of the practical results and literally thousands of brain workers in America and England date their recovery to health and money making power from the day they began to follow his advice.

What is it?

First, get office absolutely. It slowly and surely exhibits the elements to brain and nerve centres that must be there or brain law follows in order to do this take up Postum Office for it studies the phosphates and other elements needed to naturally, by food in liquid form, rebuild the broken down gray matter in brain and nerve centres.

The same is true of Orange-Nuts breakfast food.

Set up your breakfast like this: A little fruit, cooked preferred. A dash of Grape-Nuts (not a large one) with some thick, rich cream (made on it) a cup of hot Postum Coffee with thick cream, one or two soft eggs. Nothing more when it be a slice of entire wheat bread. The name for luncheon then for the night dinner have a good generous portion of meat, one or two vegetables, a Grape-Nuts pudding and a cup of Postum Coffee and let me on thick cream.

You will digest these meals, sleep like a baby and find the next day that something has been going on in your body that gives you the delicious sense of power and health and you can be a successful way "do things" and get results.

Is it worth while? The masters of thought are first masters of themselves and put into practice the knowledge of trained experts in the art of body and brain building.

You can't win. You must have a healthy body and brain to do it. "There's a reason" and it's just good old common sense.

ACCIDENTAL?

The jury returned a verdict of accidental death on the man who fell from the window ledge on which he had fallen asleep. But the death was really due to carelessness.

There are a great many great men who suddenly terminated as a result of carelessness, although the accident may read "heart failure."

When a man takes chances with his stomach and neglects the warning symptoms of disease, he is carelessly inviting calamity.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food, which makes strength. It stimulates the liver, cures biliousness, and removes bilious impurities from the blood.

of had been troubled with a pain in lower part of my stomach for three years, so severe I thought it would kill me in time," writes Mr. James Van Dam, of (Kensington) 200 Ash St., Chicago, Ill. "I could hardly work, I felt like a big weight hanging on me and got so bad that I had to take medicine. I used Bismuth Bitters for a time, but it did me good so I wrote to Dr. R. V. Pierce for advice, which he gave me immediately. I followed his directions, used two bottles of his medicine and was cured. I had a torpid liver which was troubling me instead of strength (as I thought), so Dr. Pierce told me. I have pleasure in living now, have gained in weight 15 pounds since then."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. They do not hurt the pill habit.

CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

Dr. Edward Fisher, Musical Director

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, Santa Bernardino County, California, consisting of 80 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.

Vast ledges of ore running from $5.00 to $200.00 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $75.00 to $200.00 per ton. This is about a five per cent. a month return, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans.

No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are simply paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLARS FOR DOLLARS for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGEMENT and your FOLLEWMENT. It is the fore-sight that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your fore-sight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the Stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now being put in place and gold will begin to come out of the mill. If for the first run you can't get the Stock at $11.00 per share, it will soon be 80 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mines and returned full of enthusiasm. The mines are turning out much richer than expected.

I can offer the Stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO-DAY—to-morrow it may slip away. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 25% per month.

A Magnificent Investment

CHANGE OF A LIFETIME.

THE BOSTON AND NEW MEXICO COPPER COMPANY, incorporated in the State of New Mexico, Capital Stock, $500,000. In Shares of $1.00 each, per value. Full and complete information on application.

Operating in the Orocopia Mining District, at the foot of Orocopia Mountains, near Esrey City, Precinct 6, Socorro County, New Mexico.

MINERS' SMELTER JUST COMPLETED WITHIN A HALF-MILE OF PROPERTY

OVER $1,000,000 ALREADY INVESTED.

Over one million dollars have been invested within a short radius surrounding on all sides the property of this company by Boston, New Haven and New York capitalists. All this has been invested quietly within the last two years, without any appeal to the public. Only one of these companies interested has put its stock on the market recently, and that at 60 cents on the dollar.

NOT A PROSPECT, BUT A WELL-DEVELOPED MINING PROPERTY. We have shown by actual mining that we have the

COPPER IN 80 ACRES

A field of 80 acres, this company having paid a large sum of money for them, and also in the development of the same, now offer to the public 50,000 shares only of their stock, in order to make further reserves, so that when they start to deliver ore at the reduction works they can keep up the supply daily and by that means pay a dividend that does not fluctuate but that can be depended on by the stockholders.

JANET'S DIAMONDS

A Doubtful Dowry That Was Lost at Last.

BY P. J. SMITH.

My dear friend, then the wife of a man who'd keep that fair-haired beauty at the head of his house!

Janet laughed lightly.
"Oh, don't let that stupid creature trouble you, Janet! I'll send her about her business pretty quickly when I'm mistress. I can tell you. And I'll have in her place one of those nice old gossamer family things in stiff bombazine that one reads of in novels."

It was of no use advising or reproaching after that visit. The next day Mr. Browning proposed and was accepted, and, before the end of the season, he and Janet were man and wife.

As there was some difficulty about the marriage settlements, the bridegroom finding it inconvenient to realize certain investments at the particular moment, the famous diamonds were, at Janet's own suggestion, settled upon her in lieu of hard cash—they became, in fact, her private property, so that, if she died before her husband, she could will them to whom she pleased.

"And a capital settlement I call it," Janet retorted, when there was some family dinner about the arrangement, "for, if he made over five or six thousand pounds to me, as the lawyers want, I might get an extravagant fit any day and run through the money in no time. But the diamonds I can't get rid of, you know. They're property that must remain with me always."

And she was right; they did remain with her, when goodness knows they ought to have been in the hands of the Jew from whom they had come, and their value yielding interest for the education of her portentious child.

After the marriage I met my sister in London on her route to Nice, where she and her husband were about to winter, and I casually asked her how she had disposed of the "celebrated" housekeeper.

"Oh, that Mrs. What-was-her-name—Jardine—I remember! I got rid of her easily enough, Nettie. Why should I not, pray? I found she was quite an unreliable person for the post, having been so long without a mistress, you know. So I paid her wages and sent her about her business. I don't know what has become of her."

The answer was given in an off-hand manner, but there was a slight catch in Janet's cheeks, and I saw that she did not wish to pursue the subject, and I did not.

Well, well, the denouement of the story of our poor beauty's married life was that one winter morning, about ten o'clock, she received at the old Hampshire house where our father was born, and whither the four of us had gathered together to and on our days in happy respected maidenhood—retained a parrot, ill-used, deserted wife, with youth, power, beauty gone for ever, and a handsome boy of five, together with her diamond parure—not a gem missing—the only relic of her ill-fated union.

Her story, poor thing, was an ordinary one after all, and the story of many a suffering soul we have scolded and comforted in the course of our peaceful spinster lives.

But Janet Browning turned out to be a brutal scamp, a drunkard and gambler, who after six months of marriage found the face of the most commonplace woman more attractive than his beautiful wife's. According to her account she bore four children, all illegitimate, and had then, with the patience and devotion of an angel, but this statement, which at first we received with pitying credulity, we have since found reason to question; for the affidavits of the nuptial bed had not faded in the least to soften our sister's sharp tongue, to teach her sense of forbearance, or to lessen her original selfishness, for the whole household soon learned to her cost.

And then, after a few months' out, kindness, and wholesome food, she actually took to putting on airs of superiority, based, if you please, on the shameful jobs that had humbled her to the dust, and that she had shaken off so willingly—she actually took to leaving orders and giving advice from the dignity and experience of her matron hood—why, you know, it was too much for us, and so we rose, the whole four of us, and crushed her for a week. No one could ever Janet for longer! I do not believe that even her husband did, though he was trying night and day for several years, according to her account.

Janet's boy was, I think, the most tremendous specimen of humanity ever hatched into a trim maiden household. He seemed to have the arms and legs of a boy half his age, to be in every room of the house at once, to have a finger in every place of mischief perpetrated in the neighborhood. Before we had got over the shock of finding him lying stumped at the bottom of the stairs through falling over the balustrade, he would be heard belching at the top of the house with his finger in the pocket, having been trodden upon by the pony. I never knew of a child of such a terrible habit! And as for destructioniveness—let us say that subject I should never finish if I began, so I had better leave it to the imagination. And yet, for all that, before the child had been six weeks among us, we would not have let him go for all the wealth of the world! Little Phil became the delight as well as the torment of our lives, and his mother's most provoking conditions were borne with uncomplaining fortitude for his sake.

Chapter II.
Trot, the second member of the old maid's nursery, came to us a year after little Phil, and in a rather comical manner. She was the only child of a man to whom our Peggy had been engaged when she was a very young girl. They had quarrelled on some foolish pretext or other, and then parted for ever, each believing the other to be entirely at fault. My aunt to India, and she did not hear of him for years, until she was quite a middle-aged woman, when one day she was engaged to his death-bed in a London hotel, where a tragic celebration took place, and they found that each had been the one love of the other's life. He (the first husband) died.

Interesting Items.

After several unsuccessful attempts and three years' labor, the unparalleled feat of cutting a ring out of a single diamond has been accomplished by the skill and skill of Mr. Antoine, one of the best known lapidaries of Antwerp. The ring is about three-quarters of an inch in diameter.

A case of self-sacrifice on the part of a St. Bernard dog occurred recently in St. Paul, Minn. He saved the life of his master's little girl, at the cost of his own. The child had wandered on the street railway tracks, and did not see the electric car which was approaching at a high rate of speed. The dog did, and springing forward, seized the child's frock between his teeth and dragged her from destruction, but he sacrificed himself. The car struck the great creature, and his neck was broken.

A German inventor has made a hundred mile journey with water shoes on the surface of the River Danube. The shoes are cylindrical in shape, and are made of aluminum to give them extreme lightness. They are several feet long, and are propelled by a trailing movement, which causes four air-shaped wings to revolve. The inventor claims that he can travel on water three times as fast as he can walk on land, and that locomotion is as safe on rough water as on smooth. He hopes to have the shoes made a part of every well-regulated life-saving station.

Farmers and newspaper men are very likely to become joint beneficiaries of a great scheme of co-operation in making the most of the corn crop. Not of the grain merely, but of the whole plant, stalk, leaves, pith, tassel, husk, cobs and kernels. After a long course of experimentation, carried on at Kankakee, Ill., under the encouragement of the national Agricultural Department, it is found that high-grade paper can be profitably manufactured, in different varieties, from various parts of the plant. One kind is made from the hard shell of the stalk, another from the pith and a third from the husk.

The other night Thomas Warden B. A. McPherson climbed the penitentiary wall at Salem, Ore., to test the vigilance of guards. McPherson's feat was performed at the risk of his life, for he had been discovered, his wife probably have been hanged for it. He climbed a ladder against the exterior of the wall, climbed up, lowered his ladder into the jail yard and descended. He went through the prison shops, and as a final touch carried away the coat and hat of one of the guards. It was from this jail that the famous Tracy escaped last summer, and it is supposed that the rifle with which he fought his way out was taken into the prison over the yard fence.

The engineers digging the wonderful tunnel that runs through the great Simpson mountain to connect Switzerland with Italy are experiencing great difficulties because of the presence of boiling water in the mountain. The water comes from the top of the mountain, and is heated almost to boiling point by the friction and pressure of its percolation through the fissures of the mountain. Before the tunnel had been dug very far on the Italian side the heat became so intense that it was impossible to live in it. The mountain was piked, and soon fifteen thousand gallons of steaming hot water were flowing out of the south end of the tunnel every minute of the day and night. The tunnel was then abandoned and made to drive refrigerating plants and cold air blowers. To-day the temperature of the tunnel has been reduced from a height that would have roasted a man in a minute or two, and the atmosphere now has the pleasant warmth of a fine day. The hot water also drives pneumatic drills and boring machines, so that it helps to dig the tunnel as well.

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay.

It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds the lowest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash?

A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and fit is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The miner makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurons, the Haldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at from $1.00 par value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $3,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1890 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $3,600.

$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $683.

$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,000.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend-paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Malloy, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $30, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $100,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

Does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining?—The Home State in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore sells only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours. The Alaska Trappedwell ore sells $2.38 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par. No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management. Respectfully submitted,

FOR A SHORT TIME ONLY

A LIMITED NUMBER OF SHARES IN THE

The Minersville Gold Mining and Milling Company

W. C. HALL, President, 15 CENTS PER SHARE, PAR VALUE, $1.00. Full Paid, Non-Assessable and No Personal Liability.

READ THIS! This Company offers one of the safest and best investments, as its property is located in the famous Hampshire District, Baker Co., Oregon, and has for its neighbors such mines as the Bonanza, Red Boy, Butte, North Pole, Columbia, Greenleaf and Cranberry, which are producing from $25,000 to $100,000 each per month. This great property for which the undersigned is financial agent is more promising than any of the big production mines at the same stage of development.

The Company has three full claims, with two large veins, one shown east and the other twenty-two feet at the surface, showing good gold values and strictly free milling. The Company owns the property outright, being free from all debt and incumbrance and in order to equip the mine with modern machinery and to continue development work, a limited number of shares will be sold for a short time only at 15 cents per share, as announced above.

Investors who wish to place money in large or small amounts can do so better than by investing in this proposition. All information cheerfully furnished, and all cheques payable to

First-Class Mining Proposition.

The Anaconda Gold Mining Co.

Home Office: 412 Merchants Loan and Trust Bldg. 125 Adams Street, Chicago, Ill.

This is one of the best propositions ever placed before the Canadian investor. The Company owns 600 acres in the celebrated Black Hills District, South Dakota, comprising 22 claims. The track is unquestionably on the great Homestake belt, being located directly between the wonderful Homestake mine and the Oliver Lead mine. Two shafts have already been sunk, the main one being down 104 feet, with capacity of going 1000 feet. The Company has also installed an elaborate compressed air compressor and drills, 125 horse power boiler, steam pump, and in fact everything needed for actual operation, with the exception of its stamp mill, which will be installed at once. The vein of gold-bearing quartz traversing the Company's property is very rich. Assays have run from $8 to $24.88 per ton.

The Company has a capital of 1,500,000 shares, divided into 750,000 preferred and 750,000 common, per value $1. per share, fully paid up and non-assessable. The treasury stock has been made preferred stock to the amount of 25 cents a share. One of the first dividends 25 cents per share will be paid to the owners of this preferred stock before holders of common stock receive any share of the profits. After the 25 cents has been paid to the shareholders of preferred stock, then all alike share in the dividends. (This means nothing less than that the first investors in the enterprise will have all their money returned to them before any dividends are declared to the rank and file of investors.)

A limited amount of stock has been placed on the Canadian market. Full particulars and copy of prospectus may be obtained from MR. R. J. KIDD, or the undersigned Agent for Peterborough City.

The Oro Rico Mining Syndicate

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Sierrita Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 30 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.

Vast ledges of ore running from $5.00 to $20.00 per ton. Five shipments of ore to St. Mary's, Nevada, have returned from $2.00 to $10.00 per ton. This is not a dry prospect, a month's shipment but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans. No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGEMENT and your KNOWLEDGE. It is this insight that makes money, and if you follow the direction of just thought you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock sold at par. The new Mining Plans to now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. At the first run you can't get the stock at present price. It will soon be 50 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mines and returned full of enthusiasm. The mines are turning out much richer than expected.

I can offer the Stock for a short time only at 30 cents per share.

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and the return absolute safety is substituted, and yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

An arrangement has been made with the Trust Company to guarantee to the purchaser the return of amount invested within a given number of years. To substantiate this guarantee they issue to the purchaser of the stock a gold bond, which is secured by first real estate mortgages deposited with another Trust Company for the specific purpose of securing the bonds the underwriting Company issues.

Then the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer.

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, Colorado, is offering for sale its entire stock of 100,000 shares.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Cripple Creek, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done. It is proposed to place as many of these mining properties upon a shipping and self supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of oil lands in Huerfano County, Colo. In order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Uguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $100 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with individual liability. This is one of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men, who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Fortunate have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are usually very great, especially when the stock can be secured at small or low prices as this is now offered for. Now is the time to get in before an advance in the price is made.

The new railroad from Denver to Salt Lake, which is now building will be of incalculable benefit to the Company, furnishing transportation for ores and supplies, besides immediately increasing value.

STOCK MARKETS

Stocks are Cheap—Big Men are Selling.

New York, July 17.—Foreign buying gave the stock market its entire color, supporting it when it looked demoralized during the first hour and subsequently a rapid and complete recovery, although the closing was weak on account of a possible decline in Amalgamated Copper stock. There has been going on of late a gigantic operation in House finance. However much a decline in securities has been needed during the past month, it is obvious that the decline has progressed far above the demands of intrinsic values. House are lower than ever and the supply of money in N. Y. City is not increasing. Instead of selling loans all the great financial managers have preferred to make temporary loans, running anywhere from three months to two years. Stocks are always cheap whenever big men are forced to sell. The London market is at present at 6 per cent, in practically any amount. The probable price of the standard stocks sometime within a month will be double the profit with very little risk, except through the temporary embarrasment and stringency during the next 60 days. The entire banking community admits the money must become considerably higher and that under these circumstances public sentiment may become even more opposed to the stock market than now. R. I. is disturbing the equilibrium of balance of list. Selling in good C. F. I. broke on the sale of 2,000 shares by a brokerage house that two weeks ago bid the stock up to 100.

The great strength of general community has been pretty well demonstrated by the fact that there has been no failure and none are thought to be imminent. Present range of values are undoubtedly at a level of considerable of the smaller class of investors whose influence has not yet begun to be felt on an extended scale while do not look for any radical improvement just now. Selling the market can be purchased at the sharp dips and resting on the values for fair cash, as fluctuations are not likely to extend over three points either way for some time.

Chicago, July 17.—Looks as if wheat should sell off. Six, about 75 to 76 when we think it would be advisable to take the long side. Feeling is more hopeful than for weeks. London sends a higher market. Renewed selling of R. I. throwing a damper on the rest of market.

Liverpool, July 17.—Spot fair demand prices steady, more 64, advance 10, sales 10,000, recd. 2,000, Ann. 1000. Futures opened 10 to 14 advance. Winter down 1 to 2 from yesterday's close. May's cable are better than expected, in view of the softening of our market at the close. Corn 1-8 lower. Wheat 1-4 to 3-8 lower.

Too Little Bit.

Noah and Sam, taking their first walk from the alms-house, saw a small, beautiful little pool on Mount Ararat, in which some gorgeous trout were sporting themselves.

"What a splendid place to fish!" said Noah, delightedly.

"Really?" exclaimed Noah, who had fished on salt cod till he was tired of it. "But, don't fish it all, we've only got two corners!"—Sporting Times.

ORE BEARING SCHISTS FROM 75 TO 100 FEET WIDE

The out crop of the extension of the deposit has just been cut on the opposite side of the mountain from which the work was commenced, proving that the ore body extends through the hill.

Thousands of tons of Ore already in sight. Every day adds to the proved value of the mine

There is no safer form of mining investment than gold-copper deposits, as they occur in immense veins and carry regular values. Many of the private fortunes of the United States owe their origin to a lucky investment in a gold-copper proposition. The property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, is undoubtedly one of the most valuable in the country. Besides its extensive mining claims the mining company controls timber for mining and building purposes and will also have natural water-power. The extension of the MacKenzie & Mann Railway from Broad Cove to Cheticamp this year will give this one of the most important mining districts in Nova Scotia. The Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, owns some of the finest sections of this district and has about completed the proving of a body of ore estimated to contain 100,000 tons, worth from $10 to $15 per ton. The main vein is shown 130 feet all in one and the tunnel from which the mine will be worked has been commenced from the opposite side of the hill. The company expect to commence the installation of plant for treatment in three months' time. Surface buildings, etc., have all been erected.

The undertaking of this Company is a sound business enterprise, organized by a prominent Nova Scotia business man, without the heavy over-capitalization, watered stock, promoters' rackets, directors' paragonism, etc., which characterize many foreign companies. The company is capitalized at the moderate figure of $500,000, and one-half the entire capital stock has been placed in the treasury in reserve. 10,000 shares of the other half are being sold for development.

A Limited Amount of Stock is Offered at $3.00 per Share (Thirty Cents on the Dollar). - Par $10.00

The Stock was started at $1 per share, and has advanced steadily to $3. Next advance will be to $5, and we expect it will be quoted at $10 within a year, based on the actual amount of ore. Less than 1000 shares will be sold at the present figure of three dollars. Applications for Stock should be addressed to

His Last Appearance.

By A. P. Deane.

WHEN Lemuel Oxbury proposed that the village of Bloom should hold a jubilee celebration, the younger citizens were delighted with the idea. Lemuel was head clerk in Ketchup's grocery, and was looked up to as a rising young man. Besides being the owner of a rolling lawn voice, he had a fine, full, dark complexion, and many a time his thoughts were on high, or things as he weighed out hard or measured measure. His "Lines on the Death of Hannah, McInnis" were considered very touching, and sorrowing relatives tried to enlist his sympathies when they wanted obituaries composed for the departed.

For some months Bloom had been enjoying exceptional musical advantages in the person of Professor Valentine Waterhouse, who came once a week from the city of Giddings, fourteen miles distant, to instruct a few select pupils in vocal and instrumental music. As his class was large enough to necessitate his stopping over night in Bloom, his services were at once engaged to train those who were going to take part in the jubilee celebration.

The professor was an old young man of short stature, whose struggles with poverty and a colossal public had left him lean and prematurely bald. His ready laugh upon himself the duty of a delegation of Bloomites was fixed for the following Wednesday evening. Notices were sent round to every body in town, and the result was a crowd-up of all the people in Bloom who sang or thought they could. The first thing to be done was to fix the date for the celebration. The professor thought that two weeks would give an opportunity to prepare the music thoroughly, so it was put off toward the end of October, the first week in January would be about right. And this date was decided on. The professor spoke blantly of several fine patriotic choruses and part-songs which would take well and be thoroughly up to date, and announced that at the next meeting he would assign the parts and begin practice in earnest.

But this was more easily said than done. When he came to assign the parts he found that all the men were bachelors and all the women insisted on singing soprano. In vain the professor assured the ladies that the second part was fully as important in chorus singing as the first. Mrs. Ketchup, the grocer's wife, informed him that she would "sing second to nobody," and the others followed her lead. And the men were either too busy or too timid to take a note higher than D flat. At length the professor wailed with every voice, and that if they did not take the parts assigned them he would wash his hands of the whole of it.

Finally, out of the forty-two female voices he selected about seventeen or eighteen to sing alto, but as they had had no previous experience he had to teach them their parts by the door-step of repetition. His success with the other parts was not so encouraging. There was not a true tenor among the whole fourteen male voices. Somehow the tenor of Bloom had slipped away at the jubilee. But the professor did not despair.

At the next meeting it was decided that an ode should be composed, to be sung to music, in honor of the town of Bloom, and this delightful duty was assigned to Lemuel, on having the most intimate relations with the poetic muse. Last evening night Lemuel prepared a short eleven verses, beginning as follows:

"Thou art, dearest spot on earth,
Sweet to thee and thine!
We greet thee, City of our birth,
And pledge thee now in wine!"

This was considered a very fine effort, and quite the best thing he had hitherto done. Bloom was as yet only a town of some eighteen hundred inhabitants, but of course it would grow. But a peculiar and curious difficulty arose. Those who had temperance principles objected to pledging Bloom or any other place "in wine," and insisted that these sentiments must be changed, or they would withdraw. This looked serious, so Lemuel sought the privacy of his chamber and after another session with the muse produced the following, from which they could choose:

"Pledge Bloom, may thy wine grow less,
Thy blessings never fail!
We proudly drink to thy success
In Father's Glorious Ale!"

"O Bloom, more than thee more fair,
May thy glasses never fail!
We pledge thee in a brimming bowl
Of sparkling Lemonade!"

Everyone felt that Lemuel had done what he could to conciliate all parties; but there was so much wrangling as to which verse to omit and which to retain that finally, on the suggestion of "Younger Young," who was something of a wag, they compromised by singing the whole thing, which amounted to thirteen verses—eleven unholy numbers!

However, barring these minor matters, everything went well. The preparations were well attended, the weekly meetings bore their usual crop of love affairs, and everybody was delighted. The accompanist was pretty Sadie Pendleton, the mayor's daughter, aged 18, who gracefully took her place at the piano sitting eyes in her direction; but after practice it was the professor who accompanied her home, poor Lemuel feeling that he had not the ghost of a chance against so much genius.

Lemuel as poet was admired and served by everyone, till Professor Waterhouse set the side to music. He was possessed of little originality, and the same was a delightful combination of "The Star-Spangled Banner" and "Rock of Ages," but it won all hearts, and the ladies declared it "awfully nice."

As the day fixed for the celebration drew near, the professor began to grow anxious. No tenors had as yet put in an appearance. Names were mentioned of several who sang tenor, and these were sought out by the professor and his assistants; but in spite of being cajoled and coaxed and bribed with prominent parts in the celebration they kept strictly out of the game. There was one man in particular who had been angling for so long.

There was no less a person than Aaron Pendleton, Mayor of Bloom. He was the fortunate possessor of a rich, lower voice, which time seemed to make more mellow. It was certain that if they could only get Aaron over on to the good cause several others would follow in his train. They would be sure to get Deacon Lillings, who sang in a sort of falsetto; but, as Lem said, "it would run all right in a crowd." Then there was Dave Oliver, a coffee-maker by trade, who had a wonderful voice, but not the least idea of tune. If he could be got alongside of someone who could teach him in the right way he was sure to be a success. And there were two or three others who were sure to join once the ice was broken. But the question was how to get Aaron Pendleton. Every means under the sun was tried except that of actually carrying him to the jubilee hall; so Aaron was a man who stood over all jubilees.

DESPERATE BATTLE TO CAPTURE A LARGE CITY

Venezuelan Government Troops Stormed the Rebels in Bolívar

Bolívar, Venezuela, Sunday, July 19.—At 5 o'clock this morning the engagement between the Government forces and the revolutionists occupying Ciudad Bolívar began in two different directions. The revolutionists opened the battle. At 6 o'clock the smoke over Ciudad Bolívar was so thick that it was impossible to see the city. At seven o'clock the Government troops, after a terrible fight, in which they lost more than 100 men, captured the city.

At 8 o'clock the Venezuelan fleet, consisting of five men-of-war, shelled the Government building at Ciudad Bolívar. At 10 o'clock the revolutionists' flag had disappeared from the Government building, and at 11 the streets near the building were captured by the Government forces, and a charge of the Government soldiers on the city was ordered.

The wounded were then beginning to arrive at the Government headquarters from all directions, and the light was general; but the revolutionists could not be followed from here in consequence of the smoke caused by the fire of the artillery of the revolutionists, which seemed formidable. It was answered vigorously by the Government guns, and only a few shots reached the fleet.

At 11 in the afternoon a block of houses opposite the Government building was captured by storm.

The revolutionists seemed to be retreating desperately.

ENDEAVOR TO SELL THEIR CHILD

Brooklyn Couple Recently Deceased by Judge Aspinwall

New York, July 18.—An attempt in the County Court, Brooklyn, by James Grady and Lizzie Vandewater to sell their pretty 11-year-old son, Harry, to Mrs. Geo. F. Coburn has been frustrated by Judge Aspinwall, who decried the parents of the child.

The child was born at Flatbush Hospital. A few weeks afterwards its mother gave the baby to the Brooklyn Street nursery and signed a full release of any claim to it. She said the father of the child was Grady.

Mr. and Mrs. Coburn subsequently visited the nursery and informally adopted the infant. A few weeks ago Grady, it is alleged, visited the nursery and demanded $25 for the complete surrender of the child to them. This was refused, and the father pursued formal adoption proceedings.

While the Coburns were waiting in court for the arrival of Judge Aspinwall, Grady and Mrs. Vandewater surrounded themselves. They advanced to where the Coburns were seated and conversed with them. A court officer, who overheard the conversation, says the Coburns refused to pay $200 for the boy, and that Grady threatened to pay the money himself.

Two $50 Bills.

After the usual proceedings in adoption cases, Judge Aspinwall was about to sign the papers giving the child to the Coburns, when he discovered two $50 bills in Mrs. Coburn's hand which was about to hand to Grady.

"What are you about to do?" asked Judge Aspinwall of the parents of the little boy for whom he was about to sign the papers.

"Why, this is blackmail and highway robbery," said the judge.

"Flinging of that sort will be tolerated in this court. How long have you had the child?"

"I agreed to give the parents of the little boy $100 for him as soon as Mrs. Coburn had signed the papers," replied Mrs. Coburn.

"Why, this is blackmail and highway robbery," said the judge.

publication of iron and steel bounty duties declared by the Government of Canada makes it practically certain that the United States Steel Corporation will establish two plants across the border—one at Hamilton, Ontario, where it has an option on the Hamilton works, and the other at Port Colborne, on the Welland Canal. custody of the child?

Mrs. Coburn said she had cared for the little boy nearly four years, and neither her mother or father had visited him.

"That that money in your pocket?" said the judge. "I will sign the adoption papers and there will be no payment of money."

The mother of the child was questioned by Judge Aspinwall. She admitted that she had seen her little son last once since his birth. She then placed her signature to a document giving up all claim to her son, and leaving the child left the courtroom.

London, July 18.—At Charing Cross Hospital Mr. Mackenzie Davidson, the well-known surgeon, has successfully treated a cancer case by means of radium. He has two other cases in hand, one at Moorfields, in which there is a happy promise of success also.

"I am experimenting," said Mr. Davidson last evening to a reporter, "and I am hopeful that radium has proved effective with superficial cancer. As to deep tumors, I cannot speak, and I should be very sorry to see false hopes raised. The whole matter is now under study, and as to deeper cases, it would be premature to say anything. I am, as I have said, hopeful."

The Charing Cross case was one of recent cancer of the nose, superficial cancer, that is to say, after successful treatment with the X rays, the cancer was exposed for a short time to radium. Four exposures, taking about an hour altogether, were given at intervals of three days. In three weeks the diseased part was gone, and the patient was cured.

While the Coburns were waiting in court for the arrival of Judge Aspinwall, Grady and Mrs. Vandewater surrounded themselves. They advanced to where the Coburns were seated and conversed with them. Peterborough's Street Railway is Assured.

Council Met Last Night in Committee of the Whole and Concluded Negotiations, Reporters Excluded

The City Fathers met in Committee of the Whole Council last night, when the Street Railway Franchise was once more discussed. Recognizing the importance of this question to the public, and how eagerly the result of the negotiations now in progress between the American Cereal Company and the Town is awaited, a representative from each of the local papers was present.

The Mayor, however, raised the objection of whether reporters should be admitted to Committee meetings or not. He pointed out that a resolution was in existence excluding journalists from all Committee meetings, and as all three had put in an appearance on this occasion it was now up to the Aldermen to say whether that motion should be reconsidered or not. For himself, he would rather they were admitted than that the press should publish from hearsay a synopsis of the business transacted at Committee meetings; under such circumstances, the reports were naturally not very accurate. His Worship also added that should the Committee decide that all meetings outside of Council meetings should be closed, then the business transacted on such occasions must not be given publicity in any way.

Ald. McWilliams thought that the Committee of the Whole Council should be open to the press, for, on this occasion, when important matters like that of the street railway franchise came up for discussion, the public naturally expected to get the earliest information of what transpired.

Ald. McWilliams moved, seconded by Ald. Glinkowski, that the reporters be admitted to all meetings of the Committee of the Whole Council.

An only the mover and seconder voted "yes" the motion was lost.

Aldermen Edgumbe, Morrison, Cory, Finnie, Batten and Rush voted against the motion.

The Street Railway franchise was discussed in Committee of the Whole last night.

The Times is informed by unquestionable authority that all negotiations between the Town and the American Cereal Company have reached a successful issue and the adoption of the agreement, as amended, will be reported at an early meeting of the Council.

MORE HOUSES WANTED

A Serious House Famine Threatens Peterborough

Up to date there has been no real house famine in Peterborough, but the indications are that there will be a real famine will be with the people and many of the incomes will not know just where they are going to lay their weary heads when night-fall comes. The progress of residential building has not been keeping pace with the progress of manufacturing development, and though small contractors everywhere are getting busy, there is not enough of it being done to begin to accommodate the demand that is sure to be in a very few weeks. It is said that the Canadian General Electric Company will put on a couple of hundred extra hands as soon as the addition to their works is completed. The families of these men will have to be housed somewhere and the question is, will there be a sufficiently of new and vacant houses available for them when they get here?

We know of several mechanics who have been seeking for houses for weeks, in order to move their families here, and are unable to secure what they require.

Conservatives Win a Great Victory In the Prairie Province Yesterday

HON. MR. ROBLIN

Late Returns Give the Government a Good Majority

Winnipeg, July 20.—The results of the elections in Manitoba will give the Conservatives a fair working majority. There were no very striking features in the campaign which is now ended. The action of the Free Press in charging Hon. Mr. McPadden with crookedness, was the only feature that received much attention on the platform. The St. James School question, it is said to say, was not taken seriously by the electorate, and did not cut much ice.

The returns are still far from complete, but it is conceded that Hon. Mr. Roblin will have a fair working majority.

It was the general impression throughout the country that the Roblin government would be sustained. The Province has had a season of exceptional prosperity. The farmers are in easy circumstances, the cities and towns are growing, in Winnipeg particularly the evidence of growth and prosperity are abundant, lands which for years were a burden to the holders are coming into the market, and settlers are pouring into the country. Notwithstanding that, the Government may deserve no particular credit for these satisfactory conditions; it is the fact that Governments are always stronger in times of prosperity, and that the people, consciously or unconsciously find a connection between the state of trade and their elected rulers. It is also the fact that thus far at least the Roblin government with the Canadian Northern Railway has operated to the advantage of the Province.

The prohibition question did not prove to be an important factor in the contest. There were not many third candidates in the riding as was expected. Mr. Hugh John Macdonald's pledge to give the Province Prohibition was ruthlessly set aside by the Roblin Government.

The Times received telegraphic despatches up to a late hour last night, and everything indicates that the Government will be returned with an overwhelming victory. The last despatch received gave the Conservatives 27 and the Liberals 1 seats, the Conservatives having a majority of 23 so far.

SUICIDE CLUB OF BOYS

Three London Boys Enter Into Death Pact

London, July 21.—A London neighborhood last night was shocked to discover that it harbored a "suicide club," composed of small boys, two members of which nearly succeeded in accomplishing the object of their organization.

Three boys entered into the suicide pact, and were found by their parents.

With this intention they held a council of war as to ways and means. Rat poison, suggested one. His proposal was defeated by a scheme of suicide by means of salts.

Accordingly this poison was purchased, and the boys adjourned to a local park to carry out their plan into effect.

Two of them took a draught of this deadly concoction, but the third boy suddenly realized that life was not such a burden as at first appeared, declined the beverage, and ran for a policeman instead.

The policeman immediately removed them to the infirmary, where antidotes were successfully applied.

One of the would-be suicides, however, was very ill, and his life hangs in the balance for several days.

FUNERAL DELAYE BY FIGHT

Easton and Non Union Drivers Clash at a Funeral

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 21.—With the funeral of a man at the cathedral door and the mourners about to go for the cemetery the funeral of Richard Kane was delayed yesterday while union and non-union hack drivers fought over a disputed point. Richard Kane, Jr., is an innocent on the street to his father's memory that he threatens to bring action against the president of the union and his men.

Carriages had been hired from Mrs. Bryan, keeper of a livery stable. Her drivers are not union men. Funeral ceremonies in the cathedral were completed, and the cortege was about to leave for the cemetery. When the party came out of the church it was no find that union hackmen had attacked the non-union men. The party had to wait, with the coffin in the hearse at the door, while each one went for help from his own livery, the drivers of which are union men.

POPE PASSED AWAY MONDAY AFTERNOON

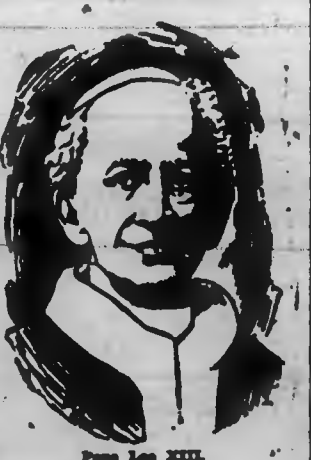

Cardinals and Relatives were Waiting for the Supreme Moment

Cardinals were Summoned and the Preparations Made for the Conclave

Rome, July 20.—The Pope died at 4:34 this afternoon.

Leo XIII., pope of Rome, who has been battling with death for a fortnight past, yielded to the grim enemy of all mankind at 94 yesterday afternoon, after a struggle which has riveted the attention of the whole civilized world. The spectacle of the venerable Pontiff, in his third year fighting for life, was, thanks to modern methods, carried on in practically the sitting of all Christendom. Early this morning it was apparent to the watchers by his bedside that the end was rapidly approaching, and the Cardinals, diplomats, and Papal court officials, and the Pontiff's nearest relatives were summoned to the Vatican to await the supreme moment.

Shortly before noon the Pope was seized with a sinking spell. For a few moments it was believed that a cataclysm was about to occur, as the year 1903 was the Pontiff's that Cardinal Vanutelli, the Grand Penitentiary, began at his bedside to recite the prayers for the dying and administered absolution in articulo mortis. The Pope, however, once again manifested his invincible vitality by rallying from the apparently fatal attack, but only to relapse immediately into a state of semi-comatose, in which he had floating spells, when his reason returned last night, during one of these comatose periods he murmured benedictions and solemnly confirmed the interests of the Church to Cardinal Gregorio, Dean of the Sacred College.

He Died in Harness.

The Pope died practically in harness, while the doctors were examining him this morning, believing him to be in a stupor. His Holiness suddenly fixed his eyes, even then bright, and by no means feeble, on them, saying—

"This time, doctors, you will not win your brave fight with death."

"It is poor Holiness who is brave," replied Dr. Lippert, but before the remark was uttered the Pope was again unable to utter what you said.

PREFERENCE TO THE COLONIES, GER- MANY IS NOW IN AMIABLE MOOD

Would Like to Fix Trade Policy with Britain Without Reference to Colonies--Britains will Control Cunard, No Foreigners will Hold Office or Directorship

ARMER Frooy propounds in The Times today a definite scheme which will probably be found to approximate Mr. Chamberlain's proposals, namely a duty of 2 shillings, a quarter on foreign wheat, 1-1/2 per cent. on foreign meat, 16 per cent. on foreign manufactures of metals, textiles 1-1/2 per cent. on half manufactures, and repeal of the tea duty. He thinks this will leave the British consumer not a penny the worse.

TODAY'S Berlin telegrams indicate that the German Government is most anxious to see the Canadian and South African Customs questions settled independently without complicating Germany's commercial relations with Britain. The best German opinion now agrees that Richthofen made a great mistake by the threat to withdraw the most favored nation treatment from British imports. At the Voelckers Zeitung says, "The trade between German Empire and Britain is many times greater than the German trade with the British colonies. The controversy must be localized and confined to its original source."

It is understood this is the line the German Government is adopting with the British Foreign Office, though the Chamberlainites are using Germany's threat as the most potent means of convincing the British public of the commercial vulnerability of the British Empire in the absence of inter-imperial fiscal arrangement.

The Cunard Steamship Company, at a special meeting of July 20, will consider important resolutions. One is that no foreigner shall hold office as a director or principal officer of the company. Another is that the capital shall be increased to £2,000,000 by the creation of a new share of the value of £250,000. The directors may call upon any shareholder to prove within three weeks that his shares are not held in violation of the provisions of the company's charter. If he refuses to do so, the directors may sell his shares at the market price, and put the money in the company's pocket. Some measures, however, are not to be retrospective. They will not apply to those who are shareholders when the resolution came into operation.

Sydney, N.S.W., July 18.—Right Hon. G. H. Reid, leader of the Opposition in the Federal Parliament, has expressed himself very strongly on several occasions against a preferential trade policy. He asserts that there should be a protective tariff there should be a preference, but where there is a mutual revenue tariff, there should be none.

"The question whether there should be preferential treatment," he said, "with any view toward the existing American tariff to be maintained as a protective tariff, is not so much the effect of such protection upon the self-governing states that make one nation, but the tremendous harm to the British Empire."

"Young people like Canada, Australia and the South African colonies can make mistakes in their fiscal policies without disaster. They have unlimited scope for their development, whereas the Mother Country practices one of the most remarkable examples of industrial development that the world has ever seen, and any proposal to disturb the policy under this enormous development has taken place ought to be regarded with intense skepticism. But I have a profound conviction, natural and just, that it may seem to some, that the suggested policy is not only inadvisable in the interests of the British people, but absolutely threatening to the security of the whole Empire."

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, London, July 18.—The Right Hon. Charles Ritchie, Chancellor of the Exchequer, was the guest of honor at a dinner given at the Mansion House last night by the Lord Mayor Sir Samuel Martin, to the mayors and merchants of London, and addressed the gathering briefly and in general terms on the proposed fiscal reforms. He said it rested with those desiring a change in the system under which Great Britain was prospering to show that the change was necessary and desirable.

JANET'S DIAMONDS

A Doubtful Downy That Was Lost at Last.

BY F. J. SMITH.

When you cling to a diamond, you would secure to him if converted into cash, and not a penny of the capital need be touched.

"Oh, dear, oh, dear," moaned my sister, closing her eyes, and, with a martyred posture, air, leaning back on her couch—the old, old story of her father diamonds, how they came to her. How could I be so foolish, so imprudent, so heartless—ha, ha!—to let six thousand pounds lie in a box, not yielding a penny to our income, when he was half starving, when our boys' toes were coming out through his little shoes, and he couldn't afford to buy a new pair to mend them? The old story—how well I know the jargon!—suddenly starting up and facing us with sparkling eyes. "And if I had not been so foolish, so imprudent, so heartless, if my mother had not died, and I had had my diamonds to sell, or should I have been one shilling richer for it this moment—would a penny have been spared to us?"

"But—oh, Janet," protested the two others eagerly, "you are wandering from the point strangely! You surely don't mean to imply, sister, that handing the money over to us in trust for yourself and your boy would be the same as handing it to your scapegrace husband?"

"No, no—of course not! How stupid you all are! How could you imagine that I would imply such nonsense? What I mean is—that my poor boy, who I love, has a little of his father's spendthrift blood in him—how could he entirely escape such taint?—is best off as he is, without money or prospect of money, while the fever of young life lasts. What I mean is that a certain intuition, a material instinct which you, my dear sisters, cannot understand, urge me to keep Edward Browning's son dependent on his own exertions, his undeniable talents, to make a start in life, as so many young fellows without half his promise manage successfully to do. For something tells me—a conviction I would battle against in vain—that if I complied with your wishes and handed over such a sum of money to him, the inherited disease—dissipation—would break out in him, and the fair promise of his youth be blasted forever. Now I beg to hear no more of this matter. You know my mind and my unalterable conviction, so let it never be revived in my hearing, please. And hear this in consideration, that I am acting on an experience, as evidence of nature that your sisterhood has denied to my sister. Now leave me, for I am much exhausted."

We left her, as may be imagined, in a towering rage and with an avalanche of sarcasm, which she escaped by turning over on her pillow and muffling her exposed ear with her handkerchief.

For a whole week after this scene we were in a state of such that we could talk and think of nothing else, and spent our days devising ways and means to send the boy to college in spite of his mother, and get him out of the destructive groove of his intercourse with her. But not until eighteen months later, when an elder sister of his father's, dying unexpectedly, left him a legacy of two thousand pounds, were we able to effect our purpose. Philip called on our father's college, promising to distinguish himself as quickly as he could, and to keep well within his income, both of which promises he had kept, to our great triumph and delight.

After the lapse of two years—four during his first vacation Peggy and I had again, as usual, in the kitchen for a delicious corner of music and German—the young people met again. Phil was now a full-grown and very handsome young fellow, skilled in all branches of athletics; and Trot, who had only touched his boyish brown hair and longed for her skirts six weeks before, gave herself most charming little airs of young lady-hood, and was, in our united opinion, an object to marry the best of any young man, with the ordinary weaknesses of her sex, by storm almost at first sight.

She was a round-faced rather baby-featured little person, with a very bright complexion, deep gray eyes, and curly brown hair slightly tinged with gold;
she had the sweetest voice and the prettiest laugh I ever heard.

"Trot! Good gracious, is that you?
Why, what's happened to you?" was our father's rather unpromising greeting, as the young lady, with sweet head and outstretched hand, advanced to meet him. "Shouldn't have known you if I had met you in the street, for Jove!"

He was stooping to kiss her usual internal salute, but suddenly became aware that the girl's face was closer to him than he wished, so he drew back with a blink and a frown and stood at some distance, contemplating her with an expression that certainly did not convey dumb founder approbation and delight.

"So you're been and gone and grown up altogether, have you? Why, I thought the entire meant to keep you in pinafores and pigtails for the next two years. Wasn't that?"

At which Miss Trot gave him a sharp answer and, turning her head, moved towards the door opening into the garden.

"Don't you think the dear child has greatly improved in appearance, Phil?
Do you remember—she had a shapely little dimpled chin was two—" began Janet, who has as much tact as a pump-handle, when I had the presence of mind to resist her over-zeal, and, before she had had time to get over the disaster, her son was well out of hearing, escorting his old playmate round the rose walk.

For a couple of days a certain appearance of reserve and slight reticence seemed to cloud their companionship; but this cleared away quickly—much too quickly—and, before the end of the week, the young people were on the winning and content of terms again, enjoying our brief summer pleasures with the full zest of their healthy exuberant youth. But the whole, the delightfully disturbing atmosphere that was to envelop their married existence—also, no sign of its existence could our anxious eyes discover! And to desert family concerns we had to adjust, after comparing weekly notes, that the young pair had not wandered into the pleasure land, we wished them to desert; this Phil was recently not con-
(to be continued.)

Anecdotal

A minister who was called to con-fort the wife of an old Scotch caddy ensured her that while John was very weak he was evidently ready for a better world. Unexpectedly, however, John rallied, and said to his wife: "Janet, my woman, I'm sorry to be parted to you and 'No, John' was the reply; 'I've prepared, and I'm resigned! See now!'"

Assistant Secretary of the Interior
Ryan, at one time a sheriff in his native
State, relates how he was at one time ordered to arrest an Indian who had been selling whiskey to his red friends on the reservation. After the sheriff had captured "Poor Lo" he gave him a sound lecture on the depravity of his conduct. The Indian listened stolidly to the reprimand and finally asked: "No way I can get out of this?" "No one can help you now but God," was the reply. "Godly the prisoner shook his head.
Then he muttered: 'God keep Uncle
Sam; I can never see him!'"

Another actor famous for his pompous and inordinate ambition was teaching his Henry trying with a foreword of his plans for the future. "I shall begin the season," he announced, "with such and such a part; and after that I shall appear as Hamlet." "That's a fine thing," said the manager, "but I don't know the jargon." "Did you say?"

The other, increased by the tone of the query, bristled up at once. "Do you think, Sir Henry," he demanded, indignantly, "that you are the only man who can play Hamlet?" "Oh, no," replied the manager, "but I am quite sure that you are the only man who can't."

The late Paul du Chailu was on one occasion asked why he had never married. "Well, once upon a time," he answered, without a smile, "an old African king who was one of the most powerful men of his time, and who had fifty-three wives as a wife." "Your majesty," I replied, "if I should marry one of these beautiful of yours there would be one hundred and fifty-two jealous wa-men here." "Well," replied the king, "that was a little too strong for me, however, and as I have never had such a thing to choose from since, I am still a bachelor."

Chauncey M. Depew has told of finding a visitor in Horace Greeley's editorial room when he made a call on him. The editor's parlour had evidently been almost exhausted, and as he wrote on steadily he would give an occasional kick toward the caller, who every now and then put in a word. Finally, turning round, Greeley said: "Tell me what you want. Tell me quick, and in one sentence." The man said: "I want a subscription, Mr. Greeley, for a cause which will prevent a thousand or so of low-bred fellows from going to hell." Greeley shouted: "I will not give you a cent.
There don't half enough go there now."
As Greeley was a Universalist, this reply was not so severe as it seemed.

A certain Yankee woman, the wife of a former representative in Congress, a minister abroad, and a member of a leading family, was one of the most exclusive and top-dressed of Washington, D.C., noted for her love of display and her penchant for wearing about all the jewels she bought or stole. One recent night she was dining at a party. Several members of the diplomatic set were present. Madame was in high feather, and she also wore a diamond tiara and several strings of pearls around her neck. During the evening she complimented of feeling a bit chilly, and told one of the servants to call her maid. When the maid appeared she is said to have delivered a tirade, and exclaimed: "Dumpty, I am so cold; please get me another string of pearls."

An amusing illustration of the influence of the educated Chinese came from Berlin. When the Kaiser or complimented the new Chinese Minister on his excellent German, the man from the Orient replied: "I can do better
—I can speak the British dialect. One day, during the competition at Peking, I conquered a number of your Majesty's soldiers, one of whom, thinking that I would not understand him, took the liberty to address me as follows: 'With your permission, if ever I catch you in the dark I will twist your queue for you!' Then up, you Berlin, who bearing I replied in his own vernacular, 'or I will kick all your teeth into your breadbasket.' Your Majesty caught in the soldier's loose of the servants to call her maid. When the maid appeared she is said to have delivered a tirade, and exclaimed: "Dumpty, I am so cold; please get me another string of pearls."

A new application of the rule of proportion between labor and wages is illustrated by a little story told by a representative of the House of Witkoff.
The leader of a certain band, who was rehearsing one of their publications, stopped the music abruptly and frowned at a little fellow who was putting all the other musicians out. "Say, Harman," he demanded, "what do you mean by playing a lot of half notes where there should be whole notes?" Harman lowered his instrument. "Fall," he said,
"I make explanations by you. You cut down my wages to half price, don't you?"
The leader stared in amazement. He had done so, but— "And I continue to make do notes with my instrument, but day will be his notes until he begs to be paid to whole price. Was it fair to fall, didn't it?"

The extent to which the agricultural portions of the Middle West are now supplied with modern conveniences may be inferred from the story which follows. There came a day at Indianapolis in a farmhouse in Northern Indiana one day last summer, and the farmer himself responded. "Hello!" he said. "Hello!" said the voice at the other end of the wire. "Can you furnish me a team singing to me now?" "A team singing?"
Why, yes, I reckon so," answered the farmer, laughing. "What do you want one for?" "Because the one we've had up to now is sick. What would be your terms?" "Well, usually furnish me by the dozen. I won't charge you anything for one. How do you want him sent?" "What are you talking about?" "Who do you think you're talking to?" "Isn't this the Indianapolis Opera House?" "No. This is the Harman frog farm."

Gray hairs do not a patriarch make.
Nor wrinkles brown a sage;
In youth we are all fools,
The finger marks of age!

Causing to love! forgetting friends!
When the warm heart turns cold,
Then the recollection and
And writes, "He's growing old!"

"What precisely are his prospects?"

worst climates in England?

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay.

It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash?

A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others.
The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine.
Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurons, the Baldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at from $1.00 per value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

There are many persons who assert that there is nothing in it for the average investor and that it does not pay to invest small sums in stock. Let such persons ask themselves what returns they can hope to get through banks or real estate speculations for sums of under $100.00, and then consider the following:—
Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $87.00.
$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.
$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1880 is now worth $7,600.
$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.
$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $3,600.
$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $682.
$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $6,600.
$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend-paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Malloy, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.
The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

How does it require immensely rich are for successful mining—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore mills only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours.
The Alaska Treadwell ore mills $2.38 per ton; the stock 500 cent. above par.
No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and host management. Respectfully submitted.

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest by sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema.

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 17 years. I have tried several doctors and they do me no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Eczema Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Packer Station, N.Y.

Dr. Clarke's Eczema Cure for Catarrh is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 115 Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes: "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your catarrh cure; send me another dollar's worth."

Peter D. McPherson, Riverdale, P.E.I., writes: "I am very busy, but just drop your catarrh cure. It has done great work for me. I am so much better."

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Petersburgh, Ont. 50c per box or 3 boxes
for $1.50.

Dr. Clarke's Eczema Cure for Catarrh and Dr.
Clarke's Eczema Cure for Eczema, same price.
Clarke's will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and the return of absolute safety is guaranteed. And yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

An arrangement has been made with the Trust Company to guarantee to the purchaser the return of amount invested within a given number of years. To maintain this guarantee they issue to the purchaser of the stock a gold bond, which is secured by first real estate mortgages deposited with another Trust Company for the specific purpose of securing the bonds the underwriting Company issues.

Thus the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will say a word as to what we have to offer.

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, among other things, to secure funds for the extensive development of its numerous mining properties and also of its oil lands, offers a limited amount of its Treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Cripple Creek, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done. It is proposed to place as many of these mining properties upon a slipping and self-supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-five hundred acres of oil lands in Huerfano County, Colo. in order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $100 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with no individual liability. This issue of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Fortune have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are usually very great, especially when the stock can be secured at such a low price as this is now offered for. Now is the time to get in before an advance in the price is made.

The new railroad from Denver to Salt Lake, which is now building will be of incalculable benefit to the Company, furnishing transportation for ores and supplies, besides immediately increasing values.

LOOK OUT FOR A BREAK

New York, July 20.—Stocks continued to slump today. The bears took R. I. to the limit and hammered it down and succeeded in deducting a number of stop loss orders in other divisions of the list. A.C.P. was another weak feature with a loss of 2 points at midday. Nourdy was weak and rather quiet, with market showing practically no rallying power. Shortly after 1:30 a fresh selling movement was started which carried prices down still further to about low for the day. Market rallied as 2 p.m., on coming by from a boy. Aside from this there was no stimulus to advance prices. Present situation is confusing, and the market will be bettered only by investors. There will be no considerable movement until there is an absorption by those who pay outright and actively for their stocks and bonds. The investor, unlike the speculator, is liable to wait too long. He is certainly more timid and will not make his appearance on the market until it steadies and ceases to decline. Until there is a very much better demand for bonds than at present it can safely be asserted there will be no sustained general advance in stocks. Predictions for the future are given only with the greatest conservatism. General opinion favors a dull market with slightly downward tendency until the crops are moved and the monetary situation eases up and settles itself permanently.

There was all last week a very idea based upon bank, and imitations that something uncommonly favorable was to happen soon, bearing directly upon the money market. We cannot make up a story without some data to go on, but it seems evident that there are strong hopes of increasing the supply of lendable money through the delay in arranging the Panama Canal treaty. What the reasons are underneath the surface inspiring the actions of the Colombian government is of course unknown. There has always existed an active suspicion that the effective opposition comes just as much from the United States as from Colombia. There is no doubt that a completed Panama Canal would be extremely unwelcome to all the transcontinental lines. The whole line from opening to close was lacking a definite purpose, and the market was generally in the hands of the room traders.

Liverpool, July 20.—Wheat 1-8 lower; Corn dull, 1-4 lower, 1-20 p.m.; Wheat 1-8 lower; Corn 3-4 lower. Liverpool cotton market quiet; Futures opened 2 to 4 decline.

Currency measures are introduced in special session in November on lines suggested by Roosevelt. Strong hope that Senate Finance committee be able to draw bill which will be acceptable to both Senate and House at forthcoming special session. Saturday: Lack of buying power with the result of a general sagging tendency. After the bank statement was published prices rallied a trifle and soon broke again as word had been passed around to take profits if a good bank statement appeared.

W. F. DEVER & CO.

STUDIES IN NATURAL HISTORY

Naturalists also call attention to the fact that a Boy is the only animal that grows up without any special further observation that it soon wearies of any sport that does not hurt someone else. Another curious thing is that although a Boy can play all day, he becomes ill and weary which will be explained to both Senate and House at forthcoming special session. Saturday: Lack of buying power with the result of a general sagging tendency. After the bank statement was published prices rallied a trifle and soon broke again as word had been passed around to take profits if a good bank statement appeared.

The chief characteristic of a Boy is his aversion to soap and water. In this it is like the cat, and it is with difficulty driven near the bath tub. It also balks at being dressed up and shown off before company. Now and then, it is true, you find one who will consent to be adorned in fashionable gauds, and who will get out on the floor and do its little tricks without the whip, but these are never pure-blooded Boys. They are mongrels with a strong strain of Bessy in them. A curious thing in this connection is that everyone who owns a Boy believes that he is a wonder and will be a future winner in the show. He also bitterly resents the suggestion that his Boy possesses the same characteristics of other boys, or would be guilty of such a thing as breaking windows or ringing old madder door bells.

Most people, as has been said, like to keep a Boy themselves, but all, without exception, object to their neighbors, and those who have none get over by preying on the things of the Boy across the street. Sometimes, however, the creature turns out well, and then we all brag that we knew it when it was a Boy.

ORE BEARING SCHISTS FROM 75 TO 100 FEET WIDE

The out crop of the extension of the deposit has just been cut on the opposite side of the mountain from which the work was commenced, proving that the ore body extends through the hill.

M. M. V. GRANDIN, engineer in charge of the development work, reports the discovery of an immense body of gold, silver, and copper bearing ore from seventy-five to one hundred feet wide on the property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, at Cheticamp, Cape Breton. This is probably the first known instance in Eastern Canada of the unearthing of a large deposit of metaliferous ore such as made the mining industry of British Columbia, the Western States and Mexico of great magnitude. The discovery in Cape Breton tends to confirm the opinion of mining experts that Cheticamp is one of the most important mining districts in Nova Scotia. The Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, owns some of the finest sections of this district and has about completed the proving of a body of ore estimated to contain 100,000 tons, worth from $10 to $15 per ton. The main slope is down 130 feet all in one and the tunnel from which the mine will be worked has been commenced from the opposite side of the hill. The Company expect to commence the installation of plant for treatment in three months' time. Surface buildings, etc., have all been erected.

Thousands of tons of Ore already in sight.

Every day adds to the proved value of the mine

There is no safer form of mining investment than gold copper deposits, as they occur in immense veins and carry regular values. Many of the private fortunes of the United States owe their origin to a lucky investment in a gold-copper proposition. The property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, is undoubtedly one of the most valuable in the country. Besides its extensive mining claims the mining company controls timber for mining and building purposes and will also have natural water-power. The extension of the MacKenzie & Mann Railway from Broad Cove to Cheticamp this year will give this great mining enterprise rail as well as water communication with all points. The undertaking of this Company is a sound business enterprise, organized by a prominent Nova Scotia business man, without the heavy over-capitalization, watered stock, promoters' take-off, directors' perquisites, etc., which characterize many foreign companies. The company is capitalized at the moderate figure of $500,000, and one-half the entire capital stock has been placed in the treasury in reserve. 10,000 shares of the other half are being sold for development.

A Limited Amount of Stock is Offered at $3.00 per Share (Thirty Cents on the Dollar). Par $10.00

The Stock was started at $1 per share, and has advanced steadily to $3. Next advance will be to $5, and we expect it will be quoted at par—$10—within a year, based on ore actually blocked out. Less than 1000 shares will be sold at the present figure of three dollars. Applications for Stock should be addressed to

THE GREATEST MINING PROPOSITION
EVER OFFERED.

I am pleased to state that I have completed arrangements with the Consolidated Nevada Mining Company for the sale of a block of their treasury stock in Canada. It is a proposition I can honestly recommend, and one of the most profitable.

The tremendous possibilities of WEDKIND and TONOPAH in becoming plains every day to the entire country. The spring rush into these NEVADA mining camps will equal or exceed that into Cripple Creek, Dawson or Numa. The strikes recently reported from Wedekind and Tonopah have created the greatest excitement and the rush will soon be on.

Everyone is wanting NEVADA mining stocks and prices are rapidly advancing. Now offer better opportunities for profits than do the others.

The Consolidated Nevada Mining Company

Properties in the heart of the Wedekind district. High grade ore and lots of it. We are certain to cut the RICHEST VEIN IN THE DISTRICT very soon; then it's all off.

Stock now selling at 10¢ per share. Limited quantity only.

SUGGESTIONS

The Story of a Prison Chaplain.

We have heard it before—the thousandth part of a second ago.

This explanation I apply to the case of Eliza Fulham. She told me that on the second day she met by the bedside talking to her of this past, it suddenly struck her that she was familiar with it, familiar with the very words he was addressing to her, and that somewhere in the mysterious past she had threaded the ways of which he spoke. She roused herself to see if she were not dreaming.

Then she checked her thoughts and brushed the theory aside. She was herself, Eliza Chambers, daughter of a Canadian farmer, and now the second wife of Thomas Fulham, the man who had lived beside her dead father in the far-off Canadian days.

It was a little between memory and the present. On the one side was recollection of her past, on the other the live and active present which told her she was Mary Townsend. You may imagine the conflict.

Days went by, many days, and still he kept her a prisoner in bed, nursing her with engaging gentleness, and waiting upon her smallest whim with the absolute of a lover. They were in a measure the best days she had known, for the pretty little creature had long been sick for love, and now the hero of her romance was showering upon her a thousand tenderesses. But they were days of struggle—the conflict of memory and present—and every day found her memory weakening in the strife. She could not tell me definitely when she began to feel that she had been Mary Townsend, that she had lived in Oregon, and that it was in the old town of Salem she married Thomas Fulham. Eliza Chambers was forgotten.

She was weak in health, and her weakness increased. The greater part of her day was passed on the sofa, her husband in the closest attendance. In brief, she had become a complete invalid.

Three years after this, when she had almost forgotten her belief in the existence of Eliza Chambers, her husband came to her room one morning, in a state of great excitement, with a letter in his hand.

"Mary," he cried, "I have had news for you, and good news, too. You remember your uncle, Zachary Townsend, the ironmaster? He is dead, and he has left you a fortune—a big fortune."

He came to the bedside, put the fluttering sheet in her hands, and as she read it he placed his arms tenderly about her and kissed her hair.

Well, when she had received that fortune she believed herself to be the dead wife. That is her statement—that is her unwavering conviction. You can guess the sequel. After some months of great wealth, other heirs in the States heard that Mary Townsend had died, proofs of her death were forthcoming; evidence, too, of Fulham's second marriage with Eliza Chambers was speedily produced—and then the newspapers here got hold of it, and rumors of "a gigantic swindle" were in the air.

Reading the account of the story in one of the papers, the conviction returned to Eliza Fulham that she was not Mary, the daughter of Auberon Townsend.

Bedridden and all confused—for her mind, I fully believe, was affected—she hurried to her husband.

"Read that!" she implored. "It is all about us, about you and me. O, something is wrong, something is wrong! Tell me what it means."

He drew her upon his knee, held her tenderly against his breast and read the article. But as he read a great shadow drook him, he drew his breath in sharply, and she felt his arms tighten about her. And then—all in a minute—he sprang up, flinging her from him, and cried out, in a loud voice:

"Mary in heaven, forgive me! I have forgotten you—I have been false to you!"

He was looking up, one arm raised above his head, the fist tightly clenched.

While she trembled and gasped before him, however, his face suddenly softened, a look of the most tender compassion dawned in his eyes, and he stretched out a hand, resting it gently upon her head.

"What does it all mean?" she whimpered.

He turned upon her a glance of the most horrible ferocity, shrinking back from her.

His brows were black with rage, his parted lips were curled into an expression of loathing and contempt. He saw, revealed in his eyes, a terrible truth.

8th Regular Quarterly Dividend

Was paid on June 2nd which makes a record that can be equalled by few if any oil companies. The National has made records ever since its stock was first placed on the market—records that make its stock worth more than any other stock now on the market and that enhance the value of the outstanding stock so that stockholders derive the benefit.

All Dividends are Paid Upon the Basis of the Selling Price of the Stock Thus Making Each Succeeding Dividend Larger than its Predecessor.

Can you pick out any other company which is doing this? Every possible safeguard is thrown about this stock as an investment, in order that it may be one of the very safest investments on the

The Boy.

This untamable little creature, which is well called "The Terror of the Neighborhood," is perhaps the most feared and dreaded of all animals, and the one that causes the most aggravation.

Most people have the same instinctive dread to shudder at a boy at night, and on general principles, that they have to kill a snake. Unfortunately, the law prevents this, and as it has been found im-expedient to keep it confined like a lion or a jackal in a steel cage, out of harm's way, human beings have been unable to protect themselves against a creature so bloodthirsty that it finds its chief delight in torturing its victims.

This causes everyone to view the advent of a boy in a community with alarm, while the presence of two or three depresses the value of property and makes nervous people flee from the vicinity.

Although naturalists have devoted much time to the study of this subject, they have never been able to definitely classify the boy, owing to his partaking of the obnoxious traits of all the other animals. Physically, it is all human and yet, with a rudimentary heart and no soul.

Notwithstanding all this, however, the boy is greatly esteemed as a household pet, and is quite generally kept in that capacity. Indeed, few families are satisfied and happy without one, although after having received one they never know another minute's peace and quiet as long as they have it about the house.

LEGISLATION NEEDED

To Term the Avalanche of Drowning Accidents
A citizen suggested to The Times yesterday that some kind of laws should be provided to compel boat builders to equip their boats with all safety and caution. This year's long list of drowning accidents is terribly saddening, and shows the necessity that exists for some kind of protection. There surely should be laws regarding the construction of boats as well as the larger crafts.

BAD RAILWAY SMASHUPREAR END COLLISION ON THE GRAND TRUNK ROAD

Two Engines and a Number of Cars Wrecked Inside the Corporation

One of the worst railway wrecks that has taken place for years in this locality, occurred yesterday afternoon about five o'clock on the Grand Trunk Railway, not far from the station. It appears that a double header from the west stopped on the curve east of Hamilton's township, where the train was run in two, and the rear cars left standing on the track. During the interval, and before the engine returned for the balance of the train, a second double header, which followed the first, pitched into the rear of the standing cars. The accident occurred where the track crosses Reid street. Both engines were derailed and badly wrecked. The first engine turned to the right, and is almost totally destroyed. The second took the other side of the track, and came nearly demolishing a house occupied by Mr. Hols. It is also badly injured. Several cars loaded with corn were wrecked.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

—Miss Mary Rose, Lindsay, is home on her vacation.
—Miss Lena Lannon, of Rochester, is visiting Mrs. Trollope.
—Mr. Fred Cookson, of Woodstock, is visiting friends in town.
—Miss Ethel R. Folly has returned from a pleasant stay in Rochester.
—Dr. Conroy, of Bath, Mich., is a guest at his home here.
—Dr. E. K. Stewart and wife, of Chicago, are visiting Mr. A. C. Dunlop for a few days.
—Mr. M. Hagarty, of Bay City, Mich., is visiting his sister, Mrs. Hagarty, Elm street.
—Mrs. Oiler and her son and daughter, of Bay City, Mich., are visiting Miss Daly, Welles street.
—Messrs. E. Schaefer, J. A. Weber, C. Schwartz, H. Lutz, H. Lumburg and B. Martin, of Niagara Falls, arrived here last evening on their way to enjoy an outing at Stony Lake.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

—Propose to demolish.
The Board of Education will meet to-morrow evening at the Secretary's office.
—At Oakham House, Toronto, Monday night, Peterborough Old Boys completed arrangements for their visit home on Saturday next.
—Aldermen Williams and Chinko—these two only—are in favor of rejecting the railway route, what is going on in the Council Chamber.
—Aldermen Rush, Burton, Morrison, O'Connell, Edgumbe, Cookery and Finnie are the Aldermen who eventually do not want the public to know what is going on in municipal circles.
—It is said that more than one of the Aldermen who voted to exclude the railway from Council meetings, has his eye on the mayor's chair. The ratepayers, when asked about it, will probably remember the near chamber episode when the reporters were put out.

Give the Boys a Show

Lead night a bunch of boys were standing on one of the street corners chatting, when they were requested to "move on." A citizen, who happened to be passing, and who related the incident to the Times, said: "If boys do not move on too late and don't make too much noise, I don't see what harm they do if they do stand on the street corners. They may stay in the house all the time. What's the use of being a lawbreaker if you can't act like one when you have a mind to? This seems good sense."

THE S. A. VETERANS

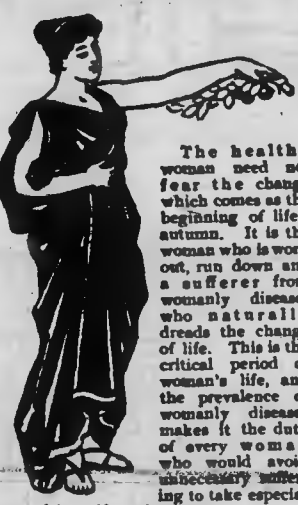

Formed an Association at a Meeting Held Last Night
The veterans of the late South African war held a meeting in the room of the members of the 47th Regiment, Sunday street, last night, which was well attended.
Mr. E. O. Bradburn explained fully the object of the meeting, which was for the purpose of forming an association composed entirely of men who had served in South Africa.
The election of officers was proceeded with and resulted as follows: President—Mr. A. R. Hall; Secretary—Mr. W. S. Hargrave. Committee to draft by-laws—Messrs. A. E. Miller, G. Hartley, Henderson and the President.

On assuming the chair the President thanked the members for the honor conferred on him by making him the first President of the Association. He said he was deeply interested in the formation of a society and would do all in his power to help along, and make it a success. The society will be known as the Peterborough South African Veterans' Association. After many matters relating to the Association were fully discussed, it was decided to hold a meeting every month on a set day.

Mr. Bradburn moved, seconded by Mr. A. E. Miller, that a vote of thanks be tendered the non-committed officers for the use of their rooms.
The motion was carried unanimously, after which the meeting adjourned.
The outlook for the new Association is very bright, and judging from the enthusiasm shown last night, the membership will be large. A very strong effort will be made to have every veteran of the county a member of the Association.

A notice past finder will please return same to J. J. Turner & Sons, George street.

The healthy woman need not fear the change which comes at the beginning of life's autumn. It is the woman who is worn out, run down and a sufferer from womanly diseases who naturally dread the change of life. This is the critical period of woman's life, and the prevalence of womanly diseases makes it the duty of every woman who would avoid unnecessary suffering to take special care of herself at this time.

The ills which vex so many women at the change of life are entirely avoided or cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong, and enables the weakest to pass through this trying change with the tranquility of perfect health.

A very healthy woman, and this time has been very hard with me, writes Mrs. Maggie Morris of Muskegon Station, Clarfield Co., Pa. "I am 41 years of age, and I have been sick a great deal of late. When Mrs. Morris moved beside me I was sick in bed, and when she came to see me and we were talking over our sickness, Mrs. Morris told me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' also 'Felted'. I got her to bring me a bottle of each from the drug store, and I used them. They did me a great deal of good, and I got two more bottles of Favorite Prescription, never saw such a wonderful cure. Before I commenced my remedies I was good for nothing; now I am as well as I can do all my work myself and feel well."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are easy and pleasant to take.

A Magnificent Investment

CHANCE OF A LIFETIME.

THE BOSTON AND NEW MEXICO COPPER COMPANY, incorporated Capital Stock, $500,000. In Shares of $100 each, par value. Full and Res-suable. Operating in the Oscura Mining District, at the foot of Oscura Mountains, near Esrey City, Precinct 6, Socorro County, New Mexico.

MODERN SMELTER JUST COMPLETED WITHIN A HALF-MILE OF PROPERTY

OVER $1,000,000 ALREADY INVESTED.

Over one million dollars have been invested within a short radius surrounding on all sides the property of this company by Boston, New Haven and New York capitalists. All this has been invested quietly within the last two years, without any appeal to the public. Only one of these companies interested has put its stock on the market recently, and that at 60 cents on the dollar.

NOT A PROSPECT, BUT A WELL-DEVELOPED MINING PROPERTY. We have shown by actual mining that we have

COPPER IN 80 ACRES

A rich fissure vein. This company having paid a large sum of money for these properties, and also in the development of the same, now offer to the public 50,000 shares only of their stock, in order to make further reserves, so that when they start to deliver ore at the reduction works they can keep up the supply daily and by that means pay a dividend that does not fluctuate but that can be depended on by the stockholders.

A LIMITED NUMBER OF SHARES IN THE

The Minersville Gold Mining and Milling Company

W—be sold at 15 CENTS PER SHARE, PAR VALUE, $1.00.

Full Paid, Non-Assessable and No Personal Liability.

READ THIS!

This Company offers one of the safest and best investments, as its property is located in the famous Hampshire District, Baker Co., Oregon, and has for its neighbors such mines as the House, Red Key, Barba, North Pole, Columbia, Golden and Crater, which are producing from $100 to $150 per acre per month. This great property for which the underwriter is pleased to make a special offer, is the only one of the kind in the entire state of Oregon.

The Company has three full claims, with two large veins, one sixteen feet and the other twenty-two feet at the surface, showing good gold values and strictly free milling. The Company owns the property outright, being free from all debt and encumbrance and in order to equip the mine with modern machinery and to continue development work, a limited number of shares will be sold for a short time only at 15 cents per share, as announced above.

Investors who wish to place money in large or small amounts can do so better than invest in this proposition. All information cheerfully furnished, and all cheques payable to

JANET'S DIAMONDS

A Deafening Downy That Was Lost at Last.

BY F. J. SMITH.

ried away by Trot's charms, which to us appeared so overwhelming. And, as for Trot, well, she actually, under her unconscious or indifferent eyes, started a rather lively flirtation with young Bertie Manners, a good looking, but empty-headed boy just six months out of Sandhurst, but who was as full of barrack-room swagger and military experience as if he had been a Crimean veteran.

It was the hottest, driest July I remember—four years ago—when, under the blinding sun, the dust, the midges, and those aggravating children, we became just four of the crankiest most unbearable old maids in England. Old maids, indeed! I am sure, as far as temper was concerned, we might have been four deserted wives or dejected widows like poor Janet.

One afternoon—I think about three weeks after the boy's return from Sandhurst—I was standing at the open lobby window, abstractedly watching a set of tennis going on immediately underneath between Trot and young Manners. After a few rather lazy games, I became aware that they were not conscious of our observation, for Miss Trot throwing away her racket and sitting down upon the grass, her companion came up, cast himself sentimentally at her feet and began to petition for a gift of some of the roses she wore at her throat.

"What an affected little bore that fellow is!" remarked Phil's voice suddenly behind us. "What is he bothering her about now?"

"He is only asking for a few of his roses," I answered lightly.

"Such nonsense! There are plenty of the same kind about. Why doesn't he pick some for himself?"

"Why?" I retorted, no longer able to retain myself. "Because he is not a self-possessed man like you, Phil. Because, I expect, he would rather have the gift of a few faded buds worn by such a sweet and pretty girl as our Trot than the biggest and freshest bouquet the grounds could give him."

"Oh," exclaimed Phil, bursting into a loud rough laugh that made the couple under the trees look up hastily. "See—! That's the meaning of the lurching little fellow, by Jove! I am a Goth, a vandal, not to have taken it in before! And what a confounded dunder-headed deacony I have been to be sure—always in the way, spilling spew from my mouth until night! Well, I'll take good care to efface myself for the future. Why—why the dickens, aunt Nettie, didn't you tell me that Trot went in for that style of thing? I hadn't the faintest idea that it was the least in her line, Trot, of all the girls in the world, spoiling a swagging little idiot like that!" I heard him mutter as he moved scornfully away.

After that, Philip avoided the girl's society as ostentatiously as he had sought it hitherto, and treated her with a coldness and distant politeness that seemed to hurt and puzzle her deeply. At first she stopped to ask for an explanation of his sudden change, begged to be informed in what way she had incurred his displeasure; but she assured her that she was laboring under a delusion, that she had in no wise offended him, and refused any further explanation, at which Trot became more determinedly cold than he, being quite bitter and repellant in her manner.

And so, day after day, they would pass without their exchanging a word even at breakfast or dinner. It became so very terrible and trying that we were longing for the time of Phil's return to Oxford.

One afternoon at lunch he announced that he had accepted an invitation to spend a week with some friends a couple of miles up the river, and afterwards we stood at the window, the four of us, about as usual, watching the young people start for the tennis-club together. For about half a dozen yards they kept side by side, then, Phil stopping to light his cigar, Trot moved quickly on, and he, instead of attempting to overtake her, struck across the lawn at right angles, and then they disappeared from our view.

Neither of them returned to dinner, and about nine o'clock, as we were sitting in the dusk waiting for Trot, she came in very quietly, took down between Peggy and me, and asked us to prepare ourselves for a bit of news that would, she felt sure, surprise us very much—just the last bit of news in the world that we should expect to hear! And the news was that she had that afternoon promised to marry a man who said he loved her very, very dearly, but only on condition of course that she had not any other suitor, and approval. After a few moments, as nobody spoke, she laid her head against Peggy's shoulder and asked, in a whisper—

"Well dear, what do you say? Have I any chance of your consent, your approval?"

"Oh, Trot, Trot, he is very young—you are both very young!" Peggy answered, half in tears.

"That is not much against him or me, mamma. That is a fault which will be mending itself every day."

"You love him then, Trot?"

The answer came falteringly, after a few seconds' silence.

"I—I don't know yet, mamma; I haven't had time to think about it. I—I suppose I do like him just a little, you know."

"But he is not well off, Trot. His father—"

"I shouldn't mind that, dear. I have money myself, you know; and he—he offers me inducements greater than all the money-bags in the world."

"He does? What—what inducements, child?"

"The inducement of never, never having to leave you all—the inducement of owing you as much as I owe you myself, of loving you all almost as well as I do myself."

"Trot, Trot!" our four voices quivered forth together. "What are you talking about? What does Bertie Manners owe us? Why should he love us?"

"Bertie Manners? Oh, oh, auntie, how do you think I could mean that—that silly boy? How could—"

"Then you mean—"

"I mean—why, Phil, of course!"

We gave a big gasp the following week as a slight outlet for the ammon of our delight, and everybody said it was the pleasantest dance that had been given in the place for years, and that our boy and girl were the happiest-looking and most interesting pair of lovers it had ever been their pleasure to congratulate.

Janet, who wore her diamonds, of course, really looked quite handsome, and had such a spirited flirtation with old Sir Hugh Manners, Bertie's uncle, that several of our friends slyly hinted that we ought to make serious inquiries as to the fate of the absent spouse, of whose existence she had not heard for over fifteen years.

It was nearly a fortnight after the happy denouement before any one thought of acquainting Colonel Maitland with the fact of his ward's engagement. The news brought him upon the spot at once, and his action, which of course we all had to agree was perfectly fair and just, was the first blow to the general felicity. After mastering all the facts of the case, he showed—no, that it was impossible with his duty to his dead friend to allow any acknowledged engagement between the young couple until Phil had means sufficient to support a wife, until he had at least the same amount of capital to start with as the girl herself had—from five to seven thousand pounds.

Five to seven thousand pounds! The very sum that lay unproductive in the mother's hand! There seemed a fatality about these diamonds. Once again, the spur of the excitement produced by this decree, we bearded the owner, but with as little success as on the first occasion. No power on earth, it would seem, would loosen our sister's grasp on those tantalizing gems.

Colonel Maitland, whom we all liked greatly, ran into us one week night, during which time he and Phil had many long consultations as to the quickest ways and means of increasing his modest legacy to the stipulated amount of capital, for to these young lovers, who six weeks before had not an idea of spending their lives together, the idea of waiting until Trot was of age to marry whom she liked—the idea of waiting four never-ending years—appeared a probability of not only too painful and absurd to be entertained seriously for a moment.

The result of these consultations we learned to our general dismay the day before our guest took his departure. Phil had made up his mind to give up the University course upon which we had all set our hearts and to start fortune-making at the other end of the world almost at once.

By the investment of a thousand pounds, he would, within a week, equip with a smart nephew of the Colonel's, who, after eighteen months' exile in New South Wales, had made more money than his elder brother had made at the end of eleven years' slaving at the bar, though the barrister had left Oxford with the highest academic honors of his year.

After the first outbreak of protest and disapproval, I saw that it was of no use to oppose the boy, that he was determined to go, and with great difficulty making the others come round to my conclusion, the family consent was at last obtained, and, after a parting between the young lovers that was heart-rending enough even to satisfy our high emotional requirements, Phil sailed, and for nearly two years after his departure we received by every mail reports of his success.

At this point a week night with a paper about your wonderful scheme came and I was induced to try it, as I had long been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for years, I have tried several doctors and they do me no good, I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Skin Cure for my hands. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so used that the nails used to come off, you can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay. It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds, the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash? A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

There have been millions who have come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurons, the Baldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. Today he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at $1.00 per value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in any case, and in others, away above par.

There are many persons who assert that there is nothing in it for the average investor and that it does not pay to invest small sums in stock. Let such persons ask themselves what returns they can hope to get through banks or real estate speculations for sums of under $100.00, and then consider the following:—

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $8.700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1880 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in Tanamarck Copper in 1890 is now worth $682.

$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $3,600.

$100 in the Jackpot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

Mailory, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

How does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore sells only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours.

The Alaska Treadwell ore sells $3.38 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par.

No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management.

Respectfully submitted,

HIDALGO MINING COMPANY

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 30 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.

Vast ledges of ore running from $5.00 to $100.00 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $75.00 to $250.00 per ton. This is not a five per cent. a month mine, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans. No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGEMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your foresight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the Stock sold at par. The new Mining Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the Stock at present price. It will soon be 50 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mines and returned full of enthusiasm. The mines are turning out more rich than expected.

I can offer the Stock for a short time only at 30 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO-DAY—tomorrow it may slip your memory. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 25% per month.

THE GREATEST MINING PROPOSITION
EVER OFFERED.

I am pleased to state that I have completed arrangements with the Consolidated Nevada Mining Company for the sale of a block of their treasury stock in Canada. It is a proposition I can honestly recommend, and has unbounded possibilities. The tremendous possibilities of WEDKIND and TONOPAH in becoming a mining plateau every day to the entire country. The spring rush into these NEVADA mining camps will equal or exceed that into Cripple Creek, Dawson or Nuts. The stock is rapidly appreciated from Wedkind and Tonopah have created the greatest excitement and the rush will come on.

Everyone is waiting NEVADA mining stocks and prices are rapidly advancing. None offer better opportunities for profits than do the shares of Mainly About People.

The minister called at a certain Canadian home just after he had come to his new pastorate. The small boy was present long before his mother came downstairs to greet the divine. Trying to be cordial, the minister said, "How old are you, my little man?" "I'm five at home, six in school and three on the car," was the delightful reply.

P. T. Barnum was a great practical joker. On one occasion he notified the dealer from whom he bought a large amount of supplies that half the pepper in that tin was gone. The dealer indignantly denied the charge, and quite a warm correspondence followed, it being finally ended by Barnum, who equivoled whether half the letters in the word "pepper" were not 'p's.

On April Fool's day, the audience at an amateur dramatic performance in the Naval Academy at Annapolis was startled when one of the instructors made his appearance before the curtain about the time the play was to begin. He bowed and solemnly announced: "I wish to make an announcement—a very and announcement. Under the circumstances it scarcely seems fitting that the entertainment should proceed. Word has just been received that one of the navy's vessels has gone down with all on board."

A hush of horror followed this gravely delivered speech, for most of those in the audience were connected by close family ties with the navy. "What was the name of the vessel?" came a voice from the rear of the hall. "The submarine boat 'Holland,'" replied the instructor, as he dodged said made a hasty exit.

A correspondent of the London "Outlook" tells a story which he heard Lord Dufferin relate of Sheridan Le Fanu. Sheridan's father—the Archbishop of Meath—was a great stickler for punctuality, a regard his son did not share. One morning young Sheridan, then about eight years old, descended unusually late for breakfast, and was met at the door by his father, who said: "Is this right, sir; is this right?" demanded the prelate in stern tones. "I don't know, sir," replied Sheridan, looking at the watch and pretending to think the question applied to it and not to his conduct. "But I rather think it's fast." For this impudence young Sheridan was condemned to write an essay on "The Three Ages of Man." Here is what he wrote: "There are three ages of man: First—When he is engaged in planning every conceivable mode of wickedness. This is known as the age of innocence. Second—When he is putting his nefarious plans into operation. This is called the prime of manhood. Third—When he becomes anxious about his soul and turns to religion. This is dotage."

Thomas A. Edison is of the opinion that it was anger that first turned him toward inventing the incandescent light. That was, of course, in the early days, and Edison was then quite the inventor that one reads of—poor, enthusiastic, never sleeping. He lived in a small house, innocent of anything approaching a laboratory; scientific apparatus were in every room, and all the money went for experiments. Then, one day, came the crisis in the guise of the coldest day for the gas company. He had been to the house often, but Edison, hardly hearing his call, had waved him away, saying, "Don't bother me." On this last call the collector's instructions were peremptory. "He must turn off the gas." "But, no," protested Mr. Edison, "I can't stop this experiment to-night. I'll pay the bill, of course. I didn't know about it. I must finish this work with no interruption." But the man was a gas collector and the lights went out. "That's all right, as I sit here in the darkness," says the great inventor, "I cover a deep, calm and far-reaching coil that I could not all of the gas companies in the world out of business. I haven't seen quite that, but I did the best I could."

It was W. D. Howells.

"Your average detective is about as fast-witted a glutton as exists," says Mr. George K. Rithman of Boston in the Washington "Post." "He may be clever in his line, but outside of that his mind is a howling wilderness. His point of view is narrow and his judgment constricted as a result of his calling." To illustrate this, Mr. Rithman tells this incident:

"A friend of mine who is fond of showing up the defects of his fellow-men has a lot of fun lately with a pair of Boston's leading detectives. He called the detective into his office in the most casual way and exhibited to them the picture of a tough-looking individual, about whose identity he was cravily for information. He delivered his visitors into the notion that if they could unravel the puzzle he would reward them as world-beaters. Each gazed at the photo long and earnestly. Both were positive that it was in the rogues' gallery. One of them identified it as being the comical, fat, prominent of a notorious bank-robbler; his mate thought it the likeness of an equally noted forger."

"When they got through, my friend turned the likeness over, and on the back thereof they read the name of the original—William Dean Howells. Mr. Howells isn't handsome, but he was never accused before of being an ornament of the rogues' gallery. But Mr. Howells laughed when the incident was narrated in his presence."

Reading the Finger Tips.

When a berry of maidens would write away an idle hour, and foretell fate and fortune, it is not alone the lines on their hands that they consult, but the finger tips as well, says a New York Sun correspondent.

"Let me tell your future by your little finger," says one lively dame to her companion. "Give it a graceful curve. Yes, that is it. Now, let me see; you will—"

"Marry a tall, dark-haired man who looks like a pirate, I suppose," interrupts her companion. "I cannot go quite so far as that, nor the whether he—the future he—will be dark and practical, or light and poetical, so don't expect much from me."

The little finger that thus held up showed that its possessor would be lucky in love affairs and constant in her affections. This was proved by its oval tip, with well marked lines near the joint.

Extreme delicacy of the lines of the finger tips, not weakness, but threadlike caution, especially of the third finger, denote an artistic talent. When studying finger tips, or phalangiology, as it is called, the length of the tips above the ball of the finger must be noted. Unusually length shows that a woman would be a good mother and a good wife. Very long and gay at times is the woman with the tips of her first fingers showing lines extending from one side to the other, absolutely unbroken, except by the center. The pointed of finger ing first finger usually indicates one who is quick to grasp an idea and receptive of new impressions. The pointed second finger, with the line, shows one decidedly optimistic; if very pointed, frivolous, fond of gossip, and on whom serious make but little impression. She is as irresponsible as a butterfly.

The fourth finger, if ringed with lines near the tip, and quite pointed, indicates one quick at repartee, witty and diplomatic. If the finger is smooth, or set lined with marks, or if it is square-tipped and rather heavy, the possessor is fond of praise, nor is flattery unwelcome.

The square little finger shows one who would rather do things in pronouncement. The pointed second finger, with the line, shows one decidedly optimistic; if very pointed, frivolous, fond of gossip, and on whom serious make but little impression. She is as irresponsible as a butterfly.

If the mount is quite flat, coldness and selfishness are shown. If it is crowned by many lines, the affections and deep feelings are indicated when the "mount" at the base of the thumb is pronounced.

That woman loves luxury and is most extravagant whose thumbs show straight markings.

With a long and narrow palm, a skin of milk and satin and blue veins, a refined nature is shown, but no deep affections. Warm affections and deep feelings are indicated when the "mount" at the base of the thumb is pronounced.

The mount of Jupiter, under the first finger, if well developed, indicates noble ambition and love of nature, and foretells a happy marriage.

Small, round nails are characteristic of a gentle, dependent nature; crooked nails belong to quick-tempered people; long nails to those of a temperate disposition. One who would hesitate to name the day. These are nails of persons who have shown indecision, red nails good temper, and nails abnormally pale, foreboding that is both physical and mental.

JANET'S DIAMONDS

A Dearthful Dowry That Was Lost at Last.

BY P. J. SMITH.

Stanley Phil could become Mrs. his father, did we, sisters?"

"No!" they answered, roused by my energetic protest.

"And we don't believe it now!" said Dotty. "It's a mistake! You—you have been misinformed, Janet! Who wrote to you?"

"He writes himself," answered Janet, bursting into tears. "I tell you there is no mistake—you can read the letter for yourself! It—it explains all. Oh, it is a case of—of—of the state I'm in—to take it like that; to be so hard and violent and unjust, without even knowing a thing, without knowing all he went through, this—the struggle he made to resist, and the terrible temptation it was! Why—why should you call him a scoundrel for falling in love with the loveliest girl he ever met, when he saw that she—she loved him, when she nursed him through a dangerous illness, when without her care and her father's hospitality he would probably have died —died on the roadside! But I dare say——dashing the handkerchief from her eyes and gazing into our stern pale faces —"you would rather hear the news of his death than this—you who pretend to love him better than his poor mother did!"

"Yes, Janet," Peggy answered firmly,
"I think we would rather hear that the boy was dead than unworthy of our love!"

"If this news is true, I will never speak to him again!" said Dotty.

"No!"

"No!"

"Oh, how cruel you are! Can't you read his letter, somebody? Janet went on wildly, "and not condemn him unheard? And you know there was no real engagement between him and Trot!
You know her guardian forbade it expressly—would not let her wear his ring, even! Oh, can't you read his letter somebody—somebody?"

I took it from her hand, read it through twice in silence, then passed it on to the others. It was a blotched, and in some parts almost illegible, scrawl, but the writing was our nephew's and had evidently been passed by him while in a state of exhausted excitement and apprehension. Oh, as well as might—with it might, indeed! It said that many times during the past month he had tried in vain to write to us, but that now, feeling we might be made too anxious by his long silence, he had forced himself to go through with the task, and humbly begged us all to forgive him the terrible error and disappointment he knew the knowledge of his marriage would be to us. He had struggled desperately at first, he said, to remain true to the dear girl of whom he had felt himself all along to be unworthy; but circumstances had been too strong for him, and he had fallen. He said that his beloved wife knew nothing of his prior bonds; he implored his mother not to imagine that she was in the least bit tainted with his treachery—she was all truth and unselfishness and devotion. Oh, he knew that she—his mother—would love his beautiful Emmeline when he should have the courage to bring her home to them!

He was longing to bring her, longing to see his old home again, longing to ask pardon on his benighted knees of those whom he loved and had wronged. Would the word of his recall ever come? He —his father was a merchant of wealth and position, and her fortune was considerable.

If he could only present her to us, he felt sure she would win us to forget his unworthiness, of course. The letter concluded with an account of the manner in which he had been thrown into the young lady's society. Travelling up country to visit the claim he had told us of, he had been thrown from his horse in a wild, lonely district and lay for hours helpless under a burning sun with a dislocated shoulder and sprained ankle, and would doubtless have succumbed to his injuries had not Miss Dorevex, whose father owned a large property in the neighborhood, been driving past in her carriage, carried him to her home, where he had been tended with the utmost kindness and devotion.

"Well, well, what do you say now?"
asked Janet, when the letter had been dropped from Dotty's hand. "Do you admit of any excuse for his conduct now? Do you still think him a scoundrel, Peggy?"

Peggy covered her face with her hands and left the answer to me.

"I think, Janet," I said, "that your maternal intuition was a true one, after all—that your son is his father's son too."

At this Janet burst into angry tears and expostulation again, reproaching us, reasoning with us, trying to impress upon us that our disappointment was all attributable to our own acts, that it was we—alone who forced that foolish engagement upon the children, that it was we who made them fancy themselves in love with one another, who drew them to one another.

"And you, of course, Janet," Betty probed in inquiry, "were perfectly untainted in the matter? You never expressed a wish that your son should marry our girl?"

"How can you say such things, Betty, when you knew I was as anxious about the matter as any of you, though I did not desire any way my judgment?
From the day in which you all talk, one would really think that this blow fell not so heavily upon me as it does upon the others! As if I wouldn't rather have our sweet little Trot for a daughter-in-law with only her six thousand pounds than this beauty with her thirty—forty —I don't know how much—say, twenty thousand over! And it's a shame, I say—

"Hush, hush! Here she comes!"
Before we had time to move an inch or to think of hiding the letter, Trot was among us.

"What's the matter?" she asked in alarm. "Why, Betty, you look as if you had been crying! Ah—what a lovely quilt! As for your glance falling upon the paper in Janet's lap—"there's—there's a letter from Australia! Bad news—bad —bad! Some one tell me—quick!"

We all glanced at the mother, who sat there, with crimson face, clasped hands, and a look of agonizing distress.

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin diseases or eczema.

Dear Sirs,—I enclose your advertisement in a paper about your wonderful ointment cure
and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands
for 15 years. I have tried several doctors and they gave me no good, I only used one box of Dr. Clark's Ointment for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hands were so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MRS. JOHN WOOD,
Parker Station, N.Y.

Dr. Clark's Ointment for Eczema is a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, neuralgia, paralysis, coughs, lumbago, asthma, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the disease have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormrod & Walsh, Peterborough, 50c per box or 3 boxes
for $1.50.

Dr. Clark's Ointment for Eczema and Clark's Ointment for Eczema, same price.
$5.00 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

For the Farmer.

In all breeds of poultry it is the large est females which will produce the large est offspring; hence if you want to increase the individual size of the flock select eggs laid by the largest hens.
The same rule holds good in regard to egg-producing qualities; if you want better laying pullets select the eggs for setting from the best laying hens. It pays to follow the laws of breeding, and to use as much care in selecting fowl as in buying fruit trees, farm implements or a horse.

No experiment station can make a fair and reliable comparison between the general purpose cow and the special dairy cow covering a brief period of time only. It is what a herd of general purpose animals will do for their owner through a series of years that proves their value. It is the income from a herd in the form of calves, growth, milk, manure, etc., that counts. The combined that gives value to the general purpose herd. No limited experiment can measure the value of these several parts of one common whole in a short time.

The recent rains have greatly improved the crop outlook in this Province and the west. In the Province of Quebec the prolonged drouth has had a very unfavorable effect on the growth of hay and grain. In Ontario up to the first week of the month rain was badly needed, but the moisture that has come since that has greatly improved the condition of the growing crops. In Manitoba and the west there has been the steady improvement in crop conditions, and the present outlook is exceedingly promising for another bountiful harvest.

Sheep Prospects in Canada.

The Farmers' Advocate writes in respect to the sheep industry:—"Now is their opportunity" (referring to the flock owners) "for selection and improvement, so as to be ready for the upward turn of the tide when it comes. Indeed, it appears to be close at hand.
The demand for mutton continues to grow, and it is quite certain that its limit will not be reached yet awhile.
Hence breeders may, we feel sure, look forward with confidence." It is quite certain that Canadian breeders will be far better and larger customers for our own stock than they have been heretofore.
The prospects for the demand during the coming season from Canada are probably better than they have been for some time past. Despite all the drawbacks which the sheep industry has to contend with in this country, it is still very high amongst the different sections of the general agricultural interest, and bids fair to become quite as important as it is at home. No matter what breeders of other varieties of live stock may say, there is no question that the key to successful farming is the same abroad as at home, namely the maintenance upon every holding of a flock of sheep, either breeding or otherwise, as the character of the holding may determine. The profit and benefit arising from sheep breeding and feeding is certainly larger and more general than from any other variety of live stock.—Farmer and Stockbreeder, London, Eng.

Broody Hens.

Very soon broody hens will be getting rather plentiful in many yards, and a few hints as to the best method of dealing with them will no doubt be acceptable. In the first place, it is perfectly natural for the hens of incubating varieties to develop their natural propensities during the warm season whenever a batch of eggs is laid. This propensity may be very persistent or the reverse, according to the race to which the fowls belong.

Cochins, Brahmas, Indian Game,
Malays, Langshans, and their crosses are particularly prone to this. Buff Orpingtons, Buff Rocks, Buff Wyandottes, etc., are very keen and frequent sitters during warm weather, and it takes more to break them off the nest than birds with a milder tendency to incubate. Birds which have got rather fat and heavy are also rather difficult to break off, and it is a rule with those who keep incubating varieties to keep them only in fair bodily condition during warm weather.

They will lay all the better for consequence. Whenever a hen becomes broody she should be kept away from the nest or roosting house, and for preference put in a coop with a square bottom in the middle of the yard. The spars should be at least two inches from the ground, and about two and one-quarter inches between the spars. When a hen is placed inside she does not feel in a comfortable position. Her overpowering tendency is to sit, and to sit while she is forced to stand, and to stand upon a hard and uncomfortable surface. She quickly tires of it, and in her continued anxiety to secure comfort outside the broody desire is forgotten. One feverish desire conquers another. This proceeding is not in the least degree cruel, and the bird quickly returns to laying again.

During the period of confinement food should be supplied sparingly, and of a kind which does not heat or stimulate. Broody hens drink a lot of water, owing to their feverish condition, and a little Epsom salts put in the drinking water daily greatly helps to cool them down and break up the broody fit. A plentiful supply of green food should be given. It should be chopped up finely, and placed in a vessel at the side of the coop.

The company of a vigorous cockerel in a strange run sometimes cures as quickly as the broody coop. This is not always available, however.—R.
G., in London (Eng.) Farm and Stockbreeder.

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises
are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay.
It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash?
A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others.
The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine.
Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurons, the Baldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at from $1.00 per value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

There are many persons who assert that there is nothing in it for the average investor and that it does not pay to invest small sums in stock. Let such persons ask themselves what returns they can hope to get through banks or real estate speculations for sums of under $100.00, and then consider the following:—

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $8,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1880 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $682.

$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 23 dividend paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Malloy, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

How does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. One mine only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,500 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours.
The Alaska Treadwell ore mills $2.38 per ton; the stock 500 per cent above par.

No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management. Respectfully submitted,

HIDALGO MINING COMPANY

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin diseases or eczema.

Dear Sirs,—I enclose your advertisement in a paper about your wonderful ointment cure
and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands
for 15 years. I have tried several doctors and they gave me no good, I only used one box of Dr. Clark's Ointment for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hands were so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MRS. JOHN WOOD,
Parker Station, N.Y.

Dr. Clark's Ointment for Eczema is a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, neuralgia, paralysis, coughs, lumbago,
asthma, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the disease have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormrod & Walsh, Peterborough, 50c per box or 3 boxes
for $1.50.

Dr. Clark's Ointment for Eczema and Clark's Ointment for Eczema, same price.
$5.00 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

Stocks—The MARKETS OF THE WORLD—Grain

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and in which there is absolute safety in substitution, and yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

An arrangement has been made with the Trust Company to guarantee to the purchaser the return of amount invested within a given number of years. To substantiate this guarantee it is issued by the Trust Company of Canada, which is secured by first real estate mortgages deposited with another Trust Company for the specific purpose of securing the bonds the underwriting company issues.

These guarantees are absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer:

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, in making effort to secure funds for the extensive development of its numerous mining properties and also of its oil lands, offers a limited amount of its Treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Chippewa Creek, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done. It is proposed to place as many of these mining properties upon a shipping and self-supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of oil lands in Hartman County, Colo., in order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $1.00 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with no individual liability. This issue of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Profits have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are usually very great, especially when the stock can be secured at such a low price as this is now offered for. Now is the time to get in before an advance in the price is made.

The new railroad from Denver to Salt Lake, which is now building will be of incalculable benefit to the Company, furnishing transportation for ore and supplies, besides immediately increasing values.

STOCK MARKETS

New York, July 23.—The recovery of the market yesterday was regulated largely by the degree to which each particular stock was oversold. It was obvious that nearly all the recent great liquidation had been on account of exhausted margin and loans. The buying of stocks yesterday was not full of feature. It was an excellent trading market. There is plenty of room for recovery in price, but at the same time the day's dealings do not necessarily make a radical change in the outlook. There have been plenty of day rallies distributed over the last six months, although the trend of the market has been steadily downward. The failure of the Kansas City stock market, as one should have happened in the New York building trade. In building circles it has been talked of for several days, and the recent decline of some really companies stocks is not wholly disconnected with it. It now seems that the employers were not in a position to stand out indifferently, hence the arbitration agreement. Bankers are not yet making sterling loans in great quantity, because it is so profitably they must lend their money on sixty days (time or more, at once). They cannot afford to lend it on call at 3 per cent. waiting for higher time rates.

Liverpool, July 23.—Wheat 1-2 lower, corn 3-8 lower. Spot cotton good business done, mid advance 10 points, sales 14,000 bales and exports 8,000, Texas 7,300. All American futures ranged steady, 5 to 10 up on summer, 4 up on fall and winter. At 12:30 firm, advance 7 on winter, 5 on summer. It would appear that the bulk of short sales is intended for speculation and export. Part of this may be for continent and part for foreign market.

Chicago, July 23.—Buy wheat and keep it; it may look dear for a while, but it will wake up and then there will be something doing. Look for wheat to rise. Recent selling has been by liquidators who are acquainted with affairs of company.

When the friends of the third daughter of the discovery of anastomosis were proposing monuments for each other, Lord Wendell Holmes suggested that all should unite in erecting a single monument, with Sovereign Programme

There is quite a demand for the little booklet issued by the Old Boys Association of Toronto. The photographical portion of the work is excellent.
Copies may be had at The Times
Bookstore at 25c. each.

The Coven Blowers

A citizen who reads The Times, called our attention to the statement made in these columns a few days ago to the effect that the Orange celebration on July 15th, at Bethany, was a great success, because it was in the heart of the home of the "Coven Blowers." (Bethany is in Maine)
The ship, and in at least ten miles removed from the core of the Blower settlement.

The Salvation Army Excursion

The Salvation Army excursion, school went down the river on Wednesday to Highland Park per steamer City of Peterborough, and had a delightful outing. The party left Peterborough at 8 o'clock and reached their destination shortly after 10. The children played games and ran races, to winners of which events prizes were given. The band, which was present, added greatly to the day's pleasure, as did the refreshments. Staff-Captain McManis was in charge of the arrangements which were perfect.

A New Branch Railway

Midland Herald: Surveyors are now locating a new line from Midland to a point near Cobourg, and touching a point near Peterborough, the object of which is to secure a direct route for the grain trade to the main line.
The new branch will be straight as two lines, avoiding curves and grades, so as to carry with safety the heavy weights which run on the main line.
Should this road be built, and there is every likelihood that it will, the heavy traffic will cease over this diverted line of the road between Peterborough and Belleville, as the road has too many curves and grades to run the heavy engines.

Important to Horse Owners

A chemist has discovered a way to protect horses from flies, which we give to the readers of the Times. The method consists in rubbing the horse, especially the parts most subjected to attack, with a little concentrated oil of laurel. There is not the slightest danger in its use, and the oil is easily washed off with water.
The oil is a powerful insecticide, and will drive them away. This is a very valuable remedy, and should be used at once. The oil is sold in bottles at 25c. each, and is sold by all chemists. It is sold by the Times Bookstore at 25c. each.

Don't forget the public meeting tonight in the Council Chamber.

The new dam below the locks is now approaching completion. It is a splendid piece of work.

Chief Russell has received a card asking him to be on the lookout for any suspicious characters.

St. Andrew's Mission Band intend holding their annual moonlight excursion down the river the first week in August.

In police court yesterday morning
Wm. McInnis, who detained Mrs. A.
Pratt, Blimie street, to the extent of $2, returned that amount and paid $0.75 costs.

Fred. McInnis has been matched to Mrs. Knox of Orillia, on August 6th.
For a divorce case decided by the Tribunal. Knox gives McInnis one yard handicap.

Work on the new building for the Canadian General Electric Company, in progress rapidly. The building will require about 70,000 bricks, and will be the second largest building in the city.

Money Times: Stratford is a thoroughly enterprising city. A number of its citizens have clubbed together and bought up all the vacant land in the northern part of the city, where a large portion of its industries are located. This they propose having surveyed into building lots of one-half acre each. The lots will be sold to factory employers at five dollars each, one-half of which is to go to a fund to be administered by trustees for the purpose of inducing industries to locate in Stratford.

THE WRECK CLEARED UP

Engines Removed Yesterday and Taken to Repair Shop

The wrecked engines on the Grand Trunk have been removed and taken to the repair shops, where they will either be consigned to the metal pot or repaired. Each locomotive had a pair of trucks placed under its front while its own driving wheels supported the rear. The wreck is now all cleared away.

MR. BRAND'S ENTERPRISE

The North End Wharf to Have More Room

Mr. J. T. Brand, corner of George and Smith streets, is building a large addition to his store, which will increase the room three fold. The addition will extend 20 feet on Smith street and 30 feet on George street, and will be built of solid brick, making a handsome structure. Mr. Brand proposes enlarging his stock and branch out into general and staple dry goods, groceries, and so on, and a meat market, which will be conducted in connection with it, as at present.

We are pleased to note the success of Mr. Brand, whose enterprise and push is deserving of this reward.

THE DEMAND FOR BRICK

Home, Farm, and Warehouse Needs
This Season

Mr. Charles Curtis, the senior member of the firm of brickmakers, told The Times yesterday that there was more brick ordered for present delivery than the firm were able to supply. He said that there were few small houses going up in town, the buildings being mostly of large dimensions.

The firm are supplying 350,000 bricks to the Central Canada power house, 200,000 to the new cement near Jackson Park, 700,000 to the Canadian General Electric works, and 65,000 to the Cemetery Company for the new house for the exhumations. There are many others for smaller quantities.

MISS LEWIS EXPLAINS

Denies the Truth of the Statement Made by a Correspondent

Miss Lewis, the clever young actress, whose company is performing under canvases on the market square this evening, called on The Times to consider the statement made by a correspondent in these columns yesterday, that insinuating language had been used by the lady who sold tickets at the show on the previous night. But Miss Lewis said the lady in question emphatically stated that no insinuating words were used by them. The former stated that the company had regard to complaint of their treatment here. Large boxes had been put in the canvases and other damage had been done.

The company are putting up a good, clean show, and should have protection against such vandalism as this.

RUSSIA AND JAPAN PREPARING FOR WAR

Japanese Hurriedly Fitting Out Big Liners for the Work of Transport

RUSSIAN TROOPS ARRIVING IN VAST NUMBERS

War Now Regarded as Certain Between the Two Nations—Britain Will Take a Hand in It

London, July 27.—The Japanese Government is fitting many large liners for transport service. The three largest of these ships, the Yamato, the Yamaguchi and the Yamaguchi, are being fitted out for service in the Gulf of Persia and off Korea. Russian reinforcements were also reported to be arriving. It was reported from Harbin that two mixed brigades consisting of infantry, cavalry and engineers, were en route over the Trans-Siberian Railway, and an infantry regiment was following. The Japanese purpose of the coming of these troops was to test the transport capacity of the Siberian Railway. To further reinforce the Russian army, a company of Sappers and Miners has been organized in Russian Turkestan and ordered to Manchuria. Three Russian regiments were also reported from the Straits Settlements, en route to Port Arthur by the Russian Chinese bank, and under merchant flags. The Japanese were much excited at the news of Russian reinforcements. In the past, Russian reinforcements have been sent to Korea, but the Japanese have been unable to get them. The Japanese are now preparing for war. The Japanese are now preparing for war. The Japanese are now preparing for war.

Stocks—The MARKETS OF THE WORLD—Grain

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and the return almost sure. This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the investment will be returned to us?

An arrangement has been made with the Trust Company to guarantee to the purchaser the return of amount invested within a given number of years. To substantiate this guarantee they have to the purchaser of the stock a gold bond, which is secured by first real estate mortgages deposited with another Trust Company for the specific purpose of securing the bonds the underwriting Company issue.

Thus the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer.

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, a company of considerable size, is now offering for the extensive development of its numerous mining properties and also of its oil lands, offers a limited amount of its Treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Orizaba Creek, Colo., upon which during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done.

It is proposed to place as many of these mining properties upon a shipping and self supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of all lands in Hinsdale County, Colo., in order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $1.00 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with individual liability. This issue of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Fortunes have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profit on this kind of an investment is usually very great, especially when the stock can be secured at such a low price as this is now offered for. Now is the time to get in before an advance in the price is made.

The new railroad from Denver to Salt Lake, which is now building will be of inestimable benefit to the Company, furnishing transportation for ore and supplies, besides immediately increasing values.

THE CRISIS BETWEEN RUSSIA AND JAPAN NOW BECOMES ACUTE

Every Indication That War Is Imminent Between the Two Great Powers

England Preparing For Hostilities In the Far East

Peking, July 25.—The London Times cable says: The most recent declaration of Russia to the foreign powers repeating the time-worn assurance that it was far from her intention to place any obstruction in the development of foreign commerce in Manchuria is regarded here by the press as a mere tactical device, and the interest of the present assurance, since it is hedged around with more conditions, while throughout it is noted that Russia speaks as if Manchuria was a Russian dependency. The declaration which China assures the foreign Ministers was not communicated to the Chinese is interpreted in Peking that Russia will not permit China to make any engagement with the other powers as to Manchuria, which may embrace Russia in the future when the territory has finally become a Russian province. It is openly stated by Russians that Harbin, being purely a Russian city, although in the Klia province, which Russia undertakes to evacuate in April, in foreign hands could only be appointed with Russia's consent and the evacuation would have to be applied for in St. Petersburg, not Peking. If the United States consider the declaration satisfactory that Russia will assist in the development of foreign trade in Manchuria, they must be kept in the knowledge of the unhappy experience of the American trading company at Vladivostok and Port Arthur. During the past three weeks there has been no material change, but the air is full of rumors, and the situation seems pregnant with possibilities.

RUSSIAN REINFORCEMENTS

The attitude of the Russians since the Port Arthur conference is more confident than before. At present there is no pretence of evasion on the part of Russia. On the contrary, reinforcements of troops, and field guns and ammunition are constantly arriving. As a result of General Levin's visit to Hainan, it has been decided to station 15,000 to 20,000 troops there, to build two powerful forts, and fortify the coast and railway from Port Arthur to a point two miles above Dainy. The supply of ammunition and coal to Port Arthur is maintained. Hainan may be possible, as they have never seen such activity. Russian ships are constantly drilling and manoeuvring in gun practice. This may not be a war, but accounts for the fear common in the Far East. Russia is not the least in a position to attack other vessels. The Russian fleet of big vessels is on route to Port Arthur. Preparations to the council of war at Port Arthur there were 67 Russian warships of all classes, including 23 vessels of the fleet. The Russian fleet here, especially the battleships, is the most powerful in the world. The Russian fleet of big vessels is on route to Port Arthur. THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF

Lord Roberts inspected the Canadian troops yesterday.

Windsor, July 25.—Lord Roberts, in the course of a visit to the Canadian troops to-day, expressed great pleasure at the excellent condition in which they had met with success in the field. He afterwards inspected the Canadian troops in front of the Canadian line, and spoke of the success in every way.

STRATHCONA COMING

The Lord High Commissioner, Earl of Strathcona, is expected to arrive in London, July 25.—Lord Strathcona, who is the Governor-General of Canada, is expected to arrive in London, July 25. He is on his way to the United Kingdom to attend the coronation of the King of the Belgians.

ONTARIO TEACHERS

Superintendant Prepared by the Minister of Education.

Toronto, Ont., July 25.—Hon. Richard Harcourt has in contemplation a scheme for establishing a superintendency fund for the Province of Ontario, for teachers who are underpaid. The low wages given many of the teachers in the province are notorious, and Mr. Harcourt proposes to overcome this difficulty by retaining a percentage of their salary for a superintendency fund, and it is understood the Government may give a grant to help out the fund.

A HORRIBLE ACT

An Egyptian Woman At Her Little Child's Feet.

Paris, July 25.—A case of cannibalism reported from Egypt. A woman came to Cairo with a woman at her feet. She was found playing in the street and eating them. At first the officials paid no attention, thinking the story beyond belief, but eventually in response to numerous complaints, a secret police officer was sent, who caught the woman in the act and arrested her. It is said that a number of children had disappeared from the vicinity, and the woman is accused of eating them.

THE LABOR AGITATOR

Workers Bombard Strike Agitators With Flat Irons.

New York, July 16.—More strikes of East side tailors are being arranged for, to take effect within the next ten days. Several thousand workers have already quit.

The New York City Police have had a hard time in ordering out workers in some quarters. They report having been met with a shower of flat iron and other weapons, and were compelled to beat a hurried retreat.

WAR IN BULGARIA

Said to Exist.

Belgrade, July 25.—Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria, accompanied by his children, passed through this city at 10 o'clock yesterday on his way to Vienna.

SAID TO BE UNFOUNDED.

Vienna, June 25.—The reports that a revolution had broken out in Bulgaria, and that Prince Ferdinand had fled, are said to be unfounded. It is explained that July 25 is the anniversary of the death of Prince Ferdinand's father, and that the immediate object of his journey is to visit his grave at Ljuban, where is Prince Ferdinand's ancestral tomb.

CARNEGIE ATTACKS CANADA

He Asserts That United States Will Benefit.

London, July 25.—Andrew Carnegie returns to the Times today his anti-Canadian campaign, and tries to frighten Englishmen by asserting that the Americans will resist the discrimination against Canada. He says: "I have demanded equality of treatment with Great Britain and the Continent, and having won it while a mere stripling in 1880, it is likely the American Republic will today fail to maintain an equality if attacked."

He further says with a curious ignorance of Canadian geography and history: "The United States makes financial treaties with Canada and Nova Scotia upon which the Royal veto is an absolute as upon British legislation. Naturally the American Republic is in harmony with Germany's view."

Mr. Carnegie repeats the New York Sun's claim that if the United States is made hostile Canada will be forced to seek refuge in the arms of Great Britain.

He further says that a word from President Roosevelt would cancel the privilege now generously extended to Canada of reaching the United States ports when her own ports are closed.

Canada shipped twenty-eight and a half million bushels of grain through the American ports in 1902. President Roosevelt would in the last year of his term have given us a great heritage, and we have ever welcoming buyers will soon give up the privilege that will allow the people of our people and make it unnecessary for our young men to seek employment in the United States.

When you wish to come back to your city and country you will find the latch string on the outside, and a more than hearty welcome.

If in your visit you see any fair girl who is willing to say as Rebecca said to Isaac—"I will go," then take her, and God bless you.

Again we tell you of our gladness for your visit and we bid you welcome in the heart language of a generous people.

"Ood Millie Faltie."

NOTES

The 5th Band rendered an excellent performance of music, which was greatly enjoyed.

Master G. E. Wilson and R. M. Bay took photographs of the Old Boys.

The Band accompanied the Old Boys to the station at 7.30.

THE EXCITEMENT IN THE CITY WAS INTENSE

Panama, Colombia, July 27.—Not since the days of the last revolution, when an attack upon the city by the Liberals was feared, has there been such a panic in Panama as occurred Saturday night. Shortly after 9 o'clock the office of El Lazo, the organ of the Liberal party, on the urban side, was visited by some officers of the general staff of the army, who destroyed yesterday's edition of the paper. One of the directors was slightly wounded but managed to escape. As the office of the newspaper is situated in a very populous district the news spread rapidly. In the Santa Ana neighborhood, where most of the Liberals reside, sentiment rose to a high pitch, but no action was taken.

The next event came like a bomb-shell. A company of soldiers, apparently under the orders of General Vasquez Cohen, commander of the national forces, surrounded the home of Governor Horta, but the Governor and his wife, who is an American, having been warned, few minutes before the arrival of the troops, succeeded in escaping. General Horta, commander of the battalion of Colombia, when he learned the El Lazo incident, repaired to headquarters, where he found General Cohen, and, according to current reports, the latter ordered General Horta to remain in quarters.

Exactly what has taken place is unknown. It is said that General Cohen, who is a very serious man, was trying to argue with the Governor as to the legitimacy of his action.

An attempt is also said to have been made to arrest General Cohen, secretary of Finance, but he refused to accompany the officer who went to his home to arrest him, and when the officer returned with soldiers General Cohen had departed. Gov. Meza spent last night at the British Consulate.

United States Consul General Meza made several unsuccessful attempts to go to the Governor's house with Gen. Cohen, who is a brother to the Minister of War. It is reported that Gen. Cohen offered the Governor to differ with him, but the Governor refused to accept, and he himself will assume civil command.

As this dispatch is being sent it is learned that Dr. Arjona and Judge Rivera have been arrested at their homes, and the Chief of Police remains on duty.

There was little excitement on the street to-day. The Colombian National Guard is in a body at the station, but the conditions of affairs are very serious. Governor Meza is virtually a prisoner.

There was little excitement on the street to-day. The Colombian National Guard is in a body at the station, but the conditions of affairs are very serious. Governor Meza is virtually a prisoner.

THE EXCITEMENT IN THE CITY WAS INTENSE

Panama, Colombia, July 27.—Not since the days of the last revolution, when an attack upon the city by the Liberals was feared, has there been such a panic in Panama as occurred Saturday night. Shortly after 9 o'clock the office of El Lazo, the organ of the Liberal party, on the urban side, was visited by some officers of the general staff of the army, who destroyed yesterday's edition of the paper. One of the directors was slightly wounded but managed to escape. As the office of the newspaper is situated in a very populous district the news spread rapidly. In the Santa Ana neighborhood, where most of the Liberals reside, sentiment rose to a high pitch, but no action was taken.

The next event came like a bomb-shell. A company of soldiers, apparently under the orders of General Vasquez Cohen, commander of the national forces, surrounded the home of Governor Horta, but the Governor and his wife, who is an American, having been warned, few minutes before the arrival of the troops, succeeded in escaping. General Horta, commander of the battalion of Colombia, when he learned the El Lazo incident, repaired to headquarters, where he found General Cohen, and, according to current reports, the latter ordered General Horta to remain in quarters.

Exactly what has taken place is unknown. It is said that General Cohen, who is a very serious man, was trying to argue with the Governor as to the legitimacy of his action.

An attempt is also said to have been made to arrest General Cohen, secretary of Finance, but he refused to accompany the officer who went to his home to arrest him, and when the officer returned with soldiers General Cohen had departed. Gov. Meza spent last night at the British Consulate.

United States Consul General Meza made several unsuccessful attempts to go to the Governor's house with Gen. Cohen, who is a brother to the Minister of War. It is reported that Gen. Cohen offered the Governor to differ with him, but the Governor refused to accept, and he himself will assume civil command.

As this dispatch is being sent it is learned that Dr. Arjona and Judge Rivera have been arrested at their homes, and the Chief of Police remains on duty.

See Dangers Ahead in a Precipitate Settlement of the Canada-
German Controversy

London, July 25.—The Bureau of the Times, in an article, says that steps have been taken to facilitate the arrangement with Canada. The Times says Germany did not invite the British Government to endeavor to effect a settlement, but only left it to the British Government to do so. The Times correspondent correctly warns against a precipitate settlement of the Canadian controversy, seeing in it a distinct danger of Germany using such a settlement to frustrate progress in the commercial federation of the British Empire. The Times publishes two columns from a Canadian newspaper, in which the Canadian Government is said to be in a position to offer a settlement, but only left it to the British Government to do so. is sold at 15 CENTS PER SHARE, PAR VALUE, $1.00.

Full Paid, Non-Assessable, King No. 100,000 Shares Issued.

READ THIS! This Company offers one of the safest and best investment opportunities to its prospective investors in the famous Hammer district, Baker Co., Oregon, one of the best neighbors such mines as the Roseman, Reddy, Erie, B. B. Park, Elsie, Holmes, and Crocker Oregon, which are producing over $100,000 to $150,000 each per month. Take great care for which the under-mentioned is being sold at a most promising time, as it has produced a mine at the same stage of development.

The Company has three full claims, with two large veins. The eastern foot and the base (west) vein (called the surface, having some good veins) are striking fine milling.

The Company owns the property outright, being free from all debt and incumbrance and is eager to acquire the necessary mining machinery and to continue development work. Heated number one shares will be sold for a short time only at the certain per share, as announced above.

Investors who wish to place money in large or small amounts can do so better than in any other such proposition. All information cheerfully furnished, and all cheques payable

CONRADES

...By...
MARTHA MCULLOCH-WILLIAMS

Copyright, 1930, by T. C. McClure

Anice made a face at her image in the glass, saying as she shook a dainty fist at it: "You idiot! Why don't you make yourself look as ugly as you feel!"

"I think, my dear," Aunt Margaret said, sticking her head through the open door behind, "it is because vanity is a trifle stronger with you than apprehension. You think you don't need to marry Charley Cliffe. I know you don't want him to find you a right."

"THAT'S NOT TRUE, being so vain, with one's whole future in the balance!" Anice said, trying hard to be tearful. Aunt Margaret only laughed. After a little she said with twinkling eyes: "I have always thought vanity was among the heaven implanted instincts which help to save men from themselves. Now I am sure of it."

"What do you mean?" Anice cried. "Surely you do not even think I am shamming!" Again Miss Gordon laughed and said: "Not consciously, my dear. The truth is I think you repeat the fact that you have no choice in this made to order march."

"Well, wouldn't that gaily any girl with the spirit of a mouse?" Anice demanded. Miss Gordon looked thoughtful. "I don't know, dear, can't think I am shamming!" Again Miss Gordon laughed and said: "Not consciously, my dear. The truth is I think you repeat the fact that you have no choice in this made to order march."

"So if I say 'No' he gets the whole portrait, whereas he may 'relinquish' it and keep two-thirds of it." Anice said. "Aunt, I have the greatest mind to stain my face and dye my hair red and wear a grass green gown and a yellow sash!"

"A rainbow would become you ever so much better," some one said, coming through the door—some one tall and slim, with merry eyes and firm, muscular hands. He went straight up to Anice and kissed her upon both cheeks, saying: "Hiars and, gosh!"

"What a beauty you have turned out to be! Why didn't I come straight to you? Nan, dear, I'm in the confessional. I've gone and courted another girl without ever giving you a chance!"

"Oh, how jolly!" Anice cried. "With all that nonsense out of the way I am really glad to see you. I remember you as a real nice boy ever so many years back."

"I think you are a tartar, and I know you were ugly," Cliffe said, his eyes twinkling. "That's why I made mine to be the other one. What have you done to yourself? The girl I left behind me was milow and scrawny and couldn't cryed, with no hair to speak of, and some like this!"

"And just up from six weeks of fever," Anice interrupted, shaking a mop

Max O'Rell's Opinion of Fear Po-

some years ago," said a man from the city to a Detroit Journal contributor. "We find it a little long on him. We had noticed how gracefully he could unite a caustic criticism with a comment, a faculty, that enabled him say the sharpest things without offending the people he was criticizing. We were going to put the faculty to a test."

"We had him lunch with us, and there were at the table besides himself an Englishman, a Scotchman, an Irishman and a French-Canadian. We got our guest off his guard we demanded an honest opinion of the different races we represented. As the opinion had to be given in the presence of all four, the situation for him was rather delicate one. But it never seemed to trouble him, and he gave his opinion without a moment's hesitation."

"The Scotchman," he said, and he clinched his right hand tightly and pretended to try to force it open with his left. The Englishman—and he went through the same performance opening the hand at the end after another apparent struggle. The Irishman—and he held out his hand wide open with the palm upward. The Frenchman—and he made a motion with both hands as if he were emptying them on the table."

"There was not a word of explanation, but we all understood thoroughly and had a hearty laugh. Max O'Rell had maintained his reputation."

A Lincoln Joke.

One of Lincoln's jokes in the early days of his administration says:

"He walked into the corridor with us, and, as he bade us goodbye, he thanked— for what he had told him he again brightened up for a moment and asked him in an abrupt kind of way, laying his hand as he spoke with a queer but not uncivil familiarity on his shoulder, 'You have such a thing as a postmaster in your pocket, have you?'"

"—stared at him in astonishment and I thought a little in alarm, as if he suspected a sudden attack of insanity. Then Mr. Lincoln went on: 'You see, it seems to be kind of unnatural that you shouldn't have at least a postmaster in your pocket. I have seen some of the days past has had foreign ministers and collectors and all kinds, and I thought you couldn't have got to here without having at least a postmaster get into your pocket.'—The Star, Abraham Lincoln."

Stomach's Strength of Mushrooms.

A curious instance of the wonderful power of growing vegetation to absorb and retain the gases and vapors evolved in the Gardener's Magazine is given. This force seems all the more remarkable when exerted by light and unsubstantial mushrooms, but does not appear so extraordinary when caused by the expansion of a hard wood tree. Some half hardy annuals were sown in a frame just cleared of a winter crop in the middle of the winter, and the plants began to grow in the middle of the winter.

Some days afterward signs of cracking were observed in the brickwork, and gradually a block weighing in the neighborhood one and one-half hundred weight was pushed out of position. After cutting out several bricks a mass of mushrooms was found 3 pounds in weight, and growing in the cracks of the wall. The mycelium was found freely in the mortar and on the inside face of the bricks.

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay.

It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash?

A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurons, the Baldwins, the Clark and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at from $1.00 per value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $8,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1880 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $5,000.

$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $482.

$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $3,600.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend-paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Mallory, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

Now does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining?—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore sells only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours. The Alaska Treaswell ore sells $2.35 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par. No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management. Respectfully submitted.

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, underlying of 50 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS

Vast ledges of ore running from $5.00 to $200.00 per ton. Five shipments of ore to St. Paul Smelter gave returns of $700.00 to $1,000.00 per ton. This is not a five per cent. a month advance, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans. No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLARS FOR DOLLARS for everything you get. You can't make any money on your JUDGEMENT and your FOREKNOWLEDGE. It is the fore-sight that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your fore-sight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you bought the Stock at par. The new Mining Plant is being built up in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the Stock at present price. It will run to 50 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have personally visited the mines and returned full of confidence. The mines are tapping out much richer than expected.

A Doubtful Dowry That Was Lost at Last.

boy, he said nothing would induce him to put his hands into his father-in-law's pocket before he had been married a month, and that he had no intention of doing so. Janet, however, was not to be deterred. She had a good little girl to let him go, wasn't she? I wonder if you would have been as self-denying if you had been in my place, Miss Trot?

There was a horrible minute's silence; then Peggy broke in with a rather trenchant remark in her voice.

"But I—suppose your sacrifice will be amply recompensed, if Phil finds copper on this land!"

"Oh, then he and I can start a mansion in Belgrave next year and give you all a London season! We shall be just first cousins to millionaires, aunt Peggy!"

Chapter IV.

When I drew up my blind the next morning, the first object that met my view was Trot and Phil's wife walking round the garden arm-in-arm, making a very pretty picture in their light cotton dress among the blooming flowers. And, when they came in to breakfast, they appeared to be already on terms of an intimate intimacy and to have exchanged many confidences.

Emmeline's greeting of us was again a mixture of timidity and offensiveness; we found very disarming, and we were not inclined in the least to complain of her "grin" when she praised the old place we all loved so well—when she declared that it was her ideal, too far true, flower for flower, of an English home-stead, and that the freshness of our morning air was a tonic strong enough to keep one young and blooming for ever.

"Why, in a few weeks more, auntie, I shouldn't wonder if it improved your poor, pretty, sun-browned skin and made it almost as clear and bright as your own!"

Her complexion was perfect, a mixture of rose and lilac, and I told her so, quite simply; at which she opened her blue eyes questioning, and, with a pleased little laugh, took a peep into a mirror opposite.

"Is it really, aunt Nettie? I didn't know! It must have been the sun voyage, then, for I was a perfect negress when I left Australia! How pleased Phil will be—he admires fair women, as I know! And, oh dear auntie, I want you all to take me in training from this very day and try to turn me out a nice, well-behaved, English girl before my dear boy arrives. I want you to tell me if I am—when I say—or do things I oughtn't to, correct my pronunciation—which is shockingly Colonial, I know—and make me as like—like your Trot as possible; for you must know, Miss Trot—suddenly stopping her arm round the girl's waist and looking at her with a cunning grin—"that once upon a time ago, long ago—I used to be quite jealous of you, my dear? Phil had so many of your pictures about his room and used to talk so much of you. And one day—wait till you hear what a little guess I was—one day I piled up my hair on the top of my head—just as you wear it—and it didn't suit me a bit, you know, for, when I took Phil in his bedroom, he pulled it all down again with his poor bad arm, and said I must always cover it about my face and shoulders in this childish fashion, which I am sure, Trot, when you are going—taking that trip up to the north?"—for since an attack of rheumatism in the spring, Janet always had her breakfast in bed. "Oh, please let me help you! It is too heavy for you!—Don't you see, auntie, how I am stronger than you?"

"My arms are quite strong," Trot answered, relinquishing her burden. "I have carried this for the past three months without accident, but I think it's your turn now Emmeline! I resign my place with pleasure to you!"

"And afterward you will let me show you my poor frocks, won't you, Trot? And tell me what I ought to wear? Phil said you had such good taste and advised me to be entirely guided by you in the matter of dress!"

"Phil has entirely too good an opinion of me, Emmeline," poor Trot answered, with a laugh that was a little shrill. "I will do my best to deserve his estimation, however!"

That afternoon chance led to our weekly afternoon at home; and, as the news of Emmeline's arrival had already spread in the neighborhood, there was quite a large gathering in the drawing-room, when, at about four o'clock, Janet, who had gone out after lunch to see to the transfer of Phil's property, entered, in a condition of complacent exultation, leaning on the arm of her blushing young daughter-in-law.

A faint murmur of approbation went round, and the girl acknowledged it by a deeper blush and a swift drooping of her eyes; but, after a few minutes, she seemed, without the slightest apparent effort, to shake off the burden of her pretty consciousness and to become her own chatty impulsive self again, moving from group to group with smiling ease and well-bred self-possession. And, when Trot, after a hot game at tennis, re-entered to preside as usual at the tea-table, she found the place already most efficiently filled, Emmeline having been established in it by Janet's cordial introduction. Then, to make matters worse, Emmeline, seeing, I suppose, the surprise on the other girl's face, jumped up at once and called out in her clear drawing-room voice:

"Oh, Trot, I—I have taken your place, dear; but I'm so glad you have come, for I'm making such a muddle of everything—such a muddle!"

Trot, dropping into an armchair near the door, answered gaily:

"As you have taken my place Emmeline, you certainly will keep it for the rest of the afternoon at least. I'm just too done up to walk across the room. You must refresh me here, my dear, and at once, please!"

74 Producing Oil Wells.

One New Well Each Week.

8th Regular Quarterly Dividend

Was paid on June 2nd which makes a record that can be equalled by few if any oil companies. The National has made records ever since its stock was first placed on the market—records that make its stock worth more than any other stock now on the market and that enhance the value of the outstanding stock so that stockholders derive the benefit.

All Dividends are Paid Upon the Basis of the Selling Price of the Stock—Thus Making Each Succeeding Dividend Larger than Its Predecessor.

Can you pick out any other company which is doing this? Every possible safeguard is thrown about this stock as an investment, in order that it may be one of the very safest investments on the market.

Our Books are Open to the Closest Inspection of any Investor or Stockholder.

THE BEST OPPORTUNITY

All Officers and Directors are Bonded in the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company.

for securing a reliable investment is now yours. You cannot make a mistake in the National Oil Co. stock, as every possible safeguard has been placed about it to insure investors. No other company protects its stockholders as we protect ours. The price has just been advanced to fifty cents which will give all who have bought an additional dividend, as we pay dividends upon the basis of the selling price of stock.

You can secure this stock now for 50 cents per share, but only 50,000 shares will be sold at this price.

Buy National at once and secure a good investment. Write for information and letters from investors who have carefully investigated our properties and books. Address all orders to

To Canadian Investors

THE GREATEST MINING PROPOSITION EVER OFFERED.

I am pleased to state that I have completed arrangements with the Consolidated Nevada Mining Company for the sale of a block of their treasury stock in Canada. It is a proposition I can honestly recommend, and has unlimited possibilities. The transaction possibilities a WEDNESDAY and THURSDAY is becoming plain every day to the entire country. The spring rush into these NEVADA mining camps will equal or exceed that into Oregon, Utah, Arizona or Idaho. The strikes recently reported from Washoe and Esmeralda have created the greatest excitement and the rush will come in on.

Everyone is waiting NEVADA mining stocks and prices are rapidly advancing. Now offer better opportunities for profits than do the others.

The Consolidated Nevada Mining Company

Properties in the heart of the Washoe district. High grade ore and lots of it. We are certain to get the NEVADA VEIN IN THE DEERLEIGH very soon; then we'll all get.

Stocks—The MARKETS OF THE WORLD—Grain

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and the return absolute safety is guaranteed, and yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering same Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

An arrangement has been made with the Trust Company to guarantee to the purchaser the return of amount invested within a given number of years. To substantiate this guarantee they have to the purchaser of the stock a gold bond, which is secured by first real estate mortgage deposited with another Trust Company for the specific purpose of securing the bonds the underwriting Company issues.

Thus the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain why we have to offer.

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado, Springs, among other things, to secure funds for the extensive development of its numerous mining properties and also of its oil lands, offers a limited amount of its Treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Cripple Creek, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done. It is proposed to place as many of these mining properties upon a slipping and self-supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of oil lands in Huerfano County, Colo., in order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share. The value of which is $100 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with no individual liability. This issue of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Fortunes have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are usually very great, especially when the stock can be secured at such a low price as this is now offered for. Now is the time to get in before an advance in the price is made.

The new railroad from Denver to Salt Lake, which is now building will be of considerable benefit to the Company, furnishing transportation for ore and supplies, besides immediately increasing values.

STOCK MARKETS

The following report was received by M. J. Cummings & Co., 1656 Simcoe street, by direct private wire:

New York, July 28.—There is a more cheerful sentiment in the stock exchange today and not a few investors look for further improvement. However, no further betterment is looked for, inasmuch as there are many loose ends still to be gathered up, and it will be some time before the big interests will accept support to the market. There is less strength on the part of the speculators, however, and they are inclined to cover freely, fearing that the general decline has been carried far enough to discount all the intimation at hand. The market called better attention now, and railway earnings and the like are being freely commented upon. The market continues to attract a great deal of attention, and it is expected that there will be a heavy contraction of loan and securities this week. The Sub-Treasury operations thus far, and the announcement is made that within a few days $1,500,000 will arrive at San Francisco from Australia. This should have a good effect on sentiment. There is a good situation is quite favorable in that the private cables continue optimistic and the foreign element still disposed to buy stocks on recessions. Jackey Field says he has got 60,000 shares of various stocks which he is holding for the bond yield. Union Pacific investors are credited with having bought a great deal of Southern Pacific stock during the past few days.

Chicago, Ill., July 28.—A firm seems to pervade the atmosphere in the wheat pit, shorts are disposed to cover for no other reason apparently than for the fact that conditions have been unfavorable for them by the present crop of the wheat. The crop outlook is generally unchanged from a week ago. The movement is only moderate compared with last year, but the cash demand is rather small. The quality of the new winter wheat shows very good. The corn market is more bullish on the growing belief that the crop prospect has deteriorated since the publication of the government figures early this month. The real cause of the decreasing stocks are light, though the cash position is without special feature, the demand being moderate and the offerings ample. The export movement is somewhat sluggish, foreign buyers expected to buy on any reduction in price.

New York, July 28.—It will be strange if something more than a substantial rally be not seen in many stocks. The chance, or rather, the opportunity, of a lifetime, and the opportunity to buy Southern Pacific and Union Pacific, both of these stocks, will recur shortly. Keep long of these stocks, and buy some heading. The standard stocks, B. P. S. N.Y.O. L. & N. and Penna., will go higher. Speculation—North American, B. & O. and General Electric are cheap.

Chicago, July 28.—There is some talk that certain big leaders in the corn pit under the leadership of Armour are planning a bull campaign to be run in the December option.

New York, July 28.—The general feeling in the stock exchange was inclined toward improvement today. There was a general feeling of optimism, and many investors were looking for a further improvement. The market was generally unchanged from a week ago. The movement is only moderate compared with last year, but the cash demand is rather small. The quality of the new winter wheat shows very good. The corn market is more bullish on the growing belief that the crop prospect has deteriorated since the publication of the government figures early this month. The real cause of the decreasing stocks are light, though the cash position is without special feature, the demand being moderate and the offerings ample. The export movement is somewhat sluggish, foreign buyers expected to buy on any reduction in price.

A HORRIBLE ACT

An Egyptian Woman Attacked Her Little Child
Paris, July 28.—A case of child abuse, reported from Cairo, that a woman at Kahr-Said made a practice of picking up children when they found playing in the street and eating them. At first the officials paid no attention, thinking the story beyond belief, but eventually in response to numerous complaints a secret police officer was sent, who caught the woman in the act and arrested her. It is said that a number of children had disappeared from the vicinity, and the woman is accused of eating them.

Save Enough.

"John" and a brightened smile in the middle of the night, "What's the matter moving downstairs, I'm sure!" "Oh, it's nothing but the gas meter going crazy," he said with a sigh of relief. —McClure's.

near Esrey City, Precinct 6, Socorro County, New Mexico.

MODERN SHELTER JUST COMPLETED WITHIN A HALF-MILE OF PROPERTY
OVER $1,000,000 ALREADY INVESTED.

Over one million dollars have been invested within a short radius surrounding on all sides the property of this company by Boston, New Haven and New York capitalists. All this has been invested quietly within the last two years, without any appeal to the public. Only one of these companies interested has put its stock on the market recently, and that at 60 cents on the dollar.

NOT A PROSPECT, BUT A WELL-DEVELOPED MINING PROPERTY. We have shown by actual mining that we have the Well-Warranted Obfuscation.

"If nothing prevents, I expect they'll decide to take me to the asylum, along about the last of the week," persisted the proprietor of the corner grocery at Allegan, addressing the baker-powder drummer, for whom he had baked something of a liking.

"You see, I went over into the adjoining state, for a couple of weeks, to help my half-sister Georgiana's second husband—who got considerably pulled to pieces by the picker in the twin-mill to which he was attaching a labor-saving improvement that he had invented—and to help settle up the loose ends of his affairs; and I got my niece, Deyanora Mayne Moody—who has been away to boarding-school, and is cultured and educated, and all such as that—keep the books here for me during my absence."

"Well, in the first place, she used this fashionable handwriting that looks like a string of fast-trotting with three-quarters of their feet knotted out, and then she worked on the pages of my account-books in the up-to-date manner in which educated girls turn the pages when they write letters—the fourth page first, then the second, next the first, and lastly the third. Then, to fill my cup of befuddlement full, she used her refined ideas on the spelling of a good many of the names, and put Smith as 'Smythe'; La Brie as 'Laurel'; Browne; Perry Elder as 'Perrythry'; and Jim Jones as 'Jaymes Joehannes'; and to spill considerable of it over into the margin, as it were, when she didn't happen to have a better name, she just jotted down his most prominent peculiarity, and let it go at that. Thus, we have a ghyrde-stone charged to a phlegmatic man whose hair had been cut in the talkative old lady with a wart right here; a plug of tobacco to a lame man, and so forth; together with several items against the professor, the dean, and the also-looking stranger who said he'd be around to pay the last of next week. Besides all this, she scented the whole store with halitopoe, made eyes at the clerk till he doesn't know yet whether he's a fool or on home-back, and scornfully declined to have any axle-grease, yellow calico, or hog-cholera medicine sold at all."

"My eyesight ain't what it used to be; that little clerk had indignation, anyhow. There are in the surrounding region about sixty different sorts of professors; at least thirty dozens so close-fisted that they are not in the least likely to pay anything they don't have to; goodness knows how many of the looking strangers; folks that patronize sheep-shears; lame men, and worthy old ladies with warts; and any self-respecting Jones would fight me for calling him 'Joehannes.' In consequence of which, when I look at the books one way, I don't know but I've become a millionaire in two short weeks, and when I look at them the other way, I'm dead sure I am going over the last edge of my pocketbook. Day before yesterday some like-to-morrow to me, to-day is last Friday, and right now is week after next. I am continually putting things in my mouth, mistaking it for my pocket; and, at times, I wake up in the night with the impression that I am my own stepson."

"All in all, I can't see anything but the asylum ahead of me. If they do the square thing by me, they'll put me in cell 13, and give me a collection of foreign postage stamps to sort and paste in a book. Come around and see me; I don't think I'll be dangerous, and I'm likely to be highly intelligent."—Tom R. Morgan in "Smart Set."

DO YOU WALK STRAIGHT?

Few People Do, Says a Fault-Finder Who Notices Things.

"Have you ever noticed how few people walk straight?" said the man who finds fault. "I am not speaking in a spiritual sense, neither do I refer to their gait, which is certainly bad enough, but to the crookedness of their path. A straight road is not at all times possible, I admit, and when the streets are most crowded a fellow is excusable for darting around any old way, but when given a clear sidewalk I can't for the life of me see why he cannot walk straight."

"Watch any man—and women are just as bad—who starts out from home at an hour when other people in the neighborhood are busy on their own doorsteps and give him a clean sweep. Since there are no obstructions in the way, there is no reason on earth why he should not proceed in a straight line to the nearest corner, but instead of proceeding that, undulating course he zigzags most conspicuously. Now he is particularly near the curb, now brushing against the area railing, while occasionally he even things up by taking a few steps in the middle of the pavement. The people who thus waver in their gait are perfectly sober and would be surprised if anybody should show them a diagram of their tracks. Naturally, only their voices and taking appreciably increases the distance traveled, which is another reason why people in a hurry should learn to walk straight."

Narrow Escape of Gold Seekers.

A small company of Alaskan gold seekers were walking across one of the great ice fields in that winter-bound country when one of them noticed a difference in the color of the ice a few yards before them. Almost as he spoke, however, the treacherous coating of this ice across a jagged crevasse gave way, and with an awful cry the two foremost men went down with the crumbling glittering surface. A third man would have followed, but his gun lodged crosswise in the crevice and saved him. The other two had sunk out of sight, only their voices and taking their rescuers. Blankets were torn into strips and all the available rope made as well to reach the unfortunate prisoners, to whom hatchets also had to be lowered to hack their way out, as tightly had they been jammed in between the ice boulders by their fall of fifty feet or more. When they reached the surface again they were in a fainting condition, and it was many days before they recovered from the effects of the time spent in that icy tomb.

How a Statue Grew.

Very warlike in the aspect of a singular equestrian statue in Belgium, yet there is no cause for alarm since it is nothing but a tree. Some ten years ago a policeman retired from the force and went to live near Charleroi. Being an amateur horticulturist, he busied himself a good deal with trees and flowers, and one day as he was trimming a hawthorn in his garden it occurred to him that it would be a novel idea to train it in such a manner that it would eventually assume the figure of a cavalry officer. At once he went to work, and after ten years' labor he succeeded in transforming the tree into a perfect picture of a mounted soldier. The tree is known in the neighborhood as "General Hawthorn," and hardly a day passes that strangers do not come from a considerable distance in order to view this wonderful example of horticultural art.

Sherris Sack.

The Sherris sack, a term applied to wine in common. "Sherris sack," a term used by Falstaff in "Henry IV," is a name still well known in Spain, from which the wine comes. The epithet sack, or dry—the "sack" of old English authors and the "sec" of French writers—is used in contradistinction to the sweet malvades and muscades which are made of the same grapes. Wine of this sort, it is said, was introduced into England about the time of Henry VII., whose close alliance with Ferdinand and Isabella was cemented by the marriage of his son with their daughter. It became still more popular in England under Queen Elizabeth, when Essex and those who sailed with him pillaged Cadix in 1595 and brought home the fashion of drinking sherris sack.

Two Sunsets For Pay.

There is only one place in the world where the sun sets twice daily, and that is at Leek, in Staffordshire, England. The reason of this is that a jagged mountain is situated to the west of the town, and in the evening the sun sets behind it and darkness comes on. Then the first sunset occurs, the gas lamps are lit, and apparently night has set in. But it has not, for in the space of an hour or so the sun reappears again through the opening at the side of the mountain, and daylight again appears. Artificial lights are extinguished and daylight again prevails until the sun descends below the opening and the second sunset occurs and night comes to stay.

Used to It.

Manager—That young woman whom I placed at this counter a year ago already knows more about the business than you do, and I find that I shall have to put her at the head of the department, though I fear it will be rather unpleasant for you to be under her orders.

Clerk—Oh, no; I am getting used to that. We were married six months ago.

A Weakness Overcome.

Floxy—What a naughty air Alice had! She used to be so bashful.
Majesty—Yes. She's finally persuaded of herself that she's somebody—no change.

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay. It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash? A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any (the) industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurons, the Baldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. Today he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at $1.00 per value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

There are many persons who assert that there is nothing in it for the average investor and that it does not pay to invest small sums in stock. Let such persons ask themselves what returns they can hope to get through banks or real estate speculations for sums of under $100.00, and then consider the following:—

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $8.700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1880 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $6,682.

$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend-paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Mallory, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $90, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

[Nor does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining.—The Home State in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore mills only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours.

The Alaska Treadwell ore mills $2.38 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par.

No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and has not been managed.

Respectfully submitted,

HIDALGO MINING COMPANY DOUGLAS, ARIZONA.

OFFICERS.—S. F. MEGUIRE, President; J. E. SUITS, Vice-President; R. R. FINTLE, Secretary; C. O. KILLIS, Treasurer.

The Oro Rico Mining Syndicate

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 30 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.

Vast ledges of ore are running from $100 to $200.00 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $7.50 to $10.00 per ton. This is not a five per cent. return, it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than savings bank or mortgage loans. No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLARS FOR DOLLARS for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGEMENT and your FORTUNE. It is the first night that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your five per cent. you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now being put in place and gold bottom will soon be begun out. At the first run you can't get the stock at present price. It will soon be 50 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mines and returned full of enthusiasm. The mines are turning out much richer than expected.

I can offer the Stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO-DAY—tomorrow it may be too late. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 75% per month.

JANET'S DIAMONDS

A Doubtful Dowry That Was Lost at Last.

BY F. J. SMITH.

"Janet, the daughter of the late Mr. Smith, was a beautiful girl, and her father had been very rich."

"I know, of course. But didn't you see that the boat was reported in last night's mail news? Oh, aunt Nettie, it will be my first letter—my first since we parted! And you could not expect me, you heart-whole little wretch, to put a ball over the net in such circumstances!"

"That was your own idea, Janet!"

The young wife spent the rest of the morning at a lobby window that commanded a good view of the high-road along which the prison came, and about the time for his arrival I heard her light footsteps patter down the stairs, saw her fly across the lawn, and then return to her room to enjoy the treasure later undisturbed.

When she appeared at luncheon-time her cheeks were flushed, her eyes wet though sparkling with delight, as she laid before us a vignette photograph of Phil, taken a few hours after she had left him.

"What do you think of it?" she asked. "Do you think it is like him? Do you think he has changed much—that he has grown old-looking?"

"I thought he had changed much, and told her so. His face looked worn and thin, and in the sunken eyes there was an expression of suffering and shame—faded pleading that touched me in spite of myself."

"You forget how ill—how very ill—he was," the girl urged; "you don't make allowances for his fever. And then—then you couldn't expect him to look well and smiling half an hour after he had left me! Oh, you couldn't expect that! Think, you haven't looked at him yet. Look, dear—look! Be kinder than the others; don't tell me he has changed so much—appears to me! Oh, don't, dear friend!"

"I took up the little picture, and, in spite of the wonderful outburst she had over herself, I saw a shade of pain cross her features as she glanced at the faded face of her faithful lover."

"N—no, dear, no. Making allowances for climate and hard work, I don't think that there is so much change in his appearance," she replied hesitatingly. "Besides, the printing of the photo is so bad. Where was it taken—Melbourne, you say?"

"She turned it over, and the following appeal in Phil's bold straggling hand met her eyes—"

"When my darling sees this, she will pity me and write at once, I know."

The card dropped from her hand, and Emmeline snatched it up and pressed it to her lips passionately.

"Oh, why did I leave you, my love?" she murmured; and then an uncomfortable silence followed, broken only by Janet's tearful sobbing.

"Do you want to read his letter, my dear?" Emmeline asked, in a tone that seemed to her almost "I—I will show it, if you like; but be only meant to be read—only for me. You don't want to read it? You would rather I told you the news? And you, dear mother, too! Oh, thank you, thank you all! (She gasped) you go to get that! That I will tell you everything. And he sends messages for you all; he forgets no one. But one message I don't understand. He sends his love to 'Whit-Monday' and desires him to be told that he's bringing him home a beautiful collar. Who is 'Whit-Monday'?"

"Only a little dog that died a month ago," Peggy answered, her foolish eyes filling with tears; for "Whit-Monday" was a bright little terrier, Peggy's first present to Janet on their engagement, and christened by him after the lucky day on which he had declared his love and been accepted."

For the rest of the afternoon we saw no more of Emmeline, as she remained locked up in her room, poring over her letter and adding elaborate postscripts to the one she was going to send out the next morning.

However, the vague gloom of the day was somewhat dispelled at late post hour by an invitation for Janet and her daughter-in-law to a big dinner-party at Lord Somerton's that day week, for which Janet announced her intention of ordering the next morning at Madame Devaux's a ruby velvet costume; and this tremendous topic, together with the trust in store for Emmeline of seeing the family diamonds, absorbed all other subjects of conversation for the night.

The second week of Emmeline's isolation went by quite so smoothly as the first. The mail arrived two days earlier than was expected, and, as Emmeline had received an intimation of the happy fact through the evening paper, she was at the gate to meet the postman, who brought her another voluminous bag—more cheerful and hopeful than the first—and Janet's new frock, under her dear daughter's supervision, promised to be a tremendous success.

The afternoon of the eventful day on which the dress was to be worn, as Janet was seated at the window, waiting for Shelton's fly to come and take her to fetch the diamonds from the bank as usual, Trot came running in from the lawn with one of those detestable orange envelopes in her trembling hand.

"Hush!" she cried excitedly. "Don't let her hear; it is a telegram from—from Australia! Oh, aunt Peggy, couldn't somebody go to open it before she—Ough!—Ough!"

"To whom is it addressed—to herself?"

"No; it is addressed merely to 'Brownrigg, Eccleston.' We—we had better take it to her mother; she can open it."

Janet was very much alarmed when we handed her the envelope, and, though we all assured her with fervent volubility that there was nothing to be frightened at, that we felt convinced it was only a message about the money, she let the paper lie in her lap, until at last Doty, not able to bear the suspense, tore open the envelope, when a ringing scream made her turn hastily round.

Emmeline stood at the door, looking so awful in her terror that I scarcely recognized the usually pretty creature."

"Stop!" she shrieked. "Don't read it—I forbid you to read it—it is for me! It is to tell me my love is dead—dead. Give it to me—quick!" She flew across the room to my sister and snatched the paper from her hands.

YEAR OF EXCEPTIONAL PROSPERITY FOR CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY

Wonderful Development Of Business Over This Great National Highway

Friends of the Road As- tonished at the Showing

Montreal, July 31.—The C.P.R. on June 30th completed the most successful year in its history, displaying a record which shows that the company can claim one of the most important positions among the railroads of the world.

While the financial statement has just been made public the annual report, which will be presented at the meeting of the shareholders in a few days, will be available to the public. It is expected that the report will show a further increase in the company's earnings.

The working expenses of the company, in comparison with the U.S.R., have been remarkably low, but the net profit has been high. The company's earnings for the year ending June 30th were $1,000,000,000, an increase of 10 per cent over the year ending June 30th, 1932.

The net profit for the year, which was $1,000,000,000, is the largest in the history of the company. It is an increase of 10 per cent over the year ending June 30th, 1932.

COMET NOW VISIBLE

May Be Seen at Night in Vicinity of Great Dipper

The great Lowell comet, which can be seen with the naked eye, was first seen last night from many places as well as from automobiles.

It is said that the comet is travelling through the northern heavens at the rate of one hundred miles a second, which comes to several millions of miles a day.

The approaching comet will continue to charge upon us through the absence of space until August 27, when it will be plainly visible to the naked eye.

In the meantime this great comet, which is about 100,000 miles long, will be seen in the night sky as a bright star.

The comet, from its own tail, is estimated to be about 100,000 miles long, which is only 100,000 miles from the earth.

Some astronomers claim that a comet only hits the earth once in fifty years, but it is not true. It is said that the comet will hit the earth in the year 1940.

A Great Actor's Great Career.

London "Outlook."

From a merchant's office stool in New York street to the unchallenged headship of the English-speaking stage is an epitome of the career of John Henry Brodsky, now Sir Henry Irving, Knight, LL.D., whose appearance this week on the boards of Drury Lane in Sardou's "Dante" is the event of the London dramatic season.

But how much between! The early struggles—bordering at times on privation—of this stage-struck Somerset led him hard but invaluable nine years' apprenticeship in the provinces in the old "Theatricals," which attracted the notice of Boucicault and led to his first London engagement; his epoch-making lecture of the Lyceum; his tours in the United States—all these are milestones in Sir Henry's career familiar to most of his younger generation of actors, and his name is able to fairly F. R. C. Chatterton's lecture that "Shakespeare spells bankruptcy."

In his own person, by his magnetic influence, Irving has been to the younger generation of actors, and his name is able to fairly F. R. C. Chatterton's lecture that "Shakespeare spells bankruptcy."

ago, and to whose management he ultimately succeeded.

Laborer on Sir Hector MacDonald.

London "Truth."

In poetry and the drama tragedy is supposed to have a bracing and ennobling effect on the emotions. The tragedies of real life are always painful, frequently cruel, and never anything better.

Oedipus himself, off the stage, would only furnish the materials for a coroner's inquest and a sensational line on the title of the evening papers. So it is with the tragedy that has ended the career of Sir Henry Irving, Knight, LL.D., now that the papers recording the event are out of print, there is no purpose to be gained by dwelling on such a catastrophe. It is said that a disinterested enthusiast has declared his intention of spending $10,000 to clear the unhappy man's reputation. If money could do it, one would regard it as money well spent.

A man told me the other day that he had spoken with the general's servant, who would stake his life that there was no foundation for the charge. As no man is a hero to his valet, he would be a palmy of some weight. But when a man has, in effect, pleaded guilty by his own act, how can any such testimony effect the verdict? A doctor, taking a different line of defence, told me that he should throw the odds and the charges together into the scale, and trust them both as evidence of physical degeneration, due probably to sunstroke or some such cause. This may be charity borrowing the voice of science, but who would not be charitable in judging a brave man and a good soldier, who has served his country in a well?

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

Is what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and the absolute safety is established, and yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

An arrangement has been made with the Trust Company to guarantee to the purchaser the return of amount invested within a given number of years. To substantiate this guarantee they issue to the purchaser of the stock a gold bond, which is secured by first real estate mortgages deposited with another Trust Company for the specific purpose of meeting the bonds the underwriting Company issues.

Then the assurance is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, will you care to what we have to offer?

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, one of the largest and most successful of the extensive development of its numerous mining properties and also of its oil lands, offers a limited amount of its Treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Cripple Creek, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done. It is prepared to place as many of these mining properties upon a shipping and self supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of oil lands in Huerfano County, Colo. in order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $1.00 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with individual liability. This issue of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Partisans have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are usually very great, especially when the stock can be secured at such a low price as this is now offered for. Now is the time to get in before an advance in the price is made.

The new railroad from Denver to Salt Lake, which is now building will be of incalculable benefit to the Company, furnishing transportation for ore and supplies, besides immediately increasing values.

STOCK MARKETS

The following report was received by M. J. Cummings & Co., 166 Sun-son street, by direct private wire:

New York, July 31.—The Arch. share went for the month of June and the preliminary statement for the year was regarded as satisfactory. The year of 1907 was a record for the year of 1908. The circumstances were such that the Arch. share had a further effect on the market. The London market was weaker today and foreign houses were selling orders on Arch. There was a lot of conflicting talk regarding the monetary situation and some observers were disposed to think that the Bank of England had been successful in bringing about a contraction in bank accounts. The crop situation, while optimistically viewed at this point, was subject to differing opinions in the west and in a number of cases some interests felt justified in selling the grain and some of the best financial stocks. There were many rumors in the street regarding fresh financial troubles, but important banking interests worked hard to dispel apprehension on the part of outsiders. In some cases they were successful, but here and there the bank raised concern and they were quite successful in their efforts to bring about lower prices.

The Stock Exchange issued a circular during the day telling of the intention to issue a $5,000,000 refunding mortgage, but on this the market turned dull, after having displayed considerable stability and some recuperative power. The late trade was largely professional and the fluctuations were subject to quick and conflicting. Late in the day there was an inclination to hold off, pending the publication of the bank figures to-morrow. The feeling on the close, however, was quite sensitive to factors in one direction or the other and under their circumstances many were disposed to look for a feverish market. Outside stocks were also slow while the bond market was irregular, with a demand.

London dull, rather under parity. American officials say prospect is brighter than any time in five years. Expected Bank of England blanket mortgage to be considered in October. 32 gold, June net increase 10.63 per cent. 47 bonds third week July gain increase 13.76 per cent. Further weakness reported in pig iron. Some advance in price of copper expected in August. Time money 5 and 5-1/2 per cent. for six months. Movement of crops will be late this year. The demand for New York for wheat, may not be heavy until September. Daily's weekly crop report shows corn making favorable progress. 12 industrial declined 20 per cent. 20 bonds declined 20 per cent.

Chicago, July 31.—U. S. grain, hogs 23,000, hold over 6,323.

Livestock, open—wheat, quiet, 1-8 higher; corn 1-4 lower.

1.20 p.m.—Wheat unchanged, corn 1-4 higher.

New York, July 31.—Hearst and his friends are no staunch believers in Arch. as they ever were. This stock is in trim to rally smartly. Pacific coast, especially Union Pac. and P. & N., are good to hold, but Mr. Hearst is a turn on any further decline.

TREE CULTURE

It will be but a few years before durable timber becomes very much more valuable than it is at present. Good chestnut and white oak trees are worth now 15 cents each, and red cedar 20 cents apiece and are hard to get at that. Ten years from now the supply will be much less. No more profitable use of land can be made than to plant walnut, chestnut, oak, hickory, spruce, ash, maple, poplar, willow, and other trees that have value in the present and future. Plant the young trees in rows. The chestnuts are now grown in the southwestern portion of the States and are extremely hardy and are the best trees.

These trees are originally from Australia, they are known there under the name of sandalwood trees and by their rapid growth and large amount of foliage they absorb the poisonous gases of the swamps, making the air pure and the climate healthy. In California, Kansas and Indiana, tracts of land several thousand acres in area have been planted with seedlings of the eucalyptus for fuel, railroad ties and for windbreaks. An account of how rapid growth they make desirable shade trees for the dwelling and pleasure home. In many parts of the continent the eucalyptus are used to advantage to furnish shade in pasture. If not along the fences and along irrigating ditches they can be used to protect the cattle in the pasture without at any time interfering with farm work. Seedlings may be had from the nurseryman in 100 lots at 4 cents each. There are some thirty different varieties, all of them are said to grow equally well in the middle and southern states. Plant the seedlings in young trees and farm the low land.

NEURALGIA

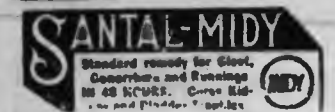

THIS DISTRESSING COMPLAINT IS DUE TO IMPOVERISHED BLOOD

When the blood becomes thin and watery, as a matter of course, you become weak, vitality goes down low, and there is but little power in the system to ward off disease and pain.

Neuralgia, rheumatism, a weak spot, and makes a home there, so secure that it is only when the system is so weak that it is driven from the system, only to return. To obtain immediate relief, first apply to the painful parts, a good quantity of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and then bind on a hot flannel cloth.

This local treatment will be found very efficacious, but must be followed by a course of Purrosone treatment. Purrosone is a blood food, and a blood purifier, and quickly brings the system so that further attacks may never be feared. It makes the rich red kind of blood that gives strength and vigor to weak constitutions and puts them in good shape to resist neuralgia attacks.

This combined treatment of Purrosone and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, is a remarkably effective and cures after all else has failed. Because of the unique success of these remedies we have no hesitancy in recommending their use to our readers. All druggists sell them.

SANTAL-MIDY

TOWN AND COUNTRY NEWS
GASHERS HERE AND THERE BY TIMES REPORTERS

Organ For Sale
Fine Kava organ, costing $175, will be sold for $125. This is a cheap. Apply at The Times Bookstore.

At the Police Court
Yesterday morning two boys, aged respectively about 12 and 14 years were up for disturbing the sidewalk on Broad street on Thursday evening last. They were fined $5 each for each offence. Michael Thomas, a vagrant, received six months at hard labor.

Funeral
Yesterday afternoon the funeral of the late John Castello, who died at St. Joseph's Hospital on Wednesday last, aged nine years, took place from the residence of his father, Mr. Paul Castello, 1200 St. Martin's street, at 2 o'clock. The sympathy of the community goes out to the bereaved family in their affliction.

Meeting of Citizens' Association
On Monday afternoon at three o'clock the annual meeting of the Peterborough Citizens' Association will be held in the parlors at Juniper Island, when the election of officers for the coming year will take place. The present officers are: George Cook, president; J. H. Morgan, vice-president; W. G. Morrow, treasurer; H. J. Hume, secretary. A full attendance is requested as matters of importance will be discussed.

On the Valley River
On Sunday, August 1st, the annual meeting of the Peterborough Citizens' Association will be held in the parlors at Juniper Island, when the election of officers for the coming year will take place. The present officers are: George Cook, president; J. H. Morgan, vice-president; W. G. Morrow, treasurer; H. J. Hume, secretary. A full attendance is requested as matters of importance will be discussed.

Labor Day Celebration
The Trades and Labor Council are arranging for another big celebration in town on Labor Day. It will be on a similar line to last year, with, however, many additional and attractive features. Belleville, Lindsay, and other towns will be invited to co-operate. The committee in charge are endeavoring to make the parade larger and better than anything of the kind ever before seen in Peterborough, and the labor union in town will be represented, and arrangements are being perfected to have each trade give a special contribution to their work on floats. A. T. Dugan is chairman of the committee; Hugh Robertson, secretary; and George Sloan, treasurer. The subscription committee is A. T. Dugan, H. J. Hume, Hugh Robertson, George Sloan, and C. P. Morrow. The committee will be glad to receive contributions from the business community in the form of floats or other contributions. The celebration of Labor Day here in a fitting manner year after year will undoubtedly result in making the annual recurring event extremely interesting and enjoyable to all town workers in the happy hours of industry through the Midland district.

AN OLD TIMER

Interesting Account of a Steamboat Race on the Ottawa River Fifty Years Ago

The following appeared in The Globe, of July 23, 1883, and was reprinted in yesterday's issue of The Globe:

"A steamboat race took place this week from Grosse Pointe to Peterborough, between the Forester and the Ottawa. Both started about the same time from the Landing, and the Ottawa beat the Forester about 50 minutes, making the distance between the two boats in two hours and twenty-five minutes—the fastest that has ever been made. We believe that there were pretty heavy amounts made on the result of the race. Mr. Weller had a bet of $250 on the Ottawa, against $250 cash, that the old boat would come within half an hour of the new."

A HALF DAY OFF
The Local Printing Office Will Be Closed This Afternoon

Two boats have been engaged to carry the Peterborough Pioneers to Jubilee this afternoon. One will leave at 1:30 p.m., and the other at 2 o'clock. The committee in charge of the event have spared no pains to make this trip one to be enjoyed thoroughly, and long remembered. An orchestra will furnish music on one steamer, and a gramophone will be played on the other. A program of sports will be run off at the Point, and there will also be given a second edition of the famous pre-emptory contest originated by the printers of their picnic last year. Following are some of the events and prizes:

Girls' race—1, Hazel Hill; 2, Jackknife.
Boys' race—1, Hazel Hill; 2, Jackknife.
Ladies' race—1, Silver Butter Knife; 2, Pair Buttons; 3, Brush.
An orchestra will be given several others added to the programme, including a tug-of-war between the different offices. The Examiner will be taking a hand in pulling down hill.

VAST ARMY OF FOREIGNERS GIVE UNITED STATES CAUSE FOR ALARM

New York Authorities Sees Peril Threatening the Country

Should Hard Times Come There will be Trouble

New York, Aug. 4.—A cable canvas has just been laid out by the various European countries, concerning the vast number of immigrants expected to come to this country during the coming year. Those dispatches cover the main points from which the millions of immigrants will flow. Most of them are gratifying, the coming year will witness the middle states and the far west. Many thousands of them, though, will remain in the large eastern cities to add to the dense population. Today New York Immigration Commissioner William Williams, accompanied by an attorney, had a long conference with President Roosevelt, at Oyster Bay, considering plans proposed by the commission of immigration for the better inspection of immigrants arriving at this point.

The dispatches are in corroboration of a statement for which the commission of immigration, Mr. Sargent, is the author. Mr. Sargent writes to America:

"Immigration, under present conditions, presents a serious problem. No one can sit at his desk and know the facts which come to us in regard to the immigration of the world. The threat of hard times comes to this country."

"I am not an alarmist, but when I see hundreds of thousands of ignorant foreigners coming into great cities every year I think I can realize some degree of the danger that will come from their numbers. The danger is not in the fact that they are ignorant, but in the fact that they are so numerous."

The statement was made after Mr. Sargent had considered the figures for the year ending on June 30, 1902, and had become aware that in that year an army of almost a million immigrants landed in the United States.

The exact number of immigrants for the year ending on June 30, 1902, was 1,000,000. This is the record figure for any year since foreigners began to look toward the United States as a source of refuge from oppression and from poverty. Nothing like these figures was ever known before. The previous top record figure for any year was 800,000 in 1892, the year of the famine in Ireland.

Considered merely as figures, the full import of the statement made by the commission of immigration is not conveyed. It is when the statistics are further analyzed that the true cause for alarm becomes apparent.

Majority Say in Cities.

Those who scoff at the idea that any danger exists from the immigration of the world, here for argument, the great statistics of the country, but the immigration officials' statistics prove that a vast portion of the foreigners seeking new homes do not go to the unsettled portions of the land, and that the vast majority settle on the cities. One-third of those who come to this country settle in New York, and of these, most of them find abiding places in the great metropolis itself.

The north and west take a good many immigrants, and the immigration figures show that the character of those who are coming into the country has entirely changed. Where before England and Germany sent families, most of them willing to do anything to escape the want of the world, they have now only a few of them who have not been carefully instructed by friends or relatives in America to do as they please.

Thousands of Jews Coming.

Germany, July 31.—By a recent census of Russian Jews to America, it is now known that in 1902, there was a remarkable immigration of the Jews. Russian officials plan that it shall if they can possibly make it. Jews wishing to immigrate will find the official through letters reduced to a minimum. All sorts of other measures are being adopted to facilitate immigration.

Moreover, an extraordinary activity is also in progress among the Jews. The number of Jews who are coming to America is now estimated at 100,000 a year. The number of Jews who are coming to America is now estimated at 100,000 a year.

Italy's Coming.

Naples, July 31.—The immigration ships are filling with passengers seeking an industrial home in America. Argentina and Chile get many of the thousands, but the large majority sail for the shores of the United States. If the present rate of emigration continues, more Italians will have emigrated during the year 1902 than ever before.

Austria Alarmed at Loss.

Trieste, Austria, July 31.—The Austrian government officials are becoming more and more seriously than ever an increase in the limitations set about those who desire to quit the old world for the new. For years there have been rumors of the Austrians departing for the United States, but the tide of emigration is now near its end. In truth it is at its flood.

Estimated from the figures at hand it is estimated that in 1902, 100,000 Austrians will have quit their native land for America. The year is over.

Big Figures From Antwerp.

Antwerp, July 31.—The immigration from this port, including representation of most of the nations of inland Europe, will figure about 50,000 for the month.

FUTILE VOTING TO ELECT A NEW POPE AT ROME

THE PLAN CONDEMNED BY ENGLISH OPINION

London is Astonished at Government Entering Upon Such a Scheme—An Anglo-Canadian's Views

London, July 31.—But for the all-pervading depression in stock markets, the British Government's announcement of the plan to build a transatlantic cable would have produced a lively discussion in the House of Commons. As a fact, however, there has been no marked effect.

The details have appeared in the first issue of the "Times" of Saturday. The plan is to build a cable from the United States to the British Isles, and to use it for the purpose of transmitting messages.

Proposals Made That Hon. Mr. Chamberlain Include Dairy Produce

London, Aug. 1.—Mr. Michael Hicks-Beach says the device, as before us to-day, to take or to leave the globe clearly intended, will be the self-governing colonies into sheep and goats. Mr. Chamberlain, however, does not see the difficulty, showing that what the Canadian Ministers said at the beginning of the conference, as to the reciprocal trade in informal negotiations, is not a far cry from the truth.

Small Capitalization Means Large Profits. EMPIRE OIL CO.

OF WEST LIBERTY, KENTUCKY

CAPITALIZED AT ONLY $100,000.

—Its first well will pump nearly 100 Barrels daily of High Grade Oil—

THIS COMPANY HAS 5,000 ACRES

of the best selected oil lands in Morgan and Elliott Counties, Kentucky, most of its holdings adjoin its present rich strike, and will drill immediately 12 more wells.

The following is an extract from the Kentucky News in the NATIONAL OIL REPORTER, of April 11, last:

"Year correspondent predicts that by the end of this year on 3 Ohio and Indiana will exceed Kentucky in production. The writer has been over nearly all of the property held by the Empire Company of West Liberty, and has no hesitation in saying that the territory is among the most promising in the entire state."

A LIMITED NUMBER OF SHARES OFFERED AT PAR, to continue development work. The Company's present production alone is sufficient to pay good dividends on its entire capitalization.

The Minister's Dividends.

It was a queer couple, says a preacher in a Massachusetts town, that drove up to the parsonage door. She was tall and angular, a typical "old maid," he was short, fat and jolly, with a sort of David Harum look about his eyes. He had a snug farm, well kept and paid for; and she was known as a neat, industrious woman, who had brought up a family of children left orphans by the death of her sister.

Hard Cooper assisted the woman from the wagon as he usually did, and she stepped out while he hitched his horse, and together they entered the parsonage.

"Reckon you can give me a hand, for, parson," he said. "My sister Jane, who has kept house for me nigh on to thirty years, died last winter, and it's been lonesome for me and the cows and pigs since. Miss Jones, here, has hovered them children of her sister's until they've got from under her wings and gone to town. Now 'tain't far cross-roads from my farm to here, and I can run her farm, and it would be better for both of us. So we thought we'd just drive over and get you to hitch us up for a span. I'm going to be good to her and provide everything necessary, and she's going to be good to me and take care of me. So whenever you're ready, go ahead, only make it short."

The ceremony passed without special incident. After Fard had administered a sounding smack on Nancy's cheek, he turned to me and said, "Well, parson, what do I owe ye?"

"Well," I said, "you can give me what ever you choose, and I can give you a smile. Give me what you think she is worth to you."

In an instant his Yankee love for a trade came to the front, and fishing an old-fashioned copper cent out of his pocket, he said, "Parson, I reckon I won't be short of ye if I give you that to begin with. If I find she's worth more, why, you'll hear from me again."

forgot the ghastly look that overcame her face, and I was so frightened that I never knew how the scene ended.

The next morning at rehearsal she told me I was doomed to ill-luck for the remainder of my days. She called the company together and gave them a detailed description of the "awful scene" the night before occasioned by the young man who would never make an actor. She told of a terrible dream she had had, in which some great person had been foully murdered before her eyes; how she had attempted rescue without avail; how he had fallen dead at her feet; and how his blood slowly oozed into her lap. It was two years after this that Miss Keene was playing at Ford's Theater, Washington, on the occasion when Abraham Lincoln was shot. Miss Keene was the only person who seemed to realize the situation. She ran to the box, and in a moment the head of the dying man was in her lap, while the scene of her dream was being pitifully enacted.

"These."

In his recent book, "Bar, Stage and Platform," Mr. Herman C. Merivale, whose father was permanent Under Secretary for the Colonies, and one of whose uncles was a rival of Niebuhr in scholarship, tells of an amusing experience of another uncle of whom the world has heard little.

This Mr. Merivale was a thoroughgoing cockney. London was as the brain of his nostrils; notwithstanding he purchased a country place, intending personally to supervise the crops. To this end he asked advice of a bucolic friend, a man of many acres, who complied, and began with the kitchen garden.

"Now look at these," said he. "You have a fine crop of these. First you must do so and so in July, then such and such in September, and next year there will be something to remember."

"Quite so," assented Mr. Merivale, politely. "But I must begin at the beginning. In the first place, what are these?"

"Do you mean to say you don't know?" gasped the country gentleman. "Haven't the faintest idea," said Mr. Merivale, cheerfully.

"These are potatoes!" his friend replied, divided between amusement and amazement.

"When we remember what we think of others, we are not anxious to know what others think of us."

"You look like a man who is fast going to the dogs."

"Do I, leddy? Den my looks is deceivin'." I goes from de dogs much faster'n I goes to 'em. Dere don't happen to be none on dese premises, I hope, mum?—Kansas City Journal.

THE GREATEST MINING PROPOSITION EVER OFFERED.

I am pleased to state that I have completed arrangements with the Consolidated Nevada Mining Company for the sale of a block of their treasury stock in Canada. It is a proposition I can honestly recommend, and has unbounded possibilities. The tremendous possibilities of WEDKIND and TONOPAH in becoming plainer every day to the entire country. The spring rush into these NEVADA mining camps will equal or exceed that into Cripple Creek, Dawson or Nome. The strikes recently reported from Wedkind and Tonopah have created the greatest excitement and the rush will come in an hour. Everyone is watching NEVADA mining stocks and prices are rapidly advancing. Now offer better opportunities for profits than do the shares of

JANET'S DIAMONDS

A Doubtful Dowry That Was Lost at Last.

BY P. J. SMITH.

my chair, and the officers were quite assembled. One of them reminded me of a dear boy—that tall young fellow you sat so much with on the top of the stairs, Miss Truch. Oh, now you, my dear, perhaps your shapeliness didn't—ha, ha! He reminded you of Phil now, didn't he—didn't he?

"Then you enjoyed the dance too,

Truch? You had plenty of partners? I liked eagerly, wheeling round.

"Oh, plenty! There are three new men in the regiment, one of them quite an Apollo, and he reverses like—like an angel! But oh, Nettie, anything to equal the conduct of my chaperone—Chaperon, indeed! These dances running I caught her in the conservatory, hid in a forest—a jungle of shrubs and plants, alone with a wicked Colonel—a Colonel

Roper-Cootel!"

"Colonel Roper-Cootel?" I interrupted eagerly. "Do you mean of the Nineteenth Truch—Dotty? Oh, fancy his being back here again!"

"He has left the army and settled down here altogether, Nettie," Truch answered, with a significant nod. "And his wife is dead—I believe two of his wives are dead —and he has a dozen motherless children on his hands; and—and—let it add,

Nettie—just too awfully and I caught him telling Dot all about it, you know.

He had a pocket-handkerchief in his hand, and she had one in her hand, too, and looked so sympathetic. There's nothing so nice and soothing as sympathy, is there, Dotty?"

Poor little Freddy Roper! I remember him five-and-twenty years before, just after he had joined the army—as a boy, stammering, susceptible youth whose all made game of. A few weeks after introduction he had flung himself at Janet's feet, and of course had been caustically spurned by that young lady, then in the month of her beauty.

After that he had turned to Dotty, a young lively girl just stepping out of the schoolroom; but Dotty would not have anything to say to him either, and had been passed out of our paths apparently broken-hearted.

"Two wives, you say—he has had two wives—little Freddy?" I repeated, with an incredulous laugh.

"And buried them—I distinctly stated they were both buried, Truch, and now he has a third wife, and now that she is dead—what—actually blushing!

"Dotty, you old—!" I began teasingly, when a particularly vicious look in Janet's eyes suddenly stopped me, and then clever little Mrs. Phil came to the rescue.

"Yes, it was a lovely ball, dear, and well—I know we did; but, all the same, we weren't the belles of the room by any means!"

"No? Who were they, then, Emmeline?"

"My mother-in-law was one. No, madam, I am not joking. None of my partners were talking about you and saying that you didn't look thirty; and one of the new subalterns, a Mr. Stan-Stan-something or other, I forget the name—

asked me if you weren't the Italian princess who was expected at Lord Somerton's last week. And they say she is a beautiful young woman, and so on.

"Five feathers clearly a case of fine feathers, Em!" Janet sniggered, with a glance at the mirror. "Certainly this is the most becoming dress I've had for years."

"Well, have you settled where you are going to live, Janet?" asked Janet.

"For it's high time we were thinking of bed, you know."

"Oh, yes, it's all settled!" she answered briskly. "William is going to sleep upstairs in the spare room, and I am keeping my bed, and promise to sustain my opinion and wake up at the hotel every morning. I have the greatest confidence in the dear child since her devoted integrity at the last alarm."

"Bertie Mansure was there; he has immediately improved. She was with him half the night. Dot whispered to me as we said 'Good night.'"

Chapter VI.

The night, or rather the remainder of the morning, passed by uneventfully, without any false or real alarm of burglars.

We all met at a late breakfast, except Janet, who dozed on far into the afternoon and awoke very cross, complaining of a bilious headache.

When the day came at about twelve to take the diamonds to their stronghold, I offered to undertake the responsibility of their escort as I had more shopping to do through, and, for the purpose of keeping Emmeline out of Truch's way, I asked her to accompany me. She readily consented, and when we had safely disposed of our precious parcel, we separated for little time, she to send on a box of roses to an invalid lady with whom she had made friends when coming from Australia, I to visit my boatmaker.

I had left her only a few seconds when I remembered that I wanted her to do a commission for me at the station, to which the postoffice was attached. So I ran after her into the office, and, not finding her there, entered the larger building, which was in a state of bustle consequent on the departure of our own afternoon train. The platform was crowded, but, at a moment, I quickly detected Emmeline's bright yellow hair and hat. Pushing forward, I tapped her smartly on the shoulder. She turned with a little scream, her face flushing suddenly.

"Oh, what Nettie, what's the matter?

You frightened me! What is it?"

"Only a message I forgot. I'm sorry

I frightened you, Em!" I said, when when the train goes, to see James Grant, the porter with the crooked eye, and tell him that the parcel I gave him to send on Friday last by the 4.45 to—"

"Oh, what's the hurry?" she interrupted, impetuously to ward the train. "Isn't it too late to go now? I brought it to the postoffice and they wouldn't take it—said, at least, by this mail they paid I was late. And now poor Miss Ryan won't have them till they are quite withered!"

"You must send her some more to-orrow."

Continued.

The Venom of Snakes.

The Carnegie Institute has granted $5,000 to the pathological laboratories of the University of Pennsylvania to aid in the investigation of snake poison which is going on there, says The New York Tribune. Upon news that Dr. E. W. Blair Mitchell suggested, Dr. Simon Flexner and Dr. Hideo Noguchi have been studying at the university for two years the venom of cobras, rattlesnakes and other poisonous reptiles. Highly interesting are the experiments that in the course of their work these two scientists have made. They believe that it is possible in time to discover for each kind of venom an antidote.

The chloroforming of a snake and the extraction of its poison while it lies unconscious are an operation frequently performed and interesting to see. The snake is first seized with tongs about the middle. The incision is a leather loop at the end of a stick like a broomstick, and the tightening of the loop holds the snake securely. After it is caught, its head is pinned down to a stone with a wetted stick that is pressed upon its neck. A tube one or two inches in diameter containing a sponge saturated with chloroform is slipped over the snake's head, as a glove is slipped over a finger, and soon the reptile is unconscious. An assistant then holds the snake's head and strips them forward, squeezing them. That is done to the throat, and the venom is thus all the venom is extracted. This venom, yellow, and of the thickness of molasses, flows out upon the surface, and it is gathered in a vial and sealed up.

In the experiments with live animals the university carries it is thought best to inject the venom by the throat, rather than to allow the snake itself to do the injecting in the ordinary manner with its fangs, because a snake does not always strike effectively. Sometimes it fails to strike at all, and sometimes it strikes into its victim more than a drop or two of venom. Sometimes it strikes so that the venom is injected into the wound. Yet, to all appearances, the bite has been a terrible one, and an experimenter, administering to the wounded animal a certain antidote, would decide that this antidote was a marvellously potent one would hold it to have cured the animal immediately. When, as a matter of fact, there would have been nothing the matter with the animal from the beginning.

On small animals the effect of a small drop of venom is almost immediately fatal. A mouse, for instance, on receiving an injection of three or four drops, falls in a few seconds, and is dead over on its side and in one or two minutes, sometimes in less than one minute, it is gone.

On a large animal, such as a dog, the effect is not so powerful. A thirty-pound bull terrier was lowered into a rattlesnake's cage and was bitten on the ribs, near the thigh. The bite was a thorough one. The dog whined a little after it was drawn up, moved a while, and in fifteen minutes was so weak that it had to lie down. At the end of twenty-five minutes it was dead. When the snake was brought up, it was found that the dog had been bitten on the ribs, near the thigh. The bite was a thorough one. MONEY NO OBJECT

When People are seeking health or relief from any disease the price never counts.

It is a fact that not less than a million in every year die of disease, making a satisfactory cure for Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

Probably the best and most highly recommended preparation is Catarrhus, which treats the local symptoms, and is effectually relieved by means of medicated air supplied through a convenient hand rubber inhaler. The patient in the throat, chest and lungs, and in the blood, are taken after each meal. They promote appetite, aid digestion, and make the blood rich and pure, so that it will nourish all parts of the body.

This catarrhus local and constitutional treatment in Catarrhus, has met with wonderful success and can be relied upon to cure every case. The inhaler stops sneezing, coughing, droppings in the throat, and brings quick relief and cure to all the disagreeable symptoms of Catarrh.

The following testimonials from well known Canadians furnish abundant proof that Catarrhus is an accomplished in stubborn cases.

Mrs. James Tweedie, of Jay Bridge, says: "For years my daughter doctor was suffering from Catarrh. She had droppings in the throat, larynx, and could not sleep at night. The first day's use of Catarrhus benefited her, and she was cured in a few days. I can recommend Catarrhus as a grand remedy for Catarrh."

Thousands of strong letters could be given like the above if necessary, but all that is required to prove the merit of Catarrhus is a fair trial. It is sure to do it, and if it fails your money will be refunded. Catarrhus cures lots of cases without this and can do so again.

Complete outfit costs $1.00. Small size $0.50. Sold by druggists, or N. C. Palmer & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Great Work Done
The Times was informed yesterday that the American Great Work (company's) present daily output of cereal foods is between 1,000 and 1,500 barrels. The works are not, however, running to the full capacity of its machinery. June and July are usually slack months with this mammoth concern, and their busy season is but now commencing.

A Sportsman's Story

There is no more delightful place in the Western Hemisphere for outdoor life and perfect sport with rod and gun than the famous Muskoka Lakes region of the "Highlands of Ontario" about 100 miles north of Toronto. One of the many pleasures the district affords. The Grand Trunk reaches it with ease and comfort, whirling its passengers through some of the grandest scenery on earth.

Another Preliminary Survey

It is probable that more surveying parties will be sent out this fall by the Ontario Government to take a preliminary survey of the country north of New Lusk and up to the route proposed for the transcontinental road. The Government will then be in position to lay information before the Legislature at its next session, and at the same time will probably induce legislation to extend the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway another hundred miles or so. It is expected that trains will be running to New Lusk within a year and the northern section will be pushed on with all possible speed. — Toronto Star.

—Miss Vergie McSwain left for her home in Lindsay last night.
—Mayor Roper and J. J. McKinnon returned from Stony Lake yesterday.
—Mr. George H. A. chief post office inspector for Canada, leaves for Ottawa today.
—Mrs. Pridmore, of Rochester, is visiting at Mrs. M. McFadden's, Elm Street.

—The many friends of Dr. Pagon will be pleased to learn that he is sufficiently recovered from his recent illness to be out again. A letter yesterday the doctor accidentally stepped into an open trap door when calling on a patient, and was precipitated seven feet into a cellar. The fall caused a severe injury to his knee cap and was otherwise seriously injured. Fortunately he carried in his pocket at the time his bankbook, which the doctor believes saved him from sustaining a fracture of one or more ribs. He was able to be around again for the first time yesterday.

WAITED 30 YEARS

For the Proper Food
A man who was a semi-invalid for 30 years got well in about a month when he found the right food. He says: "When I was 15 years of age I had a severe attack of Typhoid fever and, after almost dying, to death I was left in a pitiable condition. My nervous system was so shattered that I had to walk with a cane for 6 months after I got on my feet and my stomach was terribly diseased. This was thirty years ago, and since that time I have never known health although I tried doctor after doctor, until 6 months ago I saw an article about Grape-Nuts that I had never heard of. I bought a box and ate it. I am in better health than I have been since I was a boy. THE BOSTON AND NEW MEXICO COPPER COMPANY, incorporated Capital Stock, $500,000. In Shares of $10 each, par value. Full and Non-assessable.

Operating in the Orocopia Mining District, at the foot of Orocopia Mountains, near Every City, Imperial Co., Socorro County, New Mexico.

MODERN SHELTER JUST COMPLETED WITHIN A HALF-MILE OF PROPERTY

OVER $1,000,000 ALREADY INVESTED.

Over one million dollars have been invested within a short radius surrounding on all sides the property of this company by Boston, New Haven and New York capitalists. All this has been invested quietly within the last two years, without any appeal to the public. Only one of these companies interested has put its stock on the market recently, and that at 80 cents on the dollar.

BOTH A PROSPECT, BUT A WELL-DEVELOPED MINING PROPERTY. We have shown by actual mining that we have the

A rich lustrous vein. This company having paid a large sum of money for these properties, and also in the development of the same, now offer to the public 50,000 shares only of their stock, in order to make further resources so that when they start to deliver ore at the reduction works they can keep up the supply daily and by that means pay a dividend that does not fluctuate but that can be depended on by the stockholders.

The Oro Rico Mining Syndicate

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 30 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.

Want lodges of ore running from $500 to $500,000 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave return from $750 to $1,000 per ton. This is not five per cent. a month scheme, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans. No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offer a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the surest way that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your fore-sight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. At the end of the year you will get the stock at great prices. It will come to 50 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mines and returned full of enthusiasm. The mines are turning out much richer than expected.

I can offer the Stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share.

It is one of the best and safest investments in the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TODAY. I will mail you my slip your money. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 75% per month.

JANET'S DIAMONDS

A Doubtful Dowry That Was Lost at Last.

BY P. J. SMITH.

"Yes, but she was so lovely—the sort she's got off. And they're all packed and directed and ready! Aunt Emily, do you know what I have left a mind to do? Run along the line of carriage until I see a face I can trust, and ask the owner to post the parcel at the first office they come to in London! She'd get them to-night that way."

"Come along," I said; "it's a bad idea."

"It was rather an embarrassing situation, for, in the middle of the night, I was sitting up, and I was thinking of the carriage door was crowded with rather trust-worthy countenances, I thought, but Emily seemed somewhat flustered and unsteady, and the 'five minutes bell' had rung some time since."

"Look, Emily, look! What do you think of that sweet-looking young widow with the little boy at the second-class window? There's no one talking to her."

"Netty," she whispered with a very regular smile, "I think dear, comely, and I don't think it time to stamp the box, you know, it would be better, sure to give it to a gentleman."

"You little diplomat!"

"A gentleman, young and first-class, I think, dear."

"But I don't like addressing—It would look as if we were wanted to make his acquaintance. Then the compliment, Emily," I objected, withdrawing from a smoking carriage towards which I feared she was leading me in her impulsive manner.

"What will it matter? He will never know—see you again. Ah, I perceive our man—the very man!"

"Where? Show me!"

"There, at the window—two below the smoking-carriage with the fair hair, reading the paper. Come on, aunt Netty—now or never! Wait until you see how gracefully I'll be to him."

"Wait a moment till I get a sixpence ready. One can't put one's self under an obligation to a stranger like that; it would be highly improper."

"Quick then, dear; the train will start in another minute!"

"But, when we got close to the carriage, when the young gentleman raised a very languid pair of gray eyes to our flushed faces, the girl's guileless courage and deeply deserted her, and, slipping behind me, she whispered, 'with me, by all means!'"

"Aunt Netty, I can't. Ask him for me, dear—quick!"

"I beg your pardon, I began, 'but I want to know if you would kindly post this parcel in London this afternoon for my niece—she has been so beautifully just married, and it is important that it should reach its destination to-night.'"

"Certainly. It will give me much pleasure to render this slight service to the young lady, your niece," he answered at once, taking the box from me and stooping slightly forward to get a glimpse of the girl sheltering behind me.

"Here is sixpence for the postage," I continued somewhat ungraciously, for the young man's appearance and tone, though he was good looking and well dressed, did not please me over well; he did not strike me as being a gentleman, somehow. "Take it, I want on almost immediately, as he ignored the coin."

"We had not time to buy stamps. You must take them!"

There was a shrill whistle, the train moved forward, and my sixpence, shaken from my hand by the preliminary jolt, dropped upon the line."

"Don't open it—they're only roses, not worth stealing!" the girl cried laughingly, as he leaned out, evidently to catch a last glimpse of her pretty face.

"Emeline," I exclaimed, very angry and put out, "I don't know what you thought you had more—more sense, self-respect."

"Oh, forgive me, auntie dear! I pleaded, so penitently that my wrath melted almost at once. 'I am as ashamed of myself! I don't know what came over me. It was just—just when you dropped the sixpence that the thought struck me that he might open the box and let me see all get withered; not open it to steal anything, you know, but just to see if I was sending a frigate, or false teeth, or something. And you know he did look—look a little—'"

"Fast—yes, Emeline, you are right! he did look fast, and I wish I had not spoken to him. I should not have allowed myself to be persuaded by a girl of your age, who knows so little of the wickedness of the world. I wish that sixpence hadn't fallen upon the rails, too."

"Well, well, as we crying over spilled milk, dear; he has it now, and it wouldn't be much use trying to get it back from him, I expect. Ha, ha!"

"Nature it has been to be sure! I'll take you off to the lift, and I will too!"

It was evidently of no use whatever trying to make Emeline look at the incident from a serious point of view. It was of no use even asking her to keep it from the others, for she would talk of nothing else. And, what is more, she did take me off to the lift, the others declared, though I must say that I myself did not see the liftman, or hear that she had caught to a note the tone of my voice when I try to be overpoweredly dignified, as they said she had. However, it amused my sisters immensely, and of course I was very glad to be able thus to contribute so easily to their amusement. But I noticed that, though Janet pronounced her daughter to be the cleverest little mind she had ever met, and Doty complained of a stitch in her side from laughter, the performance did not amuse my little Trot in the least. She sat all the time, her fingers busy with her work, not a ripple of a smile once crossing her sweet pale face. Indeed, her gravity was so marked that I felt sure Emeline must have noticed it, and I don't know what she would have said if she had seen me at a question or make a comment which we were all trying to keep so secret.

Shooting an Elephant

At the Dublin Zoological Gardens, on the 11th instant, the pet elephant Zita, which two days before killed her keeper McNally, after a close friendship of over eighteen years, was shot by order of the garden authorities. Zita had manifested extraordinary signs of distress since that fatal night. She had been uneasy and restless, and eaten little, and looked apprehensively—almost piteously—at all who approached the elephant house. Other keepers in the gardens declare that Zita, actuated in her unpremeditated crime by a sudden spasm of pain, had expressed grief and repentance ever since by every means known to animal life, and many appeals were made for a pardon. The Dublin papers contained eloquent pleas for her forgiveness, and one of the journals devoted a leading article to an appeal for mercy on account of Zita's extraordinary career in the past. But the authorities were inexorable. The anger, or whatever emotion it was that had impelled her poor McNally being trampled to death, might recur, and bring about another tragedy, and the extreme punishment was resolved upon. Elephant rifles and expanding bullets were therefore procured from London, and yesterday morning Colonel Neville Chamberlaine, the Inspector-General of the Zoological Gardens, was on a good many "elephant shoots" in the Dublin Zoological Gardens. He was well skilled in the use of the rifle, and took up positions in the elephant house the huge beast turned towards them, but made no attempt in an aggressive movement. The two foremost Sergeants, with the elephant rifle, fired at Zita's head, the other five aimed with Martini carbines at her fore-legs, this being the best method of inflicting a mortal wound. The elephant's head fell, and she fell on her side, the seven guns rang out together, and the great beast lay on her side, her trunk raised, and her legs splayed out. The elephant rifle bullets had penetrated the brain. Zita's death was instantaneous, and she died without suffering, as far as possible. The body was cut up to feed the many carnivorous beasts in the garden. The animal originally cost £200.

It Was a Daisie.

At a dinner given to a crowd of railroad men by Senator Chacey M. Depew, the star speaker. In the course of his remarks, says The New York Times, he told a story wherein a certain manufacturer, left practically alone in his factory through a boiler explosion, was reproached as pointing to the office clock over his desk and saying to his friend: "There are only two hands in my office that never strike."

"Whereupon," said the Senator, "the clock struck two."

After the dinner one of Senator Depew's friends came up and congratulated him, saying: "Your speech was great," he said. "That story about the clock was a gem."

The Senator beamed. "I think it is pretty good," he said, modestly.

"About the clock," the other friend came up who was not so eulogistic.

"Chancey," he said, "it is the story about the clock better every time I hear it. I think it is the best I have ever heard."

"Why, President Newell says that story is a daisy," exclaimed Mr. Depew.

The other laughed. "You ought to study botany, Chancey, and you would learn that a daisy is a hard annual."

And thereupon the Senator smiled.

Catching a Husband.

The London Daily Express of a recent date had the following—Baccanine is a small village in the north of England, a good supply of girls, who realized lately that a great many of them were destined to become wives, were taking the matter in hand themselves. After much discussion, first among themselves, and then with the village authorities, the girls determined to give a great dinner to their prospective husbands, and to have a near should be invited. Notice of the coming festival and its reasons were published all over the country and even in Holland. This very original way of securing husbands for the village girls, and the village street, and the houses, "dressed to kill," awaited the arrival of their prospective husbands, with their parents, and the bachelor guests, assembled in front of the town hall, where numerous addresses were given on the subject of matrimony. Then the event of the day took place, and the girls took their places at table first, each leaving an empty seat at her side, and waiting anxiously for the youth who should sit to her right. There was an awful pause as the first man screwed up courage to leave the rest, who stood huddled together as if for protection from the danger that awaited them, but at last a brave fellow of about forty, from the village of Baccanine, stepped forward, and took his seat, and then another, and another, and soon all the places were taken. Dinner lasted till 7 o'clock in the evening, and the girls, with some exceptions, were very much pleased with the result. The girls who had succeeded in securing sweethearts made their appearance at the dinner, and very few were left lamenting their prospective single-blessedness. The dinner was followed by a ball in the open air, and many wedding days are already fixed.

Plucky Colonel Lloyd.

In "V. C." General Dan Wippen described the death of a brave soldier. It was that of Commandant Gert Gravett, who rescued two of his comrades under a hail of bullets and bayonets. But the "maddest act of courage" was that of a British Colonel. Thus the general converses with the interviewer.

"We were lying behind boulders high up on one side of the hill, and the hill was coming up on the other. We saw their hats appear over the crest before they had even got to the top of the hill, far less of us. Then came their faces, then their bodies, and then their arms, and then their legs, and then their feet. The first rank went down like a swath of grass. But others pressed forward. The Colonel leaped and fell forward, shot through the leg, but almost instantly he was up again, the wounded leg hanging horribly limp and trailing upon the ground. He leaped up, and, using a crutch, and so forced himself forward in jerks, calling hoarsely to his men, beseeching them anxiously to follow him, and thus limping calmly to the very mouth of our trenches. It was splendid, and when he fell for the last time—well, we were sorry."

"What was his name?" I asked.

"Colonel Lloyd of the West Riding Regiment," he said. "What a brave fellow! He was on his grave, and the card bore the inscription: 'In honor of a brave soldier.' It was an act difficult to forget."

Sub-marines as Wreckers.

"While as an engine of war the submarine is of doubtful expediency, it would seem as though it might be of great service in the peaceful business of salvage," says The Marine Record.

"The Marine Record" says: "The submarine is a very limited one at that, there is at present no practical means of recovering wrecks or their cargoes. An enormously deep pressure, as one descends below the surface of the sea, that wrecks become more and more shattered. Occasionally imaginative or optimistic wreckers endeavor to salvage vessels at unusual depths, but the story is one of unbroken failure. The submarine is not a submarine inventor to discard the submarine for purposes of warfare and to turn his energies to essentially practical lines. If all accounts are to be believed, he is pursuing some very interesting experiments in the Gulf of Genoa with what he calls his 'under-water working machine,' designed as a boat to resist the enormous pressures that accumulate with depth. The boat is covered in form with a diameter of ten feet, and has accommodations for a crew of twelve persons. Its practicability lies in the fact that it is equipped with arms and is held in the hold through universal water-tight joints, and possesses powerful gripping qualities."

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay.

It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash?

A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as anything and more profitable. The honest miner makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurons, the Haldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Montana was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at $1.00 per value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

There are many persons who assert that there is nothing in it for the average investor and that it does not pay to invest small sums in stock. Let such persons ask themselves what returns they can hope to get through banks or real estate speculations for sums of under $100.00, and then consider the following:—

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $8,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1890 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $6,682.

$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,600.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Mallory, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore mills only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours.

The Alaska Treadwell ore mills $2.35 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par.

No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management.

Slowly Dying

Thousands are slowly dying from catarrh, but don't know their danger

A CASE IN POINT

Mr. Ulric Barant, a young gentleman who lived for years in Sweden, Quebec, inherited catarrh from his mother. The disease spread through his system till he was a physical wreck.

"As a child," said Mr. Barant, "I was prone to an ulceration of the mucous lining of the throat and nasal passages."

"I grew pale and emaciated, lost all desire for food, and got into a miserable condition. My friends said that catarrh was fairly eating me up."

Every organ of my body seemed affected and the doctor told me it was the first stage of consumption. He advised catarrhism, and I inhaled it ten minutes at a time every few hours, and was rewarded in a few days by a wonderful improvement.

Catarrhism pleased me and the doctor so well that I used it continually, and took Ferron's Tablets after each meal to build up my strength. In about three weeks I was quite recovered, and the doctor says no remedy but catarrhism could work such a miracle.

"Every one in town knows I was just about dead with catarrh, and my cure is an evidence of what catarrhism can do. It is a pleasure to recommend catarrhism."

(Signed) Ulric Barant.

Catarrhism beyond question is the proper remedy for catarrh and all its troubles. The medicated air goes all through the air passages of the head, throat, lungs, and kills germs, heals the sore spots, always irritates and keeps the breath pure.

Headache, tired feelings across the eyes, sneezing, all these well-known disagreeable symptoms are overcome by the medicated air of catarrhism.

Ferron's Tablets which are used in conjunction with catarrhism, dissolve all the poisonous secretions of catarrh from the blood. One taken after each meal creates new appetite and digestion, strengthens the stomach, neutralizes and invigorates the entire system.

Catarrhism is quite unsurpassed as a cure for catarrh in any part of the system. It is highly recommended for Bronchitis and Asthma.

Complete outfit, sufficient for two months' treatment, price $1.00; trial size 50 cts. Druggists or N. O. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

OBITUARY

Death of Wm. V. Hamner, of Ashburnham

It is our sad duty to record the death of William Victor Hamner, son of Mr. Robert Hamner, of Ashburnham. He was taken ill on Tuesday last with appendicitis, which developed into peritonitis and caused his death on Monday evening, at the age of twenty years, and six months. The sorrowing family have the sympathy of all in the loss they have sustained.

The funeral will take place from the family residence this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, and proceed to St. Luke's church, thence to Little Lake cemetery.

ASHBURNHAM COUNCIL

Business Transacted by the Village Fathers on Monday Night

The Ashburnham Council met in regular monthly session Monday night, when there were present all the Councilors but Councillor Giblin. The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed.

A communication from Dr. Bryce, secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, to a meeting in Peterborough of the Provincial Health Officers, was referred to the Board of Health.

A resolution was passed empowering the Village Council to act as a committee to take legal action to have two creeks in the north end of the village diverted to flow into the river.

STREET RAILWAY FARES

A.R.F. Writes That Working Men Should Have a Cheaper Rate

To the Editor of the Times:

Dear Sir:-In regard to fares in the street railway system, it is a pity that the council would be fully satisfied in refusing to ratify the agreement as it now stands.

There are a few people who would be in favor of the present rates, but this is a very small number. For thirty years, and in view of the fact that the company is virtually receiving a large bonus by street lighting contract, it is only a reasonable concession that the council should make.

If the company are as good as their word they should have no hesitancy in putting the fare in the agreement, and an agreed fare with the public, it would also be unfair to compel the purchase of $1 worth of tickets to secure the lower rate. These tickets will be used to a large extent by laboring men whose places of work are constantly changing, and whose wages are much lower than the skilled mechanic, and to whom the purchase of $1 worth of tickets would be an inconvenience, and also a privation.

If the company are as good as their word they should have no hesitancy in putting the fare in the agreement, and an agreed fare with the public, it would also be unfair to compel the purchase of $1 worth of tickets to secure the lower rate. These tickets will be used to a large extent by laboring men whose places of work are constantly changing, and whose wages are much lower than the skilled mechanic, and to whom the purchase of $1 worth of tickets would be an inconvenience, and also a privation.

With the exception of the workmen, the agreement seems reasonably fair, one, despite what a few disappointed parties say. The council deserves credit for bringing it to its present stage, but it cannot meet with public approval unless the workmen's interests are better provided for. Better to wait five years than to suffer thirty.

Yours truly, A.B.C.

[The following is the clause in the franchise dealing with the rates: "Ordinary fares including transfer tickets not to exceed five cents each, or 25 of such tickets for one regular attendance, such tickets to be used between 6 and 8 o'clock a.m. and 12 noon and 1 p.m., and 6 and 8 p.m., and for the rate of 10 tickets for 25c. Tickets for school children shall be issued in non-transferable form to all children attending the public, separate and high schools upon a written order from the principal of the school which the regular attendance, such tickets to be used during school sessions only, and forfeited if transferred, said school tickets to be issued at the rate of ten for 25c. Children of six years of age and under, unaccompanied by an adult, to pay 3c. If accompanied by an adult to be carried free."

It will be seen by this that there is a difference of one ticket in favor of the person buying a dollar's worth of ordinary tickets, which will be found at 25c. while a dollar's worth of workingmen's tickets at 6 for 25c. will only represent 24 fares.)

The Review Replies to the Exam.

The Examiner staff has challenged the Review to a game of lacrosse. The latter are apparently evading the contest, as will be seen by the following, published in last night's Review:

Our contemporary in Saturday's issue of the Examiner laments us with a big, bold deft, challenging the Review staff to a game of lacrosse. To all appearance the Exam are immensely fond of flying challenges away without the slightest intention of following them up. Our readers will probably remember that some time last January the Exam. hurled a challenge to play us in hockey; the staff was promptly accepted but it was in March, six weeks later, before our friends could be induced to appear on the ice. As one might expect, they were gloriously and decisively defeated, so badly so that nothing in any line of sport has been heard from them since. But that defeat had a lasting and stinging effect, and now they are out with a challenge to play lacrosse. When they have given some guarantee of good faith and assure the Review that there is to be no six weeks' lull, we will accept their challenge.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores strength to weak, nervous, run-down men and women.

"About ten years ago I began to be afflicted with stomach trouble, also diarrhoea," writes Mr. Wm. Walters, of Austin, Mo. "I was unable to get into a cramping chill, and I was unable to eat. I sometimes thought I would never see the inside of a doctor's office. I tried many remedies, but they gave only temporary relief. In November, 1896, I bought Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I got six bottles and took five in succession, then I thought I would wait for a time and take the other one. I found I had symptoms of the trouble coming back, so I took the sixth bottle and it cured me. I have enjoyed the best of health since, and the credit all belongs to your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I can't express my many thanks to Dr. Pierce for his remedy, for it did so much for me. Words cannot express how severely I suffered. I am now a healthy man, and I will take great pleasure in advertising Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets to cleanse the bowels and stimulate the sluggish liver."

A Magnificent Investment

CHANCE OF A LIFETIME.

THE BOSTON AND NEW MEXICO COPPER COMPANY, Incorporated
Capital Stock, $500,000. In shares of $100 each, par value. Full and Non-assessable.
Operating in the Occore Mining District, at the foot of Occore Mountains, near Essey City, Precinct 6, Socorro County, New Mexico.

MODERN SMELTER JUST COMPLETED WITHIN A HALF-MILE OF PROPERTY
OVER $1,000,000 ALREADY INVESTED.

Over one million dollars have been invested within a short radius surrounding on all sides the property of this company by Boston, New Haven and New York capitalists. All this has been invested quietly within the last two years without any appeal to the public. Only one of these companies interested has put its stock on the market recently, and that at 60 cents on the dollar.

COPPER IN 30 ACRES
A rich lode of copper has been discovered in the development of the same, now offer to the public 50,000 shares of their stock, in order to make further reserves, so that when they start to deliver ore at the reduction works they can keep up the supply daily and by that means pay a dividend that does not fluctuate but that can be depended on by the stockholders.

The Oro Rico Mining Syndicate

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 20 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.
Vast ledges of ore running from $5.00 to $80.00 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter have returned from $75.00 to $82.00 per ton. This is not a five per cent. a month scheme, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than California Bank or Mortgage loans. No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little mine is ever made by purchasing stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay $10.00 FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You need make your money on your JUDGEMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the fore-sight that makes money, and if you follow the dictation of your fore-sight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock sold at par. The new Mining Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can get the stock at present prices. It will be the first run you can get the stock at present prices. It will be the first run you can get the stock at present prices.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mines and returned full of enthusiasm. The mines are turning out much richer than expected.
I can offer the stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO-DAY—to-morrow it may slip your men. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 25% per month.

A Doubtful Dowry That Was Lost at Last.

The Housewives' Strike.

(From the Chronicles of Uncle Ike.)

No, I haven't forgotten the time Local Union Number One of the Amalgamated Society of Housewives of British North America went out on strike. It came right home to me, Mrs. Ike being a member of that late unimpaired organization. It was off day at the shop. I'd calculated to take Mrs. Ike out for a drive, but she refused. "I'm over to the shop," she said, "and you know I'd far rather go with you than to the meeting, but," she says, "my obligation as a member of the Housewives calls for my attendance, except when physically impossible."

"Well," I said, "if you go for a drive with me 'twould be physically impossible to go to the meeting, too, so just put on your bonnet—"

"What does a man always call a woman's hat a bonnet?" she interrupted, rather sharply. "It is," I answered, kinder apologetically, "but it is and we'll go for a drive."

"Where?" I asked, pretending to be anxious. "I don't feel drawn up anywhere," she answered. "I want to go 'long as my horse sense is in good working order we'll not worry much about the other except the sense of taste."

"Thinking of your supper already?" says Mrs. Ike. "Just like a man!" And then she kissed me, hoped I wouldn't get lonely before she came back, and departed. About the time she was due for supper I thought I might as well get ready for me to have it ready for her when she comes in. I was so pleased with myself for doing such a thing that I allowed myself to stop at the thought. However, after a severe mental struggle, as the story goes, and a good deal of searching, I succeeded in getting the table set, a little bit surprised when she came in. She looked a little bit surprised when she saw that I had done so, but she sat down without saying anything more than that it was a nice thing.

"Well," I said, wondering why she hadn't fussed about setting the table, "I thought you'd be here to see me just warm up the potatoes and meat left over from dinner, and that won't take you long."

"You'll have to do it yourself," she says, trying to speak very calmly. "Not to-day, thank you," says I, thinking she was just joking. "I've remembered that the last time I was here to cook a meal the day you hurt your hand," my mind flashed back to a day when I'd let a fine roast of beef burn to a crisp.

She looked uncomfortable, but answered back, "You'll have to do it; there's a strike on."

"Strike!" I just yelled the word. "Yes," says Mrs. Ike, a bit angry like. "Why not? They have their strikes, why not the women?"

Well, I didn't know why, but I didn't say anything, and she stared at her for I don't know how long, and she just looked back.

"Local Union Number One of the Amalgamated Society of Housewives of British North America is on strike," she says, at last.

"That being the case," says I, "Local Branch Number One of the International Married Men's Association 'll have to hold an emergency meeting to-night to consider the situation."

"What?" she gasped. "Why I didn't know there was any such thing. 'No more men! I think I'll do myself, but I don't say. 'Tut, tut! I'd say I think the best thing for me to do is to be caught napping! We've been expecting this and preparing for it," I said. With that I turned on my heel and went to the top of the cellar stairs and managed to knock down a few other pans.

"What are you going to do?" says Mrs. Ike.

"The Married Men," I replied, as dignified as I could, "while refusing to talk for publication, maintain a very calm and confident front, and managed to rise and say, 'I'll get the meat and potatoes.'"

"The Married Men," she says, waiting for her to sit down again, "claim they have all the help and will not re-engage any of their old hands unless the latter surrender unconditionally."

Then she looked back frightened. I went to the pantry to search for the meat. I made all the noise I could and knocked a milk jug to the floor. The ugliest jug you ever saw, and I'm thankful to say it was completely smashed. A woman who came and stayed with us for two weeks at Exhibition time, on the strength of her daughter being acquainted with Mrs. Ike's mother, gave it to us as a souvenir, and just because it was one of that kind it had need of impossible to break it.

Mrs. Ike, not knowing what I might break next, jumped up and says, all sweet and hesitating, "like, we all decided we wouldn't do anything for our husbands to-day, and—(was just foolishness)—"

"—I," and then she stopped. There was a suspicious gleam in her eyes, and I guess my own were gleaming, too. But I control my arms, and when her head was resting where it had a right to, I says, "It is officially stated that the Housewives have come to terms."

"The agreement," says Mrs. Ike, all sunshine again, "being entirely satisfactory to both parties."

Kentucky Assassins.
The Louisville correspondent of the New York Post, in an article dealing with the prevalence of assassinations in Kentucky, and which was suggested by the recent remarkable Jett-White trial at Jackson, traces two-thirds of the assassinations in that State to politics.

He adds that the authors of these assassinations are the worst of cowards when it comes to an open fight, the accepted method of the murderers being to lie in wait for a victim, taking aim at a standing object between which and the assassin the unsuspecting traveller must pass.

When the latter's figure intervenes, the trigger is pulled and the fatal shot fired, or, if the man is only wounded, another shot completes the work. Strange enough, murderers of this class, according to the correspondent, been idealized and made heroes by superstitious writers encouraged by a false provincial pride. "There are many persons in the State, supposed to be intelligent and law respecting, who have a lurking sympathy with these desperadoes and feel a secret pride in the territory which a Kentuckian is supposed to carry with him wherever he goes."

The present Governor has done all he could to publish interviews to minimize the atrocities in Kentucky, and with ability and wit, and four hours after saying through the newspapers that no more troops were needed at Jackson an additional 1000 men were ordered there to reinforce Jett and White are confined, while the Governor is endeavoring to remove the residence of a single witness to two Hotchkiss guns and one Gatling, with nearly a hundred soldiers, are required to secure the arraignment and trial of two desperadoes, against whom a number of murders are charged, and one of whom the same Governor had previously pardoned for a felony.

King's Visit to Ireland.
The main lines of the programme for the royal visit to Ireland have been provisionally settled. The intention is that the King and Queen shall leave London on Monday, July 28, arriving in the Irish capital on the next day. The engagements at Dublin, Belfast and elsewhere will occupy them till the following Saturday, when they go to visit the Marquis of Londonderry at Londonderry, and then, towards, playing over Sunday. On the 21st they leave London and proceed by sea to Lough Swilly, en route for Londonderry, which should be reached on the 23rd. A couple of days will be spent in touring by motor car, probably in County Londonderry, and on August 1 their objects are expected to visit the Falls of Ben Bulbin, and present new colors to the military station there.

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay.

It is the ruling force of the world. It attracts the attention of the greatest minds the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash? A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurons, the Baldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at $1.00 per value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

There are many persons who assert that there is nothing in it for the average investor and that it does not pay to invest small sums in stock. Let such persons ask themselves what returns they can hope to get through banks or real estate speculations for sums of under $100.00, and then consider the following:—

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $8,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.
$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1880 is now worth $7,600.
$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.
$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $5,600.
$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $682.
$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,600.
$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Mallory, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.
Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.
The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

Nor does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore sells only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours. The Alaska Treadwell ore sells $2.35 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par. No mining proposition has ever failed as a developed deposit of good value and honest management. Respectfully submitted.

The opening bid was 9 1/4 cents by Mr. Hrenick. Mr. Wrighton moved this to 9 3/8. Mr. Fitzgerald moved to 9 1/2. This being the highest bid, Mr. Whitton took Ormoude, Myrtle, Indian River, Melrose Abbey, Westwood, Villiers, Keene, Spencer, Central Smith, Percy, Cavanville, Benford, Fleetwood, Dartford, Oak Leaf, Keene being the only one to refuse.

Mr. Cook then offered 9 1/2, and bought Oakleaf, Myrtle, Loring, East Emily and themselves. On the 1st of August at 9 1/2 called Keene, Pleasantville and Buckhorn.

Mr. Kerr had next choice at 9 1/2 and called Lakeland, Tremont, North Smith, Balford, Waseau, Warnum, Pine Grove, Maple Leaf, Portlough, W. Wainwright, Cedarvale, North Smith, and accepted conditionally. Mr. Kerr forgot to call Mr. Pleasant, which was afterwards added to the lot.

Mr. Hollins at 9 1/2 called Wainwright, North Smith, Young's Point, North Dunsmuir, Cedarvale, Stony Lake, South Burleigh and Apley.

At 9 1/2 Mr. Whitton took Dartington.

The board adjourned for two weeks.

IN MEMORIAM

Lines written to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Nolan, on the death of their beloved daughter, Mary Ellen, aged 12 years, who departed this life April 13, 1908.

Your daughter, dear, has left you, And you will see her no more, Until the happy day, When all hope to meet on the golden shore.

Death seems so much kinder, When it claims one we have known, But why sad, when we remember, She dwells in her heavenly home.

When in sickness she was lying, On a bed of deadly pain, Her young face was bright and happy, But she never did complain.

She has gone to meet her Redeemer, On that bright eternal shore, Oh! may you who now are mourning, Meet her there to part no more.

Dear parents, little did you think, When the spring flowers were blooming gayly, That one who was so gently cherished, Would soon from this life fade away.

She has passed away to that happy land, Across the silent river, She now dwells in a beautiful mansion, And shall live with our Saviour forever.

Then why should your tears roll down, And your hearts with grief be riven, For another gem is in our Saviour's crown, And another soul in Heaven.

A SCHOOLMATE.
Died, Aug. 3, 1903.

From From His Wagon
Loran, Aug. 5—Thomas Bennett, a well to do farmer, living on the Roman line, Haddam, aged 70 years, fell from the back of a hay wagon on Monday evening, striking heavily on his left shoulder without any apparent injury. During the night his condition became alarming, and he died at an early hour Tuesday morning. He leaves a widow and seven grown-up sons.

A DREADFUL COMPLAINT ACCOMPANIED BY HEADACHE, SICKNESS OF THE STOMACH, VOMITING THAT CAN BE PERMANENTLY AND QUICKLY CURED BY FERRO-GENE.

Some persons have attacks of Bilious Dyspepsia very frequent, and feel as if they were about to die. The whole system seems to collapse. The tongue becomes coated with a yellow pallor, and a bitter taste is always noticeable in the mouth. At times the bowels are very constipated, but occasional acute diarrhoea is caused by the accumulation of bile in the system.

It is highly dangerous to put such a condition to neglect, and it must be cured and the simplest and most reliable remedy is Ferro-Gen, it gives every particle of food eaten, and prevents the waste products from clumping up the system.

Ferro-Gen restores all damaged organs to a healthy, vigorous condition. It keeps the bowels well regulated, makes the kidneys eliminate all poisons from the blood, and supplies the necessary elements to build up and strengthen the entire body.

Mr. Louis Mackay, one of Peterborough's most enterprising and well known business men, during the past year was suffering severely from Bilious Dyspepsia. He was cured permanently by Ferro-Gen, and is so anxious that all others may profit by his experience that he gives the following testimonial.

"About three years ago," says Mr. Mackay, "I had the Grippe which left me in a very run down condition that finally developed into Dyspepsia. It was terrible to eat but a few things and had a craving for acid. I gave up treating with the doctors because they did not help me, and on the advice of a friend used Ferro-Gen. It was recommended by Dr. Mackay and I have built up my strength to what it was before I had the Grippe. I can recommend Ferro-Gen as an ideal restorative."

Ferro-Gen is capable of digesting all classes of food, and contains in a highly concentrated form the elements necessary for strengthening and reconstructing, and neutralizing the stomach and other digestive organs. It is a builder of blood, muscle, fat, and bone, and gives energy, vigor and spirit and cures every time. Sold by all druggists. Price 50c. per bottle or three bottles for $1.25. By mail R. G. The late discovery in strawberries of salicylic acid, specific in acute rheumatism, has seemed to confirm the idea that these berries are a desirable article of food for rheumatics. The effect of fruit cannot be due to the salicylic acid, however, as less than the hundredth of a grain per pound is found.

"I don't understand how E. H. Harrison got on about two weeks after his operation for appendicitis," said one of a group at the club, "when it took me six weeks to get on my feet."

"Oh, well, your time was not so valuable," etc., from the crowd. Meanwhile a doctor in the group had been silent.

"You heard of course, what they found?" he ventured. General interest.

"Why, the appendix was full of undigested securities, and all they had to do was to cut the coupons off."

"What do you want, little boy?" asked the doctor.

"Say, mister," said the boy, who had been wringing his face, scratching his head and rubbing his right foot up and down his left leg in the effort to remember something that had escaped him, "what's the name of that place where we've got so many soldiers?"

"Fort Sheridan?"

"No, it's a good deal further away than that."

"The Philippines?"

"That's not it, but it's somewhere around there."

"You don't mean Manila?"

"Manila! That's right! I knowed I'd get it after awhile. I want a bottle of Manila extract for my favorite cream. How much?"—Chicago Tribune.

THE BOSTON AND NEW MEXICO COPPER COMPANY, Incorporated.
Capital Stock, $300,000. In Shares of $100 each, par value. Full and Non-assessable.Operating in the Orocopia Mining District, at the foot of Orocopia Mountains, near Esrey City, Precinct 6, Socorro County, New Mexico.

MODERN SMELTER JUST COMPLETED WITHIN A HALF-MILE OF PROPERTY

OVER $1,000,000 ALREADY INVESTED.

Over one million dollars have been invested within a short radius surrounding on all sides the property of this company by Boston, New Haven and New York capitalists. All this has been invested quietly within the last two years, without any appeal to the public. Only one of these companies interested has put its stock on the market recently, and that at 60 cents on the dollar.

NOT A PROSPECT, BUT A WELL-DEVELOPED MINING PROPERTY. We have shown by actual mining that we have the

COPPER IN 30 ACRES

A rich fissure vein. This company having paid a large sum of money for these properties, and also in the development of the same, now offer to the public 60,000 shares only of their stock, in order to make further resources, so that when they start to deliver ore at the reduction works they can keep up the supply daily and by that means pay a dividend that does not fluctuate but that can be depended on by the stockholders.

The Oro Rico Mining Syndicate

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 30 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.

Vast ledges of ore running from $5.00 to $80.00 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $79.80 to $223.00 per ton. This is not a five per cent. a month scheme, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans. The business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offer a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLARS FOR DOLLARS for every cent you get. You must make your money on your JUDGMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the fore-sight that makes money, and if you follow the dictation of your fore-sight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the Stock sold at par. The new Mining Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. At the first run you can't get the Stock at present price. It will be at the par value.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mines and returned full of enthusiasm. The mines are turning out much richer than expected.

I can offer the Stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO DAY—in tomorrow it may slip your money. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 25% per month.

JANET'S DIAMONDSA Doubtful Dowry That Was Lost at Last.

BY F. J. SMITH.

"They were lovers once, weren't they, Janet?"

"Twenty five years ago—before you belonged to the world, my dear," I answer, turning away after gently pressing the young sympathetic fingers.

And this was the girl we none of us could love! This was the girl Trot believed was an incarnation of—of—

My reflections were brought to a rather sudden close. I had moved a few steps up the stairs towards my own room, then, remembering that I had left my work in the drawing-room, I descended and very softly pushed open the door.

Phil's wife and mother were the only occupants of the room. The latter was standing at the bow-window, peering through the darkness, evidently watching in moody anger her sister and the Colonel as they entered some room below, with every trace of sentiment and sympathy banished from her face and voice, was mimicking poor Dot to the life, rebearing the little scene we had watched together with a faithfulness of tone, gesture, language that was marvellous and most ridiculous to listen to.

"Oh, nonsense, you silly man! How absurd you are! There are no strange dogs, I tell you. Well, only as far as the larch plantation, not a step farther. Just look at the slight smile I've on! Do you want me to catch my death of cold, sir?"

If I had closed my pinched eyes, I must have believed it was my sister still speaking.

"I don't like her—I don't like her—I never will like her!"

"Don't like her? Whom? Phil's wife?" echoed Dot, meeting me in the hall and making me aware I had spoken my thoughts aloud. "Why, I thought that was a settled point months—weeks ago, Nett!"

Chapter VII.

We came down to breakfast one morning in rather frosty temper and spirits. Hetty complained of a touch of her old enemy, neuritis; Dot, without any accountable cause, had had a very restless night; and Trot, pale and heavy-eyed, was suffering from headache. Emmeline was the only member of the party with unclouded countenance and beaming eyes. Particularly beaming, indeed, for this happened to be the great day of the year.

To celebrate which she had fastened a bunch of bright red roses in her flowing yellow hair, and sat in our glass circle the incarnation of blooming happiness and expectation.

Our meal over, we separated to our usual morning employments—Peggy to superintend her garden, assisted by Hetty, for Peggy was starting for Brighton the next day; Dot to water Trot's fernery, which the child was too ill to undertake; and Emmeline to an idle morning at the lobby window, watching for the postman.

At about eleven o'clock, my household orders disposed of for the day, I went down to the drawing-room to see how Trot was getting on. I found her sitting in an easy chair, with closed eyes, the pain somewhat eased; and I was just in the act of refreshing a wet handkerchief Peggy had applied to her forehead, when a sudden change in her face frightened me—from a dull pallor it flushed a vivid crimson, then, with a little cry, she rose quickly from her seat and fell senseless at my feet.

I turned toward the door she had been facing and saw my nephew, Emmeline's husband, crossing the threshold.

With a cry as intense as the girl's own, he rushed forward, his arms outstretched as if to seize her; but I had strength to intervene.

"Stop!" I cried indignantly. "Not an inch closer! Do you want to kill her all together? Send the others—send help to me at once!"

He obeyed without a word, and in another minute they were all around her—Hetty, Dot, Peggy and the three servants—in a state of incoherent excitement, writhing and pushing the wretched young man aside, for, notwithstanding my remonstrance, he was still struggling to seize his victim's hand, his face and attitude, I was glad to see, expressing some sense of shame.

"Go, go—go at once, sir! She is recovering now!" exclaimed Dot, when at last the closed eyes opened with a long shuddering sigh. "It is shameful—it is unpardonable, your conduct. How dared you do such a thing? Without a word, a word of warning?"

"What do you mean?" he retorted, almost violently. "What does this greeting mean? I—I came because you telegraphed for me! I—I—"

"We telegraphed for you—well?" our voices trembling with indignation.

"Old Maxwell then, it's all? What has happened to you all? Trot, Trot, let me—"

"Enough of this, sir, enough! If you have any sense of shame, any feeling of—of—"

"I began bitterly, when Peggy, with her face aflame, flew at him like a virago.

"You wretch! How dare you stay here! Go up at once to your wife—your wife who—"

"To my wife?" he repeated stupidly. "To my wife? What did you say, aunt Peggy? My—"

Then Janet interrupted him with a scream, snatching him by the arm.

"Oh, this is bliss! Welcome—welcome at last! Our darling, where is she? Does she not know? Oh, come to her—quick!"

Then, as he did not move as quickly as she wished, she darted from him into the hall, loudly calling Emmeline's name.

"What does this mean?" he asked, returning from the door, facing us with a dazed, dumfounded look. "Is it Bedlam? Oh, Trot, my love, pity me, and—"

—and tell me what it means!"

"Is-it means," she answered pantingly, "that you had better go up to your wife at once, Phil, and see what she is after! She is longing for you—"

Something in his face made her halt, however, and she said in a low voice:

"Who is my wife? Tell me—"

"Emmeline Devereux, who you married at Bathurst!"

"Never heard of the woman in my life!"

Travelling Incog.

Aprons of the Dutch Queen mother's visit to Villers-la-Ville, Belgium, an amusing story is going the rounds, according to The Paris Daily Messenger. Her Majesty, accompanied by Mlle. van de Poll, the lady in waiting, and Baron van den Berg, decided to go to one of the chief establishments in the vicinity for refreshments after visiting the Abbey. As soon as coffee had been served the proprietor came to inquire if his guests were satisfied, and on the Queen replying in the affirmative, the social host crossed his arms and said with a smiling countenance, "You appear to me to be a brave little man, Madame, and it strikes me that I have had the pleasure of seeing you before." "You are right," replied the amused Queen. "I have been here before, for the country is very interesting and it gives me much pleasure to visit it again."

The Baron then asked if it were possible to procure a conveyance of any kind for a drive in the surrounding country, but, although horses and traps were available, there was no one to drive them, the coachman being absent on the day of the visit. The host evidently approved of the appearance of his customers, and at last offered to trust them while he procured a conveyance of some kind.

As the Queen's ladies were just leaving, however, the Baron declared that he would actually drive them himself. No sooner said than done, the most entertaining character, and kept them all in his hands. He proved a most original and original remarks. When they returned her Majesty felt rather cold, and Baron van den Berg ordered some hot wine, which she now thoroughly enjoyed.

On paying the bill Baron van den Berg gave a note for a much larger amount, and the Queen was glad to get change when he was asked to accept the bill. The Queen was extremely attentive and amusing. This unexpected piece of luck caused the good nature of the Queen to be more contented than before, and nothing would induce them to return to the station, where the "tourists" all shook hands with him most heartily, the Queen being the last to leave.

His courteous attention. Mlle. van de Poll's surprise and bewilderment can be imagined the next morning when he took up a paper in which it was mentioned that the Dutch Queen had visited Villers-la-Ville. He rushed off to the station to obtain information, but no one there was better informed than himself, so he took the first train to Brussels, where he learned that his "brave little man" was no less a personage than the Baron van den Berg.

It is said that the worthy man is more than anxious to meet the Queen, and is waiting for her to find a channel through which he can do so, but in his case no such thing is likely to happen. Her Majesty was travelling incognito, and was lucky enough to meet on her travels a man who was the subject of a wife's love to be tender a genial welcome to his wife's husband.

The gentle Queen, whose tact and charm of manner are so well known, would not one of her first to assure him that no offence could have been taken even by a woman of her exalted position.

Strength of Metals.

The Literary Digest has the following:—Changes in hardness, strength or elasticity in certain metals may be due to conditions analogous to disease in organic tissues, and to some German metallurgists. According to The American Inventor, the theory of the disease of metals has been advanced in Germany.

That the Imperial navy yard at Wilhelmshafen sends metals regularly to the "Autopsy room and dissecting table" of Prof. Heyn, one of the leaders in the new investigation. That paper goes on to say:

"Who knows," asked Dr. Bechhold in summing up his studies, if metallurgy will not soon create a new and vastly important branch for itself, the branch of producing inoculating material for metals, which will temper and form swiftly instead of waiting for the slow processes of forging and tempering that obtain in the ordinary way."

Prof. Heyn is now studying the changes in iron under all grades of temperature, and he holds that the metal passes through various stages of disease that produce structural changes just as cells of living tissue, size and position in the form commonly called organic. He heated copper in order to find why the metal suffers from over-heating, and his conclusion is that it becomes poisoned with copper protoid, which so disintegrates that the structure changes and partially breaks down. The metallurgists have solved the chemical puzzle of the line which divides all substances into organic and inorganic—just as the line between animal and plant life has been expunged. The German metallurgists have come to speak as a matter of course of the life that unfolds itself in steel under various temperatures that are applied to it in working it. Iron, this steel with hydrogen or hydrogenous matter and you will find it so definitely that it enters into a condition where it is as brittle as if it had been ruined in tempering. Pure hydrogen can be broken by ordinary means even if they produce a temperature as low as 20 degrees below zero, until a bit of electrolyte that has already been frozen is introduced. But as soon as this is done, the hydrogen begins to freeze. This process is nothing more or less than the electrolytic decomposition of the metal with crystals in order to break in the condition of crystallization. Prof. Heyn found that the point of liquidation in the crumbling tin roof of the Council House at Rotterdam, and that the disease, now known as tin pest, had spread to a nearby roof. If some of the grey powder of tin that has been known to disintegrate should attach itself to the sound tin, the disease then communicates itself to all parts of the metal."

Major Pond and Mark Twain.

The New York Journal in a long appreciation of Major Pond, the well-known manager of the circus who died recently, had the following:

Of Mark Twain he always had delightful reminiscences. He had pushed the humorist in a wheelbarrow when the latter insisted that his contract with Major Pond expressly stipulated that he be "kept moving."

"At a little town in Minnesota we had been waiting since 4 o'clock in the morning," said Mark Twain, "and Mark was uneasy. He said, 'I am tired of this business. Pond contracted with me to travel, and here I am waiting for late trains that never arrive.'"

"My dear, are you not making a fool of yourself?" "No, I am not," he replied, "but I am tired of waiting, and I insist upon his keeping the contract." So he sat down in a wheelbarrow and I pushed it.

"We went up to Vancouver next. Mark went to bed and I waited there four days. In fact, he never puts on his clothes unless he is obliged to. Nearly all his books are in the wheelbarrow, and when the reporters called 'I can't see what the bed was for' and send them up for their interviews."

"And he paid this tribute to Mark Twain: 'Mark Twain is to day the most popular man in the world. A few men have ever written whose humor has so many sides, such breadth or reach.'"

J. Elbert Cutler, a post graduate student at Yale, has just completed an exhaustive investigation into the lynchings in the United States for the last twenty-one years. He finds that the total for this period is 4,241, of whom 1,417 were negroes and 1,424 were whites. There were thirty-two women lynched in that period, twenty-three of them white women, of whom nine were lynched for murder, in the South 120 negroes and 120 white women were lynched. Statistics can not be made to show the fact that with a negro lynched for crime against women.

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay. It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds, the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash? A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money on the contingencies of the market. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shermans, the Baldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. Today he is worth $30,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at $1.00 per value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

There are many persons who assert that there is nothing in it for the average investor and that it does not pay to invest small sums in stock. Let such persons ask themselves what returns they can hope to get through banks or real estate speculations for sums of under $100.00, and then consider the following:

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $5.00.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1890 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $682.

$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Mailory, of Spokane, bought one third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100.00 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

Nor does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore sells only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours. The Alaska Treadwell ore sells $2.38 per ton; the stock 100 per cent. above par.

No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management.

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and the return of absolute safety is substituted, and yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

An arrangement has been made with the Trust Company to guarantee to the purchaser the return of amount invested within a given number of years. To substantiate this guarantee they issue to the purchaser of the stock a gold bond, which is secured by first real estate mortgages deposited with another Trust Company for the specific purpose of securing the bonds the underwriting company issue.

Thus the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer:

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, Colorado, which has secured funds for the extensive development of its numerous mining properties and also of its oil lands, offers a limited amount of its treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Oropesa Creek, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done. It is proposed to place a number of time mining properties upon a shipping and self supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of oil lands in Huerfano County, Colo. In order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $1.00 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with individual liability. This is one of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Profits have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are usually very great, especially when the stock can be secured at such a low price as this is now offered for. Now is the time to get in before an advance in the price is made.

The new railroad from Denver to Salt Lake, which is now building will be of incalculable benefit to the Company, furnishing transportation for ores and supplies, besides immediately increasing values.

STOCK MARKETS

The following report was received by M. J. Cummings & Co., 108 Simcoe Street, by direct private wire:

New York, Aug. 6.—Some securities Thursday morning a considerable decline of relatively lower, but on the whole a large quantity of uncertainty continued to mark the course of speculation. There were quite a number of disappointing rumors affecting the stability of certain prominent stock exchange houses, and fear continued to prevail in many circles. Foreign financial interests argued that the dollar could stand but little money for America, in view of the forthcoming flotation of loans by certain foreign countries. There was a lot of favorable argument regarding the good railroad reports in circulation, but such developments were usually given but little consideration in that the tendency of the exchange discussion was inclined to run to the bear side. The announcement that all of the leading interest had gone through the clearing house already in view of bringing about a demand for some stock and for a time there was quite a noticeable degree of rallying power. The suspension of a small consolidated exchange house had little effect on the stock market, which displayed considerable firmness for a change at times today. However, there were rather questionable rumors in circulation up to the close, and feelings of uncertainty and nervousness continued in force despite the assurances given by leading institutions that the worst is over. Outside stocks were dull and rather easy tone, while the bond market was irregularly heavy with a light demand at the close today. Many interest seemed that the liquidation today was of a new character, the source of which they were unable to trace. Announcement was made that J. L. Johnson, third vice-president and treasurer of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Co., has resigned.

New York, Aug. 6.—Uncertainty was allayed in the financial district, and the morning talk was sensational as on any previous day. Of late sentiment in professional trading circles is mixed, and neither side of the account seems disposed to take a positive stand. There is a lot of unfavorable talk with regard to the market position of the M. J. Cummings & Co. of the recent depression in many of the Morgan securities, and the fact that the Morgan forces will become embarrased, though in some instances it will be a long time until certain parties recover sufficiently to be in a position to support the market with any degree of certainty. Under the circumstances there who are well acquainted with the situation argue that there will be nothing better than a traders market, and that foreign investors are likely to continue for some time to come.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—General selling was characteristic of the market yesterday, and brought about sensational weakness. Many of the larger houses liquidated heavy lines of long stock and the flood of this kind of selling to depress prices. The wheat market is becoming very little. There still being considerable interest manifested in the crop and weather situation. The movement continues on the moderate side, the much of attention is fastening on the demand being small and the offerings fair. The corn crop conditions are more favorable, according to advice from the west, but there is some ultimate outcome of the production. Professional interest will likely continue in control.

Liverpool, opening—Wheat 2.80 lower; corn 1.00; lower; 1.20 p. m. Wheat 3.5 to 1.2 lower; corn 1.18 higher.

Chicago—U. S. Yields—Estimated Aug. 2, 1903: hold over, 4,000, steady.

Importance of Cleanliness.

We do not intend to repeat any further how essential a feature of successful dairying is the observance of proper cleanliness, but at the last meeting of the Eastern Ontario Dairyman Dr. Connell gave forth some fresh figures on the question which afford further confirmation of the position held by all progressive dairy workers.

The doctor gave the results of analysis of milk taken from cows under the different conditions as to cleanliness. In one case—where the cow was brushed before milking, the udders wiped, the stable kept in a thoroughly sanitary condition, and the person of the milker was also clean—the milk still showed 4,300 bacteria to sixteen drops of milk. In another case milk was taken from cows the udders of which had been wiped, which were kept in a fairly clean barn, that were milked into clean pails (that pails that had not been scalded), and by men whose hands had been wiped, but not washed. In this case the number of bacteria was 15,500. In another case, where cows were milked under ordinary conditions which prevailed on the ordinary farm, the number of bacteria was 30,000 to sixteen drops of milk. In this case the milk taken from cows under the best possible conditions as to cleanliness were, it is believed, for the most part just inside the test before milking began. The old practice of securing the first stream of milk outside the pail has a scientific basis to rest upon.

Absolute cleanliness in the stable, cooling of the milk after milking, sterilization of utensils by scalding, cool curing of cheese, and no more sending home of whey in milk cans, are pointers which may also be strongly insisted upon.

In touching on the question of water supply, it was stated that no factory should be considered properly equipped that is without pure water.—The Maritime Post.

Is Very Learned, But is Modest and Retiring and Well Liked by All

Patriarch's Name Had Been Scarcely Mentioned

New York, Aug. 4.—Cardinal Nardo, patriarch of Venice, elected Pope.

Rome, Aug. 4.—Cardinal Marchi, secretary of the apostolic briefs, announced to the crowd assembled before St. Peter's that Cardinal Nardo had been elected Pope and that he had taken the name Pius X.

The tidings on duty immediately broke up on the piazza, and presented a scene of confusion.

At ten minutes after twelve this afternoon Pope Pius X. appeared in the balcony of the Vatican, and bleamed the populace, amid the acclamations of the enormous crowds assembled upon the piazza.

Cardinal Giuseppe Nardo was born at Serravalle, Province of Venice, June 13, 1857. He was created Cardinal and Patriarch of Venice, June 13, 1893. He was very learned in the ecclesiastical doctrine, is modest, energetic, a good administrator, and organizer, a patron of arts, and his seriousness always has been proverbial.

Early in April, Pope Leo, in a conversation with Father Peroni, the Italian campaigner, said in speaking of Cardinal Nardo:

"Hobd him very dear, Peroni, as in the future he will be able to do much for you. We firmly believe he will be our successor."

He has been known for many years as one of the greatest preachers in the church.

Desperate Struggle with A Man-Eating Shark

Rev. John McMillan Narrowly Escapes Being Devoured at Atlantic City

Atlantic City, N.J., Aug. 4.—Overboard and struggling desperately with a man-eating shark, was the Rev. John McMillan pastor of the Westminister Presbyterian Church, of this city, found himself Saturday afternoon. There seems to be no doubt that the minister would have been devoured by the shark had not one of his friends killed it with a spear-shaped boathook.

As the guests of Charles C. Tull, in his launch the Anna M., the Rev. Mr. McMillan, the Rev. Dr. H. J. Caldwell, the Rev. W. W. Bickel, A. D. Coker, and Clarence Howell, of this city, started on a fishing trip to a rocky point a few miles beyond the city.

Fishermen have reported for the last week or more that they have sighted sharks in this sea-marsh land. That most of the reports have been regarded merely as fish stories.

Rev. Mr. McMillan sat in the stern of the boat. Suddenly the line was almost dragged out of his hands. To the astonishment of everybody, the fish the clergyman had hooked began to drag the boat along. The clergyman is a sturdy-built athletic man. A weaker man would have had the line simply torn from his grasp.

But, as it was, the effort proved too much for him. As he continued to hold on the drag on the line became the harder. He was brought to a position where he was leaning far over the side of the boat. In the excitement, he did not realize how far he was leaning. Then he lost his balance and fell into the water.

At the sound of the splash, the line slackened. The shark had turned. Its fin rose sharply and vicious-looking above the water. It darted straight at the clergyman. Then, the shark, turning on its back, opened its mouth. The clergyman dove to get out of the way. The shark's teeth had caught in a section of his coat. The garment was completely torn from his body. The teeth also tore the flesh of the minister's right arm and shoulder.

UNREST IN SPAIN, GENERAL STRIKE COMMENCES IN SEVERAL CENTRES

MADRID, AUG. 4.—The threatened general strike commenced to-day in several centres, including Barcelona, Murcia, Cadix, Ronda and Alcoy. The general unrest is largely attributed to bad harvests, but the immediate motive for the strike is to reinforce the demand for the release of numerous workmen who have been thrown into prison for offences in connection with recent strikes.

(SPECIAL TO THE TIMES)

MADRID, AUG. 4.—The leaders of the movement are exhorting the members of the trades unions not to return to work until all the imprisoned men have been released.

(SPECIAL TO THE TIMES)

MADRID, AUG. 4.—The Government has taken stringent measures to cope with disturbances. The military forces and the civil guards have been reinforced wherever necessary, and the troops have been confined to barracks. The residence of the Mayor and a number of private houses have been attacked by strikers, who exchanged shots with the gendarmerie.

STREET RAILWAY FARES

A.R.C. Writes That Working Men Should Have a Cheaper Rate

To the Editor of The Times: Dear Sir,—In regard to fares in the street railway system, it is evident that the council would be fully justified in refusing to ratify the agreement as it now stands.

There are a few people who would be in favor of the road at any time, but this is tying up fares for thirty years, and in view of the fact that the company is virtually receiving a large bonus by street lighting contracts, it is only reasonable to expect that workmen's tickets should be sold at a lower rate.

The statement by the company's solicitor is not a guarantee, and may be intended to give the council a false impression as to the workingmen's interests.

If the company are as good as their word, they should have no hesitations in making the rate in the agreement, and so keep faith with the public.

It would be unfair to compel the purchase of $1 worth of tickets to secure the lower rate. These tickets will be used to a large extent in the laboring men whose place of work is constantly changing, and whose wages are much lower than the skilled mechanic, and when the purchase of $1 worth of tickets would be an inconvenience, and also a privation.

They should have the privilege of buying 25 cents worth, and the council should make a strenuous effort to secure this.

With the exception of the workmen's tickets the agreement seems a reasonable fair one, despite what a few interested parties may say. The council deserves credit for bringing it to its present stage, but it cannot meet with public approval unless the workmen's tickets are better provided for. Better to wait five years than to suffer thirty.

Yours truly, A.B.O.

[The following is the clause in the franchise dealing with the rates:

"30.—Ordinary fares including transfer tickets not to exceed five cents each, 25 of one cent for one regular ticket, each ticket to be used between 8 and 9 o'clock a.m. and 12 noon and 1 p.m., and 5 and 6 p.m., shall be at the rate of 6 cents each. Tickets for school children shall be issued in non-transferable form to all children attending the public, separate and high schools upon a written order from the principal of the school which the regular tickets, each ticket to be used during school sessions only, and forfeited if transferred, and school tickets to be issued at the rate of ten for $1. Children of six years of age and under, unaccompanied by an adult, to pay 3c. if accompanied by an adult to pay 5c. for each child."

It will be seen by this that there is a difference of one cent in favor of the person buying a dollar's worth of ordinary tickets, which will be issued at 25 for $1, while a dollar's worth of workingmen's tickets at 6 for $1, will only represent 24 fares."

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and in lieu thereof absolute safety is substituted, and yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

An arrangement has been made with the Trust Company to guarantee to the purchaser the return of amount invested within a given number of years. To substantiate this guarantee they issue to the purchaser of the stock a gold bond, which is secured by first mortgage mortgages deposited with another Trust Company for the specific purpose of securing the bonds the underwriting company issues.

Thus the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer.

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, a most efficient organization, to secure funds for the extensive development of its numerous mining properties and also of its oil lands, offers a limited amount of its Treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Ophir, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done. It is proposed to place as many of these mining properties upon a slipping and self-supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of oil lands in Huerfano County, Colo. In order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Murder of Mohammadans by a Bulgarian Band in Monastir

Strikes are Epidemic, Bribery Scandal in Hungary

London, Aug. 4.—Official Constantinople telegrams report the murder and abduction of a number of Mohammedans by a Bulgarian band in the village of Monastir. The band were well armed with Mauser rifles, and two were officers. Another band of twenty Mohammedans were shot and killed. The third band had five killed while checking the advance of the Turkish troops between Vedoma and Vilashia. Two new bands are reported to have entered the district of Tirovo from Bulgaria.

London, Aug. 3.—Strikes are epidemic in South Russia, and the bulk of the workmen have struck in Batumi, Nikolai, Kharkov, and Rostov. Twenty-five thousand men at Odessa are idle. The crowds of workmen and of factory girls congregated in the principal squares, where most of the shops are closed. Their main grievance is their long hours, inadequate wages, inability to discharge on the most trivial pretext, unsafe system, and firing. The new labor law has given to the strikers confidence that they will almost certainly obtain considerable concessions.

London, Aug. 4.—The Times' Russian correspondent says that the situation at Baku is serious. General Wakh, Assistant Minister of the Interior, has gone there, and a large number of troops have been collected. The conditions of the work are evidently the work of incendiaries and occur daily. Owing to the long suspension of traffic on the Baku-Tiflis Railway intervening towns and villages have suffered from want of provisions. Even Tiflis was without meat for some time. The police seized three large canoes of contraband rifles on board the Volga steamer commanded from Nijni Novgorod to Baku.

Vienne, Aug. 3.—A serious attempt is being made by the main-official press of Austria-Hungary, to suppress the bribery scandal as an incident arranged and instigated by the Hungarian opposition. Unofficial journals on the other hand, argue that Premier Hodorny is not the right man to deal with the situation, which has been allowed to grow up. Premier Hodorny appeared before the Parliament yesterday, and declared that he was acquainted with the scandal, and that he had not been present in the national chamber at the time when the scandal was alleged to have reported to the government. He admitted he had repeatedly conferred with Rasky during the days preceding the attempted bribery, and declared that this interview was of a private not of an official character.

A TREMENDOUS UNDERTAKING

Turning Down 60 Buildings, in New York to Make Room for One

New York, Aug. 3.—In order that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company may build a great station which will meet the needs of the metropolitan, 60 buildings between Third, Fourth and Fifth streets in the city must be destroyed. The work of destruction is well under way, 30 buildings having already been torn down. It will be about a year before the entire 60 buildings will be removed and the ground be clear for the work of construction, and the ordinary years must pass before the great terminal with its station and connecting tunnels will be ready for travel, with a capacity of handling 500,000 passengers daily, after an expenditure of $10,000,000 for the entire work.

Hundreds of structures must be torn down and carted away—buildings that cost all the way from $10,000 to $100,000 up to 50 times that much, ranging in size from a two-story brick house to the seventh avenue Broadway, to a large brown stone church with a tall steeple, on the west corner of Third and Fourth streets. Many of the buildings are ordinary three and four story brick dwellings, often with shops on the first floor and some are quite pretentious brown stone apartment houses. These buildings are being razed at a rate of about $4,000,000.

This vast amount of material is not lost, by any means. It can be used again and again in the new station. It is to be used to build the new station, and that is not half the distance they have to go. They must go at least 100 feet, the best of retaining walls will be comparatively small when compared with the cost of removing the material. The station will be a masterpiece of engineering.

BRUSH WITH CONVICTS

Escaped California criminals are killed

London, Aug. 4.—The police under the direction of Sheriff Kerne, of Gloucestershire, and Sheriff Bagwell, of Gloucestershire, had a brush with the fugitive Johnnie Brown, a convict who was escaped from the prison at Gloucestershire last week. Mrs. Hancock, whose husband, Thomas Hancock, occupies the important official position under Lord Curzon of financial controller of the India Office, sent a letter to the police.

The official explanation offered in the House of Commons was that on seeing the police of Gloucestershire in a very dilapidated condition and bearing in mind the fact that the fugitive was a very dangerous man, the police decided to take action. The fugitive was shot and killed.

IVORY FURNITURE FOR GUN

Indian Viceroy's Methods Questioned by House of Commons

London, Aug. 3.—Lord Curzon's acquisition of the maharajah of Bikaner's private stock of ivory furniture prompted a question in the House of Commons last week. Mrs. Hancock, whose husband, Thomas Hancock, occupies the important official position under Lord Curzon of financial controller of the India Office, sent a letter to the police.

The official explanation offered in the House of Commons was that on seeing the police of Gloucestershire in a very dilapidated condition and bearing in mind the fact that the fugitive was a very dangerous man, the police decided to take action. The fugitive was shot and killed.

A GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and the return absolutely safe and profitable.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What guarantee have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

An arrangement has been made with the Trust Company to guarantee to the purchaser the return of amount invested within a given number of years. To substantiate this guarantee they have to the purchaser of the stock a gold bond, which is secured by first real estate mortgages deposited with another Trust Company for the specific purpose of securing the bonds the underwriting company issues.

Thus the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer:

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, one of the largest and most successful of the extensive development of its numerous mining properties and also of its oil lands, offers a limited amount of its Treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Oriskany Creek, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done.

It is proposed to place as many of these mining properties upon a clipping and self-supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to have wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of all lands in Hinsdale County, Colo., in order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $1.00 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with individual liability. This issue of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Profits have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are usually very great, especially when the stock can be secured at such a low price as this is now offered for. Now is the time to get in before an advance in the price is made.

The new railroad from Denver to Salt Lake, which is now building will be of incalculable benefit to the Company, furnishing transportation for ore and supplies, besides immediately increasing value.

The following report was received by M. J. Cummings & Co., 100 Simcoe street, by direct private wire:

New York, August 8.—The atmosphere around the stock exchange is still clouded with uncertainty. The discussions among professional traders with regard to the outlook will be mixed and conflicting, and under the circumstances speculative traders are depressed to proceed cautiously for the time being. The talk which is now in circulation as to the possibility of a

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and then thereof absolute safety is substituted, and yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What securities have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

An arrangement has been made with the Trust Company to guarantee to the purchaser the return of amount invested within a given number of years. To substantiate this guarantee they issue to the purchaser of the stock a gold bond, which is secured by first real estate mortgages deposited with another Trust Company for the specific purpose of securing the bonds the underwriting company issues.

Thus the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer.

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, one of the best, to secure funds for the extensive development of its numerous mining properties and also of its oil lands, offers a limited amount of its treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Oropesa Creek, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done. It is proposed to place as many of these mining properties upon a stippling and self-supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of oil lands in Montezuma County, Colo., in order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $1.00 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with no individual liability. This issue of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Profits have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are usually very great, especially when the stock can be secured at such low prices as this is now offered for. Now is the time to get in before an advance in the price is made.

The new railroad from Denver to Salt Lake, which is now building will be of incalculable benefit to the Company, furnishing transportation for ore and supplies, besides immediately increasing the value of the property.

OVER 100 DEAD IN A PARIS WRECK, MORE THAN 84 BODIES RECOVERED

From the Scene of the Terrible Disaster, in Electric Railway Tunnel

Train Caught Fire and Passengers Were Cremated or Suffocated

Dreadful Scenes Caused by Relatives of Victims

Paris, Aug. 11.—Eighty-four bodies have been recovered and the death toll probably will exceed one hundred in the underground railway disaster which occurred here last night. The accident which occurred on the Metropolitan Electric Railway, a station of considerable importance, early this morning, has been described in the French press as the most terrible disaster since the war. More than four score bodies of the dead and suffocated victims were removed from the subterranean passage. The work of the police and firemen was hampered by the darkness and the fact that the death list will probably exceed five score.

The scenes at the mouth of the tunnel where the victims were brought out, were of the most heart-rending description. Crowds of weeping men and women struggling forward in an effort to recognize their missing relatives and friends. Most of the victims are from the middle and working classes as the trains were carrying them home from their work.

Although the accident occurred at a late hour of the evening, the officials and firemen were unable until early this morning to descend into the tunnel owing to the blinding clouds of smoke from the burning train. Frequent attempts were made by heroic volunteers when it was necessary to rescue half suffocated to carry away to the hospital.

At ten minutes after three Sergeant Ahrens, wearing a respirator, succeeded in making the descent. He remained in the tunnel for some time, and brought the first information to the effect that corpses were strewn all about the roadway of the tunnel. Then he collapsed and was taken to the hospital. Twenty minutes later firemen forced their way down through the tunnel station at Montmartre, and returned soon after with seven bodies, two men, two young boys, and three women. These persons had been asphyxiated, as their positions showed they had been groping through the smoke, seeking a way to escape, when they were overcome.

The work of bringing up bodies went on steadily after that under the direction of Prefect of Police Lapeze, who commanded a large reserve force to hold

RUSSIA DEMANDS FULL SATISFACTION

For the Murder of Consul Rostkovski at Monastir

WAS RUSSIA ARROGANT?

Account of Occurrence from St. Petersburg

St. Petersburg, August 12.—The Czar has demanded the exemplary punishment not only of the murderer of the Russian Consul at Monastir (who was killed last week by Turkish gendarmes), but all of the military and civil officials in any way responsible for the crime.

The assassination of the Russian Consul at Monastir, M. Rostkovski, the second murder of a Russian consular official in Macedonia within a few months, has created intense indignation here. In reporting the occurrence to the Foreign Office, the Russian Ambassador at Constantinople telegraphed August 8:

"The Russian Consul at Monastir has fallen the victim of an atrocious crime. The Grand Vizier and the Turkish Foreign Minister have come to you with expressions of regret in the name of the Sultan. Ferid Pasha, the Grand Vizier, informed me that the assassin was a gendarme named Halim, and that he will be subjected to the severest punishment, and the body of Monastir will be removed from the spot."

THE Czar's DIRECTIONS.

In reply, Count Lamedoff, the Foreign Minister, telegraphed to the Ambassador, August 8:

"His Majesty has received a telegram from the Sultan expressing his deep regret at the death of the Russian Consul at Monastir. When I submitted your telegram to the Emperor, His Majesty gave orders that you should not confine yourself to receiving explanations from the Grand Vizier, but should take the most energetic demands on the Turkish Government for full satisfaction and immediate and exemplary punishment both of the murderer and of all of the military and civil officials on whom responsibility for the atrocious crime may fall."

THE RUSSIAN ACCOUNT.

According to the report issued by the consul at Constantinople, the murderer is a gendarme. The Consul asked his name, because, in defiance of instructions, the gendarme did not salute him. The gendarme thereupon drew several shots, mortally wounding the Consul in the head and hip. The body drawing the carriage in which the Consul was riding received two bullets, and shots were also fired at the coachman.

ANOTHER STORY.

Belgrade, Serbia, August 12.—According to reports received here, the assassin was a young man named Halim who was using a revolver. He was not a Turk. Thus he struck the Consul with his whip, saying: "Next time, instead of using your whip, you will use your gun."

WHAT WILL BE THE RESULT?

Vienna, August 12.—The murder of the Russian Consul, Rostkovski, aggravated the situation, which is already serious. For the second time within five months a Russian diplomatic representative has been murdered by a Turkish soldier on duty.

Should the murder prove to be an isolated case, it will probably be treated as such. But if it is found to be a part of a general movement, the situation will be very serious. The Russian Consul at Monastir was a man of high standing and his death will be a great loss to the Russian cause in Macedonia.

GAYNOR-GREEN CASE

Quebec, Aug. 10.—Mr. L. A. Taché, M.P., of the firm of Fitzpatrick, Taché, Taché, Roy & Taché, has arrived in Quebec from England where he went in the first week of July last to present the case of John Gaynor and John Green, the two Americans, whose case was called in appeal to the Privy Council. Mr. Taché, in an interview with a correspondent said: "When I reached London I found that, instead of the request for leave to appeal the judgment of Judge Lacombe, the case had been made an international question, in consequence, the Privy Council, in courtesy to the United States Government, could not refuse the request for permission to appeal, and as soon as we understood the situation, we willingly agreed to the granting of the request. No comments whatever were expressed on the merits of the case. Sir Edward Clarke, who has taken leave to appeal, telling his reasons, and after he was done, Mr. Asquith, Attorney General, concurred willingly in the leave to appeal, in order to have the case argued on its merits, and a judgment rendered that could close the matter forever."

LABOR ARGUMENT.

Anti-Colonialist papers are making much of the appeal addressed by the labor members of the British House of Commons to workmen in Canada, Australia and Newfoundland.

A PLAINTIVE APPEAL.

Chamberlainian journals, on the other hand, call it an unnecessary appeal, and say: "Colonial workmen will hardly be much impressed by the plaintive appeal that Britain should not be asked to do herself injury by taxing foreign food imports, while differentiating in favor of colonial products."

Canada's Loyalty to Great Britain, No Trace of Annexation Here

Who Thoroughly Understands the Need of the Various Great Colonies

Montreal, August 12.—"Since the Home Rule question sprung on the English electorate by the late Mr. W. M. Gladstone, there has never been a matter of such importance to be decided by the people as that of the preferential trade proposals of Mr. Chamberlain. The Education bill, which is a political measure of a great degree, but the measure feeling on both sides of British politics with regard to the proposed change in the tariff has swept all other questions into the background."

These were the words of Mr. Bryce Bennett, who was in the city yesterday. Mr. Bennett was at one time member of the House of Commons, and is now in the United States, and is, therefore, an authority on things political. In conversation with a reporter, Mr. Bennett gave a concise description of the conditions that exist in the realm of British politics from the standpoint of an ex-member of the British House.

"What is the report that the sudden declaration of Mr. Chamberlain for an immediate change of tariff is merely a red herring to attract the attention of the electors from the Education bill?"

"I do not think there is much truth in that rumor. One hears all sorts of reports as to the motives of a Government, the present proposal to change the tariff in the affairs of the country. There is no doubt that the Education bill of the Government aroused the most intense feeling among the Non-conformists of England, and the last word has not been spoken in the matter. There is not the slightest doubt that Mr. Chamberlain is intensely

COPETE MINING CO.

37 William Street, New York
 Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5
 More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but also rich in gold that they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy pipe, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter in a short run produced something over $100,000. The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them are: Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Seymour W. Tallach, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Greene Consolidated; Mr. Edwin D. Treadwell, Mining Engineer and Geologist and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now clear and unimpaired title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A portion of the Treasury stock is offered for sale to complete the development and equipment of the property—now for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 37 William Street, New York.

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 30 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.

Want to know of one running from $5.00 to $100.00 per ton. Five shipments of one to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $75.00 to $100.00 per ton. This is not a five per cent. a month advance, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than any other mine or prospect in the world. No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the fore-sight that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your fore-sight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock sold at par. The new Mining Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the stock at present price. It will soon be 50 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mines and returned full of enthusiasm. The mines are turning out much richer than expected.

It can offer the stock for a short time only at 90 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TODAY—to-morrow it may slip your memory. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 75% per month.

Patty's Predicament.

By JEAN WEBSTER

"HILLO, Patty! Have you read the headline-board this morning?" called Cathy. "Pat, as she caught up with Patty on the way home from a third-hour recitation."

"No," said Patty. "I think it's a bad habit. You see too many unpleasant things there."

"Well, there's certainly an unpleasant one to-day. Miss Skelling wishes the Old English class to be provided with writing materials this afternoon."

Patty stopped with a groan. "I think it's absolutely abominable to give an examination without a word of warning."

"Not an examination," quoth Cathy. "Just a little test to see how much you know."

"I don't know a thing," wailed Patty. "Two hours!" said Patty, sadly. "I need two days. I've never learned it, I tell you. The Anglo-Saxon grammar is a thing no mortal can carry in his head and I thought I might as well wait and learn it before examinations."

"I don't wish to appear unprepared," laughed Cathy, "but I should say, my dear, that it serves you right."

"Oh, I dare say," said Patty. "You are as bad as Priscilla," and she trailed gloomily homeward.

She found her friends reviewing biology and eating olives. "Have one!" asked Lucille Carter, who, provided with a halp in way of fork, was presiding over the books for the moment.

"No, thanks," returned Patty, in the tone of one who has exhausted life and lungs for death.

"What's the matter?" enquired Priscilla. "You don't mean to say that the man has given you another special topic?"

"Weren't that?" and Patty laid bare the tragedy.

A sympathetic silence followed; they realized that while she was, perhaps, not strictly deserving of sympathy, still her impending fate was of the kind that might overtake anyone.

"You know, Priscilla," said Patty, miserably, "that I simply can't read. I don't believe you can."

"I shall think you're absolutely flat," Miss Skelling will never have any confidence in me again, and will make me sit every bit of grammar for the rest of the semester."

"I should think you'd cut," ventured George; that being, in her opinion, the most obvious method of escaping an examination.

"I can't. I just met Miss Skelling in the hall five minutes before the blow fell and she knows I'm alive and able to be about; besides, the class meets again to-morrow morning, and I have to cram all night or cut that too."

"Why don't you go to Miss Skelling and frankly explain the situation," suggested Lucille the virtuous, "and ask her to let you off for a day or two?"

"Will you listen to the guileless babe!" said Patty. "What is there to explain, may I ask? I can't very well tell her that I prefer not to learn the lessons as she gives them out, but I think it easier to wait and cram them up at one fell swoop just before examinations. That would ingratiate myself in her favor!"

"It's your own fault," said Priscilla. "Patty groaned. 'I was just waiting to hear you say that! You always do.'"

"We always true. Where are you going?" as Patty started for the door.

"I am going," said Patty, "to ask Mr. Richards to give me a new room-mate; one who will understand and appreciate me, and sympathize with my afflictions."

Patty walked gloomily down the corridor, lost in meditation. Her way led past the door of the doctor's office which was standing invitingly open.

Three or four girls were sitting around the table, laughing and talking and waiting their turn. Patty glanced in and a radiant smile suddenly lightened her face, but it was instantly replaced by a look of settled sadness. She walked in and dropped into an arm-chair with a sigh.

"What's the matter, Patty! You look as if you had melancholia."

Patty smiled apologetically. "Not quite so bad as that," she murmured, and leaned back and closed her eyes.

"Next," said the doctor from the doorway, but as she caught sight of Patty she walked over and shook her arm.

"What's the matter, Patty? What is the matter with you, child?"

Patty opened her eyes with a start. "Nothing," she said; "I'm just a little tired."

"Come in here with me," said the doctor. "It's not my turn," objected Patty. "That makes no difference," returned the doctor.

Patty dropped limply into the consulting chair.

"Let me see your tongue. Um—um—um! coated very much. Your pulse seems regular, though possibly a trifle feverish. Have you been working hard?"

"I don't think I've been working any harder than usual," said Patty, truthfully.

"Sitting up late nights?"

Patty considered. "I was up rather late from last night," she confessed. "If you give permit in studying until all hours of the night, I don't know what my doctors can do."

Patty did not think it necessary to mention that it was a Welsh rabbit party on each occasion, so she merely sighed and looked out of the window.

"Is your appetite good?"

"Yes," said Patty, in a tone which belied the words; "it seems to be very good."

"Um—um," said the doctor.

"I'm just a little tired," asserted Patty. "I have a good deal to do. I've got to cram for an examination, and—"

"The word 'cram' was in the doctor's ear, and he said, 'I know what I shall do with you. You are going right over to the infirmary for a few days.'"

"The doctor?" Patty pleaded, with tears in her eyes. "I have truly nothing to do with me, and I've got to take that examination."

"What examination is it?"

"Old English—Miss Skelling."

"I will see Miss Skelling myself," said the doctor, "and explain that you cannot take the examination until you come out. And now," she added, making a note of Patty's case, "I will have you put in the convalescent ward, and will try the rest cure for a few days, and feed you up on chicken-broth and egg-nog, and see if we can get that appetite back."

"Thank you," said Patty, with the resigned air of one who has given up struggling against the inevitable.

"I like to see you take an interest in your work," added the doctor, kindly; "but you must always remember, my dear, that health is the first consideration."

Patty returned to the study and executed an impromptu dance in the middle of the floor.

"What's the matter?" exclaimed Priscilla. "Are you crazy?"

"No," said Patty; "only ill." And she went into her bedroom and began singing things into a dress-suit case.

Priscilla stood in the doorway, and watched her in amusement. "Are you going to New York?" she asked.

"No," said Patty; "to the infirmary."

"Patty Wyatt, you're a wretched little hypocrite!"

"Not at all," said Patty, cheerfully. "I didn't ask to go, but the doctor simply insisted. I told her I had an examination, but she said it didn't make any difference; health must be the first consideration."

"What's in that bottle?" demanded Priscilla.

"That's for my appetite," said Patty with a grin; "the doctor says it will prove. I didn't like to discourage her, but I don't much believe she can." She dropped an Old English grammar and a copy of "Beowulf" into her suitcase.

"They won't let you study," said Priscilla.

"I shall not ask them," said Patty. "Good-by. Tell the girls to drop in occasionally and see me in my convalescent room. Visiting hours from five to six. She stuck her head in and said, 'If any one wants to send violets, I think they might cheer me up.'"

The next afternoon George and Priscilla presented themselves at the infirmary, and were met at the door by the smiling figure of the head nurse. "I will see if Miss Wyatt is awake," she said dubiously, "but I am afraid you will excite her; she's to be kept very quiet."

"Oh, never worry," said the nurse, "restored to her good health, and the two girls slipped in after a while."

The convalescent ward was a large airy room, furnished in green and white with four or five beds, each surrounded with brass poles and curtains. Patty was lying on one of the corner beds, and a window, propped up on pillows, with her hair tumbled about her face, and a table beside her covered with flowers and glasses of medicine.

This elaborate paraphernalia created a cheerful and comfortable atmosphere in the minds of the visitors. Priscilla ran to the bedside and dropped on her knees beside her invalid room-mate.

"Patty, dear," she said, anxiously, "how do you feel?"

"A terrific smile spread over Patty's face. 'I've been able to take a little nourishment to-day,' she said."

"Patty, you're a scandalous humbug!" Who knew those violets? "With love from Lady Clara Vere de Vere—that blessed freshman—and you've borrowed every drop of alcohol the poor child ever thought of owning. And we are there to see if Miss Skelling! Patty, you ought to be ashamed."

"Patty had the grace to blush slightly. 'I was a trifle embarrassed,' she admitted; "but when I reflected upon how sorry she would have been to find out how little I know, and how glad she will be to find out how much I know, my conscience was appeased."

"Have you been studying?" asked George.

"Studying!" Patty lifted up the corner of her pillow and exhibited a blue book. "Two days more of this, and I shall be the chief authority in America on Anglo-Saxon roots."

"How do you manage it?"

"Oh," said Patty, "when the rest-house begins to do down and shut my eyes, and they tip-toe over and look at me, and whisper, 'she's asleep,' and softly draw the curtains around the bed; and I get out the book and put in two solid hours of irregular verbs, and am still sleeping when they come to look at me. They're perfectly astonished at the amount. I sleep, but the nurse tells the doctor that she didn't believe I'd had any sleep for a month. And the word of it is," she added, "that I am tired, whether you believe it or not, and I should just love to stay over here and sleep all day if I weren't so beastly conscientious about that old grammar."

"Poor Patty!" laughed George. "She will be imposing on herself next, as well as on the whole college."

Friday morning Patty returned to the world.

"Now's Old English!" enquired Priscilla.

"Very well, thank you. It was something of a cram, but I think I know that grammar by heart, from the pre-laps to the index."

"You're back in all your other work. Do you think it paid?"

"That remains to be seen," laughed Patty.

She knelt on Miss Skelling's bed, and, after the first polite protest, stated all her case. "I should like to say, my dear, that I am very grateful to you for taking the examination I missed."

"Do you feel able to take it to-day?"

"I feel much better able to take it to-day than I did on Tuesday. It is so pleasant for you, to take the examination I missed."

Miss Skelling smiled kindly. "You have done very good work in Old English this semester, Miss Wyatt, and I should not ask you to take the examination at all if I thought it would be fair to the rest of the class."

"Fair to the rest of the class?" Patty looked a trifle blank; she had not considered this aspect of the question, and a slow red flush crept over her face. She hesitated a moment, and rose unaccountably. "When it comes to that, Miss Skelling," she confessed, "I'm afraid I wouldn't be quite fair to the rest of the class for me to take it."

Miss Skelling did not understand. "But, Miss Wyatt," she expostulated, "I promised her; it was not difficult. I am sure you could pass."

Patty smiled. "I am sure I could, Miss Skelling. I don't believe you could ask me a question that I couldn't answer. But I don't think I shall let it all be heard about Tuesday. The doctor was laboring under a little delusion—very natural under the circumstances—when she said she to the infirmary, and I spent my time there studying."

"But, Miss Wyatt, this is very strange. I shall not know how to mark you," Miss Skelling murmured in some distress.

"Oh, mark me," said Patty, cheerfully. "I don't think it will be heard about Tuesday. The doctor was laboring under a little delusion—very natural under the circumstances—when she said she to the infirmary, and I spent my time there studying."

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and in which the absolute safety is established, and yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering the Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

An arrangement has been made with the Trust Company to guarantee to the purchaser the return of amount invested within a given number of years. To illustrate this guarantee they issue to the purchaser of the stock a gold bond, which is secured by first real estate mortgages deposited with another Trust Company for the specific purpose of securing the bonds the underwriting Company issues.

Thus the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer.

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, among other things, to secure funds for the extensive development of its numerous mining properties and also of its oil lands, offers a limited amount of its Treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Chippie Creek, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of work has been done. It is proposed to place as many of these mining properties upon a selling and self-supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of all lands in Huerfano County, Colo., in order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $100 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with individual liability. This issue of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Partners have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are usually very great, especially when the stock can be secured at such a low price as this is now offered for. Now is the time to get in before an advance in the price is made.

The new railroad from Denver to Salt Lake, which is now building will be of incalculable benefit to the Company, furnishing transportation for ore and supplies, besides immediately increasing values.

A SPLENDID PROPOSITION

The Anaconda Gold Mining Company for sale.

Few opportunities of so promising a character for investment as that offered by the Anaconda Gold Mining Company, the self-sufficiency of which appears elsewhere in The Times. The company is offered by men of high business integrity, and the outlook is most promising for the investor.

The President is F. H. Harbord, Esq., of Chicago, Ill.; the Secretary, W. E. Hahn, of Lead, South Dakota; the Treasurer, C. L. Wallace, of Chicago, Ill.; the Superintendent, Nels Nels of Lead, South Dakota. These men with F. Harbord, of Chicago, Ill., constitute the directorate.

An added in the prospectus, the offering of the company has been made a matter of careful selection. Every successful mining enterprise possesses two distinct classes of officials—the one class of broad, practical experience in organizing, financing and conducting great undertakings, and the other men familiar with the needs and requirements of the mining industry. The Chicago contingent of the company's officers are all men of proven integrity and acknowledged ability. They have all been trained in just the sort of business and the conduct of such an enterprise as that which the company has in hand. The Lead contingent furnishes the practical mining side of the business. The Secretary and Superintendent have spent years in the gold fields and are conversant with every phase of mining life and activity. As regards the officials, therefore, there is no need to say more.

The Anaconda property consists of 600 acres of 32 claims, and is one of the most valuable in the country. The tract lies five and a half miles from the town of Lead, and is situated directly between the wonderful Homestake mine and the Clover Leaf mine.

Throughout the five and a half miles intervening between the former magnificent property and the Anaconda mine the same rich vein of gold-bearing quartz is easily traceable. As the Anaconda mine is situated on the great Homestake belt, being located directly between the wonderful Homestake mine and the Clover Leaf mine.

First Class Mining Proposition.

The Anaconda Gold Mining Co.

Home Office: 412 Merchants Loan and Trust Bldg.
135 Adams Street, Chicago, Ill.

This is one of the best propositions ever placed before the Canadian investor. The Company owns 600 acres in the celebrated Black Hills District, South Dakota, comprising 32 claims. The tract is situated between the wonderful Homestake mine and the Clover Leaf mine. Two shafts have already been sunk, the main one being down 100 feet, with capacity of going 1000 feet. The Company has also installed an Ingersoll-Sargent air compressor and drill, 125 horse power boiler, steam pump, and in fact everything needed for actual operation. With the exception of its stamp mills; which will be installed at once. The vein of gold-bearing quartz traversing the Company's property is very rich. Assays have run from $5 to $50 per ton.

The Company has a capital of 1,000,000 shares, divided into 700,000 preferred and 300,000 common, par value $1 per share, fully paid up and non-assessable. The treasury stock has been made preferred stock to the amount of 25 cents a share. Out of the first dividend 25 cents per share will be paid to the owners of this preferred stock before holders of common stock receive any share of the profits. After the 25 cents has been paid to the shareholders of preferred stock, then all alike share in the dividends. This means making more than the first investors in the enterprise will have all their money returned to them before any dividends are declared to the rank and file of investors.

How Are Your Kidneys?

This Simple Test Will Tell

If any of your family have been troubled with kidney disease, mark at least of the urine, and satisfy yourself whether you need a real remedy before the disease has caused serious complications.

To-morrow morning put some coffee in a glass or bottle, and let it stand for twenty-four hours. If it shows particles or germs floating about, in milk or cloudy, or contains a reddish sediment, then your kidneys are diseased.

Chances are once taken, Ferron's to arrest them. Unnatural conditions, especially in the case of the immediate removal of the kidneys and bladder troubles, and the health giving, strengthening properties will be felt at once in new pure blood, healthy circulation, good color, increased vigor, and a general strengthening of the system.

Ferron's quickly corrects urinal disorders, headache, and pain in the back. It improves the appetite, digests the food, and makes it nourish the nerves, makes them strong and enduring, and fits one for lots of hard work.

Don't be misled by cheap, so-called kidney cures offered by dealers for the sake of extra profits. There is only one safe and reliable specific bladder, liver, and urinal troubles, and its name is Ferron's.

Refuse point blank to accept a substitute, and insist on your right, getting the genuine Ferron's; it is the best. Price 50 cts. per box, or three boxes for $1.35. All druggists or by mail from N. C. Ferron & Co., Kingston, Ont.

The Lacrosse Match

The lacrosse match at the Oval this afternoon will be witnessed by one of the largest crowds ever in attendance at a game in Peterborough. Over 500 tickets had been sold up to yesterday evening.

The Terrible

A meeting of the members of the T. C. Club was held last night, and business in connection with the race meet held on Aug. 15 and 16th transacted. The members are delighted with the results of the race, having come out ahead of their expectations regardless of counter attractions.

A Large Fish

The Times yesterday showed a very large whitefish by Mr. Oake, the well known fish merchant. The fish was caught in Lake Huron, and weighed after being cleaned, eleven and a half pounds. It measured 33 inches in length.

The New Team

The work on the dam at Dickson's is progressing favorably. The placing of the additional concrete piers on the Ashburnham side of the river will be completed with all ease. The excavation of the new roadway will be completed next month.

For the Camp

Misses Echo: Mr. Walter Haynes left last night on Wednesday with a large party of men to go into the woods of the Dickson Co. to commence cutting logs in the town of Dickson.

Behind the Scenes

An interesting feature of the Wine Clarke's excursion will be a baseball match between the barbers and Wine Clarke. Remember, Thursday, 19th.

Around the Lakes

The Peterborough Lodge of Oddfellows have arranged for their delightful excursion around the Kawartha Lakes to take place on Thursday, August 24th, (Civic Holiday). A special train will leave the Grand Trunk station at 7:30 a.m. for Lindsay. Where the splendid excursion steamer Kenosha will convey the excursionists to Lakefield. NEW GRANOLITHIC WALK

The George Street Church Building Now Approaching

Mr. Erasmus Green is busily engaged in laying a granolithic walk at the George Street Methodist church. The walk is being built both at the front and rear, and also along the south side of the church.

OUR NEW STORY

A Thrilling New Serial to Appear in The Times

We are pleased to be able to announce that we have arranged for the appearance in "The Times" of the thrilling story entitled "Rolf House". This is one of the most interesting serials that has ever appeared in print.

A PROPOSITION OF MERIT

Mr. F. H. Lathrop, of Salt Lake City, in Town

Mr. F. H. Lathrop, of Salt Lake City, Utah, is in town, agent at the Oriental Hotel. Mr. Lathrop is arranging for the representation of the "Rolf House" serial, which are, we believe, among the best on the market.

It is altogether probable that Canadian investors will have an early opportunity of securing stocks through a local Canadian agent.

A SHANTYMAN'S ANXIETY

That no Protestants be Appointed Pope of Rome

A shantyman named Bajare, who had been away for a few months in the woods above Lindsay, returned to town last week, and put up at the Munro House. After he had been welcomed by the proprietor, he asked George if anything further had happened since his absence.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Five Pictures of the Old Peterborough Lacrosse Club

There is displayed in the window of Messrs. E. Brown & Co. grocers, a very fine photo of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club of 1883, when the team held the championship of Northeastern Ontario. The work was executed by Mr. G. K. White, the well known photographer, and reflects credit on his ability as an artist.

A VICIOUS FIGHT

Two Young Boys Fought Each Other for an Hour

The Times is informed that a disgraceful fight took place last night between two young boys on a principal street in the lower part of the town. These boys were in earnest in their pugilistic encounter and fought it out by "rounds" until a passer-by interfered and threatened to call the police, and the pugilists fled in confusion.

BURLEIGH FALLS HOTEL

Crowded with Visitors from All Parts of the County

Yesterday Mr. Fred. Barry, of Burleigh Falls Hotel, was in town and gave The Times a friendly call. Mr. Barry says there are about 100 guests now staying at this place on the lake. The trouble has been to find accommodations for the people who are here. Many applications for board and lodging have to be declined.

A Buggy Boy

A lady and gentleman were driven down Water street on Monday night, and as the nearest electric light was some distance away they failed to see a pile of gravel, about three feet high, stretched out in their way. The buggy, which had been left there by the workmen who are laying a pavement along the George Street church, the front wheel of the carriage struck the pile of gravel, and the carriage was at once upset, and its occupants thrown to the ground.

The man held on to the lines, and the horse was stopped, preventing further injury. Neither of the occupants of the rig were badly hurt, a few cuts and bruises being the extent of their injuries.

Up to Date and Convenient Service to Chicago and Toledo

Passengers can leave Peterborough by 11:05 a.m. Grand Trunk train, connecting at Toronto with International Limited, for Detroit, Chicago, and western points. The train carries Pullman car through to Chicago and Cade Parlor car Toronto to Detroit. Train leaving Peterborough 6:30 p.m. daily, except Sunday, connects at Toronto with Fast Night Express, carrying Pullman car to Detroit and through to Chicago.

Excellent service to White Mountain and Sea Side resorts. Call on J. W. Burton, C. P. & T. A. for tickets and illustrated and descriptive literature of tourist resorts reached via Grand Trunk.

WARRIED

TULY-CHAMBERS-AT Montreal, on Montreal, 24th July, by the Rev. James Mack, R.A., minister of the Free Presbyterian church, assisted by the Rev. D. A. Thomson, Hastings, the Rev. Geo. Yule, of Springfield, Ont., to Catherine Chambers, Ambrose, Perth, Ontario, Scotland.

"BASS ARE BITING AND FISHING'S FINE"

G. F. A. Callaway of the Lake charged with fishing on the lake.

"Bass are biting, and the fishing's fine."

That's the catchy announcement on the cover of a fishing folder issued by W. B. Callaway, general passenger agent of the Geo. Line, and through many men are looking his work and taking a run up along the road, on the banks of some river or lake for a few days' fishing and rest.

They are looking for a good place to get the fish, as a result of following Mr. Callaway's instructions.

Mr. Callaway's short, crisp, but poetical phrase, is attracting attention all over, and the attractive poster and coloring from poetry by J. B. Callaway, describing the beauty of trout, muskellunge, and how to catch them, etc., has furnished inspiration for Post Laureate Foley, in the Homestead Tribune. In his paper Foley writes:

My Dear Mr. Callaway: Sir, if you please,

Pray send me no more of your primers, like those.

The pictures are good and the printing is fine;

You point all the charms of the road and the line

So faithfully, sir, that I sit and I sigh

For a seat in a boat, and the water close by.

But when, sir, can work, when you are fully paid?

Temptations in fishing to borrow a bait!

What man, be he human, but yearns for the reel

Of the rod and the hum of the line and the veel!

You come to my desk with your primer and say:

"The bass fishing's fine"—and I can't get away.

I sit and dream of your lakes—I can feel

The quiver that thrills me—the quiver of reel.

When a big fish is "struck" and the swirl of the line

As it flounders in the water—ah, isn't it fine!

Then I sigh my eyes—at my time—place I look—

I've lost half an hour through your comforted book!

So now, Mr. Callaway, surely you'll see

You should forward no more of your primers to me.

The like fruit that once dangled o'er "Tantalus' head."

Pray send me none work on dental instead.

To prove that the fool is the wise man who shirks

And the wise man is the dumpest who stops bus and works.

A Sportsman's Notes

There is no more delightful place in the Western Hemisphere for outdoor life and perfect sport with rod and gun than the famous Muskellunge Lake region of the "Highlands of Ontario" about 100 miles north of Toronto. Choosing in one of the many places the district affords.

The Grand Trunk reaches to with ease and comfort, whirling its passengers through some of the grandest scenery on earth.

Headquarters, illustrated, descriptive matter sent free to any address on application to J. D. McDonald, District Passenger Agent Grand Trunk Railway, Toronto.

"I've Lost Ten Pounds"

A man says, "Look at this." And he shows his coat to show how loose it is.

There are some people who can lose fat to advantage, but the loss of flesh is one of the accepted evidences of failing health. As flesh-eating processes begin in the stomach, so naturally when there is loss of flesh we look first to the stomach for the cause.

And the cause is generally found to be disease of the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts, resulting in loss of nutrients and consequent physical weakness.

Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery restores the lost flesh by curing diseases of the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts, resulting in loss of nutrients and consequent physical weakness.

The perfect digestion and assimilation of food from which flesh and strength are made.

"My wife was for six years troubled with indigestion and nervousness, and she lost ten pounds in weight."

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and the most absolute safety is maintained, and yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

An arrangement has been made with the Trust Company to guarantee to the purchaser the return of amount invested within a given number of years. To substantiate this guarantee they issue to the purchaser a gold bond, which is secured by first rate estate mortgages deposited with another Trust Company for the specific purpose of securing the bonds the underwriting company issues.

Thus the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer.

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done. It is proposed to place as many of these mining properties upon a shipping and oil supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of oil lands in Huron County, Ohio, in order to accomplish (the Company will sell some of its).

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Uguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $1.00 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with no individual liability. This issue of this best low priced guaranteed stock on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Particulars have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are mostly very good, especially when the stock can be secured at such a low price as this is now offered for. Now is the time to get in before an advance in the price is made.

The new railroad from Denver to Salt Lake, which is now building will be of incalculable benefit to the Company, furnishing transportation for ore and supplies, besides immediately increasing value.

STOCK MARKETS

The following report was received by M. J. Cummings & Co., 106 Simcoe street, by direct private wire:

New York, Aug. 12, 10 a.m.—There was further improvement evident in the stock exchange quarter to-day. There was some uneasiness on the part of bears, and short contracts were covered with unusual liberality. The London market was stronger and active business had fair success. Extra earnings were favorable. The return for the first week August attracted special attention. The thirty-day situation was figured as more satisfactory as there was a promise for early adjustment of gold to new loan.

At the close of the day, the market was somewhat unsettled, but the general feeling was one of confidence. The market was somewhat unsettled, but the general feeling was one of confidence. The market was somewhat unsettled, but the general feeling was one of confidence.

OF INTEREST TO THE FARMER

Stable manure for the fruit trees is like corn meal and timothy for milk cows. It is not a waste of money, and does not produce bad results for the expense. The contrast is especially striking in the peach orcharding. The manure-fed tree is rank and green, but weak and short-lived. The tree fed on chemicals with not too much nitrogen looks less rank, and the bark and limbs are more like those of an apple tree in appearance, so firm and close is their texture. They last from two to four times longer than the overrank tree.

Sheep Need Salt.

A test of the value of salt for sheep has recently been made in France. Three lots were treated alike as to food and care; one lot was given no salt; one had half an ounce per day, and the third had three-fourths of an ounce per day. Those having the half-ounce per day made a gain of 4½ pounds over the lot which had no salt. Others much over those having three-fourths of an ounce. Those having salt made 1½ pounds more wool than those having no salt. There were twelve sheep in each lot.

Co-operative Testing of Dairy Herds Wanted.

Last winter the Dominion Department of Agriculture called attention to the co-operative system of testing dairy herds which prevails in Denmark, and recommended the establishment of a somewhat similar system among Canadian farmers. At the present time dairymen are finding it almost impossible to get milkers, and it is more necessary than ever before that they should not waste time feeding and milking inferior cows. That the time is opportune for concerted action to improve the standard of our dairy herds can scarcely be doubted. A recent letter from Mr. Dan Drummond of the Department of Agriculture tells of the feeling in Quebec in regard to this question. He mentions several breeders in the neighborhood of Deserres who are very anxious to have a system of records of production established, and kept under reliable supervision. These breeders are giving up the keeping of private records, because, as they say, the fact that such records are satisfactory only to themselves, and are so easily falsified that buyers put no confidence in them. If any system could be devised under which the records would be recognized as official and reliable, the breeders mentioned would be quite willing to assist in making it a success.

Mr. Drummond continues: "This is a five question all through the Province. I have been asked by Mr. St. John, the Secretary of the Farmers' Club, who told me that they had just concluded their competition for the best milk cows; that is, the cows giving the largest amount of milk in the last year, and he was asking me to assist in making it a success."

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and the interest absolutely guaranteed. This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

Our plan is to offer to you, the investor, the same amount of our investment in absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to you.

An arrangement has been made with the Trust Company to guarantee to the purchaser the return of amount invested within a given number of years. To substantiate this guarantee (they issue to the purchaser of the stock a gold bond, which is secured by first real estate mortgages deposited with another Trust Company for the specific purpose of securing the bonds the underwriting company issues.

Thus the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer.

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, a mining and oil company, to secure funds for the extensive development of its numerous mining properties and also of its oil lands, offers a limited amount of its Treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Cripple Creek, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done. It is proposed to place as many of these mining properties upon a slapping and self-supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of oil lands in Huerfano County, Colo., in order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $1.00 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with no individual liability. This issue of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Profits have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be made by investing at the right time. The profit on this kind of an investment is usually very good, especially when the stock can be secured at a low price as this is now offered for. Now is the time to get in before an advance in the price is made.

The new railroad from Denver to Salt Lake, which is now building will be of incalculable benefit to the Company, furnishing transportation for ore and supplies, besides immediately increasing values.

OF INTEREST TO THE FARMER

Stable manure for the fruit trees is like corn meal and timothy for milk cows. It is not a square meal, and does not produce best results for the expense. The contrast is especially striking in the peach orchard.

The manure-fed tree is rank and green, but weak and short-lived. The tree fed on chemicals with not too much nitrogen looks less rank, and the bark and limbs are more like those of an apple tree in appearance, so firm and close in their texture. They last from two to four times longer than the overrank tree.

Shop Need Salt.
A test of the value of salt for sheep has recently been made in France. Three lots were treated alike as to food and care; one lot was given no salt; one half an ounce per day, and the third had three-fourths of an ounce per day. Those having the half-ounce per day made a gain of 4½ pounds over those having no salt, and the third lot, those having three-fourths of an ounce per day made 7½ pounds more wool than those having no salt. There were twelve sheep in each lot.

Co-operative Testing of Dairy Herds Wanted.
Last winter the Dominion Department of Agriculture called attention to the co-operative system of testing dairy herds which prevails in Denmark, and recommended the establishment of a somewhat similar system among Canadian farmers. At the present time dairymen are finding it almost impossible to get milkers, and it seems more necessary than ever before that they should not waste time feeding and milking inferior cows. That the time is opportune for concerted action to improve the standard of our dairy herds has been pointed out. A recent letter from Mr. Dan Drummond of the Department of Agriculture tells of the feeling in Quebec in regard to this question. He mentions several breeders in the neighborhood of Quebec who are very anxious to have a system of records of production established, and kept under reliable supervision. These breeders are giving up the keeping of private records, because, as they say, the fact of milking a cow is satisfactory only to themselves, and are so easily misled that buyers put no confidence in them. If any system could be devised under which the records would be kept by a central authority, the breeders mentioned would be quite willing to assist in making it a success. Mr. Drummond continues: "This is a five question all through the Province where I have met the breeders. I have met the Secretary of the Farmers' Club, who told me that they had just concluded their competition for the best milk cows; that is, the cows giving the largest amount of milk in a given time, and at home, under supervision. They had thirteen cows in the competition, the best giving 40 pounds, and the poorest 20 pounds, of milk in the day, a showing of 200 pounds of milk in the day. The best cow was a Canadian. The Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Making Vials on Skim Milk.
One of the important by-products of the dairy farm is the skim milk, the farmer will find it very profitable to use in the most economical manner. A large proportion of the skim milk among creameries is sold when a few days old as a vialing cream. Yet these vials are being sold at home, and made a handsome profit out of the skim milk by feeding it to the male calves, and turning them at 5 to 6 weeks of age.

A Massachusetts farmer describes how he does it in a recent communication to The American Cultivator. He says:

"I do not seem to be generally known that first-class vials can be made on a basis of sweet skim milk. Yet a great many calves reach the market as vials, and it is not until they are a few days old that the farmer realizes that he has been making a handsome profit out of the skim milk by feeding it to the male calves, and turning them at 5 to 6 weeks of age.

"I have been feeding my calves with skim milk for some time, and have found it very profitable. I have been feeding my calves with skim milk for some time, and have found it very profitable. I have been feeding my calves with skim milk for some time, and have found it very profitable.

IF YOU HAVE CATARRH

Remember the best Catarrh medicine that money can buy is Catarrhine; it cures quickly and permanently when all else fails.

The remedy does not exist that will cure Catarrh as quickly as Catarrhine. It relieves the most stubborn case in a short time, and drives the disease so thoroughly from the system that it never returns.

Druggists readily recommend Catarrhine in preference to other remedies, because they know it is the best, and every progressive doctor prescribes it for the same good reason.

Catarrhine is a rational, common-sense treatment that finds favor with everybody. It cures by the stimulation of medicated air, which comes into contact with the mucous surface of all the breathing organs. It gets at the source of the trouble, kills the germs and drives every vestige of catarrh right out of the system.

It doesn't matter how deep-seated or chronic your case may be. Catarrhine can cure it. Even though a thousand other remedies have failed, don't give up hope till you have used Catarrhine. It has cured other cases probably worse than yours, and will cure yours if it gets a chance.

Mr. Dethlefsen, a prominent citizen of Italy, writes: "I am a sufferer from Catarrh of the throat. I have tried all the remedies I could get, but Catarrhine was the first to give me relief. It cured me and I am with pleasure testifying to its merits as a cure for Catarrh of the throat."

MARRIED IN MONTREAL

Baptists of Rev. Geo. Yule and Miss Catherine

A very interesting event took place in Montreal on Tuesday, July 29, when Rev. George Yule, Springfield, and Miss Catherine (Thompson) Chalmers, Ambler, were united in marriage by the Rev. J. H. Black, B.A., of Knox Presbyterian church, assisted by Rev. D. A. Thompson, Hamilton.

MUNICIPAL TELEPHONES

Very Satisfactory Experience of Fort

There are a lot of people who are continually howling at municipal telephone, and eternally complaining what they choose to call a "monopoly."

The experience of Peterborough one year ago, when an operation of the telephone system was installed by the Ontario Telephone Company, will not be forgotten. It was then demonstrated that such an institution could not be made to pay, even when controlled by local business men.

The Town of Fort Williams is having a very interesting experience. The town went into the telephone business and is now sorry for it. The writer in the Times of a month or two ago, in the "municipal telephone" article, pointed out the fact that the telephone system had been administered with inefficiency and ineptitude, culminating in the destruction of the town hall, with its valuable records, a costly loss, in which the town has been financially ruined, and today we have another breakdown in the electric light plant, simply through sheer mismanagement.

TWO MEN DROWNED

James Woodruff and John Elgie at Honey Lake

Two lamentable drowning accidents took place on Honey Lake on Tuesday. The first happened in the evening about 7 o'clock, and the victim was a man named James Woodruff, who is said to be from Bradford. He has been acting as a guide to the tourists and conveying travellers from one point on the lake to another. He had taken a man from Bradford to Mount Judson, and when on the return trip, as they were about midway between Eagle Mountain and Eastwood's Island, the canoe in some way upset. The lake was quite calm and it is not known what was the cause of the upsetting. Some of the campers on Eastwood's island saw the accident and immediately launched a boat and went to the rescue of the unfortunate men. The body of Woodruff was recovered before Woodruff could be taken into the boat he sank.

A Silly Charge

At the police court yesterday morning

A lady was charged with owning a dog which had bitten the complainant. The defendant claimed that the dog was not her property, and that she was therefore not responsible for its actions. The case was dismissed, the magistrate giving notice that the dog be disposed of. The lady in question called on The Times and stated that she had no more to do with the dog than the man in the moon. She feels that Mr. Henry was unnecessarily busy when he caused her to be summoned on such a matter.

A Sportsman's Born

—The Messrs. Towne of Dallas, Texas, passed through town yesterday from Honey Lake, on route for their home.

—Hamilton Spectator—Miss Edith Holland entertained at five o'clock on yesterday afternoon in honor of her guest, Miss Davies, of Peterborough.

—Miss J. Davies and Misses Kilt and Shirie Robinson left Monday morning for a week's visit with Mrs. Robinson's brothers, Cass Home, Gooderham.

When the life of Mrs. Ruff was hanging in the balance she used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and was restored to health.

Experience made her the firm friend of the medicine that saved her.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has no equal in its class of women's diseases. It establishes regularity, dries the drains that weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

Five years ago when my life was hanging in the balance Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was brought to my home by Mrs. Caroline Ruff, Director of the New York Hospital, and I took it, and I am now back to health. Ever since that time I have been its firm friend. We frequently have a female trouble in our family who are suffering with uterine troubles, inflammation, tumors and obstructions. Our family doctor has been unable to cure them. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and we have found nothing so quick to cure the disease, relieve inflammation and stop pain. It is a good friend to women.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expenses of postage and mailing only.

THE BALKAN WAR CLOUD GROWING OMINOUSLY BLACK AND THREATENING

Russia Hurrying Troops to the East in Vast Numbers to Hold Strategic Point

Premier Balfour Says that the Situation is Critical

London, Aug. 13.—The latest advice from the East is to the effect that Russia is massing enormous numbers of troops in the strategic points in the East.

Constantinople, Aug. 14.—The Vali of Monastir has been dismissed and Hussein Hilmi Pasha, formerly Governor of Yemen, Arabia, has been appointed as his successor.

An Imperial order has been issued to assemble at Monastir to try the assassin of M. Rostkowski and report on the responsibility of officials in the murder of the Russian Consul.

Three Christian villages, Smilovo, Krushovo and Bolno, near Monastir, have been completely destroyed by the Turkish troops.

London, Aug. 14.—The Balkan situation has assumed a more serious aspect in the eyes of British officials as the result of the murder of the Russian Consul at Monastir. It is expected that the Russian demands for the punishment of the murderer and the responsible officials will be followed by others of greater international interest and affecting the general Balkan situation.

The state of affairs in Macedonia was brought up in the House of Commons yesterday, but Premier Balfour declared he was unable to give any satisfactory assurance regarding the situation. The latest news reaching the Government, he said, was far from reassuring.

Mr. Balfour acknowledged the ill-success of the efforts of Europe in the Macedonian question since the signing of the treaty of Berlin, but he thought that to critics of European diplomacy should not forget the "extraordinarily complicated difficulties" of the task. He was still hopeful that the plan recently designed by Russia and Austria would prove the best way of dealing with the problem. Between the religious and the political, the historical truth required him to say that the balance of the plan recently designed by Russia and Austria would prove the best way of dealing with the problem.

Mr. Balfour said everything possible would be done to improve the Porte with the necessity of keeping his troops well in hand, and every assistance would be given to the Porte in carrying out that object. The British Government's policy, concluded Mr. Balfour, was to aid Austria and Russia in introducing the elementary principle of sound government, which, for the present, constituted the best means of dealing with the deep-seated evil.

Rome, Aug. 14.—It is stated that there has been an exchange of views between the powers regarding the situation in Macedonia, and that apparently the powers have decided to support Austria and Russia in efforts to re-establish peace.

The plan of Prince Seroff, as understood here, is to bring about an intervention by provoking the Turks to a massacre and the murder of the Russian Consul at Monastir is considered to have played into the hands of the revolutionists.

Organizers of Liverpool Make a Vigorous Protest

Liverpool, Aug. 14.—The Liverpool Organizers unanimously passed a resolution expressing alarm at the continued advance of Romish doctrines.

JAPAN IS VERY WEAK COMPARED WITH RUSSIA

Should War Come the Little Empire will Not Survive the Conflict

London, August 14.—The Post says: There is a marked contrast in the way the far Eastern question, in which Manchuria is the leading factor, is discussed in St. Petersburg and Tokyo. It has already been announced in the cable dispatches that Gen. Amurghin, Russian Minister of War, on his arrival in St. Petersburg after the mysterious convulse at Port Arthur, most frankly and unequivocally stated that he had left the situation much brighter in the far East. Taking their cue from this remark, Russian officials and the Russian press are systematically discouraging the war which is imminent with Japan. On the other hand, there is very strong party in the Island Empire which, according to the Tokyo press, is exerting its utmost influence upon the Mikado's Government to have Japan stick to her rights and deny the power of this influence to show the Japanese Government, Russian officials are more over, of the opinion that Japan, unless she obtains powerful support from England and America in the shape of large numbers of troops, is not in a position to go to war with the Russian colossus in Eastern Asia with any prospect of success. Never was Russia so well prepared and so thoroughly equipped for all the eventualities of a war. The Ono, it is said, is a veritable sea of conquest.

—otherwise it would be in Russia's power not only to attack Japan in Eastern Asia, but also in Southern Asia to make a move against India.

A foreign diplomat said, in St. Petersburg the other day: "If Japan makes that a pretext for war, Russia cannot prevent her; but Russia is prepared. Under the most favorable circumstances, the force which Japan will be able to put into the field cannot exceed 400,000 men, but the quality of her army compensated in a considerable degree for the smallness of the number. The Japanese fleet, indeed, is far superior to the Russian, but, once the lives, Japan will have to reckon with the fact that she cannot withdraw all her soldiers from Japan; a certain number must remain to protect her seaboard. In order to throw upon the Asiatic Continent the number of troops required by a war with Russia and to place them in Korea, Japan would require the most favorable circumstances as from four to six weeks. Russia has at present about 110,000 men on the western side of Lake Baikal, and 100,000 more whom she could withdraw from European Russia and throw into Western Siberia in the space of a month. It is freely alleged that Russia would welcome such a step on the part of Japan, for it would enable her to secure a firm footing in Korea, where she has hitherto been only feeling her way."

THE SERBIAN CABINET GIVES UP OFFICE

The Result of Strained Relations Over Murder of King and Queen

London, Aug. 13.—A dispatch to the Central News from Vienna says the entire Serbian Ministry has resigned in consequence of the differences in the personal relations between the army officers who participated in the assassination of King Alexander and Queen Draga and those who took no part in the murder.

—The Standard thinks the Unionists might agree to a revenue tax on corn, and measures relating to foreign loans, but it is not certain that the colonies appear able or willing to make substantial returns to the producers of the Motherland.

The Standard thinks the Unionists might agree to a revenue tax on corn, and measures relating to foreign loans, but it is not certain that the colonies appear able or willing to make substantial returns to the producers of the Motherland.

The Westminster Gazette calls this the ultimate aim of the Free Trade Unionists, and for which none of the colonies appear able or willing to make substantial returns to the producers of the Motherland.

—An important Parliamentary return issued today shows that imports into British colonies from the United Kingdom increased six million pounds from 1890 to 1900. The colonies' exports to Britain increased £25,500,000. The colonies' trade in 1900 with Britain was £216,500,000 and with foreign countries £107,500,000.

—Section, the New Zealand Premier, has given impetus to the Imperial reciprocity movement by declaring, in his budget speech that he would deal with the question of preferential trade on grounds of patriotism, not with the object of gain. He proposed a substantial duty on certain articles of foreign manufacture, leaving the Motherland to respond if it thought fit.

APPEAL TO THE POWERS

Sofia, Bulgaria, Aug. 14.—The delegates here at the Macedonian committee addressed the following appeal to each of the representatives of the powers:

"Your Excellency.—The delegates of the Macedonian committee have the honor to bring to your notice the following declaration, with the request that you commit it to your Government.

"The Macedonian systematic persecution has compelled the Christians in Macedonia and the Vilayet of Adrianople to institute a general rising. They have had recourse to this extreme measure after exhausting all pacific means to secure the intervention of Europe to enforce the provisions of the Berlin treaty. At the present moment this intervention is the only means of remedying the evil, and stopping bloodshed.

"Having published the foregoing facts to the civilized world, and made known the cause which have driven the Macedonians to despair, the committee of the Macedonians now fight till the effect of their uprising has been attained."

The representatives of the Macedonian revolutionary committee have published a statement saying that the number of insurgents in the district of Monastir is 10,000, and that they are armed with 500 rifles. They also stated that 300 insurgents destroyed three detachments of Turkish troops, numbering altogether 100, and attacked the town of Kitchovo, but failed to occupy it.

The insurgents, however, destroyed the Turkish village of Drenovo, whose inhabitants had come to the assistance of the garrison of Kitchovo. The statement further says that

An American Poacher Fired on by Canadians

Matter will be Investigated by Investigation by the Washington Authorities

Kirk, Ill., Aug. 13.—The fishing tug Silver Spray came into this port yesterday loaded with what first by the Canadian revenue cutter Petrel, captured the claim that the Canadian cutter was not justified in firing upon her, and will reject the matter to the Secretary of State.

According to the Captain's story, his tug was cruising where the boundary line between the two countries lies. He came there he was not in Canadian waters, and at any rate, he had not crossed the line, and there was no fish on board. The cutter came up to him before he was aware of her approach and blew her starboard whistle for him to stand. She put her helm to starboard and he moved his hard to port, believing that it was her intention to ram him. The two vessels collided, and the tug was the faster of the two.

Capt. Shaw, remembering the fate of other tugs which have been taken by the Petrel, put on full steam and made for this port. The cutter again attempted to stop him, and as the tug still kept on her way, she opened fire. As all her shots took effect, loading for the most part in the cabin and rigging of the tug. After chasing the tug for miles the cutter gave up the pursuit, and the Silver Spray reached port. No one was seriously wounded, though one of her crew was scratched on the face with a splinter and another shot came within a few inches of Capt. Shaw's head. No information is obtained.

Ottawa, Aug. 13.—Hon. Raymond Prefontaine states that he has no information in regard to the report that the Canadian cutter Petrel had fired upon the fishing tug Silver Spray which had been taken by the Petrel.

As to the American claim that the Kettle D., seized by the Petrel some weeks ago, was at the time of the seizure in United States waters, Mr. Prefontaine said the Government's information was that the Kettle D. was a tug on the Canadian side of the international boundary line.

Mr. Shaw, remembering the fate of other tugs which have been taken by the Petrel, put on full steam and made for this port. The cutter again attempted to stop him, and as the tug still kept on her way, she opened fire. As all her shots took effect, loading for the most part in the cabin and rigging of the tug. After chasing the tug for miles the cutter gave up the pursuit, and the Silver Spray reached port. No one was seriously wounded, though one of her crew was scratched on the face with a splinter and another shot came within a few inches of Capt. Shaw's head. No information is obtained.

A WOMAN FLOGGED

Scandal Transferred of a White Woman at the Prison Farm

Monticello, N.Y., Aug. 13.—All sorts of rumors are current as to why a severe flogging was administered to Marie Decker, the "Dumpling Girl," at the prison farm. It is said to be a punishment for her refusal to get a satisfactory explanation of it. One of the reports today had it that the whipping was administered because she wrote notes to ladies in the city and signed to them the name of Dr. Adams, the surgeon at the state farm.

Governor Farrell in an interview tonight expressed his indignation at the flogging and will order an investigation.

"I do not understand what possible explanation there is for the whipping of this white woman," the Governor said. "It appears to be a grave outrage. I shall see that the matter is thoroughly investigated and the responsibility placed where it belongs."

The community is much stirred up over the disclosure, and the feeling against the officials at the State farm is spreading over the State.

The people are somewhat stirred up against the prison system now, one of the causes of the present legislative investigation against lobbying being the failure by one or two votes in the House of the effort to break into the convict lease system.

Such incidents as this serve to aggravate the feeling, and the whipping of Miss Decker is being discussed all over the State. Especially is criticism leveled because the whipping administered was much more severe than any ever administered to the most hardened negro women. Captain Alford, by whom the whipping was administered, admits that the usual number of lashes given was twenty, while neither Captain Alford nor Dr. Adams deny that Miss Decker was given more than twenty lashes.

One of the most peculiar features of the incident is that while the doctor and the captain both declare

THEY DISCARD CLOTHES

Donkhor Women Strip Naked and Start Out

They are Overrun and Whipped by Their Neighbors and Brothers

Winning, Mass., Aug. 11.—Ever since the Donkhor outbreak a poor girl, when over 2,000 lynchings were on a pilgrimage in search of her, only to be called out a halt by the lynchmen, run into a corral and handed off to their homes in a cage of iron bars.

The religious excitement has been mounting in far away villages of the colony of equal magnitude.

Several times it has been heard forth in small crusades, but the presence of the police on guard and the growing influence of the more enlightened of the Donkhorians have prevented a repetition of a crusade of equal magnitude.

About a week ago a woman agent named Sophia Storbloff managed to secure a following in one of the settlements behind Swan River.

The men were away at work in the fields some miles from their homes, and in their absence she wrought up the women to such a pitch that they all discarded their clothing and prepared to follow her on a journey to Christ.

Word was sent to the men at work and they followed the women to bring them back. Words were of no avail, and resort was had to force. The men used the whips they had for their horses and oxen, and the naked women were soon broken and homeward flight.

LYNCHING A CRIME

Says the Rev. Mr. Brown in Answer to John Temple Graves

Chattanooga, N.Y., Aug. 13.—The Rev. John Brown, of Haverhill, pastor of the Church of the Epiphany, Brooklyn, answered John Temple Graves of Georgia in an elaborate address this morning at the Chattanooga Assembly on "Lynchings and Mob," from an American standpoint. Dr. Brown contended the southern view of lynching justified by Mr. Graves with what he called "the more general and better view of the American nation."

He showed the increasing violence of the mob spirit, its tendency to leap to other than rape and murder. He dwelt on the psychology of the mob, and gave the Wilmington lynching of the negro White as typical, and declared the officials who refused to protect any prisoner of any color or for any crime.

UNIONISTS ARE SAID TO BE IN OPEN REVOLT

British Ministerialists Face a Party Crisis, Will Balfour Retire?

London, Aug. 13.—The revolt in the Unionist party against Mr. Chamberlain has reached the point where it can no longer be suppressed. The Standard, the official organ of the Conservative party for many years, comes out this morning with a double-headed leader, in which it proposes to allow the formal question to be discussed in Parliament. It warns the Unionist party that they are confronting a crisis, which with probability in an entire re-arrangement of leaders and policy. The Standard's declaration has caused enormous interest in the possibilities of the situation. It says: "The country is faced with the disruption of the great party which has controlled the politics of the United Kingdom for the last 17 years. The Unionists may well ask themselves under what leaders and with what watchword and battle cry they will return when another election opens. The Unionist party, already a way from home at the time when only his wife and two small children were at home. When the storm burst Mrs. Deguire tried to open the door and get the children in, but there was no time. The house collapsed like a pack of cards on the six inmates. A large cooking stove probably weighing five hundred pounds, and the heavy roof fell across it, and while the family were crushed they were not killed.

With the greatest bravery, Mrs. Deguire, although in a delicate state of health, pulled the heavy timber from over the children, and one by one got them out of the wreck. Oliver, aged 7, is badly cut on the arms and head, while Harry, the 4-year-old boy, is injured and wounded about the body. Signs of recovery is held out for both. Mrs. Deguire herself is in a very precarious state of health, owing chiefly to the shock. The injured were removed later to the home of Mrs. Deguire's father, Mr. Lavigne, on the next farm. All the outbuildings, sheds, barns, stables, granaries, machinery shed on the Deguire farm are gone.

Others Who Lost.

Mr. R. Lavigne was more fortunate. His stables and barns are gone, but apart from broken glass, two missing chimneys and a portion of the roof, his house still stands intact. The barn, stable, granary, several sheds, a large poultry, and a small orchard, are all partially destroyed. Great piles of straw were torn from the roof of the dwelling, but it is built of brick, and did not collapse, as did the other farm buildings. Mr. Lafontaine and family took refuge in a ditch during the storm. Mr. F. McKeown, a brother-in-law of Mr. Lafontaine, arrived at the farm a few minutes before the storm, and tied his valuable trotting horse to a post. The horse was found lying on the ground with its neck broken. It had evidently been struck by something during the storm and instantly killed.

Moved the Buildings.

The granary of J. A. Duce, who lives on the next farm, was lifted up and deposited twelve feet away on the ground, but as easily as if it were a stone on a shelf inside were not moved. Mr. Duce's barn was also moved two feet off its foundation, but not otherwise damaged. In fact, every building on his farm was moved from one spot to another, but the buildings themselves the contents are entirely unharmed.

A Fierce Cyclone at Rockland, Ont.

Many Houses and Barns Wiped Out

Buildings Moved from Their Foundations,
Four Injured

Ottawa, Aug. 13.—A terrific cyclone swept the district one mile west of the town of Rockland at 3.30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, carrying destruction and injury in its wake. Four persons were seriously injured, and dozens of houses, barns, and outbuildings were shattered, and in some cases completely carried away. Animals were killed in the fields, and great trees that have stood for centuries were uprooted or moved down and buried through the air. Much damage was done to crops.

The storm gave no warning, nor was there any time to escape. At 3.30 the sky was clear. Then a vast whirlwind cloud swept down the south shore of the Ottawa River, and far as has been ascertained, the injured are Mrs. Oliver Deguire, Oliver Deguire, aged 7; Harry Deguire, aged 4; Miss McCullough, Cumberland.

A summary of the damage to property follows: Houses destroyed, five; barns and stables destroyed, sixteen; granaries, four; outbuildings and outcrops, 24; other structures destroyed, 15.

Value of buildings and contents destroyed, $15,000; machinery and vehicles destroyed, $5,000. The crop damage is impossible to estimate, nor can a correct estimate be made of the loss of valuable woods, and burning livestock.

Half a mile west from Rockland, on the Montreal road, towards Ottawa, a strip of land between the road and the river, probably 200 yards deep. On this strip stood the farm of Mr. Daniel O'Brien, and John Mahoney. A house and barn were on the farm. A building on the farm was blown away, and the house and barn were left standing. On Mrs. O'Brien's farm there is not

IT ALL BEGAN IN CANADA

London, Aug. 13.—The special commissioner of the Newcastle Daily Chronicle, who is touring Western Canada with the other British journalists, under the direction of the Department of the Interior, points out that while the greater portion of the information obtained by the press tourists regarding Canada is official, the Government has imposed no restrictions upon the dispatch of the correspondents may send. The result will be that the expressions of opinion and the results of observation published simultaneously in different parts of the United Kingdom will give a first-class advertisement for Canada.

Winning, Aug. 13.—Mr. D. D. and vice-president of the Canadian Northern railway, who left on Sunday for Montreal, was interviewed before his departure regarding the prospective construction of the railway to Hudson's Bay. He said that the line would be at Port Churchill of Port Nelson long before the Grand Trunk Pacific line began heading west to the Atlantic Coast from Montreal. He expressed a strong conviction that the route would be a commercial success, and spoke of building fire-proof elevators at the Hudson's Bay port, where wheat could be stored during the closed period of navigation, free of insurance charges. Mr. Mann thought that means could be found to begin shipping wheat from the Bay at a date very little later than the time when navigation opens at the head of Lake Superior. The recent experience of emigrants and exiles in Arctic waters, he said, had dispelled many of the objections that had always been advanced against sailing up the Hudson's Bay route, and modern steamship construction could overcome the rest.

It was at the home of Oliver Deguire that the greatest damage occurred. Not a building is left.

COPETE MINING CO.

27 William Street, New York

Capital Stock, $3,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5
More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but so rich in gold that they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy pipes, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter in a short run produced something over $100,000.

The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them are: Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Seymour W. Tallon, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Grand Consolidated; Mr. Edwin D. Treadwell, Mining Engineer and Geologist and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago have all been happily adjusted and the company has now started with undisturbed title to its extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A portion of the Treasury stock is offered for sale to complete the development and equipment of the property—new for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 30 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.

Vast ledges of ore running from $5.00 to $20.00 per ton. Five hundred tons of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $70.00 to $100.00 per ton. This is not a five per cent. a month advance, but a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans.

No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and we offer a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLARS FOR DOLLARS for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your foresight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the Stock sold at par. The new Mining Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the Stock at present price. It will be 60 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have properly visited the mines and returned full of enthusiasm. The mines are turning out much richer than expected.

I can offer the Stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO DAY—to-morrow it may slip your memory. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 75% per month.

ROLFF HOUSE

By G. H. BENEDICT.

*A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.CHAPTER I.

It was many years ago—before this era of steam, telegraph and electrical and mechanical development in fact, just previous to that very queer war of 1812—that in a quiet old Dutch-built village of southern New York, lying not far from Hudson's noble river, there was living one Jacobus Bruyn, a substantial farmer, of the purest Dutch lineage.

On a beautiful sunny fall afternoon Farmer Bruyn was sitting on the front porch of his fine old Dutch farmhouse, looking at ease in his great chair, and smoking his long clay pipe with an expression of perfect contentment resting in his stolid features. He could well afford to take his ease. His broad acres of fat valley land had borne unusually abundant harvests, and his spacious farm buildings were filled to overflowing. As he sat and allowed the wreaths of blue smoke to curl up about his swarthy, honest face, he was listening with satisfaction to the beating of the flails of his threshers in the great red barn not many rods distant.

The house of farmer Bruyn was built on the substantial, comfortable style of the well-to-do Dutch burghers of the colonial period of New York history. It was a large stone building, whose heavy walls had been laid by those who evidently intended them to last for generations. The great room mounted up to a high peak and sloped nearly to the ground in the rear. The numerous windows, with their many little green panes of glass, hinted of light and cheerfulness within. Everything about the place was neat and orderly. Along the garden fence, at the end of the low hill, was a bench, on which a row of shining milk-pans were sunning themselves. In the rear a tall, sloping churning machine hinted at one of the domestic occupations of the place. The young girl, particularly spacious, showed the supervision of some one with a love for order and beauty in clumps of shrubbery and beds of late blooming flowers. It was evident who was the presiding spirit of this horticultural display, for a young maiden was standing in the flower beds, dallying with the plants in a patronizing way that declared more plainly than words the deep interest of affection and guardianship. This was Rosa, farmer Bruyn's only daughter, whose age, it was apparent from her looks, could not be far from eighteen. Moving gracefully about under the soft light of the clear autumn sky, her plain, neat house-dress contrasting with the brilliant verdure about her, the young girl presented a charming object to the eye—and so thought farmer Bruyn, as he watched her from his seat on the porch. Her figure was plump and comely, although perhaps a trifle under size, and perfect health was indicated in the full, graceful curves of her form, the rosy bloom upon her cheeks and the liquid clearness of her soft gray eyes. A wealth of rich brown hair hung about her shoulders in natural ringlets, unconfined and untried, free to the kisses of the sun and the toyings of the gentle zephyrs. No fairy creature was Rosa Bruyn, but a substantial bodily presence, who might have sat for the Madonna of some old Flemish painter. The form, features and movements all indicated a pure, healthy, womanly nature, capable perhaps of great devotion and tenderness, but one not likely to succumb to any trial or duty of life.

The house of farmer Bruyn sat some distance back from the road. Several tall poplar trees threw their shade along the roadway in front, and, at the upper edge of the yard, some clumps of shrubbery acted as a partial screen to a lane that led to the outbuildings in the rear of the house. The road in front wound down a gradual hill and down the hill the tall form of a young man could be seen drawing near. Rosa's wandering gaze had detected his approach, and with a sudden flush, she drew slowly away from her position among the flower beds, and proceeded, as if inadvertently, up to the lane fence among the shrubbery. Her movements were evidently observed by the young man, for he entered the lane, and, drawing near, placed his hand on the fence, gave a light spring, and bounded over it. In a moment he had taken the blushing maiden in his arms, and pressed a kiss upon her brow with all the ardor of an accepted lover.

As they stood thus in the shade of the bushes, no handsomer youthful couple could have delighted the eyes of an artist who wished to sketch some scene of rural love-making. The young man was of a form and style of manly beauty to contrast well with the plump, rosy girl. He was tall, and his form was lithe and graceful. His face was frank, open and handsome, and the features were outlined in outlines of almost Grecian beauty. Ringlets of fair, wavy hair escaped from beneath his cap, and curled over his broad, white brow. Clear, mistle blue eyes lit up a countenance in which the expression of gentleness was offset by a certain air of over-confidence that almost indicated combativeness.

"What's your name?" Rosa's sweetly smiling face turned from him, and, raising upon her with undiminished admiration.

"I am well, Claude," she replied. "Little need there is to ask. And you appear well, too. But how is your aunt to-day?"

"Aunt?" she is growing worse," he replied. "The doctor told me she was dying, and she is falling slowly but surely, and cannot possibly survive long. Indeed, it looks as if I were soon to be free."

"Free—why, Claude, what can you mean? One might suppose that you regarded that your aunt is worse—perhaps upon the brink of the grave."

"A peculiar shadow passed over the young man's face.

"Do you think so kindly of me, Rosa?" he asked. "Or do you mean my feelings, and you misinterpret them. Suppose—suppose she should die! I shall sorrow for her as sincerely as anybody; but I must own that there is a sense of freedom in the thought of my being my own master and coming into my fortune. What is the use of denying or concealing it? I do not wish her dead; but I cannot deny that the grief I should feel is tempered by the thought of the scope that will be opened to my hopes and ambition. There, there, little one—don't look so grave. Remember, I have not been brought up to be sensitive. Aunt has not wanted any tenderness upon me, although I know she loves me well."

"But, Claude, think how it would grieve her to the soul to dream for a moment that you could count up the gain her death would be to you."

"But she will not dream it. Little mortals. No act or word of mine shall add a pang to her living hours. I shall do all and be all that duty and affection require. But can I help my natural feelings? I am not an angel in human guise, like yourself, Rosa. I profess only one virtue—a desire to be honest, and not to hide my real feelings for mere appearance's sake. It is not in my nature to play the hypocrite. I shall feel very badly if aunt dies. She has always been kind to me—in her way—and I truly believe she has loved me with her whole heart. But it is only just to remember that her way has always been a strange one, and that her guardianship has deprived me of the rights and privileges in a large measure to which I was born. A strange, gloomy, eccentric woman, fixed in her ideas and immovable in her resolves, so one can tell the tyranny her government has exercised over me. And, by a strange fate, I have not escaped from tyranny so long as she lives except at the peril of my fortune. Look at it!—with all her wealth, her farms, her boats, her ferries, her mills (there is an immense fortune stowed up somewhere, and I the prospective heir, what pleasure or privilege has been mine in life that the worst country lad in the region could not enjoy? Aunt's love of hoarding has run away with her judgment till her household has been kept as if we were predestined victims of poverty. Rolff House has been abandoned to decay. As for me, the eccentric whim of my father has made me more subject to her than the veriest servant—directed to in my education, curbed in every natural wish and ambition, and left to dream of freedom and happiness only as possible through her death. My name—the name of Rolff—has become a very by-word during among the country. Half the country folk believe Rolff House to be haunted, and it is not two years ago that I thrashed a barley but who taunted me with my aunt being a witch. If I must die, I must die in absolute propriety of all the Rolff estates and wealth—and not till then. Ah, Rosa, can I help contrasting my present position with what it will be then? Is it in human nature not to desire to throw off the burden that has weighed upon my hopes and aspirations for so many years?"

"I will not try to answer your questions, Claude," replied the young girl, with a pained expression of countenance. "I know that it is wrong, very wrong, for you to talk and think as you do. If I did not believe you to be truer at heart than you represent yourself to be, I should almost lose my faith in you. As for your aunt, although she is peculiar in many things, I know that she loves you too much to have cursed you needlessly or cruelly. Perhaps your fancy has painted your treatment in exaggerated colors. What is in intense; you are proud and ambitious in intense; you are proud and ambitious in intense."

Relics of Nelson.

There is just now, says an English paper, a very interesting objection loan in the United Service Institution at Whitehall—the plume of Triumph given by the Sultan to Nelson after the Battle of the Nile. The plume is truly a magnificent thing. Brilliant of great size and beauty are set on silver wire, so fine that the light or ten erect lines of light quiver and flash with the slightest movement. These converge on a star centered by a row of diamonds of great value, behind this is cunningly hidden clockwork which can cause the star to revolve. One can imagine the effect of this blinding in the tar-bush of the Lord of the East.

To take an ornament from his own person and bestow it upon an underling is considered in Constantinople to be the highest decoration possible to be won; and never had this honor been conferred on an underling before Nelson's day. An English attaché was sent to carry the gift to the Sultan's delectable "Yan-gard," and to explain to the young admiral (Nelson was not forty then) its great significance.

The Sultan of the Nile was the height and splendor of Nelson's glory. No doubt had guessed then what the hero who had done and was yet to do as much for his country. It was impossible, Europe thought, to honor him too much. At the United Service Institution, beside the Plume of Triumph, is a gift which is more beautiful than the plume. It is a walking-stick presented to Nelson by the Sultan. Zante, and round the handle a circle of diamonds is set. Pious and small the Sultan beside the Sultan's jewels, but they were "all the diamonds which were possessed in Zante." Every man and woman surrounded who had had to do honor to the man who had "saved the Mediterranean." These relics are lent for a short time by Nelson's family, and are well worth seeing. One is the better for occasional brushing up in the stories of the day before yesterday.

A Good Prescription.

Footnote—I'm afraid I'm going wrong, doctor. What would you advise me to do? Family Doctor—You're doing, doing, my boy. What? What? Do you mean? Why, if you were to pay your debts you couldn't afford to drink so much whiskey, to play so many games of billiards, or to eat such expensive suppers—and so you would soon improve your usual health.—"My Doctor."

Honest SpeculationM

OTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay.

It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash? A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurons, the Baldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at from $1.00 per value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

There are many persons who assert that there is nothing in it for the average investor and that it does not pay to invest small sums in stock. Let such persons ask themselves what returns they can hope to get through banks or real estate speculations for sums of under $100.00, and then consider the following:—

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $8,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.
$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1890 is now worth $7,600.
$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.
$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $5,600.
$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $682.
$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $6,600.
$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend-paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Mallory, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

Nor does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining—The Homestake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. One mill only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours.

The Alaska Treadwell ore sells $2.35 per ton; the stock 100 per cent. above par.

No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management.

COPETE MINING CO.

27 William Street, New York

Capital Stock, $3,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5

More than forty per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but also in gold, and they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter in a short time produced something over $100,000.

The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them: Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Seymour W. Tallach, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Greene Companies; Mr. Edwin D. Treadwell, Mining Engineer and Geologist and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The financial condition of the company, which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now clear and unobscured title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A portion of the Treasury stock is offered for sale to complete the development and equipment of the property—now for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

ROLFF HOUSE

By G. H. BENEDICT.

A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.

not a little willful; and it may be you are not the proper judge of all that is good and necessary for you. I fear, if your wishes are not realized, and you are given the freedom and opportunity you seem so to desire, you will only demonstrate the wisdom and prudence of your aunt's treatment of you.

An expression of gloom passed over the young man's countenance.

"You judge me severely, Rosa," he said; "but I do not care for that. I do not plead the propriety of my feelings, but only that I cannot help them. I feel why should I not be ambitious? I am the son of a wealthy man, and in justice and right should be undisputed master of my father's estate. I do not long for vulgar display and pleasure, but a boarder of money. My soul loathes the life she would have me lead. Oh, Rosa, you cannot know how I long to be away, spending my days among the great galleries of Utrecht, of Munich, of Dresden, of Venice and Rome, drawing inspiration and knowledge from the works of the mighty masters of art. How can I help the spirit that is within me? At the mere thought of being able to fulfill my dreams, my soul is filled with an ecstasy that seems to banish far from my sight every other feeling and consideration."

"And to feed that ambition, you would banish me too from your thoughts, Claude, and leave me for your art?"

"Why—yes, Rosa; to be sure—that is, for a little time. It would not be long; we are both young and do not contemplate speedy marriage; so there seems no reason why I should not devote my time to improving myself, so that I may become more worthy of your love. I can't stay here, in this dismal little village, to rust and fret myself to death. I must cultivate my talents. I desire to become a great painter. As soon as I am in a position to do so, I will tell you all my dreams, and I am sure you will sympathize with me, and take delight in my purpose to achieve talent and fame. It will not be so long before I will be separated from you; and we are young, Rosa, and can bear up under separation, and wait patiently for the happiness that will be ours when I return with some part of my ambitions achieved to claim you as my bride."

The eyes of Rosa brightened up for a moment, but she dropped them quickly to the ground, and was silent. At last she spoke quietly.

"I hope your aunt will get well soon, Claude."

The young man bit his lip and turned his face impatiently away.

But his anger was only momentary. Turning his gaze back to the old, grave young face before him, an expression of deep tenderness took possession of his handsome countenance.

"You do well to reproach me, Rosa," he said; "yes, I, too, hope to be well, and live many years. Then all my fine plans will be scattered to the winds, and I shall be sure of nothing—not even of you."

"But you know, Claude, we are as young yet—and—and father may change his mind when you settle down to steady habits. He thinks you are wild and reckless."

"I see, Rosa," said the young man, with a return of the bitterness of his tone. "That even in your estimation to aspire to any life but that of a plodding money-getter is to be wild and reckless."

"No, no, Claude," she exclaimed hastily; "you know I do not think so. But you would not have me offend father?"

"No, my love and my light!" he exclaimed, with a glow of enthusiasm. "I would have you do nothing unbecoming your character as the purest and best girl in the world. Better that I should suffer the wreck of every hope. But I must not linger. Your father will begin to suspect something. Good-bye!"

And, with a tender caress, he turned and, springing over the fence, disappeared as he had come.

CHAPTER III.

The tavern in Vor-hakill, two let us call the little Dutch village, was a wooden, clap-boarded building, with three stories, a double-roofed roof, and many windows. It was a somewhat pretentious structure, and did a thriving business, for the village was on the site of an important mail and business route, and the times were favorable to travel and conviviality.

The bar-room of Ronk's Tavern, as the hostelry was called, was the great meeting-place for the men-folk of the vicinity. Here they gathered of an evening, and smoked their pipes, and drank their flip or other concoctions, and told stories, talked politics and retailed the gossip of the vicinity.

It was on the evening after the events related in the last chapter, the candles were lighted in the bar-room, and the landlord was behind his bar answering the calls of his customers, who had begun to drop in. He was a tall, grave man, with a complexion and skin like parchment, dark straight hair mingled with grey, and an almost preternaturally keen countenance. At bottom, however, he was generous and whole-hearted, and delighted in nothing more than to see his guests well-provided for, his bar-room thronged, and just and anecdotes going the round of the evening, so pipes were lit and stout potations dealt out.

The usual group was gathered around. It was early evening yet, however, and more were to come before the group was broken up to the full height. One after another dropped in, till at last there entered an old man of rather singular appearance. He was short and sturdy in frame, and dressed in old, rusty brown woolen clothes, with knee-breeches and stockings, while his heavy shoes had broad steel buckles. His face was almost covered up by a heavy growth of grey white beard that descended and swept his breast. Underneath his heavy, grizzled eyebrows a pair of keen, pleasant blue eyes gazed out. His general appearance was that of an intelligent, self-possessed old fellow, with probably a large portion of eccentricity and individuality done up in his composition. His sturdy frame was evidently witnessing the annals of many years, as also a liking for good spirits, of which it was much the fashion of the time to partake freely. To introduce him without further words, this old fellow was Carl Krum, and his special business it was to have a charge a boat ferry that crossed the river at the landing about a mile and a half from the village. This ferry belonged to the mistress of Ronk's Tavern, and the old fellow had from time immemorial almost been in charge of it, and constituted one of the family at Ronk's House. He was not a frequent visitor to the bar-room of Ronk's Tavern, and when he came it was generally the case that something had happened that excited public gossip unusually or had some special interest to himself.

The group of sailors sitting about the room grew suddenly silent as the old man entered. A seat was offered him, and he dropped quietly into it, and continued puffing sedately on a short pipe that was in his mouth.

After an interval of silence, a short, purr little fellow, who was sitting with his chair tipped beside the embers of the fireplace, spoke up:

"Here's old Carl," he said. "He can tell us all about it. Now, let me state the matter. I maintained that the old lady was eighty-three; you all denied it. Now, how is it, Mr. Krum?"

The old man took his pipe quietly out of his mouth.

"She's eighty-three," he said, "and she'll be ninety-three, if the good Lord so will and my prayers are heard. But what matters it, ye idle gossips?"

"Exactly," continued the first speaker, without noticing the old man's rebuke, "and that confirms what I said. 'Taint often, I tell you, that I make a mistake in a person's age when they die—that is, the old lady ain't dead yet, but everybody knows that old Doctor Fronk has given her up, and when he says anybody has got to die, he generally makes a sure job of it."

There was some laughter at this poor jest, but it was interrupted by the old man:

"That's a fair specimen of the devil's wit as well as the devil's manner, or I'm no judge," he said. "It's not given to any human being to fix the limit of a fellow creature's life; and, as for the good old Doctor, the only mistake he ever made was in not strangling some specimens of this ungodly generation at their birth. Yet I fear that it is only too true that Ronk's House is to lose its mistress. I've no romantic fondness for the poor old lady; but it is a sorry dog that will not fawn on the hand that has fed him for years."

"You'll be provided for, Carl," interrupted one of the party.

"I have received my full due," replied the old man, "and expect nothing."

"Well, she ought to give you something," interrupted the landlord; "but there's no telling—she's a queer old woman."

"Queer old place, too," broke in the little man again, who was evidently one of the kind that like to do most of the most unlooked-for places. One day we were walking into town from the army post where I was stationed, this friend of mine and I, and we had the dog along. As we were walking along the road, a certain well-dressed stranger passed us. No sooner had the man passed on than the dog stuck his tail in the air, and assumed the attitude recognized as 'puffing.' It was some time before we were able to determine what he was pointing, but finally came to the conclusion that he was pointing to the stranger, which proved to be correct. We called to the man and asked him if he had any quail about him, or if he had eaten any quail, explaining why we asked. He said he had nothing of the kind, and did not remember having eaten any for some months. Turning to my friend, I said: 'Your old dog has gone wrong.'

"Not a bit of it," he replied. "That dog is right, and I'll bet you $10 he is."

"I did not see then how the bet was going to be settled, but took it up anyway, and we continued on to town. We went to the biggest hotel in the place to get some refreshments, and there saw the stranger we had met on the road. My friend asked the clerk what the stranger was, and the clerk pointed to the register. As soon as my friend saw the name he gave a yell and called me to come over there."

"Give me your money, my boy. That dog knew what he was doing when he pointed that way."

"To satisfy myself I glanced at the register, and saw the stranger's name. It was 'Robert F. Partridge.' Truly that was the most 'wonderful dog' I ever saw or heard of."

A Wonderful Dog.

They were talking about the almost human intelligence exhibited by dogs on some occasions, says The Washington Star. Several anecdotes had been related of the wonderful intellect of canines, when an army officer, who is connected with the cavalry arm of the service, stepped into the ring and squared himself for a good one. He is something of a sportsman and knows a good dog when he sees one, so that his story was listened to with more than usual interest by his friends: "It was down in Texas several years ago that I came across the greatest dog I ever saw or heard of," he said. "The animal belonged to a friend of mine and was the greatest quail dog you ever saw. We have taken that dog out day after day and he would never go wrong, and find-point quail in the most unlooked-for places. One day we were walking into town from the army post where I was stationed, this friend of mine and I, and we had the dog along. As we were walking along the road, a certain well-dressed stranger passed us. No sooner had the man passed on than the dog stuck his tail in the air, and assumed the attitude recognized as 'puffing.' Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay.

It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds the keenest intellects. It is the time of demarcation between the indolent, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash?

A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That these are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurons, the Baldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at from $1.00 per value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

There are many persons who assert that there is nothing in it for the average investor and that it does not pay to invest small sums in stock. Let such persons ask themselves what returns they can hope to get through banks or real estate speculations for sums of under $100.00, and then consider the following:

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $4,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1880 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $682.

$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be cited.

Mallory, of Spokane, bought one third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Hod Roy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

Nor does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining—The Howe Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore mills only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours.

The Alaska Treadwell ore mills $2.38 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par.

No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management.

Respectfully submitted,

CATARRHOZONE

The Only Cure for Catarrh as described by the Medical Profession

Physicians hold that every requirement of a perfect cure for catarrhal diseases is fulfilled in Catarrhazine, and on this account it is prescribed by almost every intelligent doctor.

It is the most powerful antiseptic known. When the lungs are filled with its germ-killing vapor, the microbes which cause and maintain the unhealthy condition of the mucous membrane die immediately.
Disease germs cannot exist where Catarrhazine is used.

Although very potent in killing and healing treatment, it quickly induces a cough and causes raw spots and allays irritation and congestion of the mucous membrane.

When using Catarrhazine you don't have to wait all day for relief. It will give you breath taken through the lungs. It cleanses the throat and disinfects the lungs.
Headache, coughing, and sneezing, and all other agreeable symptoms of catarrh are banished in a few days' use of this superior remedy.

Catarrhal diseases of every description yield without much difficulty to Catarrhazine. When used for Bronchitis, Lung Trouble, and Croup, it affords not only instant relief, but serves as a very short cure.

Croup, Whooping Cough and Winter Coughs simply won't live any time if Catarrhazine is inhaled for three days, and as a safeguard for Pernicious and Consumption it has no equal.

Better get a Catarrhazine inhaler; use it occasionally, and you won't have a cough or cold in the head or throat. These afflictions can be prevented by Catarrhazine as well as cured. Complete outfit, full two months' treatment, with $1. Small size, 50¢. Sold by all

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. A. W. Campbell, Assistant Commissioner of Public Works, Toronto, has been inspecting some marsh lands in Cavan and Manxara County of Durham, which a number of farmers desire to have drained and the land cultivated. The lands extend to between 6,000 and 6,500 acres, and Mr.
Campbell is of opinion that they will come under the act which enables the Government to assist the work of draining and reclaiming.

The Late Gen. Howson
Mr. Geo. Howson, of Cavan, collector of taxes for the municipality for many years, died on Saturday night last after only a brief illness. Brain trouble of some kind was the cause, and although every effort was made by four doctors to get at the seat of the trouble it was impossible to relieve him. Mr. Howson was a man of the highest moral character and much respected in the whole community, and the sincere sympathy of the whole community is extended to the bereaved family. The funeral took place to Keene on Monday.

Beach excursion via Lehigh Valley Railroad, August 4, 15, and 25,

Park Street Baptist Church
The social gathering of the Mission
Circle of the Park Street Baptist Church was a very enjoyable affair. The decorations from the flower service on Sunday gave the scene a very pleasing aspect. Mr. Kennedy gave a very readable reading and the Rev. A. H. Bruce an address on Foreign Missions. Refreshments were served on several tables dotted all over the room. The offerings were $15 divided between Home and Foreign Missions. Several very creditable selections were given during the evening.

A Sad Death
The sad death of Mrs. Liza Stella Brown, the sister of our daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Brown, 200 Sunderland street, took place yesterday morning, after a long illness, at the age of only 16 years of age, and was a very bright and attractive young girl, beloved by all her friends and acquaintances. She had been ill about a month. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 3.30 o'clock from the family residence, to St.
Peter's Cathedral and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery for interment. The Times extends its sincere sympathy to the bereaved family.

Funeral Notice
Mr. Jack Jones, of the passenger department, C.P.R., went out on Naumut on Thursday on a fishing trip. We have Jack's own word for it that he caught fourteen bass. Of course he was not alone, there being four in the party, but the other fellows didn't count—so least so far as the fish were concerned—for one of them inadvertently, doubtless in a moment of mental aberration—dropped a remark that they did not get a blushing bide. However, Mr. Jones says that he can prove by the genial proprietor of the Snowden House that at least fourteen bass were brought to the hotel by the party.

cures catarrh wherever located.

Peruna makes you feel like a new person.
Miss Anna Prescott, a beautiful Chicago girl, writes the following from 75
Walton Place:

"As a tonic for a worn out system,
Peruna stands at the head in my estimation. Its effects are truly wonderful in rejuvenating the entire system. I keep it on hand all the time, and never have that 'tired feeling,' as a few doses always makes me feel like a different woman."—Florence Allan.

Peruna will be found to effect an immediate and lasting cure in all cases of systemic catarrh. It acts quickly and beneficially on the diseased mucous membranes, and with healthy mucous membranes the catarrh can no longer exist.

COPETE MINING CO.

27 William Street, New York

Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5

More than forty per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but so rich in gold that they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy pipes, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter in a short run produced something over $100,000.

The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them are Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Seymour W. Tallford, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Greene Consolidated; Mr. Edwin D. Treadwell, Mining Engineer and Geologist and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now a clear and undisturbed title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A portion of the Treasury stock is offered for sale to complete the development and equipment of the property—now for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Montana, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 30 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.

Vast ledges of ore running from $500 to $800.00 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $7.50 to $22.00 per ton. This is not a five per cent. month scheme, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans. No business in the world is more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember this: little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you get DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGEMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your foresight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the Stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the Stock at present price. It will soon be 50 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mines and returned full of enthusiasm. The mines are turning out much richer than expected.

Can offer the Stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO DAY—to-morrow it may slip your grasp. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 25% per month.

ROLFF HOUSE

By G. H. BENEDICT.

A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.

murder and robbery on the high seas.

After he built the house, they say he had rooms piled full of silver and gold. Then I've heard he sold himself to the devil, on condition that the money would always be kept safe in Rolff House; and a good bargain he made of it, seeing that the devil had him safe anyhow. But the devil came and took all in the house yet, and nobody can touch it, they say, except they sell themselves to the devil, too. That's the story, and some people believe it.

"Some people," interposed old Carl, "are born fools, and only fit to be ruled by stories of ghosts and hobgoblins. If anybody living is pretty well acquainted with Rolff House and the Rolff family, it is myself, for I have known them these fifty years; and, as for an honest man and a good Christian, I pronounce all such silly tales and idle superstitions. There's enough that is strange and romantic about Rolff House without peopling it with ghosts or giving it over to the possession of the Evil One."

"That's all very well," here broke in a new member of the circle; "but I say it's good Scripture to believe in ghosts; and if there is any place that is likely to be haunted, it is Rolff House. And as for the devil having a lease on the old pirate's gold, why shouldn't he? It's only claiming his own, and we all know the devil is pretty sure to get that. For my part, I believe that all ain't right at Rolff House. Many's the story I've heard of queer doings up there. There's my brother Sol, he says he was going by there once about midnight and everything was dark and gloomy about the house, when all of a sudden a stream of flame shot out of the big chimney on the east side, and a black object sprang out of it and was off in the air as quick as a flash, and I've been by there myself at night, when I've heard queer noises coming from the house, and others have heard them, too, and seen strange sights. I don't know as it is respectful to say so, but I tell you about these things now, but if they're so, they're so, and that's all there is about it."

The speaker was a short, very peculiar-looking man. A heavy beard covered his forehead, and his long, dark, wavy hair reached down to his shoulders, and hair and beard both seemed to be of a dirty slate-blue color. His yellow skin appeared to have a "brilliant green tinge," his large, staring eyes were as lustreless as the eyes of a corpse; and to add to his uncanny peculiarities, his voice had a strange, sepulchral tone.

"A fine countenance you have for a ghost story, Sol," broke in the old man, with a tone of contempt. "It is such outrageous lies as you and your brother that impose upon simple-minded folk, and lead them to believe in the never-never man or spirit about Rolff House that would pass for a hobgoblin as readily as you; and if the devil ever had half as safe a hold on old Magnus Rolff as he has on you, then may the Lord have mercy upon him."

This hit caused a roar of laughter and the discomfiture of Mr. Sackett. But he spoke up again:

"Well, let them deny it who can, there's queer things and queer stories about Rolff House. I don't suppose old Carl will own up what he knows though, for the devil, you know, has him under bonds to keep his peace about the matter. But I'd like him to tell me, if he can, what ever became of old Rolff?"

The landlord here spoke up:

"That's a pertinent question," he said. "Perhaps old Carl can answer it, or, at least, give us a short history of Rolff House. For my part, I should like to hear a correct account of its strange history. There is no use of denying that there is a mystery about the house. I remember once myself seeing a strange sight up there. I was coming by the house in the night—a bright moonlight night it was—and when at a point of the road where I could see the eastern side of the house, I plainly saw the figure of a man standing beneath one of the large windows. He was in the direct rays of the moon, and I saw him as plainly as I ever saw man. His appearance was that of a very aged man, tall and stooping, with long white hair, and dressed in an odd costume. As I was looking directly at him, he suddenly disappeared—seemed to sink into the ground close to the house. I could scarcely believe my eyes, but I am sure I saw what I have told you; and, as you may imagine, I thought at once of the story they tell, that at stated times the devil allows old Rolff to visit his money chambers. I suppose I must have been deceived in some way in the matter. But it would be interesting to know more about Rolff House, and I move that old Carl give us his history."

"Yes, yes, Carl," they all heard it. Carl and similar exclamations were uttered by a dozen voices, and chairs were drawn up near where the old man was sitting, for all knew that he enjoyed nothing better than an opportunity to rehearse some favorite narrative.

CHAPTER IV.

"Well," began the old man, "I don't mind telling what I know about the matter, though I'm afraid you'll find it rather a dry tale, with your appetites all whetted for a recital of supernatural doings. But it's a strange story, nevertheless. It was long, long ago, during the last years of King George's war with the French and Spaniards, that there came to our village, there is a hamlet, a tall, slender, man, richly dressed, who put up at the Little Dutch Inn that stood on the very spot that this tavern now stands. He remained week after week, and there was brought to him country by the boat-loads of strange and curious goods of some weighty character. The curiosity of the good burghers was much excited about this mysterious personage. He was fierce and gloomy at times, and would speak to no one, and then again he would be free and jovial to the extent of spending many a dozen of gold and silver coin, and getting himself and hand the good burghers deeply interested. The man gave his name as Magnus Rolff. At times, when in his cups, he would tell the most frightful tales of bloody adventures at sea; so that in time the good people began to regard him as a retired pirate, and this belief seemed confirmed by the number of heavy, strong chests he had brought with him, which no doubt contained the treasures he had acquired in his wild adventures. As Magnus Rolff rather enjoyed it to have the good people regard him with dread as well as admiration, he encouraged their stories about himself, it is to be feared, and so they have descended to this day.

"But it is not necessary for us to credit them, so I will give you the real history of the man, as I have learned it on the best authority. His real name was Rolff Van Buysen, and he belonged to a wealthy family of Holland. His father was a man of great talent, a patron of the arts, and a distinguished public man. Rolff was a wild boy, and, for some unknown escapade, he fled the country and took to life at sea, and at last came to the colonies. The war with France and Spain broke out, and he shipped on one of the privateers that sailed from our ports to prey on the commerce of the enemy. In this way he led a wild life for years, till he at last became captain of a cruiser himself. It is true that some of these privateers were little better than pirates; but if young Van Buysen was guilty of any crimes against the innocent, no one knows it now. The tales about him that have floated down to our day are the wildest gossip. But he gained riches by his adventurous life on the high seas; and, once while in the port of New York, returned from a cruise, an event occurred to him that decided his future life. He met a fair maiden, at the first sight of whom he was desperately enamored.

"He followed her up, discovered her name and whereabouts, and resolved on winning her. She was the daughter of a poor, honest, named Lebrun, who had come to this country to ply his art, but found poor remuneration in the rude condition of the colonies and the lack of public taste. But poor as he was, his love for his daughter was greater than his love of money. He was angered at the attentions of the rich, dissipated sailor to his lovely daughter, and, to escape them, he fled this lonely hamlet. But Rolff Van Buysen was not to be balked. He ferreted out their whereabouts, and followed his sweetheart to this place. He had really succeeded in winning her heart, for he was handsome and well-educated, and had a strong element of the heroic in his character. So at last the poor artist was fain to give way, and consent to a union for his daughter that he did not approve.

"Magnus Rolff, as he called himself, was married in due time to the fair maiden of his love. In the heyday of his happiness, he resolved on building the finest country house in the whole colony for the keeping of his bride. So Rolff House was built, and a wonderful structure it was in the eyes of the honest burghers. All that is really known of the married life of Magnus Rolff is that she bore her husband two children, a boy and a girl, and died. Magnus Rolff lived on some years after the death of his wife. He never filled her place, which would seem to be good proof that he loved her truly. Some time after her death, however, he installed in Rolff House as his mistress a sister who came from Europe. That sister is the present mistress of Rolff House. She was once a young and handsome woman, of fine education and great force of character, and she soon gained the absolute control of Rolff House."

Women Who Drink Whiskey.

That physicians are responsible for a good deal of inebriety among women is charged by a writer in the "Hospital" (London). Of 679 cases treated during the past nine years in an English hospital for inebriety, women only eleven were beer-drinkers, and thirty-six habitually drank wine. The rest became drunkards through taking spirits, and especially whiskey. The fact that so many of these women were whiskey-drinkers is ascribed by the writer to the frequent prescription of this liquor by doctors. He says:

"While of late years doctors have very largely avoided recommending alcohol to their patients at all, when they do prescribe it is in small quantities. If a woman of middle age feels twinges of gout or rheumatism, the medical attendant very often advises the giving up of the glass of sherry or claret which the patient has been in the habit of drinking, and substituting a little whiskey and soda-water. From the profession the public have learned to believe that whiskey is the 'safest' of all spirits, with regular advantages to distillers. These figures, which tell the temptation to which six hundred inebriate women are subjected, make one doubt if the advice is equally good for the public. It is true that the doctors recommend only a little whiskey, but they have no guarantee that their limitations are adhered to. The warmth of the spirit not merely induces a pleasant sense of well-being, but may even give a temporary relief from pain. It tempts the patient to return to it when the pain comes back. The doctor is not told of this extra indulgence, and the patient conceals herself with the notion that whiskey is 'so safe' and 'so medicinal' that she may give the temporary alleviation sought, but spirits do, and the notion that whiskey is not conducive to the development of any disease is a temptation to take it. This is the point which medical men might do well to consider. They may save their patients from falling if they can ensure them that whiskey-drinking will cause some disease. But it is of no use to warn them of the risk of acquiring the habit of inebriety. That only gives offense, and does little good, for no one realizes their susceptibility to that temptation until, under compulsion, it is too late."

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay. It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds, the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash? A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend-paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shermans, the Hekins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied.

W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at $1.00 per value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

There are many persons who assert that there is nothing in it for the average investor and that it does not pay to invest small sums in stock. Let such persons ask themselves what returns they can hope to get through banks or real estate speculations for sums of under $100.00, and then consider the following:

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $3,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1880 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

$100 in the United & Boston in 1890 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in Tananarive Copper in 1890 is now worth $683.

$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend-paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Malloy, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

Not only does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining—The Horse Stalk in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore sells only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours.

The Alaska Trust sold ore for $2.35 per ton; the stock 50 per cent. above par. No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management. Respectfully submitted,

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

Is what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and then there is absolute safety in the investment, and yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

An arrangement has been made with the Trust Company to guarantee to the purchaser the return of amount invested within a given number of years. To maintain this guarantee they issue to the purchaser of the stock a gold bond, which is secured by first real estate mortgage deposited with another Trust Company for the specific purpose of securing the bonds the underwriting company issues.

Thus the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment we will explain what we have to offer:

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, among other things, to secure funds for the extensive development of its numerous mining properties and also of its oil lands, offers a limited amount of its Treasury stock for sale.

The company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Oropesa Creek, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done. It is proposed to place as many of these mining properties upon a shipping and self-supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of oil lands in Hinsdale County, Colo. in order to accomplish this the company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $1.00 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with no individual liability. This is one of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Profits have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are usually very great, especially when the stock can be secured at such a low price as this is now offered for. Now is the time to get in before an advance in the price is made.

The new railroad from Denver to Salt Lake, which is now building will be of incalculable benefit to the Company, furnishing transportation for ore and supplies, besides immediately increasing its value.

"Predigested" Literature.

In a recent issue of the "Book-Lovers Magazine" the novelist Frank H. Spearman enters a plea for the "art of skipping."

"It is not too much to say, he affirms, that 'the whole body of literature, as we know it, stands for no art so much as that of skipping. The forgotten, the lost, the buried, the rejected, what the world has skipped.'"

"The trouble with our dutiful American book-lover is that he feels a question of conscience in skipping. No scruple could be more strained. In not every place provided for his recreation of value largely in proportion to the author's own mastery of the art of skipping."

Every book that charms its reader does so not alone by what it provides; it charms by what it omits.

"Let the book-lover cultivate the art of skipping. It is an art, and it may be learned, mastered even, by the average reader. Follow your own instinct in it; nothing in the art of skipping is so sure as your own instinct. Read while your book holds you. The book-lover offers himself a willing victim to his author."

"Here," he says in effect, "is my attention. If you can hold it, you are welcome to it. I rather hope you can hold it. The book-lover does not interest in it. A long paragraph stares at you! Take the first sentence and jump straight to the last. Is the subject still the same? Dip into the middle of the paragraph. A glance gives you the connection and again you are away at a center; before you know it you are reading in lines and paragraphs instead of in words and sentences."

"Then comes something you want—every word of it. You read contentedly on till an inward monitor stops and, like a master, you resume the art; one glance, one page. If you go too far, as you easily may, retreat. It is a pleasure to be compelled by your author to do so, but above all, follow your instinct, the instinct of selection, the first and greatest of natural instincts—and soon you will be looking for something to read. Moreover, you will feel after the exercise of this instinct the beginning of your own conclusions on literature and life. Selection makes one think. The book-lover who can select for his own needs out of what has been provided for all is not far from being already a capable critic."

Though it is quite certain in many of the inactive epochs which are hard to buy. Under the circumstances it is expected that the shorts will exceed more difficulty in getting under cover.

MIDWESTERN PACIFIC RAILWAY.
The present and prospective condition of the company is well worthy of the attention of investors and speculators.

The first five months of the current fiscal year ending May 31st are still more satisfactory. Increase in gross, $2,750,233, and in the net, $1,196,838. On the basis for the full year, about 12 per cent net should be earned. There are some predictions that 14 per cent will be reached, against about 12 per cent. Last year, which followed the poor corn crop of 1901.

Liberal arrangements for some years have been charged to operating expenses, absorbing the large excess of net earnings over the present 5 per cent rate of dividends, which are paid in semi-annual installments. 2 1/2 per cent in semi-annual installments. 2 1/2 per cent in semi-annual installments.

It is reported that the Rockefeller interest in the Gould system of railroads, of which Missouri Pacific is the favorite, has been enlarged; this augurs well for the future good management.

Just closed earnings, increased $180,000, net with the first two weeks' traffic. July shows increase of over $200,000 for three weeks. Generous rains in the corn belt last week were beneficial to the crop.

THE ENGLISH PAPERS ON THE CONGRESS

Generally Believe It Will Lighten the Fiscal Discussion

LETTER FROM TORONTO

London, Aug. 18.—The papers generally devote long editorials to the Congress at Montreal. The Morning Post calls the Congress the first practical step taken towards fiscal reform, and adds: "The date may mark an epoch in Imperial history."

The Telegraph says whether the Congress favors or opposes Mr. Chamberlain, the verdict must carry great weight, for it is a real General Council of the Empire.

The Standard says Mr. Chamberlain's dictum is that the Empire can only be kept together by a preferential tariff does not receive much support from the discussion on Imperial defence, and adds: "The question seems to have been argued with no reference to fiscal arrangements, nor is it clear that the local patriotism of Quebec will be converted into wider imperialism by any modifications of the tariff. It would be interesting to know whether there is any foundation for the theory that the colonies which now decline to bear more than an infinitesimal portion of the burden of Imperial defence, have been only waiting for preferential tariffs to become liberal and contented contributors."

The Times says moderate and dispassionate discussion on the lines indicated by Lord Strathcona ought to do something towards placing Mr. Chamberlain's proposals in a true light before the public opinion of Britain and the Empire.

The Chronicle hopes the discussions will show what is really intended by those advocating fiscal revolution in Chamberlain's lines.

Philip Thompson Fears Too Many Workmen Have Come to Canada

THE QUESTION ARGUED.

respondent says there is nothing in the tariff reform he proposes which need increase the cost of living to any British family.

As the Times says, it is still difficult to get the people to hear quietly at the actual proposal and listen from abiding like a nervous steed at the unexampled novelty.

BODIES RECOVERED

Two Young Canadians Who Lost Their Lives in N.Y.

Gloucester, N. Y., Aug. 19.—The bodies of George Evans and Miss Florence Brown came to the surface of Canada Lake yesterday. Dynamite was exploded between the island where the boat was found and the shore, and the bodies were recovered. The two young persons have been missing for some days, having gone for a boat ride, and not returning. Mr. Evans was to have come into a fortune today, and both were well known.

IN GREAT DEMAND.

FARM HANDS ARE VERY SCARCE
THIS YEAR

Many Landlords at Work to Find Boys to Help on Farms

In conversation with a prominent farmer from Smith, The Times was informed that there is a great scarcity of farm help in Peterborough county and district. It is almost impossible to secure help at any price. In the western portion of Ontario the conditions are even worse. At a meeting at the Glanville Hotel at Smith, August 18th, the question of the scarcity of farm hands in Ontario was discussed.

The most important question affecting industrial matters in the present generation is the labor question, was a statement made by Mr. Elliott. Mr. Elliott held that the abolition of the tariff would not only be a national disaster, affecting chiefly and primarily the farming community, but ultimately injuring all classes of trade. It had come to this, that the farmers were now being asked to reduce their crop and area of cultivation of the necessities of the times. The agricultural output would be reduced. The income from agriculture would be lessened, and it was evident that manufacturers also would be forced to retract and the general business of the country would be lessened. It was plain that such a condition of things would right itself, but not until after the injury had been done. The factories would close or reduce the number of operatives, and labor would thus be forced from urban to rural channels and the need would be again to build up the trade. But great efforts should be used to avoid this course.

Mr. Elliott, continuing, advocated a change in the methods now in vogue in the immigration department. It was the man from rural England and Ireland that was wanted, and he was wanted not for the West and not for New Ontario, but for Old Ontario, where the farms were starting for laborers. Within five miles of Galt he knew of farmers paying $5 a month. There was not a farm in Ontario that could afford this wage.

Mr. Elliott moved, seconded by Dr. Murray, that the Government should take the necessary steps to secure the immigration of men from rural England and Ireland, to augment the demands made on Turkey by Russia, in connection with the annexation, August 7th, of the Balkan Peninsula. The motion was carried.

The Times adds: "The practice of shipping Canadian cheese in green condition cannot be too strongly condemned, as it seriously impairs the reputation of the Canadian product."

CANADIAN CHEESE

Continues Practice of Shipping in Green Condition

London, Aug. 19.—The Times, discussing British imports of colonial produce, says: "If Canadian cheese arrived more regularly in more mature condition and free from the heated bling character, which it sometimes has, the wide difference in value between British and Canadian cheese would rapidly diminish and Canadian would approximate in price to English and would be in greater demand."

The Times adds: "The practice of shipping Canadian cheese in green condition cannot be too strongly condemned, as it seriously impairs the reputation of the Canadian product."

THE GREAT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE CONGRESS BEING HELD IN MONTREAL

Lord Strathcona and Brassey Tell the Assembled Delegates of the Importance of the Chamberlain Movement on the Fiscal Policies of the Colonies

(Reported for The Times by Mr. J. H. BURNHAM, M.A.)

Lord Strathcona presided, and opened the proceedings. Great Britain was very largely represented. All told there are already arrived over 400 delegates. The bias of his lordship's speech was towards the policy of Chamberlain, although he was, of course, too cautious to do more than show by veiled reference at this early stage how he hoped the deliberations of the congress would turn out. Windsor Hall, being in connection with the hotel, is an excellent place of meeting. A large number of ladies in the gallery.

As you will get the verbatim reports of Lord Strathcona's and Brassey's speeches in the daily papers, I shall confine my few remarks to the Times to other than matters of formal interest. As Mr. Dundas and I had to wait till 3.30 a.m. for the boat at Port Hope, and till 2.30 a.m. for the train at Kingston (owing to the lateness of the arrival of the steamer) we did not get into Montreal until this (Monday) morning. We proceeded with- out delay to the opening meeting, which we were in good time for. One cannot help being impressed with the seriousness of the affair in hand. The Old Country delegates realize that they are here for work, and are proceeding to put their characteristic energy into it. The plans and preparations of the Montreal Board seem to be perfect, and perfectly carried out. Of course, this will be tested in the itinerary. The weather is fortunately ideal. Another very pleasant feature of the proceedings is the very friendly feeling manifested by frequent cordial references to Australia and New Zealand. A large map hangs on the wall behind the head

A Fierce Battle Near Monastir, Insur- gents Repulse the Turkish Troops

After Fight Lasting Six Hours, Turkey is in Bad Shape, 800 People Reported to Have Been Massacred

Sofia, Bulgaria, Aug. 18.—A fierce battle is reported to have occurred in the neighborhood of Monastir. Three Turkish battalions attacked a thousand insurgents, and after the fight had lasted for six hours the Turks were repulsed with a loss of 200 men killed or wounded. The insurgent loss is not given.

Constantinople, Aug. 18.—The Russian squadron of warships which left Belgrade yesterday is expected to arrive off the Turkish coast this afternoon, to support the demands made on Turkey by Russia, in connection with the annexation, August 7th, of the Balkan Peninsula. The Russian Minister has secured the detention of a quantity of arms and ammunition destined for Bulgaria.

Vienna, Aug. 18.—A curious suggestion has been made in some political circles to the effect that the Russian squadron, bound for Turkish waters, is not so much intended as a message to Turkey as to protect the Seltan in the event of a serious outbreak at the Yildiz palace from the dissatisfaction of the Albanians and the Arabian-Syrian cliques.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARIA GIVES A REBUKE TO RUSSIA

Calculated to Let Loose a Universal Conflagration.

THE ACTION OF RUSSIA A VERY DANGEROUS ONE

Vienna, Aug. 18.—In authoritative quarters there appears to be a disposition to doubt the reality of Russia's intention to send a fleet to Turkish waters, possibly because no official announcement of this grave step is under- stood yet to have reached the Austro-Hungarian Government. In any case it is unquestionable that Russia's repeated insistence has made an impression not entirely agreeable upon Austro-Hungarian public opinion. The Neue Freie Presse, which is often closely in record with official opinion, argues that the appearance of the Russian squadron in Turkish waters would encourage the Macedonians and Bulgarians, who would then be free to do as they please with the words of Count Lamoriniere's speech to the Russian agent at Sofia. "The action of Russia against Turkey has reached the extreme limit of what is permissible between two states which maintain diplomatic relations with each other. It is high time for Russia to stop unless she wishes to loose a universal conflagration, a thing about a total collapse of Ottoman Empire."

Instead of (though that of itself, Lord Strathcona is veering on the grandiloquent in his references to the Empire just now, but, though or two has taken the superficial step of sugar out of the cup of Imperial bliss. He is growing very earnest and in vain attempts of prospective difficulties.

Unfortunately, the fact that the Peterborough Board of Trade was sending delegates was not made known to the managing body here soon enough to have the name of Peterborough appear on the official programme, which has so much present and will have so much historical value. In fact, Peterborough is one of the few places of importance in Canada not appearing by record. However, Mr. Dundas and your humble servant have done their best to rectify the omission, and I think Mr. Dundas is preparing to speak at some of the future meetings. I hope he does, for he has posted himself thoroughly.

The morning meeting concluded in an unexpected and somewhat dramatic manner. The delegate from the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce suggested an amendment to the Toronto and Montreal resolutions to the effect that Canada should give help when and as she pleased. This compromise was reached amid great cheering and the singing of the National Anthem. It really affirmed the purpose for which the Congress was called.

THE CHINESE APPEAL FOR PROTECTION

The Educated in Tien Tsin Fear Torture and Death at Hands of the Officials

Hong Kong, July 18.—The Canadian Pacific Railway's steamer, Empress of India, from Vancouver, B.C., July 17, and Yokohama, August 10, for Hong Kong, collided near this port today with the Chinese steamer Kiang Tai. The Kiang Tai was a boat after the collision. The Empress of India saved 170 of the crew of the steamer. The captain of the Kiang Tai, who refused to leave his ship, and thirteen of his crew, were drowned. The Empress of India was badly damaged, and the Kiang Tai was a total wreck. The Empress of India was a 10,000-ton steamer, and the Kiang Tai was a 1,000-ton steamer. The collision occurred in the Kiang Tai Channel, near the mouth of the Yangtze River. The Empress of India was bound for Hong Kong, and the Kiang Tai was bound for Shanghai. The collision occurred at 10 p.m. on July 17. The Empress of India was damaged in the bow, and the Kiang Tai was damaged in the stern. The Empress of India was towed to Hong Kong, and the Kiang Tai was towed to Shanghai. The Empress of India was repaired and returned to service. The Kiang Tai was scrapped.

Ottawa, Aug. 18.—When the debate on the Grand Trunk Pacific bill was resumed yesterday afternoon, Mr. A. A. Macdonald made reference to the bill. He claimed that the most important element in the Conservative party of British Columbia supported the measure. It was only necessary to refer to the contract, which appeared to have been especially drafted with a single eye to the interests of British Columbia, to disprove the fact that the Liberal party has, apparently, recognized a cardinal principle, which seems to underlie our constitution, but one which has heretofore been ignored by the Conservative party. The bill, the subordination of transportation corporations to the majority of Parliament.

Public Interests Safe.

Not only did the contract provide for the speedy and efficient construction of the road from the Atlantic to the Pacific, but it also provided for the improvement and expansion of the railway under which the large deposit would be refunded to the company to complete the Western and mountain sections and equip them with suitable and sufficient rolling stock to handle the traffic offering. Provision was also made for the continuous and efficient operation of both divisions of the road to the satisfaction of the Government, or fair-minded and patriotic citizens who read the contract could say that the interests of British Columbia had not been regarded by the Government in a special election year, with a view to securing the support of the voters and the approval of the public.

Stocks—The MARKETS OF THE WORLD—Grain

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and the return of absolute safety is guaranteed. And yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask, "What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?"

An arrangement has been made with the Trust Company to guarantee to the purchaser the return of amount invested within a given number of years. To substantiate this guarantee they issue to the purchaser of the stock a gold bond, which is secured by first real estate mortgages deposited with another Trust Company for the specific purpose of securing the bonds the underwriting company issues.

Thus the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer.

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, a company of great promise, is offering for sale the entire development of its numerous mining properties and also of its oil lands, under a limited amount of its treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Orizaba Creek, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done. It is prepared to place as many of these mining properties upon a slipping and self-supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of oil lands in Hunziker County, Colo., in order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $1.00 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with individual liability. This is one of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Fortunes have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are usually very great, especially when the stock can be secured at such a low price as this is now offered for. Now is the time to get in before an advance in the price is made.

The new railroad from Denver to Salt Lake, which is now building will be of incalculable benefit to the Company, furnishing transportation for ore and supplies, besides immediately increasing values.

STOCK MARKETS

The following report was received by M. J. Cummings & Co., 100 Simcoe Street, by direct private wire:

New York, Aug. 18-10 a.m.—There was a strong tendency in the stock market yesterday, and as a net result of the day's operations there was a strong upward movement in prices. Stocks generally in some portions of the list are disposed to express more or less uneasiness with regard to the future.

The feature is especially noticeable in zinc, R. I., and a few other stocks in the same category. There is but little new on these issues excepting the arguments which have been advanced on some time past.

There is a general feeling of uneasiness, and better advised projects. There is some talk that the Morgan element is acquiring an interest in Rock Island, and that it will some day be represented on board of directors.

New York, Aug. 18.—The report of the market views on many prominent issues, the stock market displays a great degree of activity. The day's work is a number of instances of substantial advances were recorded. The copper stocks, Rock Island and several other securities which are known to be under the control of certain interests, have been very active in the market.

Lawyer Ballyrag—Sir, you have stated under oath that this man had the appearance of a gentleman. Will you be good enough to tell the jury how a gentleman looks, in your estimation? Witness—Well, sir, a gentleman looks like a gentleman.

Lawyer Ballyrag—I don't want any of your "sirs," sir, and remember that you are under oath. Can you see in this court room any person that looks like a gentleman?

Witness (with sudden asperity)—I could if you would stand out of the way. You're not transparent.

An Eccentric Man's Funeral.

The will of Captain W. P. Norton, Louisville's eccentric capitalist and land proprietor, who died recently at Corcoran Beach, contains a clause in which the deceased made these provisions for his funeral, and which is quite as eccentric as that of the late S. J. Major of Ottawa: "That no services of a religious character be held; that a special train of Pullmans be chartered to take his remains from Louisville—where he has for so long been buried alive—to Cincinnati; that the coffins of the cars be well stocked with good things to eat and drink, in order that his friends do not thirst or hunger; that while the remains are being cremated at Cincinnati an orchestra render a programme of popular and select music." The programme is at the disposal of the will, and it is stipulated that when an intermission is reached the friends ask the orchestra to join them "in drinking my bon voyage."

THE TURKISH TROOPS DO AS THEY PLEASE

The Officers Obligated to Honor the Soldiers and Unable to Prevent Them from Murdering Bulgarians in Cold Blood

Constantinople, Aug. 19.—The Russian demands on Turkey, growing out of the recent murder of the Russian Consul at Monastir, M. Koussakoff, were formally presented at the Yildiz Palace yesterday.

Notwithstanding the warning which Russia addressed to the Bulgarian Government, it is generally believed here that the Russian naval demonstration in Turkish waters will dangerously encourage the Macedonian, who it is claimed will interpret Russia's action as being the first step towards intervention in their behalf.

Intimidation of the Turkish troops is regarded as being one of the greatest dangers of the present Balkan crisis. The lack of discipline among the soldiers is marked. It is found necessary to humiliate them in order to prevent conflicts between the soldiers and their officers. For instance, a regiment while on the way from Ushak to Monastir, demanded that the train be stopped at Salonica for 15 hours instead of for the scheduled half-hour, so that the soldiers might amuse themselves in the town. After futile endeavors to prevail upon

The resignation was accepted, but no action was taken towards filling the vacancy. The negotiations regarding the lease between the Onal and Steel Companies are still under way.

Winnipeg, Aug. 18.—By a new agreement entered into between the C.P.R. Company and their men, regarding the lease between the Onal and Steel Companies are still under way.

A CURE FOR LOCKJAW

A Story Which Will Revolutionize the Treatment of Blood Poisoning

(Chicago, Aug. 18.—A cure for lockjaw, it is said, has at last been discovered. The discoverer of the cure is Dr. Samuel A. Matthews, professor of physiology in the University of Chicago. In brief, Dr. Matthews' treatment of the disease consists of an intravenous injection of a certain solution. The treatment had just been tried for the first time on George Newman, a 41-year-old boy. The patient had an acute attack of the disease, and was in the last stages, when Dr. Matthews was asked to try his newly discovered treatment. As a result, the boy is now able to sit up.

Physicians pronounce the cure a wonderful one, and say that Professor Matthews has made a discovery which will revolutionize the entire practice of medicine in cases of acute poisoning.

A FEARFUL DEATH

Samuel Smith's Head Crushed Against Tree by a Wagon

Owen Sound, Aug. 18.—Fame! Smith, a former resident of Owen Sound, who moved to the United States last March, was instantly killed yesterday afternoon in an accident on his farm at William G. Hill, the well-known contractor, on the western outskirts of the town.

At the rear of Mr. Hill's residence is a steep private roadway which leads down by a winding route to the river. The road is uneven, with trees and brush along the sides. Smith, who was driving a wagon, was attempting to turn a sharp drop in the road. As he did so, the wagon wheel struck a stump, and the wagon tipped over. Smith's head was crushed against a tree, and he was killed instantly.

far were 5 to 3. Dick Brothers, of Wall street, received a commission to lay $5,000 to $3,000 on the cup deal.

There were many schemes among the visitors to Reliance and Shamrock on Monday and Tuesday, and it may be that, having seen Shamrock III, for the first time, they were so impressed with the beauty of her lines, that they had decided to hedge a bit in the betting.

Thus far, however, the number of bets recorded is comparatively small. The rumor that the crew of the Shamrock did not share the confidence of Lipton in the prowess of the challenger, is absolutely without foundation. It is a fact that more than two-thirds of the crew of Lipton's yacht have wagered money on the cup defender.

BOUGHT PULP MILLS

Alfred Harmsworth Buys a Mill for Property in Newfoundland

Montreal, Aug. 18.—That Mr. Alfred Harmsworth, proprietor of the London Daily Mail and a member of English parliament, has bought a pulp mill in Newfoundland was announced yesterday. The purchase of two pulp mills and extensive timber lands in Newfoundland was the announced plan of a group of representatives of the Newfoundland Timber Estate Company, from which the mills and lands were bought.

Montreal, Aug. 18.—Charles H. Holman, a schoolboy, aged 14, took his life last night, apparently through fear of punishment for disobedience. He went to the theater, notwithstanding that his parents forbade him to leave the house when he did not return, the parents searched and found him dead in the yard. The boy had twisted a rope around his neck, attached the end to a tree, and then crawled on his hands and knees until a triangle had been produced. The coroner's jury gave a verdict of suicide.

VIEW'S VARY ON THE PREFERENCE

Wide Divergence of Opinion Develops in Congress of Commerce

Montreal, Aug. 18.—The great debate followed the flag, he believed it followed the advertisement. The resolution was passed unanimously. The final session of the Congress of Commerce was held yesterday. The matter being under the attention of the Congress was turned to the final session. During the session the members and members of the twelve resolutions had got together and the following compromise resolution was submitted:

"It is resolved that in the opinion of this Congress the bonds of the British Empire would be materially strengthened and a union of the various parts of the Empire would be consolidated by the adoption of a commercial policy based upon the principle of mutual benefit, whereby each component part of the Empire would receive substantial advantage in trade as the result of the national policy."

Before taking up the main question, the question of Imperial Postage was discussed. The resolution was passed unanimously. The resolution was passed unanimously. The resolution was passed unanimously.

Mr. William Parke, M.P., Birmingham, who moved the resolution, said he believed it was the duty of the colonies to keep on extending the English flag, and that the colonies should be encouraged to do so.

Mr. C. J. Miller, of Orillia, Ont., seconded the resolution. He said America was not to Canada for one cent, which cost England eight cents. He said that the colonies should be encouraged to do so.

THE NEVITABLE CONFLICT SURE TO COME

Tukrey will be Driven Out of Europe at All Cost

THIS IS THE CRY

Europe Disgusted and Ready to Act

London, Aug. 18.—The Mail says: Turkey has been a disturbing factor in European affairs for many years. At one time, England sided with the Porte, with the idea of blocking Russian ambitions. But when the occupation of Bagdad, and the annexation of the Persian Gulf, and the determination to make Constantinople a base for operations against India, the present spring in Macedonia was bound to occur. What was the result? The Ottoman Empire was divided into two camps. The one camp, who seem to have had the countenance of the Russian Government, were the leaders of the Macedonian movement. The other camp, who seem to have had the countenance of the British Government, were the leaders of the Macedonian movement.

Edward Guernsey, of Birmingham, is at the hotel Netherlands. He is a warm supporter of the Shamrock. He is a warm supporter of the Shamrock. He is a warm supporter of the Shamrock.

Interest in race increases as day of first race approaches, and from betting Shamrock stand easy in the academy. Last week odds of 2 to 1 were freely offered on the Shamrock, but yesterday the odds were 5 to 1.

When the Macedonian became involved in any disagreement with a foreign nation, or other serious to say.

The purchase was concluded on behalf of the Harmsworth Publishing Company by J. D. Harmsworth, manager for the English publishers, who at the time was situated on a branch of the Red railway, and all of which are tapped by the railway. The Harmsworth interests have been on the lookout for some time past to purchase a pulp mill on this side of the Atlantic, and during the recent visit of Mr. Harmsworth to Montreal, Premier L. J. Tweedie, of New Brunswick, came up and tried to negotiate for the sale of a Chatham mill in which he is interested. "Becoming aware of the possibilities of the trade," Harmsworth's company bought out all the mills and timber lands on the island. The option, however, according to the deed of sale, had to be exercised. The time in which it was still to run does not expire for some time, but Mr. Harmsworth today notified the officials of the company that he would take advantage of it and take over the property. Up to the present time all the limits of Harmsworth's have been situated in Serbia.

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Aug. 18.—Authentic information was received today announcing the imprisonment of French, German and Italian merchants at Ciudad Bolivar, Venezuela, for refusing President Castro's demand for the payment of taxes during the occupation of Ciudad Bolivar, by the Revolutionaries.

A reign of terror prevails throughout the district owing to the extortion, threats and barbarities of the party in power. The entire region of the Orinoco basin with produce, accumulated during the past two years for which there are no adequate shipping facilities. The native and German firms at Caracas appear to be seeking to control the entire Orinoco import trade. There is no money in the Orinoco country, and the district is very great. President Castro is determined, it is said, to destroy the transshipment trade in American and European goods between Trinidad and the Orinoco River country.

Castro Has Imprisoned European Merchants, President Seeking to Destroy the Foreign Transshipment Trade

On the one side you see a united Empire, striving for the benefit of the whole to hold on together as one common people, striving for the common good of one common flag, the upbuilding of one common flag, one common fleet, one common throne, and on the other hand the horrible nightmare we behold would be to master the British Empire into its original fragments. I said it back to the confines of the world, never again to be gathered together. It may be said by some that if the British Empire loses some of its great possessions today it would soon acquire others. I submit that under the heavens above there is not sufficient territory to collect another British Empire such as we hold today.

After speaking at some length on the above lines, Mr. Cobden reported that the Canadian delegates would not change a word in the resolution on commercial relations. Sir William Holman said that, although the result of the conference was unfavorable to his suggestions, he hoped he might be able to remove the objections. He merely hoped the benefits from any change of fiscal policy might be mutual.

NAVAL ACTION BY THE GREAT POWERS

Joint Demonstration Before Salonica Talked of The Russian Squadron Will Not Go to Constantinople

Paris, Aug. 18.—It was feared in official quarters today that the action of Russia in ordering a naval squadron to Turkish waters may be speedily followed by important naval action on the part of the powers. Communications are now being exchanged relative to a joint naval demonstration before Salonica. The final determination will depend largely on Russia, but if such a demonstration is determined upon, the fleets of France and Austria will certainly co-operate. It is probable that the other European powers having Turkish interests, except, possibly, Germany, which throughout has not favored taking energetic steps against Turkey, will take part in the demonstration. In the meantime the Russian squadron will not proceed to Constantinople, as has been reported, but will rendezvous off a small part of the Vilayet of Adrianople, above the canal of Constantinople. The Russian squadron has no orders to assume an aggressive posture. Its action will depend on Turkey's fulfillment of the terms of Russia's final demands in connection with the annexation of Constantinople.

London, Aug. 18.—The Berlin correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette in a dispatch to that paper, says he is in a position to say positively the reports that Russia has made any fresh or unknown demands upon Turkey. A dispatch from Sofia to the Berlin Telegram Company says severe fighting is reported from the neighborhood of Monastir, Macedonia. Three Turkish battalions attacked 1,000 insurgents and after six hours of fierce fighting are said to have been repulsed.

Bulgarian Arms Detained

Cologne, Aug. 18.—A dispatch from Belgrade to the Cologne Gazette, says that at the instance of the Turkish Embassy there, arms and ammunition destined for Bulgaria have been detained. The forwarding of the goods was found to be in violation of the prohibition of arms trade.

In a contest at the Driving Park last night D. Holland, the champion runner of Montreal, defeated Armstrong, of Peterborough, in a hundred yard race. The latter having five yards of a handicap.

THE BALKAN WAR NOW GOING ON IN EARNEST

Flere Battle in which the Turks Lose 210 Men Killed and 500 Wounded

THE ENCOUNTER LASTED OVER SIX HOURS

Three Turkish Battalions Engaged with One Thousand Insurgents Loss Unknown

Sofia, Bulgaria, August 22.—A fierce battle is reported to have occurred in the neighborhood of Monastir. Three Turkish battalions attacked a thousand insurgents, and after the fight had raged for six hours, the Turks were repulsed with the loss of 210 men killed or wounded. The insurgent loss is not given.

Later advice from the East states that large bodies of insurgents are massing in the mountains, and are in positions entrenched and impregnable.

FRANCE IS FEARFUL

Paris, August 22.—The figures say that the conditions in the Balkan States are most alarming. It is feared that the world is on the eve of a friendly war. Just how far it will go, or how many nations will become involved, no one can say.

BRITAIN TO SEND FLEET

London, August 22.—It is believed the Foreign Office, through the Admiralty, has ordered the vessels of the Mediterranean squadron to sail for the Adriatic immediately. Last Monday the cruiser Vindictive and the gunboat Spadedy were detached from the squadron of Admiral Dundas, commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean Station at Larnaca, and they have arrived at Gibraltar. The remainder of the squadron is expected immediately.

The Daily Mail asserts that Great Britain and Turkey are laying in enormous quantities of war material, and that the British Admiralty has ordered the construction of a new battle ship.

WORTHING AND MASSACRE

Sofia, Bulgaria, August 22.—Reports from Monastir say two hundred women, who have arrived there from the Bulgarian village of Rakovo, have presented petitions to the Russian and Austrian consuls, and to Himi Shanks, the inspector-general, setting forth that their village has been burned, and that all the male population have been massacred.

Fifteen villages in the district of Orizova, three in the district of Lerin, and three in the district of Resen, have been destroyed.

Further details of the fighting at Kresna show that the insurgents retired to a point in the vicinity of the town after losing sixty men killed and twelve wounded. The Turkish losses were 210 men killed or wounded.

ANOTHER VICTORY FOR THE ATHLETICS

Defeated Lindsay in a Semi-Final Game

BY A SCORE OF 11 TO 4

Gave The Scugog Team a Big Surprise—Return Game to be Played Next Wednesday

The Athletics again distinguished themselves and showed that they were going to have a piece, at least, of the C.L.A. championship, by defeating the Lindsay team in a semi-final game of the C.L.A. championship. The Athletics won by a score of 11 to 4.

A large crowd of enthusiastic spectators witnessed the game, including several of the Lindsay players who were in the crowd.

The Lindsay club were quite confident of being "on top," as was indicated by large banners with display lines—"We are on top," and other boasting suggestions of being winners.

But the Athletics would not have it that way and added one more win to their list of victories which gave them a lead of seven goals over their opponents.

The Athletics were without the assistance of Koleski, one of their best players, who was injured in a game against the Lindsay team.

Wasson, playing at home, and Lindsay, playing at home, were the main players in the game.

THE ATTITUDE OF SIR WILFRID LAURIER

Barquet to the Delegates to the Congress of Chambers Held at Montreal

Montreal, Aug. 21.—Last night in the Windsor Hotel one of the most interesting and unique banquets in the history of Canada took place, when the leading business men of the Empire met side by side with the President of Canada and the Governor-General. The banquet was given in honor of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, President of the Congress of Chambers, and the Earl of Darnley, Lord Chamberlain of the Household.

Lord Minto said in part: "We are on the eve of a great upheaval, not only of the political conditions of the United Kingdom, but of the present system of inter-imperial tariffs. We are committed to a struggle over the question of free trade or protection, and in my humble opinion the verdict will be in favor of free trade."

COPETE MINING CO.

27 William Street, New York

Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5

More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but so rich in gold that they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter in a short time produced something over $100,000.

The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them are—Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Seymour W. Tallach, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde, and Greene Consolidated; Mr. Edwin D. Treadwell, Mining Engineer and Geologist and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The internal trophies of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now clear and undisputed title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A portion of the Treasury stock is offered for sale to complete the development and equipment of the property new for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

Vast ledges of ore, running from $500 to $800,000 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $700 to $100,000 per ton. This is not a five per cent. a month scheme, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans. No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little mine is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGEMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the fore-sight that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your fore-sight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the stock at present price. It will come to 20 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mines and returned full of enthusiasm. The mines are turning out much richer than expected.

I can offer the stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO DAY—tomorrow it may slip your memory. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 25% per month.

ROLFF HOUSE

By G. H. BENEDICT.

A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.

This seemed reasonable if not very agreeable to Claude; but he thought of his aunt's dying charge to him, of the mysterious roll, and of the great stone vault in the south cellar, and he could not help connecting these things with the strange disappearance of his aunt's money. But of this he determined to say nothing to the lawyer. The latter, however, saw that something was on his mind, and endeavored to draw it out. Assuming his blindest manner, he said:

"The only way in which your aunt could have disposed of any surplus revenue would have been to have concealed it somewhere. In that case, she would naturally have left you some information on the subject. I am fully conversant with all her business, and know that there is no more money invested than is stated in the will. Did she have any communication with you in regard to her money?"

"She told me she had made a will, and that I was her heir," replied Claude, not without design of evading the question.

"If that is all, then it would seem to settle the question," continued the legal gentleman, with an air that seemed to indicate that he was not entirely satisfied that it was all. "There is nothing left us then but to make the best of things as they are. Now, what are your wishes as to the first steps to be taken, my dear sir?"

"You spoke of my ability to raise money on the property," queried Claude.

"Yes, certainly," was the reply. "It is a matter that might be managed. Money is always to be had on good real estate. If it is your desire, my dear young friend, to use a portion of your fortune in travel and enjoyment, as it is very natural you should wish to do, why, I may venture to say—in fact, I think I can assure you—that I can put you in a way to procure it. Now, what are your ideas—your plans—your expectations, as it were, as to the amount of money you would like to use?"

This fact, Claude went into a lengthy statement of his plans for a long residence in Europe, for the study of art. He found no cold listener in the sympathetic Mr. Raybrook. That golden-hearted individual seemed to catch some of the younger man's enthusiasm, and he was delighted that he had such a noble ambition. Moreover, he proceeded to show him how, by simply signing certain legal papers, he could procure certain amounts of money on the mills, the buildings, the lands and other property of the Rolff estate.

"How soon could I get this money?" asked Claude.

"Why, in a few days, perhaps—that is, I speak on the supposition that you expect my aid in the matter."

"Certainly, certainly," replied the young man. "And not to waste words, I authorize you to proceed to find out at once what amounts of money you can raise on my property, and how soon it can be procured."

"Then you consent, at as speedy a departure as possible to the old world?" Claude inquired the smiling lawyer.

"There is but one thing to detain me a single week," replied the young man, "and that is the matter of—of money."

"I was about to say, but I think now of another matter; I don't know—really, I would like to get off as soon as possible, but I am afraid this matter will detain me beyond the time I wish."

"Isn't it something that can be arranged so as to be entrusted to a second party?" inquired the lawyer in a tone not intended that almost any matter could be entrusted to a second party—so long as that party was himself."

Claude reflected long and deeply. Finally, he said:

"This matter troubles me. My aunt advised me, if I needed counsel, that I should apply to you. Perhaps if I state the circumstances, you could resolve my doubts. I feel that I can trust you even with so important and mysterious a matter as this."

Mr. Raybrook looked so profoundly sympathetic, wise, and trustworthy, that Claude was encouraged, and related to him the whole matter in regard to his aunt's dying request, the mysterious roll, and his charge to be at the old vault door in the south cellar the first day of each new year.

"I think I can throw a little light on this obscure matter," smilingly replied the lawyer. "Your aunt, as you know, had many peculiar views and strange whims. Now I have no doubt that she suspected your natural desire to travel when you came into your fortune. Such a purpose would hardly suit her thrifty views. I can see in this instruction to visit the old cellar once a year a very closely contrived plan to keep you from wandering far from Rolff House. What ever she may be in the matter, this, I feel assured, is one object she had in view."

Claude entered. This view of the matter was so ingenious, and he was fair to confess, so much like his aunt, that he must be in the right. What he had considered such a mysterious and important matter turning out to be only a petty trick to control his actions after he supposed himself to be free to fulfill his hopes and ambitions, he reflected for some time, and the more he considered the more evident it became to him that this was part of the plan of the object of his aunt in her mysterious dying request. Finally, he spoke:

"What would you advise, Mr. Raybrook, in this dilemma? It seems a cruel and impossible thing for me to give up my plans of travel and art study. Yet this pledge I have given my aunt practically defeats my hopes for five years at least. I could not cross the ocean twice each year on such a mission as this. It would take half the time I desire to devote to my studies. Can you not afford me some escape from it?"

"Well, let us see—let us see," replied the lawyer, in tones whose smooth, cool assurance seemed to carry absolute conviction with them. "Your aunt, I am fully assured, was not a proper adviser for a young man in all things. She had arrived at a great age, and her natural mental concentration had been increased, till, in some things, she might be considered non compos mentis. I do not assure she was insane; there are degrees of mental alienation; many are practically of unsound mind on some one single point while preserving their general mental balance. This I take to have been your aunt's case, and desire to insure what she considered your happiness no doubt led her to this ingenious but eccentric plan to secure your residence most of the time at Rolff House. Now, in the first place, there is no moral obligation in a promise to you, and no state of deception or of an incompetent person. Secondly, it does not appear that there is any real necessity for the fulfillment of the promise literally—else, why should there be the possible delay of five years in the discharge of the duty? Thirdly, there is scarcely any action of an individual that cannot be legally and sufficiently performed by a duly accredited agent. In view of these points, I think I can properly advise you that it is not necessary for you to personally fulfill your promise to your aunt on her death-bed. Still, to provide against any possible contingency, it would be well for you to appoint some competent person to represent you in the matter, who each new year could go to the vault and fulfill the duty of mere observation you are called upon to perform, and, in case of the appearance of the signs, could speedily inform you of the matter. In this way, you could carry out your fond hopes, as well as practically fulfill your promise to the dead."

Claude might have been able to see the sophistry of this argument if he had not been so intensely bent on his darling objects of ambition. As it was, it seemed to him the perfection of clear reason, and good advice. He resolved to follow it. He naturally chose the wily Mr. Raybrook to be his agent in the matter, and after further conversation on the subject of raising money, retired with the firm resolve soon to be on his way to the old world.

CHAPTER VIII.

A few more days sufficed to complete Claude's arrangements for his departure for Europe. He was anxious to be away. He had no difficulty in raising sufficient money for his purpose—or, rather, it was provided for him by the helpful Mr. Raybrook, his own part in the matter being the simple work of signing the necessary papers. The shrewd lawyer had managed to win his utmost confidence, and the reckless young man scarcely took the trouble to read the papers he was advised to sign. In only one thing did the lawyer find him firm, and that was in his positive refusal to allow Rolff House and the immediate estate to be in any way subject to mortgage or other incumbrance. In fact, one of his first objects had been to provide for the residence of Carl and Margaret in the old house, and their comfort and maintenance during his absence. All his other business affairs he left unconcerned in the hands of his lawyer.

The hardest task was to come. It was that of breaking to Rosa Brayn his intention to leave home for a period of years. To be sure she knew that he had cherished such an intention previous to his aunt's death. But Claude was well aware it would be a sad parting both to himself and to the maiden he loved with a passionate fervor. He (to be continued.)

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay.

It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds, the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash? A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fieles, the Shurons, the Halkins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at from $1.00 per value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

There are many persons who assert that there is nothing in it for the average investor and that it does not pay to invest small sums in stock. Let such persons ask themselves what returns they can hope to get through banks or real estate speculations for sums of under $100.00, and then consider the following:—

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $8.700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1880 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $682.

$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Malloy, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

[Nor does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining.—The Homestead in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. One mill only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours.

The Alaska Treadwell ore mills $2.38 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par.

No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management. Respectfully submitted,

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

To what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and the absolute safety is maintained, and yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering same Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

An agreement has been made with the Trust Company to guarantee to the purchaser the return of amount invested within a given number of years. To substantiate this guarantee they issue to the purchaser of the stock a gold bond, which is secured by first real estate mortgages deposited with another Trust Company for the specific purpose of securing the bonds the underwriting Company issues.

The guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer.

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs. A great effort has been made to secure funds for the extensive development of the numerous mining properties and also of its oil lands, offering a limited amount of its treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Eldorado and Ojo del Arroyo, Colorado, upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done. It is proposed to place as many of these mining properties upon a clipping and self supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to work wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-five hundred acres of oil lands in Huerfano County, Colo. In order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $1.00 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with individual liability. This issue of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be sold up rapidly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Profits have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are usually very great, especially when the stock can be secured at such a low price as this is now offered for. Now is the time to get in before an advance in the price is made.

The new railroad from Denver to Salt Lake, which is now building will be of considerable benefit to the Company, furnishing transportation for ore and supplies, besides immediately increasing value.

STOCK MARKETS

The following report was received by M. J. Cummings & Co., 100 Simcoe street, by direct private wire:

New York, Aug. 21.—While the market made a mighty effort to retain yesterday's position, they were obliged to take water and the leading stocks displayed considerable weakness in the latter part of the day. The market was among the best buyers on the advance, and was usually long offered a number of stocks on the close they were usually taken. The market's resistance on the stock exchange continued to hinge largely upon the extent of investment buying, the railroad situation, the matter of general trade conditions, the crop outlook, and the monetary situation, including the prospects for financial legislation.

The advance from Washington are not as favorable on the financial question as they were some time ago, and under the circumstances bankers are proceeding cautiously. They are working slowly in the matter of extending credits and quite a few interests have recently been disappointed in the matter of making loans on a fair basis. This kind of a moderate demand for stocks in the loan crowd during the day, with special attention being given to Atchafalaya, N.Y.C., U.P., and a few other stocks in the same category.

The monetary situation was regarded with some significance, inasmuch as it was expected that the bank statement for Saturday will be favorable. Still the argument was advanced that these statements of averages are made up to suit the interests of the exchange and under the circumstances many conservative investors figured that the average should have little effect on sentiment. There was considerable favorable news in line with railroad developments and about trade reports. The news, with regard to the prospects for financial legislation was rather disappointing inasmuch as some interests argued that it was too short a time to allow definite opinions to be declared on the financial question at this time, and that the matter will go over for the regular session of the national legislative bodies. The decline in the U.S. really stocks accompanied by a rumor that a heavy line of business was being liquidated for a certain amount, brought improved offerings throughout the list, and many stocks reacted substantially. There were good supporting orders, however, and throughout there was a relatively firm undertone. The stock market, however, was nervous but the announcement that the O.K.W.B. & O. had signed a contract calling for a tremendous gain of steel value for 1904, thereby had a good effect on sentiment. Outside stocks were steady, though quiet, with only a moderate demand. Bonds were dull and featureless, with irregular prices.

New York, Aug. 21.—The London stock exchange closes tomorrow. Confidence of conflicting align building interests to devise new financial plans. New York Central shows signs of a number of stockholders since last quarterly dividend. 33 cents for last week in August show average gain increase 11.51 per cent. Elgin & Panama Canal treaty will enable Society. $100 to increase deposits in banks $5,000,000. U.S. stock officials say publicly companies have as large a tonnage on their books as at this time last year.

New York, Aug. 21.—There was a firm tendency in the stock market early today in consequence of "firm" London cables and the knowledge that the arbitrage houses had buying orders. The shorts evinced more of less nervousness and covered on a fair basis. There was a moderate demand for stocks in the loan crowd during the day, with special attention being given to Atchafalaya, N.Y.C., U.P., and a few other stocks in the same category. UNIONISM COVERS THE WORK IN CHICAGO

New York, Aug. 22.—The Post publishes the following from Chicago: There is a strike for unionism here. It has been reported that unskilled labor could not be lastingly unionized, there is no such thing in the world, and immigration feeds such quantities into the country. A thorough test is being made now. Every man of labor is being unionized; there are no exceptions in Chicago of flat janitors, scrubwomen, freight handlers, but carriers, ice cream churners, truck painters, teamsters, waitresses, stable employees, messenger workers, women cranberry pickers, and window washers. Stable men were organized only three months ago, yet they have made a membership of 1,400, and Mr. Orpen, the chief delegate, now treats his friends to twenty-five cent whiskey.

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT

In what all careful investors are looking for. One from which the risk is eliminated and the return absolute safety is guaranteed, and yet one containing the elements for very large profits.

This is what we are prepared to furnish by offering some Treasury stock underwritten by a well known Trust Company.

You will naturally ask: What assurance have we that the amount of our investment is absolutely guaranteed and that it will be returned to us?

An arrangement has been made with the Trust Company to guarantee to the purchaser the return of absolute invested within a given number of years. To substantiate this guarantee (they issue to the purchaser of the stock a gold bond, which is secured by first real estate mortgages deposited with another Trust Company for the specific purpose of securing the bonds the underwriting company issues).

Thus the guarantee is absolute and satisfactory. Now that we have demonstrated the safety of the investment, we will explain what we have to offer:

The Upper Ten Mining and Oil Company of Colorado Springs, Colorado, has secured funds for the extensive development of its numerous mining properties and also of its oil lands, offers a limited amount of its treasury stock for sale.

The Company owns thirty-five mining properties at Colorado Springs and Otero, Colo., upon which, during the past five years, a great amount of tunnel and shaft work has been done. It is proposed to place as many of these mining properties upon a shipping and self supporting basis as soon as it is possible to do so. And to bore wells for oil and gas on its vast holdings of thirty-six hundred acres of oil lands in Huerfano County, Colo., in order to accomplish this the Company will sell some of its

Guaranteed Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share, or its Unguaranteed Treasury Stock at 15 cents per share.

The value of which is $1.00 per share, all stock issued full paid and non-assessable, with no individual liability. This is one of the best low priced guaranteed stocks on the market today and will be taken up quickly.

The officers and directors of this Company are well-known Colorado Springs and Denver business men who have shown their good faith in the enterprise by investing heavily themselves.

Parties have been made by investments of this kind, and many more will be continually made by investing at the right time. The profits on this kind of an investment are usually very great, especially when the stock can be secured at such a low price as this is now offered for. Now is the time to get in before an advance in the price is made.

The new railroad from Denver to Salt Lake, which is now building will be of incalculable benefit to the Company, furnishing transportation for ore and supplies, besides immediately increasing values.

STOCK MARKETS

The following report was received by M. J. Cummings & Co., 100 Simcoe street, by direct private wire:

New York, Aug. 22.—There is a certain degree of uncertainty in the stock exchange quarter at the moment, and some investors are quite watchful on the subject. The monetary situation, according to their view, is quite mixed, and they claim they have knowledge of the ability of certain investors to borrow money at very reasonable figures, covering a period of ten months or so. It is true, the monetary situation is not so clear as it used to be, but rather uncertain and unstable, and the banks are always careful about the ability of such borrowers.

For the reason that some houses in the street claim they are having difficulty in getting money at reasonable rates. The head of one house just night said: "The bank here are claiming that they are having trouble in getting money; they are having trouble on certain lines of credit. But this is nothing new. The banks are always careful about lending, and the securities which are being refused now were refused a year ago."

The buying for outside account is less extensive, in fact some houses are in a position to commission houses on a liberal scale during the past few days. The bank statement should be a good one today, inasmuch as the banks show a heavy gain of about $400,000 in cash. This strengthens the position of the banks, and of course, the deposits in the banks are being charged favorably.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—The wheat market seems to be well supported on all little reaction, and though at times it is a little more active than usual, it is not so good as it was some time ago. It is expected to increase materially and a large development in this direction are being watched.

The movement is light and uncertain. There is a light and uncertain movement in wheat, but the export of wheat is not so good as it was some time ago. The country offerings are moderate, while some of the private orders may still furnish delivery are very light, and that farmers are holding back wheat.

There is a good demand for flour and continued buying for millers account is taken as an indication of interest in the country. The export of wheat is not so good as it was some time ago. The country offerings are moderate, while some of the private orders may still furnish delivery are very light, and that farmers are holding back wheat.

STONY PASS

MINING CO.

SILVERTON OAL

has appointed a local Canadian Fiscal Agent, in the person of Messrs. Thomas Patterson & Son, brokers, who will make an announcement in a day or two that will interest the investors of Canada.

It is proposed to send a representative from Canada to visit the mines and property of the company, and report thereon so as to prove beyond doubt its splendid worth. The proposition is one that will bear the closest investigation. The company is splendidly equipped by men of honor and business integrity, known throughout the country for their high character and business ability.

A meeting being arranged to take place at an early date, when those who propose to invest in the Company's stock will have the privilege of selecting one the number to visit the mines.

A SUDDEN DEATH

Mr. Owen Curran, formerly of Peterburgh, died at Jacksonville, Fla., Saturday.

Word was received Saturday afternoon of the sad and sudden death of Mr. John Curran, which occurred at Jacksonville, Florida, early on Saturday morning from heart failure. The message was a great shock to his many friends in Peterburgh and Toronto, where he was very highly respected. Mr. Curran contemplated a trip to his old home to renew acquaintances, but was cut off from life without a moment's notice.

The deceased gentleman was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Curran, who resided on a farm near the Little Lake cemetery, but predeceased him some years ago. He left for the South a number of years ago to assume a responsible position as a business manager of the Pine System of Railways, but several times since his departure had visited friends and his stepmother, Mrs. Owen Curran, at Ayler street, where he felt the loss very keenly, and to whom much sympathy is extended.

The body will be conveyed to town for burial, and is expected to arrive on Tuesday, but nothing definite has yet been learned, and arrangements for the funeral will be made public later.

A THRILLING ADVENTURE

Narrow Escape of a Victim of Horror on the Lake.

Hastings Star.—A thrilling adventure, and one which the participants will always remember, was experienced by Mr. Robt. Campbell, of Keene, on Wednesday of last week while out sailing on a canoe in the lake. The lake was very rough and about six o'clock the boat was upset, throwing Mr. Campbell and his dog, who was with him, into the water. Mr. Campbell endeavored to right the canoe and get in, but without success. By keeping a hold of the boat and treading water he managed to keep afloat for nearly four hours. During that time he drifted from one side of the lake to the other. On reaching the shore he got entangled in the rice beds and then for the first time called for help. Mr. Amos Shearer, of Hawke's Landing, the crew, went to Mr. Campbell's assistance, and after considerable difficulty got him into the boat, he being benumbed by the cold water. Although endeavoring to save the dog, Mr. Campbell had to throw it, and it perished in swimming up onto his head, not being contented to cling to his shoulders.

AFTER 25 YEARS

Mr. E. F. Robinson, of Kansas, on a Visit Home.

Mr. M. P. Robinson, wife and family, of Marysville, Kansas, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fair, 111 Stewart street. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson were formerly residents of Peterborough county. The former left here about 25 years ago for the Empire State, and was married about ten years ago, when Mrs. Robinson also became a resident of Kansas. Mr. Robinson is a younger brother of Mr. T. W. Robinson town. They return to Kansas on Wednesday morning. Mrs. Robinson is a daughter of Mr. John F. McKee, of Kansas, formerly of Smith, and was married to Mr. Robinson at the home of Mr. Fair, when he was a resident of that State.

This is Mr. Robinson's first visit to Peterborough since he left here, and he is expected to stay in the town and district.

SHIPMENT OF HORSES

A Car Load of Horses for Big No. 4 Lumber Camp.

A splendid lot of heavy half-bred horses were shipped out of Toronto Friday last for the lumber camp, owned by Messrs. H. H. Hall and William Irwin, who are interested in the above lumber company. The shipment comprised 18 horses, the average weight of them being over 1600 lbs., and the cost over $400 a team.

SUBURBANITIES

Breakfast on Cellar, a Ball and a Ball.

The commuter who left down a few months ago of food and horses to a small town in the north, is now back in the city. The "coffee and milk" stand is in an easy pleasant way to get back to health and shake off all the coffee diseases by shifting to the "milk and coffee" stand. A number of years ago was a business woman, and a day of coffee just in time to catch a train. A feeling of nausea or indigestion, and a continual dizziness in the eyes and head usually follow my coffee breakfasts until one day a good angel in the guise of a woman friend from the Forest Food Coffee in place of coffee.

"Always trying to be progressive in my daily life I accepted the advice and the result was I found Postum a delicious clear coffee colored beverage, which I found to be a most satisfying and refreshing drink. After using Postum for a month I was surprised at the result in my health. All symptoms of dyspepsia or nervousness had disappeared and because of the marked benefit I reasoned that if such a simple and inexpensive remedy could prove such benefit in my case why was it not my duty to let other sufferers know about Postum. So I began to try to help my friends and I have helped many to shake off sickness by recommending Postum in place of coffee.

"There was one who was a victim of nervous dyspepsia and who craved coffee to such an extent that he invariably drank it in spite of medical advice not to do so and I could not resist the chance to change, so I got him to give his Postum in the morning for a few days without saying anything to him about it. The result was really wonderful. He did not detect the change but noticed that he got over his indigestion. Then we told him the truth about it and now he takes his Postum regularly and is as far relieved of his nervousness as time has permitted a speedy cure. He bless the Postum just as well as he used to love the coffee." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

For Riding on Sidewalk

In the police court on Saturday a resident of the north end of the town was fined for riding his bicycle on the sidewalk. He claimed he had a right to ride from his gate to the first crosswalk, but the magistrate gave him no such right. He was fined 10c and costs, and appealed and of continuing to ride upon the sidewalk.

Railway News—A Number of railroad matters, which had been brought in from Montreal to Peterburgh on Tuesday, but nothing definite has yet been learned, and arrangements for the funeral will be made public later.

They were arrested here the same evening by Chief of Police Jarvis, who had been told to look out for them. They were locked up for the night and appeared before Police Magistrate Horsey in the morning. When the court opened, it was ascertained that the evidence of the contractor, that the rest of their transportation was to be deducted from their wages, as they had agreed to do this. On hearing the evidence the Police Magistrate ordered them back to work, and they will also have to pay the expenses incurred by the trial. We understand that another batch who had left and gone to Lindsay were treated in the same way. After they have paid their indebtedness, if they want to leave, they can then do so.

AT MEETINGS IN HOME

(Published by request.)

Two long ago, a man digested a lamp that had not been turned, and yet it leaked—twas then he learned.

A woman that her hair was sprung—At 60 cents an hour.

He told the plumber man to come down to his house in the evening. The plumber came and looked about and viewed the faucet with some doubt.

Then he turned on the water spout, but down, and let his whiskers sprout. At 60 cents an hour.

The water dripped in little pools and splattered into wet globules. The plumber said: "It is the faucet that I mean and get my tools." At 60 cents an hour.

Next day he came and looked again. And called a couple of his men. To see how it was dripping then. At 60 cents an hour.

The days were on; the weeks went by; The months and years began to fly; But still the plumber looking wry, Came daily in and looked his eye. At 60 cents an hour.

And still the water dripped away, And still the plumber would not stay. More than ten minutes any day. And he was growing lean and gray. At 60 cents an hour.

At last the man, unattended, Gave up the ghost—in short, he died. Of old age then the plumber sighed. And came around and took a ride. At 60 cents an hour.

The leaky faucet's dripping still, And adding to the plumber's bill. The plumber has it in his mind. That all his heirs their time must kill. At 60 cents an hour.

LOVE

Often leads to poverty. No real woman ever sold her heart for the luxuries of life. But many a woman who has gladly faced poverty for the man she loved, may well doubt her wisdom when pain becomes the mate of poverty. If she were rich, she thinks, she could find a way of cure. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is within the reach of every one. It lifts the burden of pain which weighs down those who suffer from womanly diseases. It establishes regularity, drives weakness from the system, and restores the system to its normal state. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a cure for all diseases of the female system, and cures female weakness.

"You have my heartfelt thanks for your kind advice to me," writes Mrs. Geo. Fischer, of 101 Victoria Avenue, Oshawa, Ontario. "I was troubled with catarrh of the uterus for over a year. The doctors said I would have to go through a long and painful operation. But I tried Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and Golden Medical Pills, and I am completely cured. After using six bottles of Dr. Pierce's medicine, I am glad to say my medicine has made me a new woman."

Weak and sick women, especially those suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held in strictest privacy and is held confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

COPEETE MINING CO.

27 William Street, New York
Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5
More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but also rich in gold that they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appurtenant to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter is a short run produced something over $100,000.

The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them are—Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Seymour W. Tallon, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Greene Consolidated; Mr. Edwin U. Treadwell, Mining Engineer, and General and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The financial troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now clear and undisputed title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A portion of the Treasury stock is offered for sale—to complete the development and equipment of the property—for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

The Oro Rico Mining Syndicate

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 30 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS

Vast ledges of ore running from $400 to $800.00 per ton. Five claims of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $75.00 to $100.00 per ton. This is not a five per cent. month scheme, but a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than any Bank or Mortgage loan. No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and we offer a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is over made by purchasing Stocks. We are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the forecast that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your forecast you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you had put the stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. At the first run you can get the stock at present price. It will be 50 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mines and returned full of enthusiasm. The mines are turning out much richer than expected.

I can offer the Stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO DAY—tomorrow it may slip your memory. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 25% per month.

COPETE MINING CO.

27 William Street, New York

Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5

More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but so rich in gold that they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter is a short run produced something over $100,000. The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them are Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Seymour W. Talcott, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Greene Consolidated; Mr. Edwin D. Treadwell, Mining Engineer and Geologist and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now clear and undisturbed title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A portion of the Treasury stock is offered for sale to complete the development and equipment of the property—now for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 20 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS

Vast ledges of ore running from $500 to $2000 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $70.00 to $200.00 per ton. This is not a five per cent. month scheme, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans. No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the dictation of your foresight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock sold at par. The new Mining Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the Stock at present price. It will come to $50 per share higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mines and returned full of enthusiasm. The mines are turning out much richer than expected.

I can offer the Stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO-DAY—to-morrow it may slip your memory. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 25% per month.

A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.

proper of a famous act, or to manifest a single extravagant or wild trait.

The old farmer did not dissent from the suggestion, and in fact, it was true enough in its way. Ralph had enough of worldly shrewdness to have a keen regard for his reputation, and, as a character went in the revived community, he was a most exemplary young man, but one of a kind who was much more respected and liked by his elders than by those of his own age.

Farmer Bruyn soon took his departure, and the lawyer remained cogitating over the interview and its probable effects till Ralph came in.

The young man saw at once, by his father's gratified smile, that some favorable event had happened, and bent on him an enquiring glance.

"Old Bruyn has been here," said the father. "His bit on the bait I dropped in the proper quarter regarding my little transactions with Claude. He seems to regard me already as the practical controller of the property, and is all ready to buy the old wood lot and adjoining meadow, which I happened to know he has had a hankering for this long while. Of course I was chary of coming to any terms, and I fancy managed to advance your claims in a manner that will not be without effect. Everything works all right so far. I think there will be nothing in the way of your beginning your attention to the Room at once. Then if young Claude only gets entangled in some way in Europe, or happily dies, or we can keep him there and unpropitious of plans till everything is in favorable shape, success will be ours. But I dare not make public the deeds as yet. We must not run the show in this manner of anything irregular. In a bold step like this, much depends on the chances. Our only plan is to wait. You see the propriety of that, Ralph?"

"Yes, of course," he replied. "I wouldn't do for the young man to know that you had got his signature to papers that drew away all his property, and be none the wiser."

"Yes, Ralph—but speak low. What was that noise?"

"What noise?"

"I thought I heard a sound, as if somebody might be listening."

Mr. Baybrook arose and went to the inner door, and looked around in the hall that divided the office from the living apartments, but he saw nothing, and returned apparently satisfied to his chair.

"It was a bold stroke, Ralph—perhaps a dangerous one—but I felt I could trust the young man's utter carelessness, and the result was so essential that I determined to risk it. After reading him the papers he supposed he was to sign, I managed to change them, and prevent them from being taken to the bank, that did not disclose the trick. So here they are in good shape, all properly covered and witnessed, and they will be hard to get over when the proper time comes. But we must be cautious. My scheme has been sagaciously planned, and all undertaken in view of a possible contingency, which I now consider to be probable. I mean the outbreak of war with England. In that case our young gentleman will be safely kept out of our way for a number of years; there is no telling how long, but long enough, I am certain. My only anxiety is lest he should take the alarm and want to return to this country. In my letters I shall take every measure to quiet any apprehensions, and I hope to draw him out on points that will be of future use."

"What a general you would make!" exclaimed the admiring son, as this rehearsal of his father's plans was ended.

"Ah, Ralph," was the reply. "Remember, there is strategy in other fields than war, and the best general always wins."

CHAPTER X.

The fall passed into winter, and the new year at last drew near.

Anthony Baybrook had not been without the aid of his engagement with Claude to visit the old south coast on New Year's day, and now whether the mysterious signs appeared on the door of the vault therein. In fact, he had awaited most anxiously the arrival of the appointed day. He felt of the case he had had in explaining to Claude the secret of the old lady's mysterious instructions, he was greatly puzzled in his mind as to their nature and meaning. They drew towards the end of the year, and he was naturally thoughtful of a plan of keeping the money out of his hands till he should have arrived at some of greater discretion. But when he thought of the old lady's mysterious signs that it was to unlock the door of the vault, provided young prodigal returned within five years? Can it be the old lady's plan? He was not sure. He would be honest and trustworthy enough; and, really, the plan wouldn't be so bad as keeping the money in the vault. He had a little experience of the world. He had seen the old lady's plan, and he was not sure.

"What a general you would make!" exclaimed the admiring son, as this rehearsal of his father's plans was ended.

"Ah, Ralph," was the reply. "Remember, there is strategy in other fields than war, and the best general always wins."

as this is a holiday, and I have invited my friend Mr. Bruyn over to have a social glass and pipe with me at four o'clock. I will adhere to my plan on this occasion."

"Curse your plan!" muttered old Carl under his breath; and then he said aloud, "I'll get a light," and at once started off to procure it, leaving the lawyer standing in the cold, gloomy hall.

"Heaven's country," he said to himself, as he gazed after the old man with a peculiar glitter in his eyes; "but it's all the same to me, Mr. Bruyn; I fancy I shall be able to get even with you one of these days."

Old Carl presently returned, with a candle in a tin lantern, and beckoning to the lawyer, led the way to the study, and down into the basement.

They traversed the dark passage that led to the cellar stairs, and old Carl descended them and unlocked the door, and held the lantern that the lawyer might safely descend.

In a moment they both stood in the old gloomy cellar, and the old man led the way with his lantern to the vault. "This is the vault," quivered the lawyer.

"Yes," curtly responded the old man. "Anthony Baybrook examined the door carefully. There was no sign of the mysterious marks that were to be the signal of the breaking of the prohibition against the door being opened."

"This was all that the lawyer's duty required of him. But his curiosity was increased by the sight of the vault and its massive structure. He examined it closely. He noted how nicely the door fitted, and wondered as to its thickness. He scanned keenly the massive masonry that surrounded it, and mentally concluded that no such solid structure could have been built for a trifling purpose. Why had old Magnus Rolff had it built? The question came up in his mind, and set him to trying to weave a theory to explain it. He concluded that it must have been intended for the deposit of some precious treasure. Public notice may be more than half right about it, he thought.

A smile fitted across his face as he called to mind the superstitious report that no one could enter it or handle its contents except he sold himself to the devil. "Suppose I should be the one to unlock the door," he exclaimed mentally, and again the smile fitted across his face.

"Rather a queer piece of masonry," Ralph was said in an inquiring tone, turning to old Carl after having finished his inspection of the vault.

"I don't know," responded the old man; "it is according to how you look at it."

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest by sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January, 20th, 1903.

Dear Sir,—I notice your ad. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 11 years. I have tried several doctors and they have done me no good. I only came to you last of Dr. Charles Burt Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails would not come off. You can see my name if you wish.

Yours truly,

MR. JOHN WOOD,

Parker Station, E. C.

Dr. Charles Burt Cure for Eczema is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 411 Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes: "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your eczema cure; send me another dollar's worth."

Dear Dr. McPherson, Riverdale, P.E.I., writes: "I am very happy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your eczema cure. It has done great work for me. I am so much better."

Dr. Charles's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles. Female complaints, even when the disease has run its course, will yield. Five cents by Express or Mail, Peterborough, 10c per box or 3 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Charles's Eczema Cure for Eczema and Dr. Charles's Eczema Cure for Eczema, same price. One will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay. It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds, the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the fustian, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash?

A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurons, the Baldwins and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $30,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at $1.00 per value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

There are many persons who assert that there is nothing in it for the average investor and that it does not pay to invest small sums in stock. Let such persons ask themselves what returns they can hope to get through banks or real estate speculations for sums of under $100.00, and then consider the following:

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $3,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1880 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $682.

$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend-paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was a way below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Malloy, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $30, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000. The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

[Nor does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining—The Horse Stalk, in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore sells only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 tons. 5,000 tons go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours. The Alaska Treadwell ore sells $3 per ton; the stock 100 per cent. above par.

No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management. Respectfully submitted,

Local Turks Meditate Murder of Consul to to Provoke Intervention

London, Aug. 26.—According to a London telegram to The Times, the Turkish representative in Macedonia has reached the utmost limit of barbarism, and it is evident that it is the intention to accomplish the total extermination of the Bulgarian population.

Within the last few days, says the Times, twelve more Christian villages have been headed over to fire and sword, and the women, children and aged have been massacred. Convoys of prisoners despatched to their execution. A private letter from Macedonia says that local Turks are despatched to murder and mutilate the Bulgarians in order to provoke European intervention.

An Entire City Wiped Out, Sultan's Soldiers Mutiny

Owing to Irregularity of Their Pay

London, Aug. 26.—The Turks have mercilessly quelled the Macedonian rising in the area where it originated. The insurgent leaders have been moved from their quarters to the country near the Bulgarian frontier. The revolutionary committee has been liquidated and a massacre of the entire Christian population to join the revolution and to refuse to pay taxes to the authorities. Reports of the committee have been liquidated and a massacre of the entire Christian population to join the revolution and to refuse to pay taxes to the authorities.

The Turkish troops are now in a state of mutiny owing to the irregularity of their pay. They have refused to obey orders, and have sold their rifles.

The town of Krushovo, a beautiful city of 3000 inhabitants, is a scene of ruin. The women and children are homeless, exposed to the weather and famine. The town is rendered uninhabitable by the order of the committee, which is being given by the Turks. The Turkish authorities refuse to allow them to be removed under the pretext that an insurrection has broken out.

On August 2 a band of 300 insurgents entered the town, slaughtering the Turkish soldiers and the military police. The town of the Bulgarians, and the military police.

ANOTHER RICH GOLD STRIKE

The Copper Ranch Gold Mining and Milling Company

Capital Stock 1,000,000 Shares, Par Value $100 Each.
Fully Paid and Non-Assessable.

Have just made another strike on our property at the second level east of shaft, the value of the ore being $65 per ton—nearly three times as rich as the ore in our No. 1 level, thus showing that our mine is getting richer as depth is gained.

Ours 170 acres Patented Rich Mineral Land. Shaft 218 feet deep, 450 feet of driving done.

$50,000 worth of ORE now exposed. Shares now offered at 15 cents per share for further development work, and to build a mill at the mine to treat our ore.

There is no risk in buying this Stock. A dividend payer in a few months.

Stock is being advanced on the true merit of the MINE.

First Class Mining Proposition.

The Anaconda Gold Mining Co.

Home Office: 412 Merchants Loan and Trust Bldg.
125 Adams Street, Chicago, Ill.

This is one of the best propositions ever placed before the Canadian investor. The Company owns 600 acres in the celebrated Black Hills District, South Dakota, comprising 32 claims. The track is now open to the westward, the Anaconda belt, being located directly between the world's largest mine and the Custer Lead mine. Two shafts have already been sunk, the main one being down 104 feet, with capacity of going 1000 feet. The Company has also installed an immense air compressor and drill, 125 horse power boiler, steam pump and in fact everything needed for actual operation, with the exception of its stamp mill, which will be installed at once. The vein of gold-bearing quartz traversing the Company's property is very rich. Assays have run from $3 to $64.25 per ton.

The Company has a capital of 1,600,000 shares, divided into 750,000 preferred and 750,000 common, par value $1 per share, fully paid up and non-assessable. The treasury stock has been made preferred stock to the amount of $5 cents a share. Out of the first dividend 25 cents per share will be paid to the owners of this preferred stock before holders of common stock receive any share of the dividend. After the 25 cents has been paid to the shareholders of the preferred stock, then all other shares in the dividend. (This means making less than the first investors in the enterprise will have all their money returned to them before any dividends are declared to the risk and the investors.)

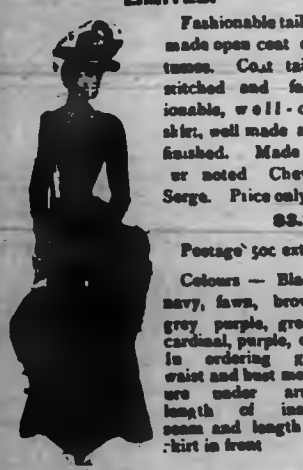

A limited amount of stock has been placed on the Canadian market. Full particulars and copy of prospectus may be obtained from MR. R. J. KIDD, or the undersigned Agent for Peterborough city.

STONY PASS

MINING CO.

SILVERTON OAL

has appointed a local Canadian Fiscal Agent, in the person of Messrs. Thomas Patterson & Son, brokers, who will make an announcement in a day or two that will interest the investors of Canada.

It is proposed to send a representative from Canada to visit the mines and property of the company, and report thereon so as to prove beyond doubt its splendid worth. The proposition is one that will bear the closest investigation. The company is splendidly equipped by men of honor and business integrity, known throughout the country for their high character and business ability.

A meeting being arranged to take place at an early date, when those who propose to invest in the Company's stock will have the privilege of selecting one of the number to visit the mines.

STOCK MARKETS

The following report was received by M. J. Cummings & Co., 108 Simcoe street, by direct private wire:

New York, Aug. 26.—It was another dull day on the stock exchange. The transactions were well scattered, however, and under the circumstances many interests were inclined to give vent to expressions calculated to indicate a gain through speculation.

The London market was strong and foreign houses and fast buying orders, due to the fortnightly settlement, the monetary situation was closely regarded.

The market showed a gain through speculation, and it was noted that many money works to be taken up to drop moving purposes.

There was still continuing activity regarding the chances for early liquidation and liquidation through the position of the market, on railroad securities and the extent of railroad deficits generally increased the belief in further enlargement of the business in the west and south.

Notwithstanding the coming year, the speculation continued to attract considerable attention. A good short interest was reported to be existing in New York Central, Pennsylvania, St. Paul, Atchafalpa and up small fluctuations were noted as the day wore on.

The latter part of the day was marked by a general decline in the market, and the closing was a steady and dull, with a small demand while the market for London was slow and featureless with an irregular tendency. Buy either Atchafalpa, Rock Island, St. Paul or Pacific. We repeat emphatically that St. Paul directors have no intention of issuing any part of its treasury stock.

The company is not negotiating either directly or indirectly for any amount of the stock of St. Paul in least a cash surplus equal to 25 percent, on its capitalization.

(Chicago, Aug. 25.—The movement of wheat continues rather small as compared with last year, but the supplies at the leading points are ample, apparently and hence there is an offset to the fair cash demand and the improving feature in the export demand. The crop outlook is being maintained and some say that the spring wheat production will surpass last year's, but generally looked for.

The corn market continues rather slow. The general interest in the pit are well distributed and should naturally be a good traders market.

The crop outlook is improving and the early crop is held to be one of the best of record. The late crop, with a continuance of hot weather, promises good developments. The wheat and corn markets both will be rather feverish, pending definite ideas regarding their market position of certain professionals.

A SPLENDID PROPOSITION

Millard Copper Mining and Smelting Company

We call the attention of our readers to the announcement of the above company, which appears in today's issue. This company has property of considerable value and is sure to pay big dividends once development has been completed. Splendidly situated, investors may depend on a fair deal.

Mr. F. H. Lathrop, one of the directors, recently paid a visit to Keene, and made arrangements to have the company's interests looked after in Peterborough and district by Mr. Thomas Patterson & Co., the well known local firm.

Further announcement will be made in a few days.

Womanly Troubles

SHOULD NOT BE ALLOWED TO UNDERMINE HEALTH AND BEAUTY, BUT SHOULD BE TREATED AT ONCE BY PERKOLONE

It is impossible to go into details on this subject, but the experience of many a poor woman who is afflicted with "womanly troubles" should be a warning to others.

When the time comes of womanhood, a young girl, a great deal depends upon getting her over this condition. It is a disease which is often cured by the use of Perkolone.

As soon as the symptoms of flushed face, headache, bearing down feelings, give her a course of Perkolone, the troubles which will carry her past the crisis.

In the adult woman if any irregularities occur, Perkolone will be found a remedy of remarkable potency and power.

Perkolone is the ideal regulator for the monthly period and causes all organs of the body to perform their work properly, and in just the expected time.

It purifies the blood, tones up the system and vital energies. The stomach is strengthened, and digestive and assimilative processes are improved by the good work of Perkolone. It regulates the bowels, cures constipation, and piles, and cures disease and dizziness by health and strength.

Time is a precious thing for the woman who is afflicted with these troubles. It is a disease which is often cured by the use of Perkolone.

This is one of the best propositions ever placed before the Canadian investor. The Company owns 600 acres in the celebrated Black Hills District, South Dakota, comprising 23 claims. The track in the Black Hills is the great highway, running directly between the wonderful Hot Springs and the Cheyenne and the Cheyenne and the Cheyenne. The Cheyenne has also been struck, the main one being down 150 feet, with capacity of going 1000 feet. The Company has also installed an enormous air compressor and drills, 125 horse power boiler, steam pump, and in fact everything needed for actual operation, with the exception of the mining mill; which will be installed at once. The vein of gold-bearing quartz traversing the Company's property is very rich. Assays have run from $6 to $64.25 per ton.

The Company has a capital of 1,000,000 shares, divided into 700,000 preferred and 300,000 common, per share $1 per share, fully paid up and non-assessable. The treasury stock has been made preferred stock to the amount of 25 cents a share. Out of the first dividend 25 cents per share will be paid to the owners of the preferred stock before holders of common stock receive any share of the dividend. After the 25 cents has been paid to the shareholders of the preferred stock, then all the shares in the dividend. (This means nothing less than that the first investors in the enterprise will have all their money returned to them before any dividends are declared to the rank and file of investors.)

A limited amount of stock has been placed on the Canadian market. Full particulars and copy of prospectus may be obtained from MR. R. J. KIDD, or the undersigned Agent for Peterborough city.

STOCK MARKETS

The following report was received by M. J. Cummings & Co., 106 Simcoe Street, by direct private wire:

New York, Aug. 27.—Another dull and sluggish day on the stock exchange. With the market leading off to the right again and with the prevailing sentiment buying on a and bank statement the little activity was maintained. The market was relatively strong London market for American and the excellent business reports attracted the little attention. The crop news, while still relatively interpreted after a consideration of the advance from the Chicago grain market. There were many believers in a weak monetary situation on account of the discriminating policy which is being pursued by the banks in extending credits. On the whole, however, the market reported a fair gain and pointed out that business was improving. Little money, and that any increase in loans was the result of corporation buying. As far as actual transactions were concerned, the market was among the smallest on record, and hence the market was absolutely devoid of significance. Many brokerage interests failed to execute a single order during the day and from this statement it may be inferred that the market was actually weak. Outside of the grain and featureless, while bonds were irregular and without importance. If statements only concerned with a boom would be seen in the paper and the property are doing wonderfully well and their prospects are most excellent. Buy Pacific and St. Paul.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—Cotton continued rather quiet but the market is inclined to show sympathy with the movement on wheat. The cotton continues light, but some news is heard from the good country districts and the cotton-picking movement is reported. The cotton demand continues heavy, however, and the export movement is expected to increase in the near future. The exports for the week will undoubtedly be appreciably greater than those of last week. The Argentine holdings of May corn are reported to be quite extensive and there is some talk of manipulation in this option. Thus far, however, there has been but little tangible evidence of manipulative movement. The wheat export business is again making slow progress, the cotton supply is regarded as a barrier factor.

Hemp, 10,000, middlings 800, prospects weak to 6 lower. Light 500 to 500. Milled 500 to 570. Heavy 600 to 600. Rough 400 to 500. Light 500, heavy 10,000, weak. Kansas 7,000, slow. Omaha not in yet.

STOCK MARKETS

The following report was received by M. J. Cummings & Co., 106 Simcoe street, by direct private wire:

New York, Aug. 27.—(By telegraph.)—The market was active in the stock market Friday. The market tendency was bullish in evidence, all week continuing with minor fluctuations. The majority of the business was on a par with previous days of late. The market was without special feature, though attention was directed to the fact that the market was not so much as it was a few days ago. There were conflicting arguments with regard to the probable showing of the banks to-morrow, and the effect that would have on the money market. The market was not so much as it was a few days ago. KILLED SISTER'S HUSBAND

Frederick Kretschman Angered Because She Was a Poor Laborer

Midland, Kan., Aug. 28.—Tyus Robinson, aged 21, formerly of Midland, Kan., at Shawnee, Tenn., yesterday shot and killed Frank Davis of Midland, Kan., Robinson then fled to the mountains and to-day the sheriff of Clay County and another man tracked him to the top of the mountain and shot him.

Robinson's sister, two years ago, married the Robinson family's better opportunity to the match was the cause of the tragedy. The Robinson family was wealthy and Davis was a hard-working laborer. Robinson's mother and father, it is charged, aided in the killing of young Davis, who was visiting in Shawnee. The Robinson family had been notified of his coming and had gone after him, each armed with a revolver, and it was claimed Tyus slipped up and shot Davis four times in the back. Davis fell from a cliff, and his body was found in a ravine from which he had fallen, and made after Robinson, but was unable to fire the revolver.

KILLED IN DUEL

Two German Physicians Settle Quarrel with Bullets

Halle, Aug. 27.—Dr. Schwartz, manager of the State Sick Insurance Hospital at Halle, Albrecht, Albrecht, killed Dr. Schmidt, who was the leader of a strike movement on the part of outdoor relief physicians, at Halle, in a duel two or three days ago. An attempt was made to conceal the cause of death, but the police took possession of the body as it was about to be cremated at Gotha, and the arrest of Dr. Schwartz followed.

The duel was the result of a bitter personal quarrel, growing out of a controversy between the management of the National Sick Insurance Fund and several thousand physicians employed by the free hospitals, or outdoor relief, who wanted their remuneration increased.

CHAMBERLAIN UNDAUNTED BY SCOTTISH REBUFF

Alleged German Plan to Aid Free Traders of Great Britain, Two More Elections

London, Aug. 31.—The result of the bye-election in Argyleshire has caused Sir William Laurier, M.P., to break into poetry.

"A few more dawns doing so,
Will pretty nearly finish Joe."
Is the way in which he celebrates the Radical victory in the Highlands. There are two other bye-elections pending which are attracting much interest. They are Sir Andrew's Scotland, where Mr. Henry Torrens, an anti-Unionist, has been compelled to resign owing to his acceptance of a Government directorship on the Suez Canal, and Rochester, which is vacated by the elevation of Viscount Cranborne to the House of Lords as Marquess of Salisbury. In Mr. Andrew's, at the last election, Mr. Amstruther had only 64 majority over his Liberal opponent, so that the Opposition are very hopeful of carrying the seat. Rochester, which has long been a Conservative stronghold, Viscount Cranborne was returned there last election by acclamation, and the most of the Liberals hope for it reduce the Conservative majority.

The Liberal candidate in Rochester will be Sir Harry Johnston, the celebrated African traveller, who has come out in direct opposition to Mr. Chamberlain's tariff policy and advocates a complete overhauling of the War Office.

Mr. Chamberlain is busy.

Mr. Chamberlain himself is in no way disconcerted by the verdict of the electors of Argyleshire. He is making extraordinary preparations for his autumn campaign. Millions of pamphlets containing his views are being circulated throughout the country, and the Colonial Secretary himself is making arrangements to address meetings in all parts of the United Kingdom.

It is reported today that a special meeting of the Cabinet has been called for Saturday next to consider the Ministry's attitude on the trade question. Developments are eagerly anticipated in political circles owing to the well known absence of unanimity among the Ministers on the question.

German Aid for Free Traders.

The Daily Express, which is taking the lead among the cheap papers of the Kingdom in advocacy of Mr. Chamberlain's proposals, gives a fillip to the discussion today by publishing under the heading, "A Plot to Destroy Our Commerce," a document from the Hamburg correspondent, which is said to have been drawn up by a university professor and circulated among commercial men. The document argues the expansion of Germany's colonial empire by obtaining desirable possessions from Great Britain.

London, Aug. 31.—The United States members of the Alaska Boundary Tribunal arrived in London yesterday. Sir Louis Jettie and Hon. Clifford Norton will arrive today. In an interview, the United States Commissioners state that even if the Tribunal fails to reach an agreement it will have the effect of clearing the air on the question.

London, Sept. 1.—The Daily News and Westminster Gazette, in an editorial, claim that Sir William Laurier poured cold water on Mr. Chamberlain's proposals today at the same time characterizing Mr. Bourassa's criticism of the Montreal Congress and the Toronto Globe's comments on the same as "a remarkable and one may hope uncommon virtue."

The reference is to the Globe's recent article in the Monthly Review, defining French Canada's attitude toward the Empire. The News proclaims that as in no many places, we are the weakness of Mr. Chamberlain. He has aroused danger which lay quietly at rest, and might have passed away in time from the politics of the Empire.

PRINCE TUAN PLOTS NEW WAR

Standard, Seoul, Sept. 1.—Chinese reports from Peking assert that the banished Prince Tuan is there incognito and has had several interviews with the emperor's emissaries while the emperor was absent.

It is further reported that the literary emissaries who are being sent to the provinces are also instructed with orders to report what prospect there is of inducing the people against foreign and foreign reforms.

THREATENS TO START REVOLT

Standard, Seoul, Sept. 1.—The Christian Orator, a German newspaper, published in Berlin, prints correspondence from Teheran alleging that the leaders of the Persian Mohammedan church have served notice on the Shah that unless he purges the country of foreign religious and commercial influences, especially British and Russian, the church will precipitate a revolution. The church leaders also demand that the Shah should have no political intentions and that they consider the Shah's friendship to be a forerunner of good feeling toward Persians throughout the Mohammedan world.

PARKS DONS THE STRIPES

Standard, New York, Sept. 1.—Samuel Parks, walking delegate and virtual labor dictator in the building trades of this city, is now in King's County, N.Y., where he is being held in custody, charged with the murder of a woman.

Quietly, while Parks was being held in custody, he was convicted of murdering a woman, a woman who was killed by a brick thrown from a window of a building in which Parks was working.

CLAIMS TO HAVE LOST MILLION AND A HALF

Standard, St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 1.—An envelope said to contain bonds and cash, valued at $1,500,000, was found in a vault at the State capital six years ago after a long search. The vault was found to be empty, and the bonds and cash were never recovered.

The vault was found to be empty, and the bonds and cash were never recovered. The vault was found to be empty, and the bonds and cash were never recovered.

MAGNIFICENT VESUVIUS

Standard, Naples, Sept. 1.—The correspondent who has returned from spending a night on Mount Vesuvius, with a special permission of the authorities to pass the prescribed limit. The scene was absolutely terrifying, but magnificent. The mountain was covered with lava, and the lava was flowing from the crater, forming great mounds. Occasionally a mass of burning material became detached from the rim of the crater and rolled down the side of the mountain, reaching the foot of the mountain in the direction of the village of Ottaviano. The lava, however, was not dangerous to the village, as it was not in the direction of the village.

DEER GETTING TAME

Standard, Brockville, Sept. 1.—In the Police Court on Saturday the Magistrate was called upon to deal with a man who had been charged with shooting a deer. The man was charged with shooting a deer, and the Magistrate was called upon to deal with the case.

YOUNG FEMALE STOLE BREAD

Standard, Brockville, Sept. 1.—In the Police Court on Saturday the Magistrate was called upon to deal with a young female who had been charged with stealing bread. The young female was charged with stealing bread, and the Magistrate was called upon to deal with the case.

Japanese Threat

Standard, London, Sept. 1.—The Tokyo correspondent of the Times says the signature of the Russian agreement with Germany with regard to the leasing of land at Yenchow to the Russians is semi-officially denied. It is understood that Japan threatens that if the agreement is concluded she will regard China as wholly open to foreign trade.

Drive Out the Turk

London, Aug. 31.—The submission of the Russian demands growing out of the murder of the Russian Consul at Monastir while it has resulted in the recall of the Russian squadron from Turkish waters, at Ilkava, Turkey, with her hands full in Macedonia. Fighting, according to the daily cable reports, continues in that country, accompanied with the reports of massacres to which the world has long since been accustomed, and unless the powers intervene in behalf of the terrified Christian population there is no telling what will be the end of it all. The revolutionaries, in their appeal to the powers, have indicated their minimum demand in the way of reform which seems reasonable enough. It is simply a Christian government independent of the Porte and an administrative council appointed by the powers. Anything short of this they declare they will not accept, but will fight to the death, and there is every evidence that they mean what they say. On the other hand, Turkey would no doubt welcome intervention if it meant delay and aviation and finally leaving her in undisputed possession of the northern villages to work out her will of oppression, outrage and murder of the Christian inhabitants. It seems as if the only permanent settlement of the trouble is one which begins by patching the unspeakable Turk neck with belts out of Europe and over into Asia, where he belongs.

WRITS AGAINST LABOR MEN

Standard, Toronto, Ont., September 2.—In connection with the strike of the Gurney Foundry Workers the Gurney Company has issued two writs, one against Robert H. Emmett, John H. Barnett, Chas. Curran, A. E. Reid, T. E. Nicholls, Chas. Kemish, and three local labor organizers, Jan. Simpson, D. W. Kennedy and James Wilson, asking an injunction restraining defendants from wrongfully interfering with and intimidating plaintiffs' workmen, from wrongfully interfering with plaintiffs' customers, from advertising that the company's goods are made by incompetent workmen, and from wrongfully conspiring to boycott plaintiffs' goods, and for damages. The second writ is against the Western Foundry Company of Wingham for an injunction restraining the defendants from enticing away the Toronto company's workmen.

TWO NATIONAL BOATS

Standard, Toronto, Sept. 1.—Mr. W. T. R. Preston, the Dominion immigration agent in London, is in the city. Preston was a passenger on the S.S. Dominion, which reached Quebec, last night.

In conversation with the press at the Windsor Hotel, Preston spoke of the objects of his visit to Canada. He will accompany the British Parliamentary party on their trip through the country and will return to England with the party when the tour is completed.

END OF VACATION

Standard, Toronto, Sept. 1.—The Times is in receipt of an inquiry regarding the national yacht now racing for the America Cup. For the benefit of our readers we would say: Shamrock III. is called the Irish boat and Reliance the Yankee boat.

But Shamrock III. is owned by a native of Scotland, was designed by a Scotchman and built in Scotland by Scotch workmen, and sailed by an Englishman.

THE PARIS DISASTER

Standard, Paris, Sept. 1.—The Municipal Committee investigating the recent tunnel disaster on the Metropolitan railroad has drawn up a report, approved by the prefecture, indicating the reforms which should be immediately made in the Paris underground railroad system. The principal proposals are that the present system of a motor at each end of the train should be suppressed; the motors should be capable of isolation from the train; in case of the slightest fire the train must be stopped and the motor isolated; the telephones and speaking tubes must be provided at reasonable intervals along the line. The number of employees at the station must be increased. The platform must be lighted by an electric current independent of the current supplying the traction of the lighting of the tunnels. Numerous lamps must be placed to indicate the direction of the exit, at which a powerful inextinguishable lamp must be lighted, and an alarm must be placed near the station. It is proposed to install later on the use of incombustible rolling stock, and the construction of refuges in the tunnel walls.

WET SPELL IS AT AN END

Standard, Toronto, Sept. 1.—The weather bureau declares, although a light occasional shower in the morning and early afternoon may be needed to moisten the soil, that a hot and dry spell is at hand. A hot and dry spell is at hand. A hot and dry spell is at hand.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

Dear Reader,—Are you a sufferer from any of the following ills: Lack of energy, nervous exhaustion, ideas easily confused, irritability of temper, impairment of memory, despondency, general debility, loss of sleep, indigestion, or other ailments? Do you have any of these ailments? Do you have any of these ailments? Do you have any of these ailments?

GREAT BRITAIN IS VERY ANGRY OVER BUNGLING

Proofs of Nation's Indignation Over War Office Mistakes During the Recent War.

London, Aug. 31.—The revelations contained in the report of the Royal Commission on the conduct of the war in South Africa had filled all England with indignation, and the indignation of the three volumes just issued much has been suppressed in the public interest, but enough remains to justify apparently the opinion freely expressed that the War Office at the outbreak of the trouble was in a state of incompetence which is nothing short of amazing. Some of the newspapers are strong in their expressions of indignation. The Daily Mail says: "One lesson blazoned every page of this report is that our national interest can no longer be entrusted to men who regard statecraft as a pleasant occupation for the leisure hours. The day of such men as Lord Lansdowne and Mr. Brodick in English statecraft is over. They are costly and dangerous luxuries. The reputation of Lord Lansdowne is blasted a hundred times over in the pages of this evidence, and not only the reputation, but the whole attitude of the present Cabinet toward their duties to the Empire."

The Times says in regard to the report: "It is a sweeping indictment of our military unpreparedness, an unpreparedness, be it observed, which there is no reason to think has been very materially lessened in the period since the war."

END OF VACATION

Standard, Toronto, Sept. 1.—The Times is in receipt of an inquiry regarding the national yacht now racing for the America Cup. For the benefit of our readers we would say: Shamrock III. is called the Irish boat and Reliance the Yankee boat.

But Shamrock III. is owned by a native of Scotland, was designed by a Scotchman and built in Scotland by Scotch workmen, and sailed by an Englishman.

THE PARIS DISASTER

Standard, Paris, Sept. 1.—The Municipal Committee investigating the recent tunnel disaster on the Metropolitan railroad has drawn up a report, approved by the prefecture, indicating the reforms which should be immediately made in the Paris underground railroad system. The principal proposals are that the present system of a motor at each end of the train should be suppressed; the motors should be capable of isolation from the train; in case of the slightest fire the train must be stopped and the motor isolated; the telephones and speaking tubes must be provided at reasonable intervals along the line. The number of employees at the station must be increased. The platform must be lighted by an electric current independent of the current supplying the traction of the lighting of the tunnels. Numerous lamps must be placed to indicate the direction of the exit, at which a powerful inextinguishable lamp must be lighted, and an alarm must be placed near the station. It is proposed to install later on the use of incombustible rolling stock, and the construction of refuges in the tunnel walls.

WET SPELL IS AT AN END

Standard, Toronto, Sept. 1.—The weather bureau declares, although a light occasional shower in the morning and early afternoon may be needed to moisten the soil, that a hot and dry spell is at hand. A hot and dry spell is at hand. A hot and dry spell is at hand.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

Dear Reader,—Are you a sufferer from any of the following ills: Lack of energy, nervous exhaustion, ideas easily confused, irritability of temper, impairment of memory, despondency, general debility, loss of sleep, indigestion, or other ailments? Do you have any of these ailments? Do you have any of these ailments? Do you have any of these ailments?

COPETE MINING CO.

27 William Street, New York

Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5

More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but also in gold, and they are worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter in a short run produced something over $100,000.

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now clear and unobscured title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A portion of the Treasury stock is offered for sale—to complete the development and equipment of the property—for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

MYRA B. MARTIN, SECRETARY

ROLFF HOUSE

By G. H. BENEDICT.

A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.

The reports soon spread around the neighborhood that Claude was leading a most disreputable life in Europe, and the Baybrooks, father and son, by many cunning devices, in many ways added to the popular gossip.

CHAPTER XV.

Obedient to his instructions, old Carl Crum had taken his departure from the Rolff house that had sheltered his head so long, and for which he felt an almost romantic attachment, and domiciled himself in a tenant house on the Rolff place near the ferry that had for so many years been the scene of his labors. What the old fellow thought on the subject of his disgrace from the Rolff house, he had enjoyed in Rolff House for so many years, nobody had an opportunity to know precisely, for he maintained a dignified silence, and went about his duties with his usual taciturn industry.

But if old Carl viewed his displacement by the vagabond Leeb, Sackett with seeming indifference, his faithful companion in the service of Rolff House, old Margaret, did not. The advent of Mr. Sackett, which took place the very day of Carl's departure, aroused the spirit of the worthy dame to quite an unlooked-for manner, and led to a volubility of indignation surprising to that individual.

Leeb, affected to treat it all with easy indifference, however, and at once made himself at home in his new position.

"It is quite needless for you to rail at me, fair and amiable Margaret," he replied, to one of the old woman's outbursts; "the powers that be have put me here, and here I mean to stay. You will like my company better after you get better acquainted with me"—and his lips parted in a satirical smile that showed his yellow fangs in a not very agreeable manner.

"Like a wolf," snapped old Margaret, her faded blue eyes fairly blazing with hatred and indignation. "A pretty head you are for Rolff House, indeed, you thief and vagabond, as your father and mother were before you. What have you come here to steal? Oh, I'll watch you—T'll watch you!"

And watch him she did. Leeb soon found that it would have been impossible to have put a more vigilant and unrelenting detective on his actions than this faithful old domestic. She would steal around the house after him in the most tireless and noiseless way, and the constant fear of being under her observation rather interrupted his pleasure in exploring the nooks and crannies of the strange old mansion. Whenever he took himself to a new field of investigation, he was pretty sure soon to be greeted with the picture of old Margaret's gray head and wrinkled features framed in the shadow of a doorway or window, with all-observing eyes fixed fearfully and suspiciously upon him.

But Leeb was not the kind of a man to be easily discouraged. He resolved mentally "to fix the old lady," and, pending his reflections on the matter, he took occasion to report her attitude to his employer.

"It wouldn't be a bad idea to get rid of her," he said, "as she seems to be a nuisance to the house."

"I might drop her in the old well, or lock her up in one of the old cellars and leave her there," responded Mr. Sackett, "nobody would ever take the trouble to inquire about her, I reckon."

"No, no; that wouldn't do," answered the lawyer. "You must think of some other plan. I don't want her hurt. It might make trouble."

"Well," continued Leeb, "I'll try and fix her in some way. I'll be interested in having her out of the way. I have a good deal bigger interest in keeping myself out of trouble. So I ain't likely to do anything very wicked. Hang her, though, I'll enjoy the little job of wringing her wretched old neck. But I suppose I will have to put up with her while yet. I'll see what can be done."

No further reference was made to the subject, and two or three weeks slipped by without any change of affairs in Rolff House. Old Margaret, in the meantime, did not become a bit reconciled to the presence of Leeb, Sackett, and that worthy took her watchful and vigorous campaign to be anything but agreeable to him in his new position.

But gradually rumors began to be whispered about strange occurrences at Rolff House. Lights had been seen moving about the house by those passing at night. Some one had seen sparks and flames proceeding from the great south chimney at midnight, and it was said that the great old house had been on one of its periodical visits to the house.

Leeb, Sackett was of course interrogated at these occurrences, but he denied any knowledge of them. He said that although he admitted that there were " queer things " going on in the house, "I'll tell you what," he said to a group of eager listeners in Rolff's Tavern one evening, "that old house is ghost-ridden, and there's no getting around it. Of all queer polter gein' on around here I never heard the like. Rats? No, it ain't rats. I tell you. Rats don't run and bang doors, raise and let down windows, flash lights about the house, and utter the most awful groans and shrieks. Rats don't carry the furniture about from one room to another during the night, and pull a fellow out of bed all in a heap, as I was the other night. There's old Margaret—it's just the queerest thing how those ghosts persecute her. She's regularly scared, and says it all a judgment because I was put in the house. Well, it's my opinion that this ain't the first time that she's been scared. I'll bet Rolff House, though there's never been anybody there before to own up to the facts of the case. The spoils have been having a rest, I suppose, since the old lady's death, and now they are trying to make up for lost time."

"Ain't you afraid, Leeb?" asked one of the listeners, whose own teeth fairly chattered at the ghastly details he had heard.

"Afraid? Yes, I am kind of afraid," replied Leeb, in a matter-of-fact way; "but you see I have always had a sort of liking for ghosts, and then I ain't paid for running away from the house. The ghosts haven't hurt me, and I don't think they will. But I tell you, boys, I keep mighty clear of that old cellar. They say there is something worse than ghosts down there sometimes. I don't want to say much; I can stand the ghosts; but I don't feel exactly safe about that cellar."

Leeb was now the hero of the hour. Every day added to the burden of his ghostly tales, of the doings at Rolff House. There were very few in the little village who were not superstitious enough to put at least some faith in these stories, while the great majority received them with eager credence.

Some whose opitantly air rooms took fear would watch in the vicinity of the house at night, and never failed to entertain their cronies on their return with thrilling accounts of what they had witnessed.

Matters went on in this way for two or three weeks. Rolff House was enjoying a reputation it had never before fully borne as a abode of mischievous spirits, when the gossip and interest in the matter suddenly grew steadily increased by the flight of old Margaret from the house to the abode of a niece, a married woman of middle age, living in the village, where she arrived smitten with mortal terror, and at once took to bed with serious illness in consequence of the nervous excitement she had undergone.

From her confused statements, it was gathered that she had at first put no faith in the reality of the ghostly manifestations, attributing them solely to the wicked pranks of Leeb, Sackett; but, as day after day passed by, and each night brought new and more mysterious occurrences, her courage gradually given way, till at last an event had occurred that had completely terrified her and caused her to flee the house. What this terrifying occurrence was she could not be induced to state, but it had evidently left a most serious impression upon her mind and partially shattered her well-worn faculties.

It was noticed, too, by those most interested, that Leeb, Sackett no longer wore his usual jaunty air, but seemed unusually grave and pre-occupied in all his actions. Yet he did not leave the house. He asserted that there were no ghosts enough in Christendom to scare him, and that he would stay in the old house as long as he was wanted there.

One evening, however, he did not put in an appearance at Rolff's tavern. Another evening passed, and he was still absent. Still a third and a fourth day passed, and public excitement began to be aroused in regard to his safety. It was believed that he had come to some harm at the hands of the evil spirits that bewitched the old house. None would hold as to go and investigate the matter, however. And so the mysterious disappearance of Leeb, Sackett added to the excitement in regard to the ghostly doings at Rolff House.

"My dear," said a frightened husband in the middle of the night, shaking his wife, "where did you put that bottle of strychnine?"

"On the shelf next to the pepper-min!"

"Oh!" he groaned. "I've swallowed it!"

"Well, for goodness sake," whispered his wife, "keep quiet or you'll wake the baby."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Will J. Lampton, the poet, is telling a sweetly poetic story these days, and he insists that it is perfectly true. Once upon a time he was making a driving tour through the country near Harper's Ferry, and stopped at a little wayside inn for refreshment. A sign in the window announced that oysters in all styles were to be had, and Mr. Lampton ordered a fry.

"Don't you want a stew?" asked the man in charge.

"No," said Mr. Lampton, "I want a fry."

"Now wouldn't do, would it?" queried the man, who seemed to entertain a prejudice against unnecessary exertion.

"No," repeated the poet, "I want a fry."

The man walked over to the stove and sought the frying pan. It was lying on the floor.

"Here," said the man, "get out of that pan, Jim; the gentleman wants a fry."

Jim was a harmless, necessary cat.—Washington Post.

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January, 15th, 1903.
Dear Sir—I notice your advertisement about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 12 years. I have tried several doctors, but they did me no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clark's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hands were so bad that the nails came off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Pasha Station, E.R.I.

Dr. Clark's Sure Cure for Catarrh is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 413 Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes: "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your catarrh cure; send me another dollar's worth."

Peter D. McPherson, Riverside, E.R.I., writes: "I am very busy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your catarrh cure. It has done grand work for me. I am so much better."

Dr. Clark's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lumbago, back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the disease have been chronic for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Cresswell & Welch, Philadelphia, 30c per box or 3 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clark's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clark's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. Goods will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay. It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds, the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash? A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefit.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the scores of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurons, the Baldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at from $1.00 per value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Green Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $8,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1880 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $682.

$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Malloy, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

Not only it requires immensely rich ore for successful mining—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore mills only $25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours. The Alaska Treadwell ore mill is $38 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par. No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management. Respectfully submitted,

Vast ledges of ore running from $5.00 to $80.00 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $75.00 to $200.00 per ton. This is not a five per cent. a month scheme, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans. No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGEMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the dictates of your foresight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the stock at present prices. It will soon be 50 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mines and returned full of enthusiasm. The mines are turning out much richer than expected.

Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5

More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but so rich in gold that they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter in a short time produced something over $100,000.

The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them are—Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Seymour W. Tallent, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Greene Consolidated; Mr. Edwin D. Treadwell, Mining Engineer and Geologist and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now clear and undisputed title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A portion of the Treasury stock is offered for sale—to complete the development and equipment of the property—for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 30 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.

Vast ledges of ore running from $400 to $800.00 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $79.50 to $98.50 per ton. This is not a five per cent. a month scheme, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans. No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the dictates of your foresight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the Stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the Stock at present price. It will run to $50 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mines and returned full of enthusiasm. The mines are turning out much richer than expected.

I can offer the Stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO-DAY—to-morrow it may slip your memory. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 25% per month.

A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.

CHAPTER XVII.

Ralph Saybrook was not a young man to take leave of his characteristic shrewdness even in such a delicate matter of love-making. Having resolved to win Rosa Bruyn, he knew the best plan to lead to ultimate success was to boldly and persistently lay siege to her heart. He was well aware that he would be rebuffed at first, and that it would require great address and persistence for him to achieve ultimate success, and all his plans were laid for conducting a long and difficult suit with as much precision and method as if it were a law case instead of a matrimonial project he had in hand.

It was greatly to Rosa's disadvantage in the matter that her natural goodness of heart and modesty of nature precluded her repulsing his advances until he had gained the advantage of actually declaring his love for her. She took every possible precaution to avoid his advances, it was true, but as he was not at all backward in obtruding himself upon her company, and was a frequent welcome guest of her father at his home, it was impossible for her to avoid his company entirely. Thus Ralph was offered his own opportunity to declare himself, and the occasion was well chosen. It was a beautiful early spring day, and Rosa had been to the village and some errands, when, on her way home, she was joined by the young lawyer. He proceeded home with her, exerting himself to be lively and entertaining, and detaining her at the gate, managed shrewdly to engage her in an animated conversation on the appropriate subject of flora culture, which, being a topic she took a deep interest in, she was unconsciously led out of her usual mood of studied reticence into his company, and even seemed into some life and enthusiasm in expressing her views on a subject in which she took much a deep interest. Ralph was a young man of quite general reading, and, as is sometimes the case with those of the colder and more serious nature, had quite a passion for flowers, and was well informed on their cultivation and capable of displaying enthusiasm and erudition in discussing the subject. So he managed to lead the girl from one point to another until at last they were holding an animated discourse on the language of flowers, and it was not long ere he had taken advantage of so favorable a turn of the conversation to introduce a subject of love and declare his attachment for her.

"You, dear Rosa," he said, in his most beguiling tones, as she stood surprised and confused in consequence of his unexpected declaration, "I love you with my whole heart. You are to my eye, the chiefest flower in all Nature's parterre of beauty, which, to win and wear on this faithful breast I may well desire to make the ruling ambition of my life."

In reply to this ardent language, Rosa could only stammer:

"Really Mr. Saybrook, I cannot listen to you. You but do wrong to yourself to address me so. It is my error if I have given you the slightest reason to believe a hope that I could look favorably on your addresses. I most truly cannot. I would wrong you to leave you under the slightest delusion. Believe me, it is impossible."

Ralph was quick to catch the implied admission of the nervous-hearted girl that she might have unconsciously led him to hope for her favor.

"But why?" he made haste to urge. "Most truly, I have seen no reason to suppose me to be your attitude toward me was such as to shut out hope. And even if it were, I would not the less admire and love you, and cherish the fond hope to win you. But I will not, I cannot, indulge so terrible a belief as that you do not deliberately decline to listen to me, and at least not give yourself time and opportunity to ascertain whether my attentions may not in time become more agreeable to you."

"It is needless, believe me, Mr. Saybrook," she replied. "Do not wrong yourself with such a hope."

"Ah, but Rosa, I cannot help it. The thought of love may be new to you, but my dear girl you are now of an age to smile admiration and attract suitors, and why should I not seek to be among the number of your faithful worshippers? I could not expect to be without rivals, but knowing my own heart, I can well imagine the hope of being able to surpass all in faithfulness and devotion."

Years sprang to the eyes of the young girl. The situation was becoming very embarrassing for her, and she determined to cut it short by a candid explanation.

"Let me be frank with you, Mr. Saybrook," she said. "My faith is already pledged to another, and I cannot break it."

"Unwilling as the news is to me," replied Ralph, showing no sign of discouragement, "I do not see how it entirely shuts me out from hope. I had reason, perhaps, to suspect such a fact, but I also had reason to believe that it was not an objection that would prove in any way insuperable. Indeed, I did not know but that your relations in that direction had been broken off. Of course, I should be glad to hear of it."

Such as I respect and admire him as a friend, I cannot believe but that he has lacked the sincerity and earnestness of a true manly character in his admission to you. In fact without breaking confidence, I think I may say that he himself looked upon his departure abroad as a practical surrender of all the that bound him to his native land, and that he confessed as much, and I have also reason to believe that he has since turned his back on the place of his present residence which would preclude the idea that he regarded any pledges he might lightly have made to you as binding. No, no; I do not consider that his claim should shut out mine. Let me assure you, Rosa, kindly but earnestly, that all others save only yourself, perhaps, have regarded his attentions to you as lacking in real sincerity. I know that such is your father's opinion. I did not presume to indulge a hope of becoming your suitor without first declaring my intentions to him, and learning that he did not regard my character and hopes unfavorably; and I was given to understand by him that not only was your hand free so far as he knew, but that, even if an engagement did exist with Mr. Bell, it could never receive his consent. He repeats, as I assure you others regard, the ambition of that young man as of a kind that will never adapt itself to the circumstances of our quiet little community and peaceful ways, and that his leaving us is a practical surrender of all designs or probability of ever returning here. It would be but cruelty, Rosa, to deny me even the one fond lover's privilege of hope for one who I am assured has already proved false to you."

"I cannot believe it—I will not believe it," replied Rosa hastily, and with a sudden spirit that seemed to indicate that her feelings were much moved. "You all slander him; you all seem conspired together to deceive me. I cannot believe ill of him till I have better evidence than I have yet seen."

"Possibly you are right as regards the evidence," replied Ralph, who shrewdly saw that it would not do to press the point at present. "I confess I can hardly believe so ill of Claude myself as his actions would seem to warrant. It is a point that perhaps a little lapse of time will settle clearly. All I ask, my dear girl, is that you will not forbid me to indulge a hope that your hand will yet be free for me."

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonials may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January, 29th, 1903.

Dear Sir,—I realize your debt, in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin troubles in my hands for several years, and I have tried several doctors and they do me no good. I only used one box of Dr. Charles's Eczema Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails would not come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Parks Station, E.M.I.

Dr. Charles's Eczema Cure for Eczema is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 411 First Street, Lawrence, Kas., writes: "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your Eczema Cure; send me another dollar's worth."

Peter D. McPherson, Riverside, E.M.I., writes: "I am very busy, but just drop me a line to say I highly recommend your Eczema Cure. It has done great work for me. I am so much better."

Dr. Charles's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, catarrh, paralysis, sciatica, lumbago, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Grocers and Druggists. Price, 50c per box or 3 boxes for $1.50.

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay.

It is the ruling force of the world. It attracts the attention of the greatest minds, the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash?

A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurons, the Baldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at $1.00 per value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $4,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1880 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $682.

$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend-paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Mallory, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

[Nor does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining.—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore mills only $25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours. The Alaska Treadwell ore mills $2.38 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par.

HIDALGO MINING COMPANY

DOUGLAS, ARIZONA.

The Anaconda Gold Mining Co.

Home Office: 412 Merchants Loan and Trust Bldg.
135 Adams Street, Chicago, Ill.

This is one of the best propositions ever placed before the Canadian investor. The company owns 600 acres in the celebrated Black Hills District, South Dakota, comprising 20 claims. The track is situated on the great Homestake belt, being located directly between the wonderful Homestake mine and the Clover Leaf mine. Two shafts have already been sunk, the main one being down 154 feet, with capacity of going 1000 feet. The company has also installed an ingenious air compressor and drills, 125 horse power boiler, steam engine and in fact everything needed for successful operation, with the exception of its stamp mill; which will be installed at once. The vein of gold-bearing quartz traversing the company's property is very rich. Assays have run from $6 to $64.00 per ton.

The company has a capital of 1,500,000 shares, divided into 750,000 preferred and 750,000 common, par value $1 per share, fully paid up and non-assessable. The treasury stock has been made preferred stock to the amount of 35 cents a share. Out of the first dividend 35 cents per share will be paid to the owners of this preferred stock before holders of common stock receive any share of the profits. After the 35 cents has been paid to the shareholders of preferred stock, then all alike share in the dividends. This means another law than that the first investors in the enterprise will have all their money returned to them before any dividends are declared to the rank and file of investors.

A limited amount of stock has been placed on the Canadian market. Full particulars and copy of prospectus may be obtained from MR. R. J. KIDD, or the undersigned Agent for Peterborough city.

the week is likely to be rather slow and under the control of professional interests. There is some measure of optimism with reference to the further movement of the market; there are some who may think the leading interests in the street are not favorable to a bull market at this time, and under the circumstances there is a disposition in some circles that figures that further improvement in the market will be contained. On the other hand there are many conservative who aver that any reaction at this time will be but temporary inasmuch as conditions generally are quite favorable and are fully in line with the better prices which have been established for the dividend paying stocks during the past few weeks.

The Standard Oil interests are expected to be active in active speculation at this time, some of the interests expressing the belief that the leaders will not allow a real bull market until after the first of next year. The money market is in good position in that the surplus resources are much better at this time than for two years past, and the country banks are in better condition to aid in increasing than at any previous time in the history of the country. The earnings for the railroads continue on a very high scale, and traffic of the officials expressing the belief that the leaders will not allow a real bull market

until after the first of next year. The

DO YOU FEEL SEEDY?

If you are Nervous, Depressed, Sleepless, and Suffer from Sick Stomach, Headache, Constipation, and Indigestion, You need a Good Tonic like Ferrozone to Build Up the System.

Thousands are in this dreadful condition, only half alive, unable to stand the strain of work and worry. There is no sense or reason in trying to be comfortable with the idea that it will pass off, and that you are going to be better soon. Unless the system is cleansed of the impurities that poison the blood, you will never be better.

The best remedy is Ferrozone. It solves all nervousness, chronic wasting diseases, nervous prostration, faulty nutrition, heart disease and stomach troubles.

Ferrozone promotes healthy digestion which results in all food being assimilated. Nutrition is vastly improved, the blood grows rich and red and gives stability to the entire system. The store of nerve energy and force increases daily by the use of Ferrozone. The process of waste is arrested and in its place a rebuilding of the whole system takes place.

Diseased conditions cannot exist where Ferrozone is used. It attacks disease at its very foundation, and by keeping the body well nourished and supplied with strong blood and a powerful nervous organization prevents and keeps away all manner of sickness.

There is no blood builder, nerve tonic and strength producer that can equal Ferrozone, and few people are so well fitted to derive great benefit from its use. It is valuable in Nervous Dyspepsia, Anemia, Weakness, Impure Blood, Bronchitis, Neuritis and Rheumatism. It is prepared in the form of a chocolate coated tablet and is both pleasant and convenient to use.

Ferrozone produces that high standard of health so much desired by everyone. It brings back the rosy tint to the pale cheeks of the Anemic girl and woman. It puts grace and elasticity into their movements, gives lustre and brightness to the eye, and symmetry and roundness to the form. It gives a man new strength and energy with which to meet the demands of his life. It gives you all that you need for perfect satisfaction.

You can't invest half a dollar to better advantage than in a box of Ferrozone. Your druggist has it, or it will be mailed to your address if you write to N. C. Ferrozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

LIGHTS IN THE PARK

The Council of 1933 will have Victoria Park Lighted

Some time ago the Peterborough Light and Power Company offered to light Victoria Park free of charge if the Council would put up the fixtures. This splendid proposition was never taken advantage of. Yesterday the Aldermen returned to work from their trip Van Winkle sleep, and got a move on. Two are lamps are being put in, to be followed by a number of incandescent lamps.

PURE CITY WATER

Provincial Analysis says That Our Water is Good

Sample of water were recently sent to the laboratory of the Provincial Board of Health, Toronto, for examination, and was reported to be absolutely pure. The following is the report of Mr. J. A. Amyot, the analyst:

Analysis of water taken from the tap at 285 Huron street, sent by Mr. H. H. H. on August 19, 1933; sent to the Laboratory of the Provincial Board of Health, Toronto, where it was received in good condition—Color, none; odor, none; taste, none; after heating, none; coliform bacteria, none; pathogenic forms; chlorine, one part per million.

Remarks—This is a good drinking water.

The analysis of the sample of water taken on the same date from the fountain at the police station was identically the same as the above.

ENGLAND'S GREATEST BAND

The Splendid Coldstream Guards, and their visit to Canada

The pulse quickens and the heart beats in the breast of every Briton when he hears the inspiring music of a military band, and when it happens that he is listening to the finest band in the whole British service, and that the band has marched through centuries of glory, the oldest regiment in the King's Army it may be considered an opportunity of a lifetime. For many years of their history have been made a visit to Canada of a crack regimental band, but it was not until this year that the consent of the Imperial authorities could be obtained, and as a result the finest band in the British service, belonging to the oldest regiment in the English Army, the famous Coldstream Guards, sail from England on August 27th arriving in Toronto Sept. 7th. The band will be the full regimental strength, numbering 46 splendid musicians under the leadership of J. Mackenzie Rogers who is the bandmaster, not merely of the Coldstream Guards, but of the Brigade of Guards.

Arrangements have been made for a visit of the band to Peterborough during the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. They will appear at the new rink on the evening of Wednesday, September 27th.

DIED OF STARVATION

Tragic End of a Former Peterborough Young Lady

Word was received at Minneapolis that Edith White, wife of John A. White, of the Denting Company, died of starvation in the Klondike. Mrs. White was formerly a Miss Billings of Peterborough, and left here with her parents about 20 years ago.

The death of a girl that such is the information contained in a despatch from Seattle, which gives the details of the finding of the unfortunate woman's body, containing a history of her life from the time she left Peterborough until she died of exposure and lack of food in the heart of the trackless Copper river country.

Mrs. White was a graduate of the local school of the city and was practicing dentistry in Dawson City two years ago.

She wrote her relatives saying she was going into the interior, and probably would not be heard from for some time.

In a letter written from Central Alaska, July 29, 1928, William Chasler, a petty officer in the employ of government signal corps, tells of finding letters and a diary reading to show that Mrs. White perished from cold and hunger, while trying to make her way unaccompanied to an interior camp in the Copper river country.

The "McIntosh" the alligator owned by the Rathbun Company, was successfully launched yesterday by Capt. Dave McIntosh, who has been a faithful employee of the firm for a number of years.

A NEW ROUTE

The Road to Wellville

It is by a change of diet that one can get fairly on the road to health after years of sickness, for in all health comes from inner cleansing.

What a boon it is to shake off the fee sickness and nervous headaches as one can if determined upon.

One woman accomplished it in this way: "A few years ago I suffered terribly from sick and nervous headaches being frequently confined to my bed two or three days at a time the attacks coming on from one to four times in every month. I tried medicine of all kinds but could get no relief until my friends finally persuaded me to quit the use of coffee altogether and try Postum Food Coffee. It has come to a point where I was an utterly miserable creature, willing to make any reasonable trial. I person couldn't believe what followed but the results speak for themselves, and that was two and a half years ago, and I have never tasted coffee since. I use Postum not only for its delicious flavor but more for the good it has done me. All of my troubles disappeared as if by magic and I have for the past two years been doing all the work for my family of six. I seldom have even a slight headache, and I would not give up my Postum and go back to coffee now unless I deliberately intended to commit suicide."

"All of my neighbors it seems to me now use Postum in place of coffee, and some of them have been doing so for several years with splendid results from the health point of view." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Look in each package for a copy of the famous Little Book, "The Road to Wellville."

A GOOD PROPOSAL

To Have Portraits of Ex-Mayors Made

A well known resident has suggested to The Times that an effort should be made to secure the photographs of all the former mayors of the town and have them hung in group form, or otherwise, in the council chamber. The suggestion is indeed a good one and is worthy of consideration. In Toronto each mayor on retiring presents the city with a large portrait of himself. This might also be made the custom in Peterborough. Some day it is to be hoped the town will have new municipal buildings, and when that day comes it would certainly be a nice thing if the likenesses of every ex-mayor could be hung along the spacious corridors or in the magnificently furnished council chamber. It is thought that photos of all the ex-mayors can be procured at the present time. If the suggestion is to be carried out it should be acted upon at once for in several years there may be difficulty in securing photos of the early mayors.

A RELATED REPORT

Of the Journey of the Oddfellows Across Lake Ontario

The following lines were written by a member on the Oddfellows' excursion to Rochester on Civic Holiday. "The storm sea roared like an American," which accounts for the related report:

A band of jolly Oddfellows met As chippers as could be, Went sailing forth the other day Upon our inland sea. Aboard the steamer North King, From Canada's fair shores, They cruised away, nor ever thought That trouble was in store.

The bark went rattling like the wind, The waves grew mountains high, "Oh Lord," the way Pat O'Shan groaned.

"Right here is where we die," Harold Snowden bawled across the side Said he, "It isn't fair, That I should be the first to drop From quakes of mal de mer."

Next fell the men from Ashburnham The young one dropping first. The old ones followed in a trice. They roaredly luck they cursed. Then Fatty turned so pale you'd think He'd die from inward pain. Says he, "A dollar to the man That takes me home again."

Next with a dull and sudden thud A well known brother dropped. Quoth he, "The money's out, A fraud and must be stopped."

A fraud no more. The only sound That henceforth he could make Was that of one whose inner works Are quivered and no mistake.

Next time the boys got up a crowd We think we hear them say That they will all be sea-sick lads Whose "innards" are O.K. For to an ancient seafarer It is an awful blow.

When half the crowd cry, "I'm awful sick," And stare the fish below.

CANADA AND THE TRADE PROPOSALS, GREAT BRITAIN FINDING DIFFICULTY IN LOCATING OUR SENTIMENTS

Wolsely Writes a Book on the Red River Affair

OUR APPLES IN ENGLAND.

London, Sept. 2.—The London Daily Mail, publishing extracts from Toronto, Montreal, Halifax, Ottawa, and Winnipeg newspapers, says the extracts show that public opinion in Canada is not merely indifferent, but actually hostile to Mr. Chamberlain's proposals. The sentiment is strong for the bond to the mother country, but the colonies' suicidal offer has alarmed it. Canada, in short, does not want her recent trade services to the Empire to be paid at the expense of the British tax payer.

The Chronicle says the Premier of Ontario bluntly told a Toronto audience that the conference was given Great Britain because it would be good for Canada. It was significant that although the Dominion Parliament had been in session since Mr. Chamberlain outlined his policy, neither of the two great political parties of Canada had made any advance in his direction.

CANADIAN APPLES.
London, Sept. 2.—A shipment of over two million bushels of Canadian apples has been received. Experts say the Canadian Pippins, Ribstones, and Baldwin equal the English fruit of the same names.

RED RIVER TROUBLES.
London, Sept. 2.—"The Story of a Soldier's Life," by Lord Wolsey, contains an account of the troubles of the Red River expedition in 1899.

DAMPENED TROUBLES.
London, Sept. 2.—Thomas Brock, of Kentville, Nova Scotia, aroused great indignation in a congregation on the island of Jersey by declaring his non-belief in the doctrine of eternal punishment.

Utica, Sept. 2.—Mrs. George Pierce of Keokuk, who was arrested on the charge of assault in the second degree for throwing scalding water on a party of young men who were "horning" her husband and himself on their return from their honeymoon has been held to await the action of the grand jury. The "horning" party was mainly masked and will be searched for life.

TURKEY AND BULGARIA ARE ON THE EVE OF A GREAT BLOODY CONFLICT

The Situation in the East Believed to be as Bad or Worse Than It Has Been Pictured, Can the Macedonian Muslims Ever Know Liberty?

Sofia, Sept. 3.—Ritual vigilance is the price of life in almost every section of Macedonia. The situation among the races is so complicated that Bulgarians, Greeks and Turks alike are unable to distinguish friends from enemies. In some localities the Bulgarians and Greeks are fraternizing against the Turks. In other districts Greeks and Turks are banded against the Bulgarians, some still other places Bulgarians, Greeks, and Turks appear to be mingling in mutual sympathy with the Turkish civil and military authorities, informing them of the designs of the revolutionaries.

Oppression has been the lot of the whole population of Macedonia, and the people cannot be expected to be forever submissive. The disaffection of what seems to be a small element among the Turks has encouraged a group of revolutionary Ottoman leaders to start a secret campaign of disaffection. A manifesto in which they claimed detailing the evils of the Sultan's rule and requesting the Turkish inhabitants of Macedonia to cast in their lot with the insurgents. "Only those" runs the appeal, "can the Macedonian Muslims ever know liberty, just laws, pure administration and tranquility. Macedonia, with autonomy under European control would pass out of the realm of chaos into the realm of order, and men, women and children could lie down to rest at night untroubled by the spectre of massacre. No Macedonian need fear that such conditions would entail violations of the Mohammedan religious conscience. The main aim would be to guarantee civil and religious liberty. These appeals, though aimed at minimizing the trouble will probably have the effect of producing a new ferment into the situation and of increasing the general anxiety. The councils of the foreign powers are particularly disturbed by them since they fear that once a considerable body of Turkish soldiers to aid the insurgents the annihilation of councils may be favored on certain to provoke European intervention.

WAR IS IMMINENT.
Sofia, Bulgaria, Sept. 3.—Both an official and revolutionary circles the opinion is freely held that war between Turkey and Bulgaria is imminent, and can be averted by nothing short of a miracle. It is not expected that either Government will formally declare hostilities, but that the prevailing conditions will force on war. There is no question that large numbers of insurgents have resorted to arms. An extensive outbreak in Northern Macedonia is possible. The autonomy points a telegram from Constantinople, declaring that the Sultan, influenced by the counsels of Greece and Turkey, are war with Bulgaria. The Turkish here, however, take an optimistic view, assuming that there is no danger of war, as Turkey does not desire one, and Prince Ferdinand and the present Bulgarian Government are not in a position to force hostilities.

The Bulgarian agent at Uskub reports that the detachment of Turkish troops in that village have agreed to destruction along their routes. The villages have been robbed and beaten, the women violated and the Christian population subject to every conceivable outrage. While the local authorities appear to be helpless to stop the atrocities. At the village of Drashovo, six miles from Uskub, the soldiers attacked all the peasants without the slightest provocation. The local authorities appear to be helpless to stop the atrocities. The Bulgarian agent at Uskub reports that the detachment of Turkish troops in that village have agreed to destruction along their routes. The villages have been robbed and beaten, the women violated and the Christian population subject to every conceivable outrage. AN ARMED LUNATIC
SEEKS THE PRESIDENT
Man with Loaded Revolver Made Persistent Demands to See Mr. Roosevelt

Oyster Bay, N.Y., Sept. 2.—A man giving his name as Frank Wellbrenner was arrested at Sagamore Hill late last night while making a persistent demand to see President Roosevelt. The man was armed with a revolver fully loaded. He was taken to the village, and placed in the town prison. Shortly after 10 o'clock last night Wellbrenner said he had a personal engagement with the President, and desired to see him. The man insisted that the officer turned him away, and looked up.

Bulgarian residents as reported to be terrible, as the exiles committed by Turkish authorities exceeded all limits. The Porte has notified a British Minister at Constantinople, that five arrests have been made at Uskub in connection with the shooting which led to the report that William C. Hagelberg, the United States Vice-consul at Uskub, had been assassinated. The official continues to insist that no attempt was made on the Vice-Consul's life, and they repeat that the whole story originated in a false de jure filed on the occasion of a native marriage and in accordance with custom. Mr. Leishman, however, refuses to accept such an explanation without conclusive proof that the judicial investigation continues. Villages Pillaged. Consular dispatches from Prishina near the Serbian frontier, contain the report that nearly all the Christian villages in the district of Ohrida—54 miles from Monastir—and Orkovo have been pillaged and burned and that the inhabitants have fled. It is not stated whether Albanians or Bulgarians were the perpetrators of the outrages. In spite of the apparent gravity of the general situation, optimism prevails in Turkish official circles.

Soon after Wellbrenner returned, and again insisted that he be allowed to see the President, if only for a minute. Just before 11 o'clock the man returned a third time. The officer's response was to take the man from his buggy and place him in the station where he was placed under the guard of two constables. A revolver was found in the buggy. Later Wellbrenner was brought to the village and looked up.

Alaska Boundary Commission To Meet in Private

LONGS TO POS- SESS CANADA

London, Sept. 2.—Mr. Andrew Carnegie, presiding at a meeting of the Lion and Steel Institute at Harrow-on-Furness yesterday, said steel had been sold at a profit of 23 per cent. He doubted if the price ever would be lower. It was contrary to every indication. Period of the price of steel would likely be shorter, owing to lack of raw material.

SECRET OR PUBLIC?
London, Sept. 2.—A question as to whether the Alaska Boundary Commission will be secret or public will be decided tomorrow.

SERVICE FOR SERVICE.
London, Sept. 2.—A letter in the Morning Post suggests that corn from the colonies be admitted free as compensation to Canada as assistance by that Government.

London, Sept. 2.—Hon. Maude Pannofelt, daughter of the British Ambassador at Washington, makes an eloquent and earnest plea in the Empire Review for Canada as the home of Englishmen of moderate means; also for English speakers, and a field for English investment. She watches with anxiety the entrance of so many Americans into Canada, and says: "With ready-made families transferring themselves in unlimited numbers over the border, bringing with them the much-needed capital, the mines and ranches of Canada will become, bit by bit, merged into the States. The American element is never idle or over-complacent; never asleep. Canada is, in his quick intelligence, Naboth's vineyard, and he longs to possess it. If it passes from present ownership, it will be by that absorption, or by that absorption, or by that possession which, as Britain has so often known to her cost, is nine-tenths of the law."

A SPLENDID PROPOSITION
The Drake Mining, Draining and Tunnel Transportation Company of Colorado, U.S.A.

We desire to call the attention of our readers to The Drake Mining, Draining and Tunnel Transportation Company, of Colorado, U.S.A., an advertisement of which will be seen by reference to the columns of this paper. It is certain that this Company offers exceedingly attractive inducements to all who may wish to invest in Gold Dividend-paying Mining Stock.

The property of this Company consists of nine mines and one mill site, patented direct from the U.S. Government, and are all located on the Mother Mineral Dyke, of "Gold Belt" of the Rocky Mountains, in Gilpin County, Colorado, which is the richest gold producing district in the State, having already produced more than $100,000,000 One Hundred Million Dollars in Gold, and its development is only commenced.

All the veins of the mines of this Company are "Full Future Veins," varying in width from two to twenty feet, and the total length of which is over 12,700 feet, of approximately two and one-half miles of gold-bearing future veins.

The developments consist of shafts and tunnels—the latter tunnel, known as the "Drake Tunnel," has already been driven a distance of 2,300 feet, and is well equipped with 20 ft. steel rails. This tunnel is being driven not only to develop the mines of the Company which will do to a depth of 1,000 feet, but also to water and afford underground transportation for the Gregory, Hoblitzel and other adjoining rich mines, the doing of which will be a source of great profit to the Company. The Gregory mine alone has produced over $100,000,000. The aggregate production of the mines that this tunnel will reach at a depth of at least 200 feet beneath their present workings is over $60,000,000. The mouth of this tunnel is at the mill site of the Company, and end line of one of its mines, and on the main line of the Colorado and Southern Railroad, thus affording direct and cheap transportation to all the reduction works in the State. Its present freight rates from the mouth of its tunnel to the competing mill at Black Hawk, a distance of two and one-half miles is only 25 cents per ton. The average value of the ore taken from these mines as shown by mill runs, are from $60, $80 and $95 per ton. Yet are taken in February last from the lower workings of a shaft on one of its properties known as the Washington Extension Mine, from the 200 and 400 foot levels, gave the following results from five different samples, viz: $285.79, $222.10, $17.27, $160.12, $45.10 per ton. It has been estimated by three mining engineers and experts that the ore is right in the Company's mine, at the level of the tunnel is over $200,000 two million tons or more. These experts placed the average value of this ore as to be certain that the lower workings of a shaft on one of its properties known as the Washington Extension Mine, from the 200 and 400 foot levels, gave the following results from five different samples, viz: $285.79, $222.10, $17.27, $160.12, $45.10 per ton. Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5

More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but also rich in gold that they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter in a short run produced something over $100,000.

The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them are—Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Seymour W. Tallent, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Greene Con. mines; Mr. Edwin D. Treadwell, Mining Engineer and Geologist, and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now clear and undisputed title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A portion of the Treasury stock is offered for sale—to complete the development and equipment of the property—for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street, New York.

ROLFF HOUSE

By G. H. BENEDICT.

A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.

to see for with all the ardor and deep love that is in my heart."

This request was humble enough, but Raybrook was not to be so easily satisfied, and felt a heavy impulse to break away from the disagreeable interview.

"You must excuse me now, Mr. Raybrook," she said hurriedly. "I cannot listen to you longer. I have duties awaiting me in the house. Good day."

Turning almost abruptly, she proceeded with hasty steps toward the house.

The young man watched her disappear, and then turned to retrace his steps toward the village. He whistled to himself lightly as he walked along, and he evidently was not disappointed at the reception his declaration had received. His only object had been to establish himself as a declared suitor for the maiden's hand, and in that object he had been perfectly successful. He was resolved that not one rebuff, nor a hundred, should discourage him. He meant to win by persistence, adroitness and opportunity, and time and fortune, he well knew, were in his favor.

CHAPTER XVII

The excitement caused by the disappearance of Leif Sackett, and the public squabble in regard to the reasons therefor, naturally came to the ears of lawyer Raybrook and his associates.

"Leif seems to have managed that little job of getting old Margaret out of the house very neatly," remarked Ralph as they were discussing the matter.

"Yes," responded the other. "He said he'd try to fix it, and he has succeeded very finely. But I am puzzled to know why he keeps himself so quiet since the old lady left. Perhaps he is only trying to keep up the mystery; but I have my suspicions somewhat aroused. To tell the truth, I haven't just too much confidence in Leif. He's just a trifle too smart to be trustworthy. It is now four days since he has reported. Suppose after dinner we walk over and see what is up."

Ralph assented, and, dinner being over, they proceeded to visit Leif's house.

As they drove near the old place, it looked as silent and deserted as if it had not had an inhabitant in years.

They approached the great front door and the elder Raybrook placed his hand on the heavy iron knocker and sounded an alarm vigorous enough to have waked the soundest sleeper. He was some seconds before the echoes ceased reverberating through the vacant halls and rooms.

They waited; but there was no answer. The summons was repeated. Still no answer. Again and again did Anthony Raybrook repeat the knocking in the loudest possible manner, but no response came save the muffled echoes from within.

"This is strange," he muttered, to himself. "What can it mean? It is possible that Leif has been up to some mischief, but I am not at all afraid of him. Dear me! I'm afraid I'm afraid we've made a grave mistake. There—the door is locked. Luckily I brought a key with me. There were lots of things in the house that were worth the stealing. Why was I such a fool as to trust a man I knew to be a scoundrel? Oh, dear! will I ever get this door open?"

The lawyer had been fumbling with untoldy hands with the lock of the door, but at last he had broken it, and the door was opened. They hastened into the house. It had flashed across Anthony Raybrook that perhaps Leif might have taken advantage of the opportunity afforded by the break in the door to rob it of any valuables it contained, and make good his escape. Hence his sudden agitation.

They made a hasty search of the rooms off from the old hall, and called loudly for Leif, but there was no response.

"Let us go down into the cellar," exclaimed the elder Raybrook, who was plainly very much dismayed and confounded by the mysterious disappearance of Leif. "The warrant will find him there. Yes, yes; I know his game, the 4-4 rascal. But we must have a light. Where can we get a light?"

"Let us look around," interposed Ralph, who was of a less excitable nature than his father, but equally intent upon solving the mystery of Leif's strange actions.

After considerable search, they discovered a tinder box and the same old lantern with which Carl Curran had guided the lawyer down to the lower regions of the house on a previous occasion. The lantern had in it a piece of candle. Managing to light it, they proceeded cautiously through the dark passage and staircase down to the old cellar. The door was open, and a ray of light.

They entered, and stood for a moment in a sort of trepidation, vainly casting their eyes about in an effort to pierce the darkness of that subterranean dungeon, which the feeble flame of the candle only made more visible.

Then they advanced slowly and with extreme caution in the direction of the old vault. A sudden call of dread had struck to their hearts, and presented to their eyes the sight of a man who had been lying on the damp old floor, buried beneath the weight of a huge stone that had fallen from above upon him. Summoning courage to investigate more closely, a glance showed that the form was that of Leif Sackett. He was stone dead, and presented the appearance well calculated to excite horror even if it had been witnessed under less terrifying circumstances. The stone was across his breast, as he lay stretched upon his back; his face was twisted back and turned toward them; his glassy eyes protruded; and blood had flowed from his mouth and nostrils. It was evident that his life had been crushed out at once.

The two men glanced at each other with blank countenances.

"Ralph, this is horrible," said the elder Raybrook, as soon as he could utter a word. "I did not expect any such result as this. Let us get out of here. Yes, yes; I see; he had been making an attempt to get into the vault. See here where he has been to work trying to break through the door. Yes, and here is where he has drilled, and full of fuses as to the reason for it; and, by skillfully misleading him, he hoped to so arouse his sense of injured pride as to incline him to dismiss all thought of Rosa from his mind. Amid the novelty and excitement of his new life, he inferred that Claude, like most young men, would easily forget past impressions, and that, could his thoughts and feelings be turned into a new channel, his passion for the old farmer's daughter would soon be so far erased from his mind that Ralph would be left a clear field to woo and win her, no matter what turn events might take."

But Anthony Raybrook had no opportunity to learn the effect of his letter upon Claude, or whether, in fact, the young man received it at all. It was a period when the mail service between this country and Europe was particularly irregular and slow. The world was being shaken by the throes of the gigantic contest between England and the France of Napoleon, which had involved nearly all Europe, and the consequences of which were slowly but inevitably dragging the young New World republic into war. The seas were harried by the hostile fleets of the belligerents, and commerce was practically interrupted by the desecration of the proud hostile nations hurried at each other, commanding the world to cease from commercial intercourse with their enemies under threat of the capture and confiscation of all ships venturing to trade. The spirit of the century young Western nation ill brooked this arrogant dictation, which was destroying its growing commerce; and it had long been evident to careful observers that the outbreak constituted a real American commerce particularly by British cruisers would sooner or later result in hostilities. In fact, the spirit of the people was already aroused to the highest pitch, and was pushing a peace-loving administration forward to the bold course of recommending the young republic to unshrink its sword as the champion of the rights of commerce.

Vegetable Crops Under Cover.

Several interesting experiments are being conducted this year in the horticultural department of the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, by the horticulturist, W. T. Macoun. One of these experiments is the growing of vegetables in an enclosure the top, sides, and ends of which are made of cheese cloth, as compared with growing them in the open air. The object is to determine what difference there will be in time of maturing and in the tenderness of some of the vegetables. The kinds of vegetables used in this experiment are radishes, lettuce, beets, beans, carrots, tomatoes, cucumbers, and egg plants and corn. The results of this experiment will be published in the annual report of the farm, but already several interesting facts have been noted. The temperature is at times several degrees higher in the enclosure, the greatest difference being at night, which is very favorable to plants that succeed best in hot weather. During heavy storms the rain comes through the cloth as a thick mist, and the soil is hence not compacted as much as outside. Radishes were ready for use three days earlier inside, and were perfectly free from maggots, while those outside were rendered almost worthless on account of them. Cauliflowers inside were also free from maggots, while those outside were badly affected. Tomatoes ripened earlier inside, but it is doubtful if the crop of fruit will set as well as outside. Cucumbers, melons, beans and egg plants are more advanced inside than out. Even if it does not prove profitable to grow many kinds of vegetables under cheese cloth, there is no doubt but that in the home garden this method would give good satisfaction for most vegetables.

The enclosure has many advantages. The cats, dogs, chickens, birds, and even children, can be kept out, while all injurious insects except those already in the soil are excluded. The cheese cloth used in this experiment cost 4 1/2 cents a yard of 60 inches in width. The length of the enclosure is about 6 feet 6 inches. This experiment was suggested by a somewhat similar one which was tried by Mr. Graham Bell in Cape Breton last year. Experiments of this kind are also being made in the United States. Tobacco, which has been grown so successfully in the State of Connecticut under cheese cloth, is also being tried in other enclosures on the farm.

Honest Speculation

NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the morose indifference of savages, and governments would decay.

It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds, the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash? A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurons, the Baldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at from $1.00 per value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in any case, and in others, away above par.

There are many persons who assert that there is nothing in it for the average investor and that it does not pay to invest small sums in stock. Let such persons ask themselves what returns they can hope to get through banks or real estate speculations for sums of under $100.00, and then consider the following:—

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $8,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1890 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $582.

$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend-paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recalled.

Malloy, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now worth $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

Now does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining?—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore sells only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours.

The Alaska Treadwell ore sells at 35¢ per ton; the stock 50¢ per cent. above par.

No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management. Respectfully submitted,

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 30 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.

Want ledges of ore running from $5.00 to $800.00 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $78.00 to $100.00 per ton. This is not a five per cent. a month scheme, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans. No business in the world is safer than an investment in more profitable than mining, and none offer a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGEMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the fore-sight that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your fore-sight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you would sell the Stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the Stock at present price. It will soon be 80 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mines and returned full of enthusiasm. The mines are turning out much richer than expected.

I can offer the Stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO-DAY—tomorrow it may ship your memory. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 25% per month.

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest by sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January, 29th, 1902.

Dear Sir,—I mention your advert in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 11 years. I have tried several doctors and they do not do me good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Eczema Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin diseases. My hands were so bad that the nails used to come off. You can see my name if you wish.

Yours truly,

MR. JOHN WOOD, Fiske Station, E.M.

Black Hills Copper Company LIMITED

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to day.

A limited amount of the Stock is now offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

STOCK MARKETS

The following report was received by M. J. Cummings & Co., 108 Simcoe street, by direct private wire:

New York, Sept. 8.—The stock market was rather dull Wednesday. The movement of quotations was rather uninteresting, however, for the reason that there was a certain degree of irregularity which suggested nervousness in some circles. The London market was somewhat easier, but a shortage of buying over the selling orders there was considerable discussion.

With reference to the monetary situation, the banks lost a fair bit, though sub-treasury operations and consequently there was talk about a bad bank statement. On the other hand, banks reported that borrowers were being accommodated, but the willingness of the banks to lend money was said to be due entirely to the promised action of Secretary Shaw, about the time any stringency in the money market the fall. The business reports were quite favorable and railroad statements continued very favorable, in that big increase were shown on an average, as compared with last year's figures.

The market was quiet and steady during the latter part of the day, although some stocks declined listlessly to a lower level in consequence of the sale for the evening of accounts. The late news was without special feature, and room traders were largely in control of the situation, outside stocks were without feature, being dull under a light demand. Bonds were quiet and irregular.

Twenty-four hours ago, third week August, show average gains of 49 per cent. Many of stock in the loan crowd. Outlets pools supposed to be taking profits, rumors of rate disturbance among trust firms discredited. Banks and business shows sub-treasury money Friday to extent of $800,000. Call money rate a little harder. Auctioneers say all the business they can handle in assumed irrespective of corn crop. J. W. Gates back in Wall street and says he is better. 12 industrial stocks declined .44, 20 active roads declined .58.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—The grain market was a little firmer yesterday, the wheat coming on the long side of the account was well taken and there was a steady strength on the close; still the longer were not anxious and their lack of aggressiveness served to check the upward movement. The crop and weather situation appears to attract the bulk of attention, especially where there is still some uncertainty with regard to the extent of production in the Northwest. The milling demand for wheat continues. The cash movement is without special feature. Key-note of business shows a tendency to increase slightly.

The corn market continues rather slow, but yesterday the longer made their presence felt and they drove a few shorts under cover. The futures are lighter and, according to the bulls they will continue light during the balance of the next two weeks. The cash demand is quite good, though stocks showed some disposition. The foreign situation on grain is generally rather quiet, but it is generally expected that European interests will need considerable American grain this year.

AN EXCELLENT OUTLOOK

FARMERS ENJOYING AN ERA OF GREAT PROSPERITY

Report Received by the Times from the Peterborough County Crops are Good

"I have just returned from a trip through the greater portion of the County of Peterborough," said a well-known citizen, to the Times yesterday, who takes a deep interest in matters agricultural, "and I must say that the crops are as good as to be better than I have ever seen before. Harvesting is now in general operation and truly the farmer never before set himself so joyously to his task. He is reaping as he has sown and reaping an abundant harvest."

Hay has, of course, been harvested, and the yield has been from 40 to 60 bushels. The oat yield will be tremendously large. I saw one field of six acres of Aspidochloa that will go 80 bushels to the acre. The pea crop is good, something the Peterborough farmers have not experienced for five years.

"The frequent rains have made pastures much better than is usual at this time of year, and the root crops are enjoying a full share of the growing time."

How did you find the farmers situated as to help? asked the Times. "That is the more touch. Labor is very scarce, though I did not find wages running so high as stated in the Times a few days ago, namely $14. The farmer wages as I found it was $20 a month or $1.50 for day labor. The scarcity of labor has had some peculiar results. Very many farmers are trading off their old stock for new, and getting seven foot and a half for a six foot one, and the sheep carrier is now very commonly seen."

"The farmer seems to be in a financial condition to be able to adapt himself as well as may be to the circumstances, and this has been in a great measure due to the profit of his raising. It has grown to be a great industry with our friends to the east, and I met a farmer's doorway Monday morning and counted 25 loads of hops on the way to be shipped. Cattle have also been profitable and together with his property has been responsible for greater revenues than before and now."

SENT UP FOR TRIAL

Samuel Wynn Will Answer Three Charges at the Fall Session

Samuel Wynn, who was arrested in Lakeland a few days ago, charged with horse stealing, appeared before Police Magistrate Dumble yesterday. He was charged with stealing a bay horse from Isaac Frooburn, Young's Point; of stealing a mare from Mr. Pollard, Pontypool, and also of stealing a buggy and sum of money from John Henderson, of Lakeland.

Several witnesses were heard, whose evidence was of such a nature as to warrant the magistrate in committing the prisoner for trial. Mr. R. O'Connor, agent for the defense, and R. E. Wood for the Crown.

THE COMING FAIR

Directors are Working Energetically to Promote Its Success

The prospects for the Peterborough Industrial Fair are very rosy and a fine exhibition is promised to the citizens of Peterborough and those in the neighborhood. The fact that the directors have secured the services of the famous Oldstream Guard's Band has created considerable interest in town and great crowds are expected to come to see the music which promises to be of such a nature as to delight everyone who is fortunate enough to hear it. The enterprise of the directors is shown by the fact that they have advertised the fair in several papers in outside towns including Belleville, Cobourg, Port Hope, Bowmanville, Lindsay, Oshawa, Port Perry and Millbrook.

Those who have not as yet received prime lists may do so from W. G. Green, secretary.

A JOLLY PARTY

Past Through Town on Their Way Home to Friends

Yesterday morning there arrived at the Snowdon House a party of twenty Pittsburghers, on their way home after a ten days' sojourn at Pausy Point, Chesley Lake. They travelled in a private car, and were a jovial crowd as ever visited our luck lake. The party are members of the Pittsburgh Hunting and Fishing Club, their names being Frank J. Rupp, president, George H. E. Hargreave, secretary, Greier, Oscar Neubert, F. J. Miller, J. John Miller, Emil Hargreave, Samuel Leonard, R. Reinheimer, Julius Specht, Geo. Lewis, Thos. Fife, Philip Robinson, J. E. Brown, Philip Klammer, Frank H. Smith, Max Weber, and Frank Brethollet.

While they remained in town they made things exceedingly lively around the Snowdon House. Mr. Fred Reg took a group photo of the party. They left on the noon train for home.

LABOR DAY CELEBRATION

Arrangements Being Made by an Executive Committee

Monday next, the day the different labor organizations celebrate, will witness a big demonstration in town and as is the case every year it will no doubt be a success.

At ten o'clock in the morning there will be a parade of the various labor unions in town. At two o'clock in the afternoon a programme of athletic sports will be run off in Murray at grounds. The feature will be a game of baseball between the Lindsay team and the Excelsior. The recent game played here between these teams would give the advantage that the coming event will be one well worth seeing. Other athletic events, forming a complete programme will take place. In the evening the 67th band will render a programme in the Brock st. rink. Mr. Jon. Hargray, the well-known entertainer, and Mr. Jas. Davison, the talented harpist, will assist. A most enjoyable day may be looked for. The committee in charge of arrangements consists of Messrs. Alex. Dugan, chairman, George Egan, treasurer, and Hugh Robertson, secretary.

The recent game played here between these teams would give the advantage that the coming event will be one well worth seeing. Other athletic events, forming a complete programme will take place. In the evening the 67th band will render a programme in the Brock st. rink. Mr. Jon. Hargray, the well-known entertainer, and Mr. Jas. Davison, the talented harpist, will assist. A most enjoyable day may be looked for. The committee in charge of arrangements consists of Messrs. Alex. Dugan, chairman, George Egan, treasurer, and Hugh Robertson, secretary.

Monday night, the day the different labor organizations celebrate, will witness a big demonstration in town and as is the case every year it will no doubt be a success.

At ten o'clock in the morning there will be a parade of the various labor unions in town. At two o'clock in the afternoon a programme of athletic sports will be run off in Murray at grounds. The feature will be a game of baseball between the Lindsay team and the Excelsior. AN INTERESTING WEDDING

Mr. A. F. McFadden and Miss Annie M. Westlake are Married

Yesterday afternoon the house of Mr. W. G. Westlake was the scene of a very pretty wedding, when his second daughter, Miss Annie M. Westlake, was united in marriage to Mr. A. F. McFadden, eldest son of Mr. T. McFadden, Dublin street.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. P. Wilson, minister of the George street Methodist church, in the presence of the immediate friends and relatives. Miss Stella McFadden, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, while Mr. Benjamin Simpson supported the groom. Miss Fannie McFadden played the wedding march.

The bride was the recipient of a handsome picture from the staff of J. C. Turnbull and Co., and the groom received a picture and a Morris chair from his fellow-employees at the Wm. Hamilton Mfg. Co.

Mr. and Mrs. McFadden left last evening for a honeymoon trip to Toronto and points west, and on their return will take up residence on Reid street.

THE BEET SUGAR INDUSTRY

Favorable Outlook at Berlin and the Farmers are Well Satisfied

Galt Reporter: "The beet sugar season this year promises to be a good one. We congratulate Berlin upon the outlook. The second crop for that town's factory is about ready. With the average larger than last year, and the beet in good condition the grower will be a satisfied individual. Last year he had many things to discourage him, but bravely persevered, and finally succeeded in demonstrating the value of the industry to the farmers. The beet sugar industry is not as scarce as it was in 1902, and the experience has taught the farmer the best way to proceed in cultivation and harvesting. As for those whose financial interests are in the factory it is reassuring to be told that improvements made in the building and machinery by a practical builder and superintendent will effect a great saving in the cost of production. The Berlin beet sugar factory is blazing the way for others in this part of Ontario. Its experience will guide other ventures—perhaps one in Galt."

INCIDENTS OF THE DAY

News Paragraphs picked up by Reporters on Their Beasts

—The electric light fixtures are being placed in Victoria Park.

—The band has been engaged to play for the labor men on Monday.

—The Salvation Army band fund now amounts to $116. It will soon reach the required amount of $500.

—We pay from $1 to $2 per week for carrier boys. Apply at Times Office.

—The Board of Education will meet on Friday evening at the Secretary's office.

—Richard Hall & Sons' new store, opposite the Times office, is fast approaching completion.

—Mr. McDonald, with his usual enterprise, is building a large addition to his box factory at Point St. Charles.

Public notice is hereby given that the Trent Valley Navigation Company's steamer, Ogemah, will be taken off her regular route on Saturday, September 6th.

—Complaints have reached the Times about the cost of some of the streets. Hester street, between Bathurst and Ridgeway streets, is particularly bad.

—Now that the Grand Trunk Pacific debate is slowly dying, and the last yacht race is about over, the principal topic will be the great Peterborough World's Fair, which is to open here on the 22nd.

The members of the Trent Valley Game Club will hold a short business meeting in M.C.O.A. parlors tomorrow (Friday) evening, at 8.15. This meeting will be interesting and all members of the Club should be on hand.

A number of belated excursionists returned from Rochester yesterday, who went with the Oshawa party on Civic holiday. Several also returned on the last of the week, amongst whom was a popular young wine clerk from the Times office who brought with him a souvenir of his visit to the American city.

—Port Hope Guide: A woman in a domestic brawl bit off a piece of her husband's ear. The magistrate characterized the act as one of degradation and disgusting case; but as the woman had no previous conviction, added that he would merely bind her over to keep the peace, to which she assented, and she was sorry she could not do that as she had given it to the court.

THE SMOKE AT GANNON'S NARROWS

To the Editor of The Times: Dear Sir,—There appeared in the Weekly Times of Aug. 22, an item headed "Gannon's Ferry Opened," in which some misstatements were made. In the first place Gannon's ferry has not been "opened," but instead it has been "closed" and a floating bridge substituted therefor.

Gannon's Narrows is a channel about half a mile wide between Buckhorn Lake and Pigeon Lake, and the only means of crossing between South Harvey and Rasmussen was a ferry which was a model of inconsequence. The channel is much exposed to wind, and thus the passage is exceedingly laborious. Then again the cable some times got broken and allowed the snow to escape. Furthermore, the ice at the point is very dangerous in winter, and the residents of South Harvey are almost shut in. With these facts in view they petitioned for a bridge, and the County Council, by the aid of a Government grant, has built one which will insure a safer passage both in winter and summer. This is the reason a bridge has been built at Gannon's Narrows.

As to its construction it may be stated that Mr. Wm. O'Leary, superintendent of the work from start to finish, and received no plans from Mr. Balcher, who had nothing whatever to do with this job. Mr. O'Leary has practical and needed no more plans to build a floating bridge than he would for a brick fence. He is the architect of the floating bridge which is being built in such good repair by his faithful crew.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for this space in your valuable paper, I remain as an advocate of

Baby Costs Too Much

When the price paid is the mother's health and happiness. The father doesn't realize as he reaps with the child what years of wifely suffering must be set against the baby's laughter.

Chronic invalidism is a high price to pay for the painful joy of maternity, yet it is at such a cost that many a woman becomes a mother. Such a price is too much to pay.

It is more than nature asks. By the use of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription, made practically perfect, and a quick convalescence is assured in almost every case.

CASE FOR FREE TRADE

"Bystander" Denies That It Has Ruined England
Laborers' Position Greatly Improved by the Free Trade

"Bystander," writing in The Weekly Sun, says: It is not surprising to hear it persistently said that free trade has been the ruin of England. Nothing can be more certain than the wealth of England began to increase rapidly the moment when free trade was embraced, and has continued with little interruption its rapid increase to the present time.
The abolition of the corn laws in 1846 and the repeal of the navigation laws in 1849 were followed by an extraordinary rise of commerce and industry. The exports doubled in five years; their total rose from fifty to a hundred millions sterling a year. Still greater was the increase of profits. In the ten years from 1842 to 1852 the taxable income of the country had increased only six per cent., but in the eight years from 1852 to 1860, free trade having come fully into operation, the taxable income increased twenty per cent. This was cited by Mr. Gladstone as Chancellor of the Exchequer as a fact of the most striking kind, and mainly due to the wise legislation which had sought for every op-

SEPARATE SCHOOL BOARD

Regular Monthly Meeting Held Last Evening
The regular meeting of the Separate School Board was held on Wednesday evening.
The members of the Board present being Messrs. Murray, chairman, Lynch, Lyne, Goudin and Clancy. The Rev. Father McColl, the local superintendent, was also present.
The reading of the minutes was dispensed with.
The following accounts were presented and referred to the Finance Committee to pay when certified: Mail and Express, $11.50; A. McDonald, 11.25; Bell Telephone Co., 25; Water Commissioners, 6.25; J. Lynch, 1.10; Peterborough Hardware Co., 1.10; Peterborough Cane Co., 7.50; T. Corkery, 31.10.
Mr. Matthews, the principal of the Central school, who was present, discussed with the Board matters requiring attention, also submitted a list of supplies which were required. The Board then adjourned.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY

Such companies as common carriers and express companies are common carriers, and must therefore receive from any person or company to any destination all messages offered to them. This conclusion, which foretells any message, was reached by the British International Conference, and was the gist of the only important resolution adopted at its session which lasted nine days. Germany, Great Britain, France, Russia, Austria-Hungary, Spain and the United States participated. On August 15 the Congress adopted a protocol of eight articles on ground work being of minor interest except the following:
Contract carriers are obliged to receive and transmit telegrams, and to return them to the sender without delay as to the system of wireless telegraphy employed by the ships. Under this rule "radiograms" as wireless telegrams were termed at the conference, are to be placed in the category of merchandise, and telegraph companies are to be common carriers, and are to be held responsible in delivering them at their destination. Other sections of the protocol relate to definitions, to minor details and to extending the use of the St. Petersburg Telegraph Convention, to which the United States is not a party to wireless communication. The Congress dealt solely with practical conditions, recognizing that each nation would take care of its own wireless messages in time of war.

St. Thomas, Ont., Sept. 4.—Shortly after the recent loan company affairs in this city the directors of the three solvent loan companies met to discuss the affairs of the insolvent companies. A meeting of the three companies was suggested. A meeting of the directors of the Southwestern, Southern and Star Loan Companies was held yesterday afternoon, and a preliminary discussion looking towards a amalgamation took place. While the amalgamation was generally in favor of such a move, nothing definite was arrived at, and the conference adjourned for a week, when the matter will be again taken up and finally decided.

COPETE MINING CO.

27 William Street, New York
Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5

More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.
The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but also in gold. They were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.
Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.
The smelter in a short run produced something over $100,000.
The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them are—Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Raymond W. Talcott, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Greene Consolidated; Mr. Edwin D. Treadwell, Mining Engineer and Geologist and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.
The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now clear and undisputed title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.
A portion of the Treasury stock is offered for sale to complete the development and equipment of the property—now for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

soon as you are the recognized heir of Ruff House, you need worry no more over your interests in that direction." "I don't worry," replied Ralph. "I have no doubt it will be the reply. Nothing is so sure to win the favor of Fortune as a cool and brave front. You have but to be cautious and persistent, my boy, to win."

"No doubt, no doubt," responded the elder; "and the prize is worthy of the highest effort. You must win, Ralph." "I intend to win," again asserted Ralph.

CHAPTER XIX.
Wearily passed the days to Rose Bruyn. Dearly the sun rose in the morning and she drearily set behind the western mountains at eve. She performed her accustomed duties with her usual alacrity, and perhaps with more than her usual conscientious care; but the light of happy content had gone from her sweet face and the buoyancy from her step. For days and weeks she had wrestled with the doubts and surmises that had thronged continually upon her, and this mental anxiety and conflict could not but leave its impression. But, through it all, she had not given up her faith in Claude. She was resolved that she would afford better evidence than anything that could come to her through the instrumentality of Anthony Saybrook. She was strongly impelled to the belief that the deflection of Claude and the persistent pressing of Ralph Saybrook's suit were parts of the same plot, and a thousand explanations thronged to her mind to excuse Claude's strange behavior, which, as she recalled its words, seemed to her too ambiguous and too much like the high-flown expressions of one writing in a merry, mischievous mood, to be a usual confession of guilt. She felt that she had been deceived, that the latter had been drawn out by some subterfuge of the wily lawyer, and was evidence only of Claude's right and just desire to see well understood to be prone to a certain recklessness of expression, easily misunderstood. Yet doubts would at times assail her, and the certainty that there was to be a long and perhaps total separation, and that all chance of explanation was removed from her, caused her troubles to weigh most heavily upon her mind.

"I ought to be some years yet before your face should show care, my pretty one," "I have good reason for trouble," replied Rose, with a simple frankness that indicated her entire absorption in the object of her quest. "I thought I would speak to you, Mr. Crum, to learn whether you had heard from Claude since he went away." "The old man struck off his head a moment as if in troubled thought. "I hear from him," he answered. "Yes, yes, rosebud, my sorrow. You know I am in disgrace at Ruff House. He wrote me dismissing me from the house—that is all. But you surely have heard from the young master, and I would fain enquire news of him of you." "Not a word have I heard from him since he went," replied Rose, with just a hint in her tones of the anxiety at her heart.

"Indeed, indeed," muttered the old man. "This is strange, strange. But why do I say strange, when the graceless villain, Anthony Saybrook, has had the influence of master Claude's mind? There seems no evil influence that he is incapable of exerting, and no scheme of villainy so desperate but that he succeeds in it. Ah, I fear that my young master has been caught wholly in his fatal snare, and that there are evil days ahead for Ruff House. They tell me that he has papers that will give him control of the whole property. There's villainy—damnable villainy in it. I suspected it—I knew it all along."

"Why did you not warn Claude?" asked Rose.

"The old man gravely shook his head. "It was useless then," he made answer. "But I might have written him when I saw the villainy unmasking, and I did not. I thought what right I had to interfere in the affairs of my betters, and which perhaps I did not understand. And it is now too late. The wily lawyer has had the warning him. The thieves can plunder at their will."

"And there is no way to send him a letter? Think, Mr. Crum. You are wise and shrewd. I know there must be some way to warn him."

PATENTS

A person sending a sketch and description may receive a preliminary opinion as to the probability of success in securing a patent. The patent is secured from the Government for a term of years, and is a valuable asset to the inventor. The patent is a legal right to the invention, and it is the duty of the inventor to secure a patent for his invention. Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay. It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds, the keenest intellects. It is the life of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash? A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully attested by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fickles, the Shurons, the Baldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at from $1.00 par value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

There are many persons who assert that there is nothing in it for the average investor and that it does not pay to invest small sums in stock. Let such persons ask themselves what returns they can hope to get through banks or real estate speculations for sums of under $100.00, and then consider the following:

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $8,700.
$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.
$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1880 is now worth $7,600.
$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.
$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $5,600.
$100 in the Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $683.
$100 in the Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,600.
$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $4,000.
The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Malloy, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $30, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.
Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.
The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.
The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

How does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore sells only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,500 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours. The Alaska Treadwell ore sells $3 3/4 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par. No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management. Respectfully submitted,

The Oro Rico Mining Syndicate

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 50 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.
Vast ledges of ore running from $500 to $800.00 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $79.50 to $88.00 per ton. This is not a five cent mine. A month's income, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans. No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLARS FOR DOLLARS for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the dictates of your foresight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the stock at present prices. It will soon be 50 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mines and returned full of enthusiasm. The mine are turning out more than this expected.

I can offer the stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO-DAY—to-morrow it may slip your memory. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 25% per month.

HAVE YOU CHRONIC AILMENT?

In the course of his practice as a specialist in the treatment of chronic ailments, Dr. Goldberg has evolved a system of his own, which is a positive cure. His method differs widely from the old-fashioned system as taught in colleges, and yet is along the strictest scientific principles, with this exception, that where the old methods took months and sometimes years to bring about a cure, his latest method does it in a few weeks and cures are thorough, permanent and reliable. The curing of chronic ailments has been his specialty for years.

He will cure you quicker than any other specialist in the world. There are thousands in this broad land today who are healthy and happy, who once suffered as you perhaps now suffer, and who owe their present well-being to Dr. Goldberg's Latest Method Treatment. If you are sick it is only natural for you to want to be well. Before you decide definitely on the doctor to intrust your case call or write to Dr. Goldberg and find out all about his Latest Method of curing chronic ailments without pain and permanently. It will cost you nothing to learn the particulars and it will in no way put you under obligations to him. If it is inconvenient for you to call in person he will explain his method to you just the same. Free. Do not delay; promptness is certainty.

Each Time You Call You See Dr. Goldberg Personally or each time you write it receives his personal attention, and remember he is the only specialist who allows the patient to pay when cured. You need pay nothing until a complete cure has been made.

SENECA G. KETCHUM DIES

Former City Editor of the Times, Passed Away

There passed away at Sedro-Woolley, Wash., on August 30, Seneca G. Ketchum, a well known newspaper man on the Pacific Coast. Mr. Ketchum was a graduate of the Times, where he filled the position of city editor for some time. Our readers will remember him as a writer of great ability.

Mr. Ketchum also wrote several poems in the "happy-go-lucky" strain which characterized his journalism. Prominent among his poetical efforts was the following, written about a well known character among the print-shops of the coast. He was a genuine (Gump) printer. Water-borne by name, but the boys used to call him "Wandering Willie" because of his ability to "hit the pike":

Wandering Willie Water-tank,
Wandering Willie Water-tank,
Walls Water, Wash.
A perambulating printer and a good fellow, too, begoosh!

Came recently from Texas to Tacoma on the Sound.
To rubberneck and chew the rag, for which he is renowned;
With hair unkempt and face unshaven and shoes that sadly showed.

The effect of hitting railroad ties on some rough graded road,
He struck the cows, and thereupon he bawled high and low.
For some other giant would listen to his little tale of woe.

For Willie he was hustled and to him was very clear—
That he had to "get a hustle on and organize a beer."
So as it was early morning, to achieve his jolly aim,
He would strike among the day shops and get there just the same;

He was likewise very hungry, and thought that some old chum
Perchance would have a pie-card, whereof a meal he'd bum.

So 'twas in his yearning humor that Wandering Willie strayed
Into the Herald office, where public thoughts are made.
And he told his tale of woe in a week and a day;
How he'd walked down from Payallup since early break of day—

How nothing but a turkey, and a draught from his bagging siffman,
Had to be his contentment o'er the spirit of his dreams.

So Willie got his grub make and the pie, too,
And in about an hour returned chuck full of cheer,
And sitting in our only chair regaled us with his jokes,
Intermingled with hobo stories of oaths.

And we asked him, "midst the laughter of his title, style and name,
"Well, I tell you," said he, "partner, I'm a duck of varied fame."

"Oh, I'm the czar of the tourists, I'm a traveler gay;
I'm the box-car artist who scorns what brackens may.
I'm the dude of the dingbat, on the great handcar line;
I'm the boss of the growler, and in carboons shine;

I'm the festive roadster known from Yamhill to Oakeside,
As Wandering Willie Water-tank, of Walla Walla, Wash.

Slowly Dying
Thousands are slowly dying from catarrh, but don't know their danger

A CASE IN POINT
Mr. Ulrie Barait, a young gentleman who lived for years in Sweden, Quebec, indicated Catarrh from the nose. This disease spread through his system till he was a physical wreck.

"As a child," said Mr. Barait, "I was prone to an ulceration of the mucous lining of the throat and nasal passages.
"I grew pale and emaciated, lost all desire for food, and got into general a dreadful condition that my friends said that Catarrh was fairly eating me up."

Every organ of my body seemed affected and the doctor said it was the first stage of consumption. He advised Catarrhism, and I labored it until I was a mere shadow. I was then a wreck at a time every few years, and was rewarded in a few days by a wonderful improvement.

Catarrhism pleased me and the doctor as well that I used it continually, and took Ferronine Tablets after meals to build up my strength. I was about three weeks was quite recovered and the doctor says so readily that Catarrhism could work such a miracle.

"Every one in town knows I was just about dead with Catarrh, and my cure is evidence of what Catarrhism can do. It is a pleasure to recommend Catarrhism."

(Signed) Ulrie Barait.
Catarrhism beyond question is the proper remedy for catarrh and bronchial troubles. The medicated air goes all through the air passages of the head, throat and lungs. It kills the germ, heals the sore spots, always irritates and keeps the breath pure.

Headache, tired feelings across the eyes, nausea, all these well-known disagreeable symptoms are overcome by the medicated air of Catarrhism.

Ferronine Tablets which are used in conjunction with Catarrhism, deliver all the poisonous secretions of catarrh from the blood. One tablet after each meal creates new appetite and digestion, strengthens the stomach, revitalizes and invigorates the entire system.

Catarrhism is quite unsurpassed as a cure for Catarrh in any part of the system. It is highly recommended for Rheumatism and Arthritis. Complete outfit, sufficient for two months' treatment, price $1.00; trial size 50 cts. Druggists or N. C. Peterson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

COPETE MINING CO.

27 William Street, New York

Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5

More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but so rich in gold that they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter in a short run produced something over $100,000.

The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them are—Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Seymour W. Tallach, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Greene Consolidated; Mr. Edwin D. Treadwell, Mining Engineer and Geologist and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has new and undisturbed title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A portion of the Treasury stock is offered for sale to complete the development and equipment of the property—new for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

MYRA B. MARTIN, SECRETARYROLFF HOUSE

By G. H. BENEDICT.

A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.

Old Carl stroked his beard thoughtfully for some time, and at intervals muttered indistinctly to himself. At last he said to himself: "It might be," he was muttering.

"There is just a chance—hardly a chance, indeed; but the Lord might direct it. There is one powerful to strike down the wicked, and circumvent their plans, and it might be—it might be. He would aid us." He raised his tones.

"I was thinking," he continued, "that there was just one chance open to us; it's a desperate one—a vain one, perhaps; and yet it may be the opportunity the Lord opens to us to foil a scheme of villainy. An old sailor friend of mine has come here to see me, and say good-bye, before he sails in a privateer now fitting out. He is a trusty fellow, and there is just a chance that if a letter were put in his hands he might some day run into some European port where he could mail it, and the Lord is often kinder to us than our weak faith merits. We can put our trust in him and try the plan. It is our only hope."

Rosa caught eagerly at this plan, hopeless as it seemed. "Yes," she exclaimed, "it is our only hope, and we will try it, and pray the good Lord to direct it safely. I will go in the house now and write my letter; and you, Mr. Carl, must write all you know, and to-morrow I can bring my letter to you."

"No, no," replied the old man, "it is too long a walk for you to come down to the ferry; and I must need to be at the village during the morning; and if you will walk down toward Rolff House at nine o'clock you will find me there. It is some sort of pleasure for me to linger round the old house, though I must not enter the house lonely."

In truth, old Carl did not allow a day to pass in which even means of entrance to Rolff House were not carefully scrutinized by him. It caused him great anxiety to see the house lonely and unguarded, and he took every means in his power to guard it as vigilantly as he could.

Rosa wrote a long letter to Claude detailing her troubles and anxiety, the reasons that prompted her to regard Anthony Raybrook's treachery, and her suspicions in regard to the plot that had been put in motion to separate them, and next day, at the hour appointed, she wandered down toward Rolff House, where, at the gate, she found old Carl, who took her letter, and, telling her that he must hasten back, he bade her to leave at once for the city, on a stoop that would call that very day, turned and left her with a cheery word to be of good heart, and then, kneeling down on the soft greenward, in the shadow of the willow stone gateway, the fair girl prayed fervently that her letter might reach its destination, and the clouds of sorrow that surrounded her be dispersed.

CHAPTER XX.

It was not without some trepidation that Anthony Raybrook finally resolved on the bold step of recording the deeds which would make him practical master of Rolff House and a considerable portion of the estate connected therewith. His wary nature did not allow him to proceed in his villainy without many thoughts and misgivings. He fully believed that the chances were all in favor of his never being seriously troubled by Claude; yet he could not but have the possibility that the war might suddenly end, and the young man come to a knowledge of his treachery before he had obtained that advantage of long occupation of the place which he considered quite essential to the full success of his plans in case it became necessary for him to defend his title before the law.

Nevertheless, he could not hesitate. Having resolved on his course, the sooner he made himself master of Rolff House the better. So the fraudulent deeds were recorded, and the little community was soon afforded full confirmation of all his suspicious of the operations of the shrewd, unscrupulous lawyer. Anthony Raybrook took occasion to explain publicly how it was that he came to be the owner of Rolff House. His explanation was to the effect that Claude had wanted money on any terms and at any price; he had furnished it, and of course had taken the best security he could get, which was securing of the deeds in question; and he absconded, claiming that he had not designed to use the deeds so soon, but as war had broken out, and all hope of the young heir returning to redeem his premises had been thwarted, he had hastened to the possession of the house because it was without an occupant, he being unable to get any one to live in it, and the place was going to decay and needed supervision and repair.

This explanation proved satisfactory to most people. They saw only that the lawyer had been afforded a rare chance to enrich himself at the expense of the foolish young heir, and they did not question the means now that it was evident he had the property safely enough in his possession and would be the richest and most powerful man in the section.

On no one did this transaction make a deeper impression than on old Jacobus Bruyn. To him it was evidence not only of the truth of his prediction in regard to the recklessness and worthlessness of Claude Rolff, but it placed the lawyer in the position of being the only man in the world who owned that which he coveted, or whose good or bad opinion could affect his peace of mind. The old farmer was himself of the most rugged honesty in all money matters, and at the bottom of his heart he despised the means by which Claude had been cheated out of his inheritance; but he was of too worldly-wise and money-loving a nature to trouble himself much about the moral aspect of the matter. He could see plainly that from the turn events had taken, young Ralph Raybrook would be the richest young man in the neighborhood, and the heir of lands that he prized far more than their money value, and as he had really taken a fancy to him, he became suddenly interested in seeing his end with Rosa prosper.

It had not prospered so far, spite of all the persistence, subterfuges and arts of the young man. He had gained every advantage of position to urge his suit, but he could see only too plainly that he had not made the least progress in displacing Claude Rolff in the affections of the young lady. To the young man this did not cause any great amount of disappointment, as his heart was not so much engaged as to suffer many pangs, and he felt reasonably certain of success in the end if Claude did not return, which he was not likely to do while the war lasted. But the elder Raybrook was not so philosophical over the matter. He felt the gravity of the step he had taken in using the fraudulent deeds, and wished to fortify his position in every possible way against all contingencies of the future.

He saw that it would be a good stroke of fortune for Ralph to secure the only daughter of the rich old farmer, and he was anxious to expedite matters so as to prevent any possible risk of failure from any unwished-for developments, as well as to make sure of strengthening his position against any future legal troubles by the alliance with his rich neighbor.

So Anthony Raybrook took every occasion to interest the old farmer in Ralph's behalf, artfully seeking to excite his cupidity by frequent references to the old woods and the adjoining meadow lands which he knew in the eyes of the old man were one of the most tempting of prizes.

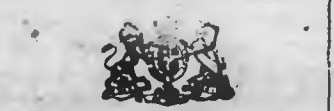

These efforts had their effect on farmer Bruyn. He became more and more interested in the project of the match between Ralph and his daughter, and his interest was not the less because he could see that Rosa was secretly sorrowing over her separation from Claude.

This latter fact especially worried the old gentleman. To be sure, their seeming so probable of Claude ever returning to make trouble, but it angered him so that he thought his daughter's affections should be wanted at all on such a graceless scam. So he took frequent occasion to commend and praise Ralph Raybrook to her hearing, and to let her know by what he no doubt considered delicate hints that it would be pleasing to him to see her encourage the young

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay.

It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds, the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash?

A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Macays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurans, the Baldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at from $1.00 per share down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $2,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1890 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $683.

$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend-paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Mallory, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

It is not that it requires immensely rich ore for successful mining—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore sells only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours.

The Alaska Treadwell ore sells $2.38 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par.

No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management.

Respectfully submitted,

HIDALGO MINING COMPANY
DOUGLAS, ARIZONA.

OFFICERS:—S. F. MEGUIRE, PRESIDENT; J. E. SUITS, VICE-PRESIDENT; E. R. PIRTELL, SECRETARY; C. O. ELLIS, TREASURER.

The Oro Rico Mining Syndicate

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 30 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.

Vast ledges of ore running from $5.00 to $200.00 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $75.00 to $250.00 per ton. This is not a five per cent. a month scheme, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans. No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more home dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGEMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your foresight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the stock at present prices. It will soon be 50 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mines and returned full of enthusiasm. The mines are turning out much richer than expected.

I can offer the Stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO-DAY—to-morrow it may slip your memory. On blocks of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 25% per month.

Black Hills Copper Company LIMITED

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to day.

A limited amount of the Stock is now offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

STOCK MARKETS

The following advices were received by Mr. J. Cummings & Co., 105 Simcoe Street, under their private wire:

New York, September 8. — Harrison's friends say that an important rise in the market is to be expected. The market is now in a position to advance without notice. The market is now in a position to advance without notice. The market is now in a position to advance without notice.

Chicago, September 8. — Weather map shows showers, with cooler temperatures. Wind, and quite heavy rain in the North-West.

Expensive Saw

Diamond teeth for saws seem a rather costly experiment, but in some manufacturing it is necessary to have the saw teeth fitted with cutting diamonds in order to accomplish their work. The Detroit News Tribune says that anyone who has visited the factories of Pennsylvania where various articles are made from slate will have seen a diamond saw. The diamond teeth for saws seem a rather costly experiment, but in some manufacturing it is necessary to have the saw teeth fitted with cutting diamonds in order to accomplish their work.

The following is from Chambers' Journal:—The annual fire bill of the United Kingdom was taken at £2,000,000. There are besides the fire insurance annual bill and the bill for the fire stations, with their costly sites and buildings, the fire engines, the other machinery and the horses. All this outlay keeps us poor. But the loss of life is worse, and it is easy to build fireproof or better, in combustible houses, such as in the River Plate countries, and probably in the United States and Canada. The houses are built of wood, and the fire is spread by the wind, and the fire is spread by the wind, and the fire is spread by the wind.

First Class Mining Proposition.

The Anaconda Gold Mining Co.

Home Office: 412 Merchants Loan and Trust Bldg.
126 Adams Street, Chicago, Ill.

This is one of the best propositions ever placed before the Canadian investor. The Company owns 600 acres in the celebrated Black Hills District, South Dakota, comprising 25 claims. The track is now undoubtedly the great Homestake belt, being located directly between the wonderful Homestake mine and the Oliver Lead mine. Two shafts have already been sunk, the main one being down 150 feet, with capacity of going 1000 feet. The Company has also installed an American-made air compressor and drills, 125 horse power boiler, steam pump, and in fact everything needed for actual operation, with the exception of its stamp mill; which will be installed at once. The vein of gold-bearing quartz traversing the Company's property is very rich. Assays have run from $5 to $50 per ton.

The Company has a capital of 1,000,000 shares, divided into 750,000 preferred and 250,000 common, the value $1 per share, fully paid up and non-assessable. The treasury stock has been made preferred stock to the amount of 25 cents a share. Out of the first dividend 25 cents per share will be paid to the owners of this preferred stock before holders of common stock receive any share of the profits. After the 25 cents has been paid to the shareholders of preferred stock, then all other shares in the dividend. This means nothing less than that the first investors in the enterprise will have all their money returned to them before any dividends are declared to the rank and file of investors.

A limited amount of Stock has been placed on the Canadian market. Full particulars and copy of prospectus may be obtained from MR. R. J. KIDD, or the undersigned Agent for Peterborough city.

Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5

More than forty five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but also rich in gold that they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter is a short run flue-roasting smelter (over $100,000).

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has new and unimpaired title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A list of the Treasury stock is offered for sale to complete the development and equipment of the property—now for a short time only at $2.00 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 30 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.

Want ledges of ore running from $5.00 to $200.00 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $75.00 to $225.00 per ton. This is not a five per cent. a month scheme, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans. No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLARS FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your foresight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now taking up in place and gold bullion will come to the surface. The first run you can't get the stock at present price. It will come to 50 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mines and returned full of enthusiasm. The mines are turning out much richer than expected.

I can offer the stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO-DAY—to receive it immediately. On blocks of 500 shares or more we accept payment of 25% cash and 25% per month.

ROLFF HOUSE

By G. H. BENEDICT.

A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.

"Yes—that is, I think he has," said the widow. "And I must say, Mr. Baybrook, that I think the young lady is very fortunate who succeeds in getting him. Of course, I admit I am somewhat prejudiced, but he is a help to me. I think he is really the most elegant young man I ever knew."

"Ah," interposed the lawyer. "Yes, indeed," continued the widow, "he is really quite remarkable."

"Well," said the lawyer, "I agree with you about Ralph. The girl will be fortunate who gets him. And yet I am particularly anxious about this present affair of his. I think he is getting along, Mrs. Grey. I do not think it would be any mistake to have it understood that he is to marry her, with a view to his coming from home, you know."

"Oh, certainly not," replied the widow. "Really, I am quite surprised—and pleased, too, although one may be sure that Ralph cannot get anybody too good for him."

"Well, if Ralph comes in this way," said the lawyer, "I am going up in the office."

"But won't you have just a bite of something before you go, Mr. Baybrook," inquired the widow, with a sudden display of tender anxiety for his carnal comfort. "Let me show you some cake I have just been baking."

"No, no, Mrs. Grey; not at present; do not disturb yourself. I must go at once."

And so the lawyer left, having succeeded in raising the most ardent hopes in the bosom of the widow that she would yet be the rich and distinguished Mrs. Baybrook, while he had at the same time taken the best measure possible to have it publicly understood that Ralph and Rosa were not only engaged, but very shortly to be married. He took his accustomed seat in the office, and hour after hour flew by while he was deeply absorbed in writing.

At last Ralph came in.

"Eh, Ralph," said the elder man, "take a seat. Just home, eh? Well, what luck to-day? Any more favorable report?"

"Well, slightly, perhaps," replied the young man, drawing out his tongue with a little indifference. "It isn't my tactful, you know, to hurry matters. I understand in your claims a little to-day, however, and succeeded in extracting the answer that, while I was held in the deepest respect, it was not possible that I could become the recipient of anything more than friendship while any doubt remained as to the actual sentiments of a certain young gentleman now in Europe. Not a very encouraging answer, perhaps; but inferentially I see there is a glimmer of hope."

"Ralph, I am rather out of patience with you," exclaimed the father. "And yet I admire your imperturbable coolness. But I never can bear to delay in such matters as this. There is no telling what new difficulty will spring up. That girl's obstinacy annoys me exceedingly. Everything is straight now if it wasn't for her infatuation for that young fool of a Rolff. I have the old man completely in my power, I think, and I believe I could speedily bring him to exert his authority. But you have been so opposed to it, I have hesitated."

"Well," interposed Ralph, "I little thought of the way matters are going myself. I don't like to own up to beat in such a contest—in fact, I don't; but if time is a question of moment, I don't know that I should object to a little pressure being used."

"Well," responded the father, "I have a plan in my mind to stir up the old gentleman that I think will work satisfactorily, and I must put it in operation."

"What is it?" asked Ralph.

"Well, never mind at present," replied the father. "All you need concern yourself about is to note the result. Old Baybrook will doubtless be in this evening, and I shall see what I can do with him. My idea is, that if we can only induce him to bring a moderate amount of pressure to bear on Rosa, she will speedily yield. This is the sentimental period of her existence, and young Rolff having secured the first place in her affections, she naturally clings to him. It is very natural, and in fact, she is to be commended for it; only it is a cursed inconvenience for us. But she will not be a whit less devoted to you, my boy, after she once makes up her mind to accept you as her lover. She is rather more constant than her pet generally, and I like her the better for it."

"She's a tip-top girl," replied Ralph. "And I'm hanged if I don't grow to love her better every time I see her. She's the soul of sweetness and sincerity, and I'm almost sorry for her, she grieves so over that fellow Claude. But of course I'll make her a better husband, and I fancy I'll have her yet of hand, and I fancy anybody beside myself."

"Well, Ralph, we'll hope for the best, and work for it as well. And now just look over these papers in Baybrook's study, and see if you can find out the evening came, and shortly after supper hour was over, Farmer Bruyn dropped into the office of the lawyer, Anthony Baybrook received him with special warmth, and speedily ordered in glasses and bottles, and pressed his hospitality on the free-hearted old fellow with all his arts of persuasion.

After they had both tossed off a couple of glasses of wine, and exhausted the ordinary topics of interest, the lawyer thought it time to introduce the subject of his plan to influence the old gentleman to exercise his parental authority over his daughter as to induce her to look more favorably on Ralph's suit.

"By the way, Mr. Bruyn—don't come, let me fill your glass up again. There, there—don't say no; it is a very light wine, and wouldn't hurt you if you drank a gallon of it. What was I going to say? Ah, I recollect—I have a bit of news that may interest you. I have an offer to sell the Rolff property."

The old farmer gazed up in evident surprise.

"Who to?" he asked.

"Well, I am not at liberty to state yet. He is a very wealthy city merchant, who wishes to retire, and such a healthy and quiet locality to spend the remainder of his days. The offer came to me through a legal friend of mine, and is really a very good one, and the old gentleman is willing to pay the price."

"If you are going to sell," interposed Farmer Bruyn, "first sell me the wood lot, and the meadow next to the road. I'll pay more than he will."

"Ah, but, my dear sir, that would cripple the balance of the estate, and spoil my bargain."

"But you promised me," said the farmer, "dugged, flushing up in a way that showed how deeply he was interested."

"I said I would consider your claim; but the fact is, my dear Mr. Bruyn, I do not wish to sell the place at all. My ambition has been to put it in repair, and devolve the place on Ralph as a wedding present, of course calculating also to make it my own home for the balance of my days. If there were any immediate prospect of Ralph getting married, I might still adhere to my plan—in fact, I undoubtedly would; but it is an expensive project, and one I would not care to undertake without the boy was to make a good match with a young lady who would have something to add to his own fortune, and enable them to support the place in the style it would require. As matters are, however, there seems no immediate prospect of Ralph succeeding with the only matrimonial suit he has yet undertaken—of course, my dear sir, you know to what I refer—and the old place is rather a weight on my hands; and I don't know as I am justified in refusing such an excellent offer. Of course, I will not sell it until I have had a day or two to think over it."

SERVIAN OFFICERS ARRESTED

News of conspiracy leaked out and all concerned were arrested

Venice, Sept. 4.—It is stated that 700 Servian officers were concerned in the plot against the army commandant who were responsible for the coup d'état at Belgrade on June 10 last.

A group of officers of the 1st division, and many other officers of other divisions, were arrested during the night, and all the conspirators were arrested during the night.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January, 29th, 1903.
Dear Sir:—I make you very sorry, in a paper about your wonderful skin cure, and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for many years. I have tried several doctors and they done me no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Skin Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Parks Station, P.M.

Dr. Clarke's Skin Cure for Eczema is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 411 Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes: "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your skin cure. Send me another dollar's worth."

Write Dr. McPherson, Riverdale, P.M., writes: "I am very busy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your skin cure. It has done grand work for me. I am so much better."

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lumbago, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the disease have not lasted for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Crompton & Wadsworth, Peterborough, 50c per box or 1 dozen for $5.00.

Dr. Clarke's Skin Cure for Eczema and Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills, same price. None will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay.

It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds, the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash? A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor in your own case who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the MacKays, the Fairs, the Ficks, the Shumans, the Harklins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at from $1.00 per share down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

There are many persons who assert that there is nothing in it for the average investor and that it does not pay to invest small sums in stock. Let such persons ask themselves what returns they can hope to get through banks or real estate speculations for sums of under $100.00, and then consider the following:

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $8,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1880 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $4,622.

$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend-paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Mailroy, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $90, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $80,000 monthly.

It does not require immensely rich ore for successful mining—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore sells only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every night. The Alaska Treadwell ore sells $2.35 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par. No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management. Respectfully submitted, Jim Ketchum, Financier.

BY ANNE O'HAGAN.

THE gentleman who had been investigating the possibilities of Ketchum's Point as a summer resort returned to the inn jubilant. In fancy, they already heard the braying of a band in nightly competition with the surging of the North Atlantic. They listened to a sibilant silken promenade through pillared corridors, they dreamed of candle-light at play upon table appointments of ivory plate. They even foresaw Maine legislators supine, Maine prohibition repealed, and white damask backed with lights of amber and ruby from slender glasses—the concealing cup banished forever from Maine's service of Banquets.

The climate was superb, the sharpened speculative appetites proclaimed; the scenery—those gray promontories of rock, those stretches of fir and furs toward the inland hills, that curved silvery beach, a very new moon for beauty—here was scenery to fire even the speculative mind to poetry. The prospectors sniffed the salt, sharp air; they looked across the deep bay beyond Ketchum's Point toward a white, curving, clear-burning sunset, and they slapped one another on the back out of pure delight.

They were in luck, they kept declaring. The place was accessible, yet untrodden. No summer cottages marked the stretches of sweet-fern and bay. Ketchum's sharp-pointed old inn was the nearest approach to a hotel within a radius of ten miles. Yet two navigable rivers, making their sluggish way in from the sea, almost untroubled by the ferocious water sports to all who desired them; the deep incursion of the beach beyond the Point made a sheltered bay for sailing, and in front the Atlantic laid an unbroken path for the direct straight from the other side of the world.

Bentley, the fire-proof paint millionaire, had fallen in love with the place. But Bentley had not yet been educated to the point of enjoying scenery. He wanted to arrive on profits. To eradicate nature in some way or another was with him to prove his appreciation of it. He would build a "cottage" which should set the pace in cottages. The hotel should stand on the hill between the converging creeks. Other cottages would follow Bentley's, but his company should hold all the adjoining land so that cheap hostels and boarding houses should not come near. Ketchum, who was of course an old Indian name for it—would soon "make Mount Desert look like thirty cents." The phrase was Bentley's, who found the current or even the slightly outworn along a great help to him in the expression of his ideas.

When they came back boisterously pleased with themselves and their plans, they found old Jim Ketchum sitting on the roofless piazza of his hotel, smoking a pipe, and looking at them with a look that said he was not to be trifled with. He was a small, thin, old man, with a white beard, and a pair of eyes that looked like they were made of steel. He was dressed in a simple, dark suit, and he had a look of a man who had seen a great deal of the world.

"You've got to be a little more ready," he counseled, and they with great enthusiasm told him that supper would be had about ready. "A moment, please," he said, and he went to the kitchen. He returned with a small, round, brown cake, and he placed it on the table. "This is the best of the best," he said, and he took a bite. "It's the best of the best," he said, and he took another bite. "It's the best of the best," he said, and he took a third bite. "It's the best of the best," he said, and he took a fourth bite. Black Hills Copper Company

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ore in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to day.

A limited amount of the Stock is now offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

The following advices were received by Mr. J. Cummings & Co., 160 Simcoe Street, over their private

New York, September 10.—More or less uncertainty was in evidence in the local stock market today. Sentiment was mixed, and while some were inclined to look for betterment, others were disposed to favor the short side of the account. Unfavorable news variations for some specialties, especially the stocks of the U. S. Steel, brought out unwelcome talk with regard to the future, and there was a general selling at times, and naturally the trading element was nervous. The reduction in the price of gold was believed to be the lack of steel stocks decline, inasmuch as there were those who figured that such action represents a falling off in the business of the country. On the other hand, there was an inclination to argue that the reduction precludes further importation of raw and structural materials and that such development will eventually have a good effect on the steel and iron business of the country. The London market was naturally firm and there was no change in the Bank of England rate. The late trade was without special feature, being dull and sluggish and apparently subject to the dictation of the market. Interest in the room. Outside stocks were dull and easy in tone. Bonds were quiet and rather irregular, with the speculative issues neglected.

New York, September 10.—With the closing of the stock market last night an adjustment was made to the stock market. There had been a reaction of from 100 to 150 points in the price of the stock. Under the circumstances this morning is of the best make the production of the stock market. The U. S. Steel Corporation is not a complete control of the stock market as is generally supposed. Excellent railroad earnings are continuing to come in, and the U. S. Steel Corporation is not a complete control of the stock market as is generally supposed. Excellent railroad earnings are continuing to come in, and the U. S. Steel Corporation is not a complete control of the stock market as is generally supposed.

Chicago, September 10.—In view of the government report which will cause our countrymen to be very little talk in circulation today regarding the crop outlook. Conservative estimates are inclined to take a gloomy view of the year, fearing that the government may be in conflict with the government. The grain trade generally is rather disappointing over the extent of the export business and therefore of a full foreign demand to materialize has brought about considerable selling. The short interest in corn is believed to be quite extensive. The recognized bull element in corn is still carrying good lines of the article, and much of its holdings represent a long term. These lines are gradually being worked out through additional purchases. At least, such are the reports of certain of the observers.

First Class Mining Proposition.
The Anaconda Gold Mining Co.

Home Office: 415 Merchants Loan and Trust Bldg.
136 Adams Street, Chicago, Ill.

This is one of the best propositions ever placed before the Canadian investor. The Company owns 600 acres in the celebrated Black Hills District, which includes 25 claims. The track is the same as the one in the great Homestake mine, being located directly between the world's Homestake mine and the Overleaf mine. Two shafts have already been sunk, the main one being down 100 feet, with capacity of going 1000 feet. The Company has also installed an elaborate large air compressor and drill, 125 horse power boiler, steam pump, and in fact everything needed for actual operation, with the exception of its stamp mill, which will be installed at once. The vein of gold-bearing quartz traversing the Company's property is very rich. Assays have run from $5 to $150 per ton.

A limited amount of stock has been placed on the Canadian market. Full particulars and copy of prospectus may be obtained from M. R. J. KIDD, or the undersigned Agent for Peterborough.

A Proposition of Special Merit to be Offered Canadian Investors

STONY PASS MINING CO.

SILVERTON CAL.

has appointed a local Canadian Fiscal Agent, in the person of Messrs. Thomas Patterson & Son, brokers, who will make an announcement in a day or two that will interest the investors of Canada. It is proposed to send a representative from Canada to visit the mines and property of the company, and report thereon so as to prove beyond doubt its splendid worth. The proposition is one that will bear the closest investigation. The company is splendidly equipped by men of honor and business integrity, known throughout the country for their high character and business ability.

BRAINPOWER

HOW IT MAY BE STRENGTHENED AND INCREASED

The brain is a great nerve battery that provides over all the powers and impulses of the human body.

Very frequently, as a result of poor blood, it becomes enfeebled, and a general weakness of the entire system follows.

No remedy possesses the marvelous brain strengthening power that Ferron's has demonstrated in thousands of cases.

It contains an abundance of phosphates and iron which are essential in the formation of red, vitalizing blood, and in this way supplies the brain with extra power to perform its numerous and important duties.

Ferron's is the best preparation for brain workers, and those inclined to a sedentary life. It improves the appetite, increases good digestion, regulates the bowels, and helps the stomach to do its work.

Laymen, ministers, and those whose occupations entail much thinking and brain labor, will find Ferron's of immense value. It gives power to stimulate mental activity. Students who take Ferron's regularly, find it not only clears the brain and makes it more receptive, but makes them strong in body, as well as in mind.

A medical student of Toronto University, who has proved the good qualities of Ferron's says: "On my study table there is always a place for Ferron's. I find by keeping my digestion in perfect order, and maintaining a splendid appetite, it enables me to accomplish a great deal of hard work. I consider Ferron's at the same time food for the brain, the blood, and the nerves and an equally restorative."

Very few are so strong and healthy that a course of Ferron's would not benefit them. It is good for the young and old alike, and is prepared in convenient tablet form, free from any deleterious or dangerous ingredients, and is sold by all druggists and N. O. Peters & Co., Kingston, Ont.

MAYDEN'S "CREATION."

THIS GRAND ORATORIO WAS GIVEN WITH GREAT SUCCESS LAST EVENING

In the New Church, Long Street, Front St.—One Ticket in the House

Never was Peterborough the scene of a more successful musical event than last evening's performance of Mayden's "Creation" given by the Peterborough Festival Chorus of one hundred voices, under the direction of Mr. F. W. Wodall, of Boston. The oratorio received a very artistic and descriptive rendition and the chorus work was well sustained and given with thrilling effect and excellent precision.

Mrs. Caroline Cutler, of Boston, who was one of the vocal artists, evidently made one of the great successes of the evening and was much applauded and many encores for her part of tone and graceful singing.

Mr. J. M. Sherlock, tenor, and Mr. John Atkinson, bass, rendered their different roles with exquisite taste and expression and demonstrated highly cultivated voices, rich in cadence and mellowness. It would be difficult to distinguish between the different numbers in exquisite tones of finish, but special mention might be made of the work of the trio composed of Mrs. Caroline Cutler and Messrs. Sherlock and Atkinson who rendered "On These Earthly Things" and of the Grand finale which followed, rendered by the full chorus, "Achieved is the Glorious Work."

THE T. A. S. BAND

Organization Completed and Officers All Elected

The organization of the St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society band has been completed and the following officers elected:

Hon. Pres.—Rev. Dr. O'Brien
President—Mr. J. Parle
Vice-President—Mr. S. Houlston
Secretary—Mr. J. Byette
Financial Secretary and Treasurer—Mr. J. Maher

Practices will be held on Tuesday and Friday evenings at the T. A. S. hall; the first will be held this evening. Mr. R. P. Broderick, the bandmaster, hopes with the co-operation of the members to soon have the band in good shape for engagements.

THE PETERBOROUGH FAIR

The Great Industrial to be Opened by Hon. Mr. Blair

Mr. D. Hughes-Charles, the efficient President of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Association, received a letter from Hon. Mr. Blair of Ottawa, stating that he will be pleased to accept the invitation of the directors to open the Exhibition on Wednesday, Sept. 23d. The presence of the distinguished statesman will be a great help to the Exhibition.

At a meeting of the directors it was arranged to have a large number of extra seats for the 27th Regiment to be appointed, as the fair promises to be the largest ever held here.

The presence of Britain's greatest military band will be a splendid attraction, and there will undoubtedly be an unprecedented rush for the concert in the new rink, where the band is to play under the auspices of the Association.

Prize lists may be procured from the executive secretary, Mr. W. J. Green, at Tax Collector's office.

DICKSON COMPANY'S LIMITS

The Trouble Over the Volunteer Land Grant Settled

For some time there has been serious trouble brewing between the Department of Crown Lands, the Dickson Company, and parties who had under the Veterans' Act, located claims for homesteads in the township in which the Dickson Company's lands are situated. It is said that these homesteads were, in some cases, bought up by lumbermen jobbers, who were preparing to operate extensively. This was regarded as a very serious matter by the company, who appealed to the Commissioner of Crown Lands for protection. After a good deal of persuasion and worry the Government passed an Order-in-Council, withdrawing for location the lands in the township of Burleigh, Australia, Chatham, Galway, Harvey and Cavendish.

It now remains to be seen what claim, if any, the parties who purchased the rights of the veterans, have against the Government.

Every newspaper should read the Street Railway agreement, published in today's Times.

A FACT

Good coffee just as essential as the cheap

Those who demand coffee often say it is only the cheap grades that hurt for it is inferior of some kind. The highest priced coffee on the market is just as injurious to those with whom coffee acts as a poison as a cheap grade.

More than twenty years ago I became convinced that coffee was slowly killing me and it may interest you to know that I found out by careful experiments that the better the grade of coffee the more I suffered," says a lady of Harvey, N.S.

"So I gave up coffee and drank hot water only going back to coffee occasionally and always having to pay for it in suffering of some kind. About four years ago I visited the home of a friend one evening and some Pottum was very daintily served to the company present and was unconsciously pronounced delicious. When I learned how it was prepared I found that the reason I had not liked it before was because I had not boiled it long enough to bring out the crisp delicious coffee taste. I have since that time I have used Pottum steadily. My family and I have found it most wholesome and pleasant and a food drink to every man of this word, with no bad after effects but on the other hand it is a strong restorative and blood purifier. We keep now." Name given by Pottum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

HEALTH OFFICERS ASSOCIATION

Additional Interesting Papers Read by Medical Men

At the session of the Executive Health Officers on Wednesday afternoon, among the interesting and instructive papers read was one by Dr. Shaw, of Komeo, on "County Medical Health Officers."

The paper, which was an excellent one, was discussed at considerable length.

Dr. Bingham followed with an excellent address on "A Defence of Vaccination as a Preventive of Smallpox." He referred to the reduction of about 70 per cent. in late years in the mortality of smallpox and said it was remarkable why people still held out against vaccination. Smallpox appeared in America about fifteen years after the landing of Columbus. The Greeks and Romans had no knowledge of this dread disease, but it was known from time immemorial in India, China and Egypt. He traced it back to the time of Job and followed its subsequent history briefly.

A paper on "Hospital Influence on the Spread of Infectious Diseases" by Dr. Bryce was read, in that gentleman's absence, by Dr. Law, of Ottawa.

Dr. O. Klotz, of Ottawa, gave a paper on "Tuberculosis in the Relations of Diphtheria and Scarletina."

Dr. J. R. Fraser, of Lakefield, gave his experience in treating infectious diseases in the county and was commended for the need of isolation hospitals.

Dr. Doan, in the course of his remarks, made reference to the double walled tent supplied by Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, which had been used so advantageously in treating a small-pox case last year, and for scarlet fever cases this winter. His patients had expressed themselves as delighted with the tent, which they greatly preferred to a hospital ward.

EVENING SESSION

The evening session was held in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, Rev. J. P. Wilson in the chair.

Mayor Rogers gave an address of welcome on behalf of the citizens.

President McFarlane then delivered his annual address.

Dr. W. R. Hall, Medical Health Officer, Chatham, followed with an excellent paper on "The Health of the Individual as Regards Enforced Quarantine."

The paper on "The Hygienic and Economic Advantages of Military Instruction in Our Schools" by Dr. Hodge of the Central military hospital, was read with a great deal of pleasure.

On account of lack of space, we are obliged to hold over the report of yesterday's meetings till to-morrow.

A woman worn-out, who never has to lift a hand for herself, who does not know the meaning of the word "worry!" How can it be possible? That it is possible is proved by the experience of many a woman who, because of sleeplessness, nervousness, headache and other womanly ills, becomes an utter physical wreck.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription gives new life and new strength to weak, worn-out, run-down women. It establishes regularity, drives unhealthy drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

I suffered for five years with inflammation which caused violent pain and often forced me to bed. I could not be absent from my daily duties. I tried many doctors but found they did not help me. My doctor advised me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—giving it in glowing terms. I decided to give it a trial and brought a bottle home. I am happy to say that after the use of the first bottle I felt so much improved I decided to take another and am pleased for I am to-day a well woman, work is easy and the world looks bright. I have perfect health, thanks to your medicine."

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used with "Favorite Prescription" whenever a laxative is required.

COPETE MINING CO.

27 William Street, New York

Capital Stock, $3,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5

More than forty-five per cent of the stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but also rich in gold. They were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Katzenberg works, including a two hundred ton miller, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The miller in a short time produced something over $100,000.

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now clear and undisputed title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

Full list of the Treasury stock is offered for sale—to complete the development and equipment of the property—for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street, New York.

MYRA B. MARTIN, SECRETARYROLFF HOUSE

By G. H. BENEDICT.

A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.

Rosa grew pale, and was silent a moment.

"The place is Claude's father," she said sadly. "It was left to him; it ought to be his; he gave it away for the money to waste and riot in a foreign land. It's his no longer. I knew he would never keep it; but I never thought he'd be such a duffer as to be was about it."

"He was cheated; there is fraud somewhere; Claude would never have given up Rolff House," replied Rosa, speaking low but with painful intensity.

"What's done is done, girl," said the old man, resuming his pipe. "I saw the paper deciding the old place away, and it had Claude's name to it. I know his writing well enough. He's lost it, and lost it for good, and there isn't much chance that he'll ever come back here. Come, Rosa, give up your foolishness about Claude, and take a man that's got brains and knows how to make money and keep it, too. You'll never get a better chance."

"Oh, father, you do not know what you are saying," replied the poor girl, breaking into tears.

"Yes, I do; I ask you to give up a vagabond and scamp for a steady, honest young fellow, who's got everything I want the most—brains and a will to have. Don't be foolish, girl. It's too good a chance to throw away. I don't want to see anybody else have that property. I've always wanted to buy it to settle on you when you marry; but now it can be yours with just a word. When Ralph speaks to you next time, Rosa, take an old man's advice, and don't put him off for a poor fool who never meant to marry you."

Poor Rosa could not reply. She attempted to speak, but her tongue refused to perform its office. Finally overcome by her feelings, she turned and walked slowly away and entered the house, her manner showing only too plainly her deep agitation.

The old man turned and gazed after her as she slowly disappeared.

"Ah, poor girl," he muttered. "She's sure hurt by that young scamp, and I was fool enough to let it all happen when I might have tipped it in the bud. But it's better she should know now for a little while than all her life. She'll come around. I can trust her; she's got rare good sense; and as soon as her eyes are opened, she'll think more of Ralph than she ever did of that vagabond."

And with this comforting reflection, the old man pulled down on his pipe, and turned his thoughts to the bargain he could drive with the third man when it came to arranging the terms of the marriage settlement.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

It was not usual, in the early part of the present century, for wives to oppose their wishes to those of their husbands, especially when they were men of property and character in the community; still less was it permissible for a daughter to question the authority of her father. But love has been a rebel in all ages. The conventions of society have never been able to bind the limbs of the silly and sturdy rogues.

Rosa Bruyn was by nature the very picture of a dutiful daughter. She shrank with a reluctance amounting to anguish from the thought of pitting herself in open rebellion to her father's wishes; but there appeared no other alternative save to surrender herself an unwilling victim to a hateful marriage.

Her anguish and conflict of mind caused her to grow paler and sadder of demeanor, but her strong physical nature was not of a kind to bend speedily to trouble, however deep and long it might be. The anxiety of her mother for her was much increased. The tender-hearted matron at last began to read the secret of her daughter's absorbing love for the arrogant heir of Rolff House. She was drawn into deeper sympathy with her feelings; and the anguish and suffering on one side and the tender confidence on the other at last broke down the barrier of reserve to perfect confidence that had existed between them. Rosa confessed to her mother all her hopes and doubts and sorrows, and her father sought her advice as to the course she should pursue. It was but meagre comfort the good matron could give.

"It is a decision, my dear child," she said. "That must rest with your own heart. I can't force you to do anything I don't want to do myself. I should I unhappily direct you wrong. I could never forgive myself. It is up to you now, from your father's point of view, your marriage with Ralph should appear very desirable. He seems to be a pleasant young man, and his home, good character and steady habits are naturally qualities that should be in favor of a man like your father. Besides, he will be quite rich; and the fact of Rolff House being likely to be his inheritance is another thing in his favor. Since you were a little girl, your father has talked of your being one day mistress of Rolff House, and of seeing it restored to its old dignity. Although he never liked Claude, his hope induced him to look favorably upon his attentions to you. Had Claude remained home, and settled down as heir to the estate left him, all would have been well. But his strange departure, and the stranger results that have followed, by which the Raybrooks seem to have become the owners of nearly all his property, have greatly embittered your father's feelings toward him. He seems to regard the idea of your marriage with him as a thing to be prevented at all hazards. For my part, although I had always liked Claude, and believed in his truth and sincerity, I must confess he has hurried desire to get away as soon as he was dead, his strange selfishness to raise money, his unaccountable jealousy—all have shaken my former faith in him. I trust that every opinion against him may be untrue; but you know, my dear child, that this is a world of temptation, in which the boldest and best of us are liable to fall, and we can't fully trust no one."

"I know Claude's faults," replied Rosa. "I know that he was ambitious and reckless of the opinions of those he did not care for; but I would make my life on his truth and goodness."

"I, too, have believed as you, my dear child," said the mother; "but yet we must remember that Claude's very generosity and kindness, and of the world's opinion would be the quality that would expose him to the same temptation when cast upon his own resources out in the world."

Rosa was silent. She could see the soundness of her mother's reasoning. It was but an echo of the fear that had always lain at her own heart. And yet she still clung to her faith in her love, she knew not why, perhaps, as the drowning man clings to a straw, because it was the only hope left of safety to her perishing dream of happiness. Although it cost her dearly, she was glad to have her mother's full confidence once more. Rosa could profit nothing by her counsel. She was left still to her own unaided resolution to make the decision so important to her future weal or woe.

On the morning after her conversation with her mother, Rosa, full of an anguish and indecision, arrayed herself for a walk in the open air, hoping the clear, bright day, the fresh breeze, the songs of the birds, and the beautiful aspect of Nature, would revive the intense strain of her feelings, and enable her to think and decide more clearly. She went her steps slowly and moodily down the road and into the lane that led to the old woods where she had taken leave of Claude. She was suddenly impelled with an irresistible desire to visit the spot where they had parted.

She wandered down into the wood, and soon was seated in the place where she had listened to his last words. She remained a long time, giving herself up to sad reflection, and each moment feeling her resolution grow stronger to dare and endure everything before she would break the faith she had here pledged to remain true to him forever.

After awhile, she arose and walked on, following the path that wound in the direction of Rolff House. Suddenly she came on the figure of a man, seated on a rock by the path, and partially concealed by a large tree. She stopped and uttered a little cry when she turned and saw that it was Carl Crum.

The yellow acres and greeted her with outstretched palms, in which she placed both her own hands.

"Well-a-day," he exclaimed, "who would have thought to meet you here, Rosa? But I am glad to see you taking the good medicine of fresh sunshine, although, judging from your pale cheeks, you do not take enough of it. Ah, I love to see the cheeks of the young rose, and their eyes bright with hopefulness. You do not appear happy, Rosa."

"I am not happy," replied Rosa, feeling all reserve depart in the presence of the old man's pleasant face and kindly voice. "I am very, very unhappy."

Thrilling Manifestations of Growth of Industry Printed in England

Ontario has received a great advertisement in the form of a report of the date collected by Mr. Robert Glicking, secretary of the Ontario Bureau of Labor, a few months ago, when the clerks of towns and cities were asked to make a report of new industries established during the past year, and to tell what openings there remained for further enterprise. A great deal of information collected and this was tabulated by Mr. Glicking.

Mr. G. F. Jost of the Dominion Immigration offices in London has been successful in having the whole report published in three consecutive issues of Commercial Intelligence, a well-known London journal. Mr. Jost is writing to Mr. Glicking, saying: "You could not have hit upon a happier plan," and expresses the hope that the other Provinces have been equally progressed.

Successfully Rescued

Mr. Harry Gibson of Kingston, was rescued from an enemy that relentlessly pursued him for years.

Mr. Gibson was born and brought up in Kingston. My profession he as a school teacher. He received his training in Queen's University, where he took a course in arts and medicine that well enable him to talk on almost any subject.

The enemy that for 25 years relentlessly pursued Mr. Gibson is a menace to our entire population—it is the demon, CATARRH.

"Mr. Gibson says: 'For years I was never free from Catarrh of the nose and throat. It bothered me winter and summer and kept me so completely coughing and hacking that I found it a great impediment to the proper performance of my duties at school. I used every available means of obtaining a cure, took bottles after bottles of medicine prescribed by local doctors, but never got more than temporary relief. I consulted a well-known specialist in the States, but after spending a considerable amount of money with him he no advantage. Was forced to look elsewhere for relief, which I first received from Catarrhona."

I consider Catarrhona a genuine cure for Catarrh. It drove the loathsome disease completely out of my system, and to-day I am as well as if I never knew what the word Catarrh implied."

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay.

It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds, the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash?

A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shermans, the Baskins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at from $1.00 per value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $8.70.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1890 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $682.

$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $8,600.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend-paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and most of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Mallory, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

Nor does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore sells only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours.

The Alaska Treadwell ore sells $2.38 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par.

No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management.

THE ORO RICO MINES are situated in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 30 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.

Vast ledges of ore running from $100 to $200.00 per ton. Five claims of ore, a El Paso Boulder gave $70.00 to $80.00 per ton. This is not a five per cent. a month scheme, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans. No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offers a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLARS FOR DOLLARS for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your foresight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the Stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the Stock at present price. It will soon be 50 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mines and returned full of enthusiasm. The mines are turning out much richer than expected. I can offer the Stock for a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

It is one of the best and safest investments on the market. SEND YOUR ORDER TO-DAY TO MORROW it may slip your memory. On block of 500 shares or more we will accept payment of 25% cash and 75% per month.

TWO MEN.

By ANNIE NATHAN MAYER.

NOTHING had happened—nothing at all. She said it over and over again to herself, as if to persuade herself that it was true. But it was nothing—nothing at all.

She lay back on the steamer chair that was her favorite resting place, perched high up in the little piazza just outside her bedroom. She closed her eyes wearily to think it all over, while the muffled roar of the breakers coming across the bay reiterated the tiresome phrase—that nothing, nothing at all had happened.

She tried to collect her thoughts and discover just what had taken place—this nothing. She had gone to the dinner—her husband had insisted on her going without him—she had met Robert again, they had chatted during the dinner, in a conventionally superficial way, and then again in a more personal, intimate way on the piazza after the coffee. And he had escorted her home—while the maid who had called for her walked slightly behind. At that point he had looked into her eyes, said "Good night"—told her how pleasant it had been to meet her again, and had asked permission to call some other time, and—and that was all. As she had told herself for the twentieth time, nothing had really happened at all.

Well, what was changed? And what was she going to do now? And why?

The deep, regular breathing of her sleeping husband came to her from the closed shutters on her left—room adjoining hers, on her husband's side. If he had only been different! How many women, she wondered, had excused themselves thus? Here she was battling with the most serious resolution she had ever struggled with—yes, more serious than that other time, when she had been alone—there he was sleeping as calmly as a stone's throw away as if she had never existed. That typified their relation. Or if she had been blessed with a child, she would have a little, very small at the moment of the excitement, and think it all out for herself.

She stared for a while out over across the bay, and almost fancied she could see the dancing white foam beyond the sentinel dunes. Making a great effort, she determined to fight off her growing sluggishness, her longing to drift, determined resolutely to begin from the very beginning, and think it all out for herself.

When she had come down from town, she had been so sure of herself, so absolutely convinced that she was right, and that nothing could alter her determination. She had agreed to everything, and Harriman had remained in town to arrange some business matters, and she had planned to be home for a few weeks and then they were to sail quietly away for Europe and begin life all over again.

There was to be no scandal, they had gone all over it so often, she was determined to spare her husband's pride—his own vulnerable point—she was to go off to the States, Harriman's coast to pay a visit to her sister, and he was to sail for a year's stay in Europe, being over-worked by that last public building he had erected in Toronto. Her husband would receive a letter, explaining it as quietly as possible, and no one would know until the divorce was granted. Divorces can be arranged so quietly if one knows the ropes, and has the will and the where-withal to cheat the reporter. Of course there would be some talk—she had made up her mind before there would be some talk, but she could rely on her husband to do it with as great despatch as if he were arranging a contest for a cup. Yet he would spare her, because it was his duty to her. His name! Yes, she was sparing his name, that was really all he had ever given her. There had been times in the past when she had wondered if it would have made any difference had she been a poor girl and had owed a great deal to him. Would gratitude have been a bond? But she had not had even the luxury of that sentiment. This beautiful Long Island home had always been hers, and she had loved every nook and corner of it long before she had ever met him. While he, even now, cared for it only for the sport of raising fast boats, or now and then going off on a cruise with a jolly gang party and plenty of cold bottles on board.

She had come down four weeks ago with the thought of Harriman stirring her strangely as she went about the place he had loved with her. They had been the most perfect companions the summer before, as completely as if they had been the same person. Harriman had even asked her to lower Long Island—even as she had done. He was constantly pointing out to her the beauty of some great white salt dunes, gliding over what was apparently a green meadow, and the little inlet which the boats called all day long slipped in and out among irregular patches of high swamp ground—of the sky swept by great white clouds—wings as of angels, or of the sea, ever alive and yet ever changing. They were never far from the water, and the air—union of air and pine—the spray, beating air of lower Long Island. They had glided into this intimacy of thought and feeling as innocently as those pure white sails glided before the wind.

Then all at once there had been a shuddering awakening, brought about by some light word spoken by a woman who thought the worst and thought none the less of them—perhaps a little more—for it. The purity that she would never respond to him as he had felt her respond to one night. He glowered at Harriman and cursed him coming below his breath. The two men watched each other closely, dangerous glances were cast in their eyes. She shuddered without daring to stop, and there the men threw in a public interjection or two. They were both men of the twentieth century. Had they been savages, they would have torn at each other's throats.

"Edward!"

But neither man responded. At the gate on the road to the right. Yet neither man really understood—July "Bookman."

RAILROAD TIES OF LEATHER

Are Made Out of Old Hides and Horse Leather

Boston, Sept. 10.—Making railroad ties from leather began in West Warren Monday, in the Crossman factory which has been leased by the F. W. Dunsell Composite Leather Company of Springfield. The inventor of the tie, F. W. Dunsell, has been experimenting with the possibilities of old leather for several years, and leather ties which have been subjected to the severest strain in the West Springfield yards of the New York Central railway do not show any signs of wear after being in service twenty-six months.

In the manufacture of the tie, scrap leather, old shoes and leather in any other discarded form will be used. The leather is ground in several machines into a fine mass, and is compressed into the desired shape under hydraulic pressure. The company claims that the tie, though more expensive than wood ties, are ultimately economical, as they are guaranteed to outlast four hundred ties.

The Coffee Was Harmless.

Lord Charles Beresford's wit is of the rugged, seafaring kind, somewhat lacking that Chesterfieldian grace which characterizes the wit of the modern raconteur. Here is a story which illustrates this contention as applied to the famous Admiral.

Lord Charles on one occasion was breakfasting in a small hotel far out in the country, and accidentally he upset a cup of coffee over a clean white tablecloth which the good lady of the house had dug up from her most sacred linen cupboard for the benefit of the British Admiral. Unfortunately, the upsetting of the steaming coffee also upset the good lady's temper, and the soundly rated Lord Charles for his want of tact.

"It's a good thing for you," she said, "that the coffee has not left much stain on my cloth."

"It was too weak, ma'am," replied the Admiral. "You have to stain your coffee before you can expect to stain your table linen. Use more beans, ma'am; use more beans!"

J. Weed and Yu Li.

Jimpton Weed was a newcomer to the city, and Chinese laundrymen were "yellow gringos" to him. He knew that every Chinaman was called John.

So, when he had deposited a bundle of soiled collars and cuffs at the Mongolian laundry which flourished in the vicinity of his boarding house, he indulged in a conversational impulse by remarking:

"Say, can I have them clothes by Chowday, John? Your name's John, ain't it?"

"You lie," replied the celestial, with the customary placid smile.

The report brought a blow from Jimpton Weed. The blow brought some Chinese repartee, delivered with a flat-iron. Then came more blows, more flat-irons, more Chinamen, a terrific general engagement—and the Police.

As Jimpton Weed was ushered into the patrol wagon, together with a bunch of disordered pigtails, what was left of his eyes permitted him a glimpse of the inscription over his adversary's place of business.

The sign read: "Yu Li. Heep cheap."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Black Hills Copper Company LIMITED

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formations and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to day.

A limited amount of the Stock is now offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

STOCK MARKETS

The following advices were received by Mr. J. Cummings & Co., 160 Simcoe Street, over their private

New York, September 11.—Uncertainty with regard to the steel situation has caused a general reaction in the stock market. The common stock of the steel trust was made a new low record on the rumor that the directors will be enjoined from paying any more dividends on the common stock. There is a great deal of unfavorable talk regarding the steel trust, but just what amount of truth to all this talk remains to be seen. The crop report was given a favorable interpretation, but the effects of the figures were not altogether pleasing to most of the bull-baited speculators. The market was regarded as more favorable, in that it was figured that the arrival of gold on the Pacific coast would readily offset any loss through the week's currency movement. The business reports were favorable to a noticeable degree, though reductions in the price of pig were said to be on account of falling off in business of the country. London market was dull and the foreign orders were without consequence. On the lower levels there was a good demand for gold, and the price of the gold standard was advanced. The common stock of the steel trust recovered sharply. These movements had a good effect on sentiment, which in the latter part of the day was quite favorably inclined. The late market, however, was rather dull and without special feature, with many active trading interests inclined to hold off. The outside market was slow and featureless, while bonds were irregular. With a moderate demand. A trading market within narrow limits is to be looked for. The showing of the government crop report should be reflected in steady improvement in wheat, Union Pacific and Rock Island. Those who buy any of these conservatively must make money at a O. shorts will cover now that there will be no strike. Hay A. O. P. Hold Southern Pacific.

Chicago, September 11.—The Government report issued last night showed a condition of 74.7 per cent for winter and spring wheat combined, a condition of 80.1 for corn and a condition of 75.7 for oats. These figures, while meeting the expectations of some of the wheat statisticians, are not to the liking of conservative investors, for the reason that they come at a time when opinions regarding the crop situation are decidedly unsettled. Many investors have their own opinions with regard to the outcome of the report. The present condition for corn however indicates a crop of over 2,000,000,000 bushels, and naturally this is likely to be construed as rather bearish. As to wheat, however, the condition is lower than last month, and the promise seems to be about 630,000,000 bushels of the total area. The oats condition is rather more bullish than looked for, but conservatism of opinion in the short interest have covered pretty well, and that now the market is likely to move rather feverishly. The trade is rather mixed in its opinion as to a general "blow" and the market is likely to be irregular today.

Apple Packers Should be Numbered. The fruit division, Ottawa, has received from a leading exporter a letter suggesting that a slip be printed in large letters and placed in the top of each package of fruit, as follows:—

"You are requested to report any fault you may find in this package to Montreal, Canada. Packaged by No. —"

This suggestion is right in line with the recommendation of the fruit division that each "box packer" be given a number, and that this number be stenciled on every package of fruit put up by that packer. In putting up apples in the orchard the number should be marked in pencil near the chime of the barrel, and the brand name done later. Mr. MacKinnon's forthcoming bulletin on the export apple trade will deal with this question, and the fruit division will show at Toronto Exhibition a model brand for apple barrels.

The plan of placing a slip with the packer's number in each package has been largely used by tobacco and other dealers, and has proved a safeguard to the wholesaler or exporter. For instance, it has been found in previous years by apple exporters that barrels bearing their brand and marked as put up by a certain box packer, say No. 50, were in great demand, while goods similarly branded except that they were marked as put up by another packer, say No. 48, were not wanted. This is due to the quality of the fruit may have been due to inferior packing, or to the fact that the second packer was working in an inferior district, but in any case the advantage to the exporter of having a check on the work of his packers is quite apparent.

COPETE MINING CO.

27 William Street, New York

Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5

More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but also in gold, and they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter in a short time produced something over $100,000.

The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them are—Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor R. S. T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Seymour W. Tallent, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Greene Companies; Mr. Edwin D. Broadwell, Mining Engineer, San Francisco; and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now clear and unimpaired title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A list of the Treasury stock is offered for sale—to complete the development and equipment of the property—for a short time only at $2.50 a share, the checks payable to the order of the company and sent to 27 William Street New York.

A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.

shoulders, while his red face and keen blue eyes, framed in his floating, frizzy white hair and beard, and his long, straight nose, gave him the appearance of some old magician, whose occult knowledge might well extend to whatever was mysterious and unaccountable. But when appealed to for his opinion on any of the supernatural tales in regard to the old mansion, the old fellow would simply reply with a grave shake of the head, which seemed to indicate that he was not disposed to reveal what he knew about the matter. Only once did he open his lips on the subject.

It was late one evening. The bar-room was filled, and among the company were several who had been approached by the lawyer with a view to engage their services in the repairs at Rolff House. Of course, the conversation was directed to that all-important topic.

"Well, for my part," said one of the oracles—a purdy, downright little man, who spent most of his abundant spare time in the bar-room—waving his right hand energetically as he talked, "I wouldn't go near that old house for any money—no, not for all the treasure there is in the great vault, that old Magnus Rolff sold his soul for. No gentleman—no, sir, and why?"

"Perhaps because you are afraid you might have to do some work," replied the landlord, sarcastically.

There was a titter from a few of the circle.

"No, sir, no, sir," replied the little man, nothing daunted, and growing more serious in his manner; "because, sir, there's no telling when old Magnus Rolff may be let loose from the infernal regions to visit his treasures in the old house. Who wants to meet him? I don't, gentlemen. Let's shake the fate he's waiting enough for."

"Poo!" said a large, red-whiskered, pleasant-faced man, one of the few skeptics in the place in regard to the stories told about Rolff House. "Who believes that story?"

"I do," responded the little man promptly. "There's no doubt about it. He's been seen more than once. It's gospel truth, gentlemen. Here—I'll leave it to old Carl."

The old man was accustomed to these appeals; but of late, as he has said, had replied only with a grave shake of the head, which, however, was more effective than words in confirming the impression as to his knowledge of the alleged mysterious events. On this occasion, however, he chose to speak.

"All I have to say in reply to the question of our friend, Magnus Rolff, is that if anything could rouse old Magnus Rolff from his grave—if he ever had a grave—it would be for that purpose, and that purpose alone."

"I do," responded the little man promptly. "There's no doubt about it. He's been seen more than once. It's gospel truth, gentlemen. Here—I'll leave it to old Carl."

That night the strange sound that had been heard in Rolff House was the talk of the village, and the more timid workmen had their fears wrought on by the warnings and prophecies of the old fellow on every hand.

The next day not half of the workmen appeared to resume their labor at Rolff House. A number of them, however, made their appearance, quite resolved not to be easily frightened.

They went to work, and the mysterious sound was heard as before. By noon, the panic had been communicated to others, and they did not return, and before night still others had left their posts. The next day, the building was practically deserted.

CHAPTER XXV.

This interruption of his plans was extremely annoying to the lawyer, who had been sent for by the owner to reach the estate previously narrated. The workmen were gathered at a safe distance from the old mansion. It was vain that he interceded with them. All were inclined to attribute it to some supernatural means, save one man—the red-bearded, jovial fellow, who had sneered at the superstitious tales about the old house in the bar-room of Rolff's tavern a few evenings before. He was a carpenter—a burly, good-natured, sceptical, fearless man; and now, having recovered his presence of mind, he was disposed to ridicule the fears of his fellow workmen.

"Ho, ho," he exclaimed, "we are to be frightened from our work by spooks, are we? For my part, I believe some chap is down there in the cellar trying to make fools of us, and if any man dare go with me, we will go down and put him out."

Proscribed Races.

Theodore Watts-Dunton, in an article in The London Star dealing with the "Proscribed Races," says: "Some few men seem to be drawn instinctively toward the proscribed races of the world."

I confess to being one of these myself. This is why I have always felt the strongest admiration for the greatest of all the proscribed races—the Jews—and number among them some of my most intimate friends.

I have lately been reading an edition of Shakespeare. With regard to the gypsies, who I am at this moment writing upon the subject in a book, I have been struck by the fact that a gypsy woman once said to me and a Romanay friend of mine:

"There's women in the wind of Gypsies that shut the Romanay's mouth and open his eyes and ears. From this world into three families—those who are duped by it, those who are duped by it, and those who are duped by it."

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay.

It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds, the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash? A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurons, the Baldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. Today he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at from $1.00 per value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

There are many persons who assert that there is nothing in it for the average investor and that it does not pay to invest small sums in stock. Let such persons ask themselves what returns they can hope to get through banks or real estate speculations, for sums of under $100.00, and then consider the following:—

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $8,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1880 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $682.

$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $5,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend-paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Mallory, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $30, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

Not does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore mills only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours.

The Alaska Treadwell ore mills $2.38 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par.

No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management. Respectfully submitted,

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January, 29th, 1902.

Dear Sir,—I mention your name in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I think it may do you good to hear from me. I was afflicted with skin trouble for many years. I have tried several doctors and they done me no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clark's Skin Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Parks Station, E.R.I.

Dr. Clark's Skin Cure for Eczema is the best medicine on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 411 Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes: "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your eczema cure; and need no another doctor's word."

Peter D. McPadden, Riverdale, E.R.I., writes: "I am very busy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your eczema cure. I had some great work for me. I am so much better."

Dr. Clark's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, neuralgia, paralysis, coughs, hoarseness, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the disease have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormrod & Walsh, Peterborough, 50c per box or 5 boxes for $2.50.

THE ORO RICO MINES are located in the Providence Range of Mountains, San Bernardino County, California, consisting of 20 full claims.

THEY ARE MINES NOT PROSPECTS.

Vast ledges of ore running from $5.00 to $80.00 per ton. Five shipments of ore to El Paso Smelter gave returns from $75.00 to $225.00 per ton. This is not a five per cent. a month scheme, but it is a legitimate proposition that will give you better returns than Savings Bank or Mortgage loans. No business in the world is safer as an investment or more profitable than mining, and none offer a more honest dollar.

Remember that little money is ever made by purchasing Stocks which are already paying dividends. When you do this you pay DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR for everything you get. You must make your money on your JUDGEMENT and your FORESIGHT. It is the foresight that makes money, and if you follow the direction of your foresight you will secure a block of ORO RICO STOCK, and when dividends are paid your income will be five times greater than if you waited until the stock sold at par. The new Milling Plant is now being put in place and gold bullion will soon be turned out. After the first run you can't get the stock at present price. It will soon be 50 per cent. higher.

The Officers and Directors of the Company have recently visited the mines and returned full of enthusiasm. The mines are turning out much richer than expected.

I can offer the Stock at a short time only at 20 cents per share. It is worth double that.

Black Hills Copper Company

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ore in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to day.

A limited amount of the Stock is now offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

The Anaconda Gold Mining Co.

Home Office: 412 Merchants Loan and Trust Bldg.
165 Adams Street, Chicago, Ill.

This is one of the best propositions ever placed before the Canadian investor. The Company owns 600 acres in the celebrated Black Hills District, South Dakota, comprising 25 claims. The track is unquestionably on the great Homestake belt, being located directly between the wonderful Homestake mine and the Overland Lead mine. Two shafts have already been sunk, the main one being down 164 feet, with capacity of 500 tons per day. The Company has also installed an Ingersoll-Rand air compressor and drill, 125 horse power boiler, steam pump, and in fact everything needed for actual operation, with the exception of its stamp mill, which will be installed at once. The vein of gold-bearing quartz traversing the Company's property is very rich. Assays have run from $5 to $100 per ton.

The Company has a capital of 1,000,000 shares, divided into 750,000 preferred and 250,000 common, par value $1 per share, fully paid up and non-assessable. The treasury stock has been made preferred stock to the amount of 25 cents a share. Out of the first dividend 25 cents per share will be paid to the owners of this preferred stock before holders of common stock receive any share of the dividend. After the 25 cents has been paid to the shareholders of preferred stock, then all other shares in the dividend. (This means an extra low bid that the first investor in the enterprise will have all their money returned to them before any dividends are declared to the rank and file investors.)

A limited amount of stock has been placed on the Canadian market. Full particulars and copy of prospectus may be obtained from Mr. R. J. KIDD, at the undersigned Agent for Peterborough.

STOCK MARKETS

The following advices were received by Mr. J. Cummings & Co., 108

Simcoe street, over their private

New York, Sept. 14.—There was rather an unsettled feeling in the stock market Monday and the fluctuations naturally were rather feverish and uncertain and some stocks were prepared for no other reason than simply to accommodate the will of professional interests. There was much selling of the steel stocks and the common went to a new low price on the heavy selling for the account of London investors, some of the speculators showed weakness while a number of the grangers sold on the low temperatures in the west, and the talk of killing frosts in some sections of the surplus corn states.

The monetary situation attracted considerable attention, though conservative interests were inclined to disregard all feelings of apprehension regarding the future. They figured the banks to be in very strong position for the source of the year. Railroad interests continued the source of much comment, several annual reports coming to hand, showing large increases in income. The private cables from London were to the effect that the markets were still and narrow with little direct tendency either to decline or to advance.

The increasing gravity of the Italian situation disturbed the London markets which are heavy.

Refined sugar reduced by American and Liverpool tea per cent.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—The wheat market at the moment seems rather feverish; there are two elements in the market, one of which is the report rather unfavorable and for this reason the Minneapolis shorts are covering. The consequence of the primary market accumulation during the past week it is likely there will be good business in the visible supply today.

The export demand continues light and the source of considerable business, though on the other hand the flour grinding is very heavy and domestic consumption is expected to show an increase this year. The corn market is in a rather peculiar state, inasmuch as the leading interests in the market are working on both sides of the account and neither the bulls nor the bears seem disposed to reduce their commitments.

The content will continue in all probability until one or the other side gives up the fight for control of the market and in the meantime the trade is likely to be rather sluggish and narrow.

The Cause.

Mr. Stringer, the head of the firm, was in a thoughtful mood on this particular morning, as he came into the office and sat down at his desk. His assistants very kindly and with a face were in a brown study. Something was wrong.

The fact was that Worthington, the bright young clerk in whom Mr. Stringer had hitherto taken such a fatherly interest, had fallen sick in his port of late that something had to be done about it. Worthington had done so well up to within the last few weeks that his sudden deterioration was a matter of wonder as well as anxiety in the office.

His error after had been traced to him.

Things, of course, could not go on in this way.

The head of the firm rang a bell.

"Tell Mr. Worthington," he said to the boy, "that I desire to see him."

That young man, looking somewhat preoccupied, presently appeared.

"Mr. Worthington," said his employer, his face glowing more stern as he spoke,

"as you are doubtless aware every business, to be successful, must be conducted upon business principles. Until recently your work has been perfectly satisfactory, as the increase in your salary from time to time has doubtless told you. But within the past few weeks so many mistakes have been laid at your door that I am compelled to enquire whether you are still in the line of sort of thing regularly. If so, I am afraid we shall have to get someone to fill your place."

Worthington started. The deep flush on his face spread over his face bore evidence of his feeling.

"You are right, sir," he stammered.

"I shall have to do better. I will do better."

"May I ask," said Mr. Stringer, "what has been the cause of your deterioration? I hope it is not dissipation."

"Oh, no, sir! If you will excuse me from the office for an hour or so, I think it can produce sufficient evidence to the contrary."

"Very well, sir; you may go."

About an hour later, the negligent clerk once more entered the private office of his employer.

"This time, however," he was not alone.

"Allow me, sir," he said, simply, "to introduce to you the cause of my recent mistakes—my future wife."

"Mr. Stringer arose to his feet, and looked steadily down at the bewildered young girl who stood smiling before him.

Then he turned to Worthington, as he dropped her hand in his.

"My boy," he said, "how in the world do you come to make so few mistakes?"

Worthington smiled.

Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5
More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but also rich in gold, and they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive work, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter is a modern one, producing over $100,000.

The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them are—Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Seymour W. Lockwood, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Grand Consolidated; Mr. Edwin D. Broadwell, Mining Engineer and Geologist and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now clear and undisputed title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A portion of the Treasury stock is offered for sale—to complete the development and equipment of the property—for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

ROLE HOUSE

By G. H. BENEDICT.

A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.

Not a man ventured to accept this offer, spite of his taunts of cowardice; and at length he said: "Well, if no one will go with me, I will go alone. But you are all babies. There's some reason in that house has been playing tricks on us. But I'll show him he can't frighten me. If he's in there yet, I'll find him out."

So saying he boldly entered the half-ruined old house, and he had been left burning, and started down to search the lower rooms, while his companions waited outside in consternation at his daring actions.

He had not been gone over five minutes, however, when he appeared again, rushing out of the house, with white countenance and evidently in mortal terror, he paused on reaching the group of his comrades, who gathered around him and eagerly besought him to tell what he had seen. It was some seconds before he could regain control enough of himself to speak. At last he said: "What a fool and coward I am! But, upon my soul, I couldn't help it. They tell me lies about that house. As I am a living man, when I got down in that gloomy old basement, I saw somebody who must be the spirit of old Magnus Rolfe or else the very Devil himself. I wasn't mistaken. It was no human being. For my part, I won't go in that house again except in the daylight to get my tools. I've had enough of it."

This confirmation of all their fears by one who had been so bold to deny and investigate, increased the consternation of the workmen, and all resolved to abandon their work at once, and not to resume it. Their return to the village, and the strange stories they had to tell, of course caused a great sensation, and was the only topic of gossip that evening, and the excitement and interest grew as the news spread.

This sudden breaking up of his plans in regard to Rolfe House caused the lawyer to set all his wits to work. He was shrewd enough to see at once that unless the public delusion could be counteracted, and either the true cause of the mysterious occurrences at Rolfe House discovered, or the matter peacefully explained, his plans for the repair of the old house would be completely ruined. He felt that he must have a nature to put any faith in the stories of a supernatural origin to the occurrences. He had his suspicions as to the true cause, and he confided them to Ralph.

"I more than half believe," he said, in discussing the subject, "that old Carl Crum is at the bottom of the whole matter. I have had my eye on him for some time for he was working at a nature to put any faith in the stories of a supernatural origin to the occurrences. He had his suspicions as to the true cause, and he confided them to Ralph."

"I have heard that he took pains to create the impression that there was trouble in the house if any object dared to enter it to carry out any objects; and the inference is very plain that he has engineered this whole ghost business. I do not know but that he may have as an object—a serious object, too; for I have always been more than half suspicious that he was a party in some way to the old lady's secret instructions to Claude. My inference is that he is a sort of private guardian of the old vault, perhaps with secret instructions, and that is one reason why I have hesitated to have anything to do with it. At any rate, we must unravel this mystery. It is delaying our plans, and threatens to defeat them. I am excessively annoyed, Ralph. After all our good work, it seems as though that we should be delayed and bothered in this ridiculous way. I wish I had a good man to employ in this matter, but there is none, and we must trust to ourselves. Now what is the first step to pursue?"

"I hardly feel capable of advising," replied Ralph. "Our own experience in the house hasn't been such as to encourage us to attempt a new investigation."

"That is the way I feel," replied the older plotter; "but still something must be done and it seems as if there was no means but for us to attempt it ourselves. Let us be practical, Ralph. Of course, there are no ghosts in that old house. Somebody is causing these disturbances. They will probably not remain in the house now that the work has been stopped. We can go over, if necessary, and make an investigation that will probably result in discovering some clue to the means by which the noises and other ghostly tricks have been produced. We must go. Our success depends on it. What do you say?"

"Well, if we must, we must," replied Ralph; "but I had rather it were somebody beside me."

"Of course, of course," replied the father, "and I would like to go with you. Perhaps we can get some of our fellow to accompany us. I'll see in the morning. But to-morrow afternoon I propose to make an investigation that will unravel this mystery."

CHAPTER XXV.

Although, in the war that had ensued between the British government and the young American republic, the British naval commanders had promptly declared a blockade of the entire American coast, and great fleets had been sent to enforce the blockade, yet much was the adventure and hardy character of our seamen of the day, that the efforts to shut up our ports were very far from successful. Not only did the vessels of our infant navy put to sea, and, under daring and skillful command, gain a series of brilliant victories, that compensated largely for the early military disasters on land, but within a few weeks after the declaration of war, the seas were fast swarming with American privateers. The most prominent and wealthy merchants of the country engaged in this sort of business venture, and light, swift schooners, heavily armed, and capable of outlasting any other vessels then known, were sent to sea by the hundreds from every port almost, and inflicted immense damage on the enemy's commerce. The furthest east that were whittened by Britain's commercial fleet were not safe from the depredations of these daring cruisers. They even invaded the British channel, and watched the hawks about the English coast, spite of it being that one daring privateer commander, while cruising off the mouth of the Thames, sent a vessel to London proclaiming a blockade of the entire British islands, in ridicule of the blockade of the American coast so lately proclaimed by the British naval

The Chesapeake Bay became the great rendezvous of these privateering craft, owing to the difficulty of blockading it, and the city of Baltimore gained its early commercial supremacy and laid the foundation of its future prosperity by the ventures of its merchants in this sort of speculation.

Early in December, 1812, the privateer schooner Harpy, one dark and stormy night, ran into the harbor of Baltimore, having successfully avoided the blockading vessels. She had been gone on a six months' cruise, having sailed from the port of New York, but, on her return, finding it closely blockaded she had sought the safer waters of the Chesapeake to make port.

While on her homeward voyage, the Harpy, during a heavy fog, had got into clouds, and, in an enemy's line, without being aware of it. The fog suddenly lifting, she had found herself lying directly under the guns of a ship carrying double her weight of metal, firing the British flag. Her own character was well enough told in her tall masts and low, sharp lines; and the enemy had at once opened on her with a broadside. The vessel, however, the commander of the Harpy involved on a daring manoeuvre to escape capture or destruction. Bearing directly down on the enemy, he exchanged broadsides, then, considerably to the disadvantage of the Harpy, the latter could tack and again bring her guns to bear. The Harpy, being very swift, had now a difficulty in drawing away from the pursuing enemy, and in the meantime as much as possible with her long swivel gun.

In this little affair, two of the Harpy's crew had been killed and several wounded, and the first duty of the commander, after casting anchor, was to get the latter ashore.

Among the wounded crew, was a handsome young man, who, though scarcely past the period of manhood, and who seemed of more gentle birth and bearing than his sailor's garb would warrant.

(To be continued.)

A Frenchman's View of Our Girls

In his volume "Madness and Love," M. de la Roche, an observer during his recent visit to the United States and Canada, flings the La Rous, the distinguished French critic, wholly disapproves of universal education for girls, and, with much sympathy, of female teachers for boys. He says: "Men should no more learn to think as women do, than women should mould their thoughts and their natures after the patterns of the masculine temperament."

The sort of woman which the colleges turn out here he dubs the "third sex," and he includes in this category the "American lady woman," for whom he has the special dread. He descends on the frequency of unhappy marriages in the United States, and says: "Almost always it is the woman who is responsible for the bankruptcy." He thinks that co-education is largely responsible for ill-fitted matches and for the disillusionment that follows. About the American girl he says: "The absolute way she brings into the family simply because she has taken the trouble to be born is keener in America than anywhere else in the world." Then he describes how she is spoiled by everybody, how no duties are laid upon her, how she is petted upon her, how she becomes utterly selfish and over-joyed, but only gradually permits others to love her. "This worship of self, related to the standard of a moral principle, is the outcome of the absolute independence wherein the American girl is brought up by her family."

La Rous considers the strict standards surrounding the society debut of our girls shameful and in wretched taste. He says: "The American girl, face to face with her conscience, does not recognize any very pressing duty except toward herself." He thinks, however, she is better educated and the intellectual superiority of the American man, owing to a longer intellectual training and to favoring outward circumstances, and thinks this deplorable for the whole country. He discusses at length her disinclination to marry, and draws very far-reaching conclusions. He says: "Is motherhood a bondage or a joy for woman? Does the individual owe more to society or to herself? History answers: To society. The third sex answers: To no one. He goes somewhat extensively into the question of the increasing sterility of the American woman, and says: "Is the moral ruin to which is condemned our society wherein women have usurped the place that belongs to man? And he says Americans of the older stock are "doomed as to the destiny of their race," and that "all the great qualities needed down to us from the past are being wiped out mercilessly under the torrent of gold, the burden of feminine pride, and feminine selfishness."

The female reporter he holds in special dread as a "blackmailer," if she has the chance. To the "Wrestless Woman" he devotes a whole chapter. He says: "Wherever fate gives the weak a chance to rule, they take unfair advantage. After debauching Man in the United States to suit herself precisely Woman is still unsatisfied, and does not like her handiwork. That is why she prefers foreigners for husbands, they being more romantic than men, too. La Rous declares that the women of the past, with their wives and with the position of women here. But he is sure there will be a dreadful awakening for both, and another "great revolution" to set matters right. With Man re-established the undoubted master of Woman.

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay.

It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds, the keenest intellects. It is the line of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash? A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefit.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the MacKays, the Fairs, the Fieles, the Shurons, the Baldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied.

W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing then sold at from $1.00 per share down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

There are many persons who assert that there is nothing in it for the average investor and that it does not pay to invest small sums in stock. Let such persons ask themselves what returns they can hope to get through banks or real estate speculation, for sums of under $100.00, and then consider the following:

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $87.00.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1880 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,866.

$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $3,600.

$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $682.

$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 237 dividend-paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Mallory, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $20, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

Now does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore mills only $2.25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come out every eight hours.

The Alaska Treadwell ore mills $2.38 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par. No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management. Respectfully submitted,

January, 29th, 1902.

Dear Sir,—I notice your advert, in a paper about your wonderful ointment cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 15 years. I have tried several doctors and they do me no good, I only used one but of Dr. Clark's Sure Cure for Eczema, it has made a complete cure, I recommend it to all suffering from skin diseases. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,

MR. JOHN WOOD,

Punka Station, P.M.

Dr. Clark's Sure Cure for Eczema is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 411 Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes: "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your ointment cure, and need no another doctor's word."

Miss D. McPherson, Riverside, P.E.I., writes: "I am very busy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your ointment cure. It has done grand work for me. I am so much better."

Dr. Clark's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lassa febrile, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormrod & Walsh, Peterborough. 50c per box or 3 boxes for $1.50.

COPETE MINING CO.

27 William Street, New York

Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5
More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but also rich in gold that they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter in a short run produced something over $100,000.

The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them are—Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Benjamin W. Tully, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Greene Consolidated; Mr. Edwin D. Treadwell, Mining Engineer and Geologist and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now cleared and unencumbered title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A notice of the Treasury stock is offered for sale to complete the development and equipment of the property—now for a short time only at $2.00 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

ROLFF HOUSE

By G. H. BENEDICT.

A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.

Placed in the hospital with the rest of the wounded sailors, he became an object of special interest to the surgeon in charge. During the conflict with the enemy's brig, while helping to man one of the guns, he had been struck in the side by a flying bolt from the gun-carriage of the gun he was operating. The work, which had been hit by one of the enemy's shot, and besides the breaking of three or four ribs, had received severe internal injuries.

He was not yet out of danger—indeed, the shock to his system from effects of his removal to the hospital had aggravated his symptoms, and caused the surgeon considerable anxiety. His first words, on reaching the hospital, had been the inquiry:

"Doctor, how soon can I get out of this?"
The surgeon did not reply, but proceeded to examine into his injuries, and then to recommend to his assistant such measures as he thought necessary to better his condition. But ere the surgeon drew away, the young patient repeated his question.

"Doctor, won't you tell me how soon I can get out of this?"
"Why, my dear sir," replied the kind surgeon, "judging from your present condition, you may have to remain with us several months."

"Oh, no, no, no," almost screamed the young man; "I cannot be. Don't deceive me, doctor. Can't you put me on my feet in a week?"

"Nonsense," replied the surgeon. "If you are out in eight weeks, you may consider yourself lucky. Now, no more talking. The less you talk and worry the sooner you will get well."

"But I must have the assurance that I can leave this place soon—very soon," continued the young man. You do not know what depends upon it, doctor. I had rather die than stay here a month. You must do your best for me, doctor."

The surgeon glanced again at the white, sunken face, that showed plainly the traces of deep suffering, and the large, brilliant eyes, and replied, with a grave shake of the head:

"I can make no promise, my dear young man. You are very badly hurt, and will need a good long rest and plenty of care to cure you. Of course, I will do my best for you; but you must not worry or fret. It will only delay your cure. If you have friends who wish to inform the attendants will write for you. But now, no more words. I strictly forbid you saying anything more."

The young man turned his head away with an expression of pain and despair, and the surgeon passed on in his rounds of the hospital.

A week passed by, and every day the interesting young patient, as the surgeon termed the wounded young sailor from the Harpy, renewed his pleadings with the surgeon to secure an early discharge from the hospital. With good care, rest and nourishment, however, he was slowly gaining strength, and asserted that he felt well enough to leave; but the surgeon was afraid that the internal injuries were too grave a character to warrant an early discharge from his care, and denied every appeal allowed to leave.

One morning, on his rounds of the hospital, the surgeon, on the way to that contained the wounded sailors—most of whom were now convalescent. On approaching the cot that had contained the young man, he was greatly surprised to find it vacant. He had just been considering, as he came along, the advisability of informing his very anxious patient that he could be discharged in a week or two. But he was gone. Inquiry gave no clue to the secret of his departure, nor were any of the hospital attendants aware of it. He had evidently got worded of waiting a cure, and, securing the help, probably of some of his sailor comrades, had been assisted to dress and make his way from the hospital without attracting the attention of anybody.

The surgeon was very much chagrined and indignant. He berated his assistants roundly for their want of watchfulness.

"It's a pity," he said, as he moved on. "That boy will probably sacrifice his life to his sea to return to his friends in a couple of weeks. He might have gone to sea and made his way from the hospital without attracting the attention of anybody."

For many weeks, the disappearance of the young sailor was the subject of curiosity and speculation in the hospital.

CHAPTER XXVII.
Spite of his skepticism as to the nature of the mysterious occurrences at Rolff House, and his suspicions that Carl Crum was at the bottom of the whole business, Anthony Saybrook felt nervous and uneasy in regard to the proposed visit of himself and Ralph to the house to investigate the matter. Many men who are intellectually very daring, was physically a coward, and, though he was no believer whatever in ghosts, he had an undefinable dread of again entering the old mansion while in its present state. He could not forget the strange and terrible death of Lok Rackett, nor the fright he had had at the time of the discovery of the corpse of the would-be robber of the strong vault built by Magnus Rolff.

While inwardly asserting at his own cowardice, he made an effort to secure the services of some resource man to accompany him on the proposed investigation; but without success. There were but few men in the little community whom he would have trusted for such a purpose, and, not such to his surprise, all whom he approached on the subject had business on hand that prevented their acceptance of his offer, or else they honestly confessed that they had no wish to enter the old house after all the strange occurrences there.

"It is just as I feared," Ralph said to the lawyer to his returning from his unsuccessful mission. "This internal trickery has so imposed upon the community that it is practically impossible to get anybody to go within gunshot of the old house. There is no other way for it—we must go alone. And why shouldn't we? I confess I feel somewhat nervous; but, what's what is there to be afraid of? Suppose we should run across old Crum or some other mischievous fellow there? We shall go well armed and prepared, and have ready nothing to fear. Get your pistols ready, and I will see to mine, and to having the lanterns prepared; and, after a good dinner, and a bottle of wine to warm our courage, I think we will be ready for the trip."

"Well, I am not disposed to back out," said Ralph. "My pistols are good ones; and if, as you say, we should meet any fellow there, we ought to be able to take a good account of ourselves. But I have no idea we shall meet anybody; and, of course, the idea of our encountering ghosts is preposterous."

"Exactly," Ralph perfectly silly. "Strange people should be so superstitious," remarked Ralph, with an air intended to indicate his own entire superiority to such a feeling.

"Well, I don't know," was the reply. "Considering the popular ignorance. There are very few who have any real knowledge of philosophy and science, and it is perfectly natural that the uneducated should refer to the phenomena of Nature, and even the most simple occurrences out of the usual order, to supernatural causes. It is only the highly intelligent, Ralph, who are superior to the weakness of superstition. Had your own education been different, you might have been more susceptible to ordinary delusions. But I flatter myself that I have pursued such a system and afforded such an example in your education that you are far above any such unmanly weakness as a belief in ghosts."

Thus delivering himself, Anthony Saybrook drew himself up with an air that would certainly have been crushing to any simple-minded believer in ghosts had he been present.

Ralph noticed his contumacious and the sentiment expressed; and thus they mutually encouraged each other for the expedition on hand.

Dinner-hour arrived, and the meal was dispatched, although neither could enjoy it with his usual appetite, spite of an apparent effort to appear unconcerned and cheerful. But each made up for want of appetite by indulging rather freely in the after-dinner potations, until their spirits were thoroughly fortified, and they felt almost courageous enough to meet a veritable ghost.

(To be continued.)

The Day After.

Manifold are the songs that celebrate our holidays and anniversaries, plentiful are the pages filled with suitable selections and appropriate refrains commemorating this great day or that remarkable event. Live there a holiday so humble that it has not its heat of eulogists? Is there a memorable time that has escaped due recognition?

Yes, one—and that of such incalculable importance that it should stand preeminent among red-letter days: a day the value of which none may ignore; the vast significance of which all must acknowledge; a day that plays a vital part in the history of the world, the history of every soul. It is a petty day of judgment. A day that tests our passions and tries our strength and patience, and teaches us the worth of all our red-letter days, none of which may dare rival this one in might and majesty.

It is a strange omission that the "Day After," supreme and epoch-making period of time, should have failed to receive the homage which is its just prerogative.

The Day After the last, we run might risk of overlooking its value. The Day After the ball, we can sit down to analyze our partners. The Day After the wedding begins a new regime for better or for worse. The Day After the funeral the bereaved realize that the beloved one has departed.

It is the day that tests, and tells, and laughs, and weeps, and registers its date upon the soul.

The battle surely tries the general's skill and strength, but the Day After reveals his character and greatness in the hour of defeat. The Day After the triumph or the defeat, we learn the measure of the king.

Upon a summer day we about the wondrous victory of Manila, but the Day After reveals his character and greatness in the hour of defeat. The Day After the triumph or the defeat, we learn the measure of the king.

What means those two great words "success" and "defeat" save in the light of the Day After?

The angel with the flaming sword drives Adam and Eve from Paradise, and then begins the story of the world.

A climax is much oftener a beginning than an ending. We follow a series of great events up to the instant of triumph or defeat, and then we end abruptly; such a conclusion is verily artificial.

The curtain falls as Phyllis murmurs "and still the audience wonders if the glad ending will really prove so, when tested by the clear promise daylight that is to come."

Ah, vital day of days, we are incapable of measuring our other days except by you!

Breathing your calm tranquillity, we know regret and thankfulness. In your judgment we recognize success and failure, which is the mark of every great and stirring action we are unable to distinguish.

And of the end, we speak of "Death" with lowered tones and dim forebodings, yet we not Death we fear, but the Day After—from the "Contributors' Club."

"Grandpa, what is a morgue marriage?" "A morgue marriage? Him. That must be a marriage for money."

"N. Y. Life."

"Dante" remarked Mrs. Brownly interrogatively. "No, don't know as I'm familiar, too. Oh, yes! Ann Dante—I knew I had heard of somebody of that name; wonder if it was his daughter!"

Honest Speculation

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE." Some enterprises are worth investigating, and this is one of them.

There has never been a period in the history of the world when wealth could be acquired any other way than by conservative speculation.

Speculation is the world's financial pivot. Without it man would relax into the mental indifference of savages, and governments would decay. It is the ruling force of the world. It absorbs the attention of the greatest minds, the keenest intellects. It is the link of demarcation between the listless, phlegmatic man, and the alert, progressive, ambitious man.

Are you going to speculate with a little surplus cash? A ground floor opportunity is in every enterprise, and it is the ground floor investor who reaps the greatest benefits.

More honest millions come from mining than from any other pursuit. When mining is followed with energy, honesty and economy, it is as certain and honest as banking and more profitable. The banker makes his money off the earnings of others. The miner is an original producer and adds to the wealth of the world. Get a mine. Give it honest and economical management and success is assured. That the number of dividend paying mining companies is larger than all other combined industries, is fully sustained by statistics. That mining produces greater and quicker profits than any other industrial pursuit, is evidenced by the score of multi-millionaires. That there are risks in mining as well as in all other business pursuits, is well known to all reasonable minds, but the immense fortune of the Mackays, the Fairs, the Fields, the Shurons, the Baldwins, the Clarks and hundreds of others, are due to mining, cannot be denied. W. C. Greene was a poor man four years ago. To-day he is worth $50,000,000. Each producing mine in Sonora was only an uncertain prospect a few years ago, and stock in the different companies developing them sold at $1.00 per value down to five cents per share, and now cannot be bought at any price in many cases, and in others, away above par.

There are many persons who assert that there is nothing in it for the average investor and that it does not pay to invest small sums in stock. Let such persons ask themselves what returns they can hope to get through banks or real estate speculations, for sums of under $100.00, and then consider the following:—

Two years ago $100.00 invested in the Greene Consolidated stock at $1.00 a share is now worth $3,700.

$100 in United Verde in 1897 is now worth $30,000.

$100 in Calumet & Hecla in 1880 is now worth $7,600.

$100 in the Boston & Montana in 1896 is now worth $1,800.

$100 in the Butte & Boston in 1896 is now worth $5,000.

$100 in Tamarack Copper in 1890 is now worth $692.

$100 in Wolverine Copper in 1893 is now worth $5,600.

$100 in the Jack Pot Mine in 1894 is now worth $6,000.

The New York Engineering Journal gives a list of 337 dividend-paying mines, of which shares are at a premium, and in all of which the first cost of the shares was away below par. Many fortunes made by mining investments of small amounts can be recited.

Mallory, of Spokane, bought one-third interest in the Flagstaff for $30, which is now paying $100,000 yearly.

Half interest in the Bonanza sold for $250, monthly output later $100,000.

The Union sold for $1,000, afterwards paid several hundred thousand in dividends and sold for $1,000,000.

The Red Boy owners borrowed money to freight a car load of ore and now pay $50,000 monthly.

Does it require immensely rich ore for successful mining?—The Home Stake in the Black Hills cannot be bought at any price. Ore mills only $25 per ton. It works 15,000 men. 5,000 men go down 1,000 feet or more, and 5,000 come up every eight hours. The Alaska Treadwell ore mills $2.38 per ton; the stock 500 per cent. above par. No mining proposition has ever failed on a developed deposit of good value and honest management.

Respectfully submitted,

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonials may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January, 29th, 1902.
Dear Sirs,—I make you advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 10 years. I have tried several doctors and they done me no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clark's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so red that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Parks Station, E.M.I.

Dr. Clark's Sure Cure for Catarrh is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Susan Hill, 413 Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes: "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your catarrh cure; send me another dollar's worth."

Wm. E. McPherson, Riverdale, Ill., writes: "I am very busy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your catarrh cure. It has done grand work for me, I am so much better."

Dr. Clark's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, cough, hoarseness, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough, 90c per box or 3 boxes for $2.50.

Dr. Clark's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clark's Sure Cure for Eczema, name price, also will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

Black Hills Copper Company LIMITED

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ore in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to day.

A limited amount of the Stock is now offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

The Company is capitalized at $800,000, consisting of 2,000,000 shares, for value one dollar per share. Fully paid and non-assessable. The stock is now offered at 50 cents per share.

The Property
Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, situated in the State of Colorado. This property has also been developed since then.

$80,000,000 in Gold
The development of the property consists of many shafts sunk to a depth of 1,000 to 2,000 feet, and a tunnel in a distance of 1,000 feet, and only in the last few years. The property is now being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

Transportation
The Colorado Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mine of the tunnel. All ore can be shipped therefrom directly into the lake, giving quick and cheap transportation to the lake. Large returns have been paid from the property since then.

The Anaconda Gold Mining Co.

Home Office: 412 Merchants Loan and Trust Bldg.
155 Adams Street, Chicago, Ill.

This is one of the best propositions ever placed before the Canadian investor. The Company owns 600 acres in the celebrated Black Hills District, South Dakota, comprising 25 claims. The track is now, unquestionably on the great Black Hills belt, being located directly between the world-famous Homestake mine and the Great Lead mine. The property has already been sunk, the main one being down 100 feet, with capacity of going 1,000 feet. The Company has also installed an largest-highest air compressor and drill, 125 horse power boiler, steam engine, and in fact everything needed for successful operation, with the exception of its stamp mill, which will be installed at once. The value of gold-bearing quartz traversing the Company's property is very rich. Assays have run from $5 to $54.25 per ton.

The Company has a capital of 1,000,000 shares, divided into 700,000 preferred and 300,000 common, also 500,000 shares fully paid up and non-assessable. The treasury stock has been made preferred stock to the amount of 50 cents a share. Out of the first dividend 25 cents per share will be paid to the owners of the preferred stock before holders of common stock receive any share of the dividend. After the 25 cents has been paid to the shareholders of preferred stock, then all the share in the dividends. (This means nothing less than that the first holders in the company will have all their money returned to them before any dividends are declared to the rank and file of investors.)

A limited amount of Stock has been placed on the Canadian market. Full particulars and copy of prospectus may be obtained from MR. R. J. KIDD, or the undersigned Agent for Peterborough city.

STOCK MARKETS

The following advices were received by Mr. J. Cummings & Co., 100 Simcoe Street, over their private New York, Sept. 16—There was a change in sentiment in the stock market yesterday and the market became firm on an inclination on the part of the shorts to cover. There was a good demand for stocks in the past, but the market was not so strong as it was yesterday. The market was somewhat quiet in the morning, but it became more active in the afternoon. The market was somewhat quiet in the morning, but it became more active in the afternoon. The market was somewhat quiet in the morning, but it became more active in the afternoon.

There were some fair short at some points of the market. This morning the arguments are less heated, though there are still many who have their doubts regarding the ability of the bulls to bring about better range of prices. The shorts, however, are not of the kind which are staying quiet and little advances readily frighten them, under the circumstances it is likely that the market will continue in a volatile condition, with some of the shorts being forced to cover. The market is now in a position to move in either direction, and it is likely that the market will continue in a volatile condition, with some of the shorts being forced to cover.
